But she was lovely, one of those tall angular girls whose every move is grace. And as she stepped from the car and walked across the carpet and up the steps of the church she was regal.

The wedding procession stood poised to go. Fay on the arm of her cousin from Milwaukee, all hot and bothered in rented dress clothes, and an avenue of impeccable ushers. The first peal of the organ had sounded—when away off down the aisle there was a flurry of excitement.

Wedding guests turned, startled—for David's mother was coming down the red carpet toward us almost on the run. She billowed into the entry and grasped Fay by the hands.

"My dear," she puffed. "I just happened to think. Here, take my pearls——" and she flung them about Fay's neck. "I never would have felt that you and David were really married if you had gone to the altar without something borrowed!"

"Thank you," said Fay, taking the pearls.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17—The Hon. George Norris, senator from Nebraska, is and proposes to remain the captain of his soul, politically speaking.

For the moment he is concerned only with the fate next November of such senate colleagues as Shipstead, LaFollette, Howell, Frazier, Wheeler and Dill. He classes them all as "progressive" senators, although the group includes republicans, democrats and the single farmer-labor senate member, Shipstead.

Norris is for them not because of, but despite their party affiliations, and says so. He is outbound on a single-handed campaign to re-elect them because of their senate records on matters he regards as much more vital than the mere question of their party ties are whether they are Hoover or Smith supporters.

Norris Usually Frank

Which is quite typical of Norris, the political free-thinker, as Washington has come to know him from long experience. It has not seen a great many men in either branch "on the hill" who calmly went about the business of politics, steering independent courses of action on issues for themselves, with the same freedom from party control that the Hon. George displays, day in and day out. He is, publicly or privately, as a rule exceedingly frank in stating his views.

That very Norris frankness served to call attention sharply to certain reticences about his exposition of his plans when he headed west to resume the campaigning activities interrupted by a brief visit to Washington. He was by way of calling attention to these reservations himself, pointing out that his announced intention of keeping out of the presidential aspect of the fracas in the talks for re-election of progressive senators he was to make did not bind him beyond the completion of his itinerary, about October 25.

"I am differentiating the presidential situation from the senatorial situation in this campaign up in those states," Senator Norris explained. "I have not said what attitude I am going to take later. I don't say now."

Decision Awaited

When Governor Smith announced the layout of his western invasion some weeks ago, the Bystander took the opportunity to suggest that at least one of the major objectives which underlay the political strategy of the democratic standard bearer might well be an effort to get Norris out in open support of his candidacy. Since then Norris had said repeatedly that he did like Smith's pronouncements dur ng that trip on farm relief, water power and Nicaraguan policy, and did not like the Hoover acceptance speech declarations as to those same matters.

Norris added in Washington that it "must be perfectly plain and fair that you can draw the conclusion that (from his statements) in this presidential campaign, Smith on farm relief, foreign policy and water power, which I regard as the most important things, comes a great deal nearer meeting the progressive idea than Hoover does."

All this being so, the final result of Governor Smith's appeal for progressive support while in the west will not be completely discernable until the Norris mind is made up and disclosed after his senatorial electioneering job is finished.

Burgess Bedtime Story

The Frightened Mouse

By Thomas W. Burgess

Unconsciously we help each other,
And so have need of one another.
—Jimmy Skunk.

Jimmy Skunk awoke and yawned. Then he stretched two or three times. At first he couldn't think where he was. Then he remembered that he was under an old barn. It was the first time he had ever been there. He grinned, as he remembered the foolish young dog who had threatened to attack him just outside, and to whom he had given a lesson he wouldn't soon forget. But he stopped grinning when he remembered the man with the terrible gun, whom he had seen coming toward that barn.

"I wonder where that man is," thought Jimmy. "I don't know how long I've been asleep. He may be waiting around outside. Well, if he is, he can wait. This is a perfectly good place under this old barn and I know there are rats and mice here. I'll do a little hunting and see what I can find."

So Jimmy began to hunt about. He heard faint squeaks and the rustling of tiny feet and his eyes brightened. Those sounds meant mice and young rats. Jimmy prowled around and sniffed here and snuffed there and poked his nose into all sorts of places. By and by, over close to the hole through which he had entered, he jumped for a young mouse.

Now, Jimmy Skunk can move quickly. He doesn't do it often, but when there is a mouse within reach Jimmy can move quickly. This young mouse was only about half-grown. He was just right to make the very best of eating. Jimmy sprang for him but missed him. Away started the mouse for that hole through which Jimmy had entered. That mouse wanted to get outside. Jimmy was right at his heels. Twice he almost got his little black paws on that mouse and then that little mouse darted outside.

The instant that mouse went through that opening there was a sharp metallic snap. It was a horrid sound. Yes, sir, it was a horrid sound! Jimmy Skunk stopped abruptly. He had a silly feeling. That horrid snap gave him a queer feeling in the pit of his stomach. He knew what had made it. It was the sound made by the closing of the jaws of a steel trap. There had been a frightened little squeak at the same time. The squeak had been made by the mouse. Jimmy peared out through the opening. It was moonlight and he could see very well. There, right in front of that opening, was a steel trap with the wicked jaws closed. Jimmy looked for the mouse, but the mouse wasn't there. He had been too small for that trap to catch. It had pinched the tip of his tail and that was all.

Jimmy understood exactly what had happened. "That trap was set for me," thought Jimmy. "Yes, sir, that trap was set for me. That mouse ran right over it and sprung it, but those jaws snapped together right over his head. My, my, that was a lucky escape for me! If I had gone out first I should have stepped right in it and I would have been caught. That little mouse doesn't know it, but he saved my life. That's what he did, saved my life."

Jimmy sat down in front of that hole and did some thinking. "I don't like this," said he. "That trap is perfectly harmless, thanks to that little mouse, but if there is one trap there may be more traps. Yes, sir, there may be more traps. I wonder if I can chase another little mouse out to find out."

Jimmy listened. He could hear no more rustling feet. He would have to hunt long and hard to find another mouse, and then that mouse probably wouldn't run in that direction at all. "I suppose," said Jimmy, "I could step over that trap. But if I should step over that trap I might step right into another trap. I don't dare take the chance. I think I'll go back and lie down and think it over and take another nap. Perhaps that man will come and take away the traps when he finds he can't catch me."

YOUR HEALTH

Body's Protective Alkalinity Increased by Citrus Fruits

By Anthony Bassler, M. D. New York.

If the general body were to become acid, death would ensue at once. After death the alkalinity of the body is overwhelmed by the acids generated in the tissues. The processes of life in the human body are maintained on the basis of alkaline reactions. The only exception to this is found in the hydrochloric acid of normal gastric juice. As a rule urine is also acid, but this is an exception and of no significance.

There are many disorders of the body in which a diminution of the normal alkalinity takes place. The public not knowing physiologic facts call this condition "acidity," but it is not that. Instead, it is merely a diminution of the normal alkaline as in health, so the term "acidity," excepting as it pertains to the stomach, is incorrect. "Lowering of the normal alkalinity" is the term that should be used instead.

The alkaline balance of health is maintained by substances in the food and drink. These may be present in acid foods and fluids that, when oxidized in the body, develop strongly alkaline products. If blue litmus paper is put on a freshly cut apple or in orange, grape fruit or lemon juice, it will turn red, showing that they are acid in reaction. If, however, these substances be oxidized, such as burnt in a Bunsen flame, the ash will be strongly alkaline. Thus the malic acid of the apple and the citric acid of the oranges, grape fruit or lemons really increase the alkalinity of the body by adding to the so-called alkaline reserve in the tissues. It follows, therefore, that in addition to the large amount of vitamins present in fruits and fruit juices, these substances are important articles of diet to keep the body in normal alkalinity—which means health.

Many of the vegetables are also high in alkaline production. Meat, fish, poultry, cheese, and eggs tend toward diminishing it. The latter foods, should not, however, be eliminated entirely because the nitrogen they contain is most essential in maintaining the processes of life in the cells of the body. The sugars, especially those found naturally in food and not the common table sugar, are necessary for heat production. In this the starches are of equal value. But, for proper reaction and to maintain normal chemistry, the fruits, berries and the citrus fruits especiall yare important. In these it is now believed that while orange juice is a perfect substance, it is found that the juice of grape fruit is even better.

IN THE DAYS NEWS

Winnipeg.

"Winnipeg, Canada, which will be the beneficiary of a bumper wheat crop this year, is a magic city of Manitoba which has had a rapid rise similar to many of our own western cities," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Winnipeg is the distributing point for immigrants to the great plains, and is the largest wheat market in the British empire. Her population, falling little short of 200,000, is an outcome of sixty years growth.

"The thriving capital of Manitoba province is known as the most American city across the Canadian line. It has prospered because of a naturally advantageous situation as a meeting ground between the wheat and cattle country of the west and the older settled provinces of the east. The city lies some sixty miles from the boundary where the long reaches of the Assiniborne join the waters of the Red river.

"Winnipeg's history began as Fort Gary back in the fur trading days of the Hudsons Bay company when the fort was one of the last outposts of civilization toward the prairies. A fiercely independent population of half breeds or Metis grew up around the trading station. With the present Winnipeg as a center and Louis Riel as a leader they staged the famous Red river rebellion against the approach of the Dominion government. In 1870 this uprising was crushed by Colonel Wolseley and his famous regiment. A way was thus paved for civilization and the Canadian Pacific railroad. The latter's yards at Winnipeg are now said to be among the largest in the world.

"Immigrants from almost every known country pour daily into the great train shed of this transcontinental railway. They spend some time in Winnipeg as a sort of headquarters and then spread out over the plains. Ten journals in the Icelandic tongue alone are published in and about Winnipeg. There are Mennonite and Doukhobor settlements in Manitoba with all the quaintness of ancient Russia. Demands for settlers on the frontier and for laborers on the great wheat ranches of the older valleys seem inexhaustible.

"The city of Winnipeg itself, built upon the level prairies, is noted more for efficiency, cleanliness and hustle than for municipal beauty. Its architecture is square and plain, like the newer American cities, but it boasts many beautiful residential 'crescents' and 'places.' On older streets the gingerbread architecture of the early nineties with an over supply of mansard roofs strikes the visitor's attention. However, the newer mansions of the well-to-do classes equal any residential districts of a city of similar size in the states.

"Winnipeg's climate is one of extremes, cold in winter and hot in summer, yet it is considered particularly healthy. Winter sports, especially ice boating and curling, attract visitors for miles around. In summer the city dweller has but a drive of sixty miles to reach Grand Beach on Lake Winnipeg, Manitoba's greatest resort. On hot summer days thousands of holiday makers crowd the sands at this popular watering place.

"Winnipeg boasts more sunny days in the year than any other large Canadian center, from which fact it enjoys the nickname of 'Sunshine City.' To the sophisticated traveler this name, like similar designations, must be taken with a grain of salt.

"Nevertheless, Canada's magic city does lie in a district of sunny, black loam prairies, where wheat grows in unrivalled luxuriance during a short, hot northern summer. Likewise the brisk clearness of her long, cold winter makes the spot well suited for out-door winter life. One does not expect the 'Sunshine City' of Canada to rival California. Winnipeg is not San Diego in climate. She comes much nearer making good her claim of rivalling Chicago as a wheat market."

ROTARY DISTRICT GOVERNOR SHOWS HOW CLUBS GROW

James A. Gunn of Turners Falls, Mass., governor of the 30th Rotary district, made his official visitation to the Norwich Rotary club on Wednesday noon. He was enthusiastically greeted by the members of the local club when he was introduced by President Edward W. Jewett.

In his talk to the Rotarians, Governor Jim, as he is affectionately called by Rotarians of the 30th district, brought a very inspiring message and left the local members with a renewed interest in Rotary.

In opening his remarks, Governor Gunn complimented the club on its musical talent, an impromptu program of songs and quartette having been arranged in his honor. He also expressed his appreciation of the cooperation extended him in arranging his itinerary by the Norwich club, as well as others in the 30th district. In speaking of matters pertaining to Rotary he told of his impressions gained at the council meeting of Rotary International held at Chicago. One of the most outstanding impressions was the seriousness in which the Rotarians of other countries take Rotary. They are intensely interested in the work and devote serious attention to it. Speaking of a talk which he had with the Rotary representative of the Czecho-Slovak republic, Governor Gunn said that the Rotary spirit of service had taken such a hold on the man that he was maintaining at his own expense a hospital for crippled children. Meetings of the Rotary club in foreign countries last for three hours or more. The Rotary movement is like nothing they have had before and it is taking a firm hold.

As illustrating what is being done in foreign countries by Rotary Mr. Gunn said that in Monterey, Mexico, the Rotary club raised $35,000 to pay the school teachers when the local government ran out of funds. At Tampico the Rotary club equipped the city with a modern fire department which reduced the insurance rates at least 50 per cent. At Vera Cruz during the small pox epidemic it was the Rotary club that was instrumental in securing serum and having 26,000 persons vaccinated. The wife of the president of the Rotary club there was vaccinated 33 times to show the natives that it was not harmful.

In his talk Gov. Jim announced that the Spring conference would be held in Hartford on April 18-19 and that the International Rotary convention would be held at Dallas, Tex., the latter part of May. Thomas Stephenson of Edinburgh, Scotland, is to be the official visitor at the Hartford conference. Brantford, with a membership of 35 holds its charter night on Nov. 20. In closing, Governor Gunn urged a more strict attendance at Rotary meetings and made numerous suggestions to the fellowship and attendance committees.

The speaker was given a hearty vote of appreciation. With Joseph C. Worth and E. LaRue Bilven as songleaders the musical program was very entertaining, including solos by Henry LaFontaine and Frank R. Murdy, Mr. LaFontaine rendering Love Rules the World and The Water Boy, while Mr. Murdy sang Love's Old Sweet Song. The sextette that assisted in the singing was Eben Learned, Frank G. Aubrey Frank R. Murdy, Flint Brayton, Henry J. LaFontaine and Joseph C. Worth.

James E. Roantree announced that next week the business meeting of the club would be held and that on the 31st of this month there would be a talk on "Immigration."

The meeting closed with the Star Spangled Banner.

Mrs. Annie F. Perkins Woods, widow of Andrew J. Woods, died Tuesday evening at the Sheltering Arms. Mrs. Woods was born in Waterford March 23, 1842 and most of her life had been spent in Westminster.

She is survived by a niece, Mrs. Samuel C. Wilson of Cliff street and a nephew, Frank W. May of Springfield, Mass.

Mrs. William Freeman

As the result of a shock suffered about a week ago Mrs. Frances Freeman, widow of William Freeman, died at her home, No. 38 Hickory street, early Wednesday morning. She had been in failing health for the past two years but her condition did not become serious until a week ago.

Mrs. Freeman was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sanders and was born in Birmingham, Eng., July 9, 1862. She came to this country when a young woman and had made her home in Norwich for a number of years.

Surviving are three sons, Henry A. Freeman of Norwich, William H., and Albert L. Freeman of Detroit, a daughter, Mrs. May Young of this city, one brother, Richard Sanders of Norwich, and two sisters, Mrs. Thomas Buckley and Mrs. John Stott of this city. There are also three grandchildren. Mrs. Freeman's many warm friends extend heartfelt and sincere sympathy to the members of the bereaved family.

TOTAL OF 895 NEW VOTERS MADE WEDNESDAY AT THE COURT HOUSE

The elector's oath was administered to 895 new voters Wednesday at the common council chamber in the court house. The board of selectmen, William E. Murphy, Charles P. Bushnell and Patrick J. Connell, Town Clerk Harold S. Burt and Registrars of Voters Tyler D. Guy and Cornelius J. Downes, were in session 11 hours and the board made voters at the rate of 81 an hour. Including the 607 new voters made last Saturday, the board of selectmen and the town clerk up to 9 o'clock Wednesday night had put through a total of 1,502 applicants for the voters' oath. Some could not be given the oath Wednesday owing to their inability to read the required text. Most of those who could not read the printed matter placed before them claimed they had left their glasses home and could not see. They were told to appear before the board at the next session and to bring their glasses with them. Several neglected to have their naturalization papers with them.

The board was in session from 9 a. m. until 1 p. m. and from 2 p. m. until within a few minutes of 9 o'clock in the evening. Throughout the entire day there was a long waiting line, of applicants "to be made," the line at times extending from the mayor's office along the corridor as far as the head of the side stairway. John R. Bowman was in charge of the door at the council chamber.

As the official closing hour, 8 o'clock, approached there was still a long line extending along the corridor and the board remained in session until all applicants who appeared had been examined. It was a trying day for the board as there was no chance for a respite. The final voter made Wednesday night was John E. Eleckjiberg, of No. 46 Smith avenue.

The board will be in session again on Friday from 9 a. m. until 1 p. m. and from 2 p. m. until 8 p. m., and also Saturday, same hours, and as there are still 1,637 names on the "list to be made" the sessions promise to be extremely busy ones. Below is the complete list of voters made Wednesday:

MORIARTY RESIGNS AS MANAGER OF TIGERS, NO SUCCESSOR NAMED

DETROIT, Oct. 17—(AP)—George Moriarty, manager of the Detroit baseball club of the American league, resigned tonight at the expiration of his two year contract with the team.

The resignation was contained in a letter to Fronk Navin, president of the club, sent by Moriarty from his home in Woodstock, Illinois. Beyond stating that the resignation had been accepted, Mr. Navin refused to comment. He declined to state if he had signed a ne manager or had one under consideration.

In the two seasons that Moriarty piloted the club, the Tigers finished in fourth and sixth places respectively.

While the calibre of the team's playing roster was blamed in some circles for the poor showing, the view was said to have been held by the owners that Moriarty was in a measure responsible.

Stanley Harris, former manager of the Washington Americans, visited Detroit last week, ostensibly for a conference with Navin, and after the visit it was rumored that he would pilot the club next year. Queried tonight, President Navin, said he had no statement to make on the subject at this time.

It was also reported the club was negotiating with Donie Bush, manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, but this likewise could not be confirmed.

Moriarty's letter of resignation follows:—

"I hereby tender my resignation as manager of the Detroit club. In severing my connection in this capacity, it is my sincere wish to convey my thanks to the fans and the press of Detroit for their support. I also wish to say that I hold Frank Navin in the highest esteem.

"Unfavorable circumstances played a part in the showing of the team this season. However, my contact with the game from the sandlots up has taught me to accept the reverses of baseball with the same spirit that accompanies success. That is exactly the way I feel about it.

"Detroit is a great baseball city and its fans know the game thoroughly. Good luck to them."

OUAFI RUNS 12 MILES IN WORKOUT FOR RACE

NEW YORK, Oct. 17—(AP)—El Ouafi, brown skinned Algerian marathon champion, paced twelve miles around Madison Square Garden today, testing his stride and working out the muscle kinks for his 26 mile race with Joie Ray and a half dozen other distance stars here Sunday night.

No time was taken for the distance covered by the wiry muscled running machine that weighs only 114 pounds. He scaled that before he started and to the amazement of newspapermen was only a few ounces lighter when he finished. He perspired but little and finished at a fast clip in fine condition.

The 1928 Olympic champion will taper off in his training from day to day. He plans, however, to run a fast six miles on Saturday as a final warm-up. Ray, for years the American mile champion, is training out of doors for the fifth marathon run of his picturesque career and his professional debut.

El Ouafi, who learned to run following his father's three camel caravan in Algeria prior to the World war, will soon celebrate his 31st birthday. A strict vegetarian, he was the fastest dispatch bearer in the French army before winning the Olympic tryouts of 1924 and finishing seventh in the international classic of the year.

Rather naively, the Arab explained today through an interpreter that he took up running as a sport because it cost nothing. All the equipment necessary, he said, was the normal afternoon attire of Algeria—and that does not even include shoes. He learned to run distances because there is nothing else in his native land where the towns are far apart and the citizens would look with suspicion of mental incompetence upon anyone who ran without going somewhere.

JEANNETTE ROYAL WINS N. E. PACING CROWN

LEWISTON, Me., Oct. 17—(AP)—Jeanette Royal, owned by Alan Wilson, Boston, won the New England pacing championship here today, defeating Willie W., owned by Dwight Edwards of Auburn. The fastest time in the race was 2:08 1-4, made by Millie W.

A New England trotting record was made by Luke Bell, N. B. Fox, Portland, when he finished in 2:06 1-4, winning the Maine trotting championship. Boy Seymour from the William Byrd stables in Revere, Mass., captured the Maine title in the junior free-for-all.

BRITISH WOMEN WIN FROM AMERICANS AT HOCKEY

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 17—(AP)—The All-England women's hockey team today won its first match in America defeating the 1927 All-American team 1 to 1 at Haverford.

The American girls could not equal the ability of the overseas invaders. Three times, once in the first half and twice in the second, the Americans had good opportunities to score, but the forwards failed to rush the ball into the cage.

Peg Waldner, of Chicago, saved this country from a shut-out by scoring just before the first half ended.

DREYFUS DENIES BUSH WILL NOT BE WITH PIRATES

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 17—(AP)—Barney Dreyfus, owner of the Pittsburgh National league club tonight reiterated a denial of reports that Donie Bush might not return as manager to the Pirates for the 1929 season. It had been reported that Bush was being considered as a prospect for the managership at Detroit, where George Moriarty resigned today as pilot of the Bengals.

MRS. SCHOEMEL HANGS UP NEW ENDURANCE RECORD

NEW YORK, Oct. 17—(AP)—Mrs. Lottie Moore Schoemel today clambered out of the hotel swimming pool which had been her bed and boarding place continually for three days and nights. She brought out with her a new world's endurance swimming record of 72 hours, two minutes and 40 seconds.

Restoring supremacy in this strange form of athletic activity to the so-called weaker sex, the new mark displaced the former standard set by Jimmy Cherry, an ex-sailor, in Los Angeles on Sunday night, not long after Mrs. Schoemel took the water here. The blonde New York woman of 29, mother of two children stayed in seven hours and 40 seconds longer than Cherry.

At 12:47 p. m., Mrs. Schoemel unassisted, climbed out of the pool she had entered at 12:45 p. m. Sunday. There was no physical faintness. A doctor found her normal. Her weight was announced as 132, a loss of 20 pounds.

The hardest part of the long test, she found, was just before dawn this morning when she had all she could do to keep awake. Blaring music and weird antics by her trainer and others helped her to stifle her yawns.

Qualified observers were at the pool constantly and bore witness that Mrs. Schoemel did not touch once the sides or bottom. She lived on "baby foods" and stayed up by alternately treading water, floating and swimming.

The new record marked a sharp advance in proficiency since this aquatic fad came into vogue. Only last May the old world's record held by Otto Kemmerich, of Germany, was 66 hours. Since then it has gone up steadily.

Although it could not be learned exactly how much money Mrs. Schoemel would receive for her performance, it was announced her share would be half the gate receipts.

The authenticity of Mrs. Schoemel's swim was questioned later in the day by William B. Sandler, manager of Mrs. Myrtle Huddleston, of Chicago, rival endurance swimmer. He said Mrs. Schoemel touched bottom during her swim and permitted an attendant to support her in the water while applying grease.

YALE TEAM HAS FIRST SCRIMMAGE IN TEN DAYS

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 17—(AP)—Yale gridders got actively under way today in the first scrimmage the team has had since the clash with Maine ten days ago. Today's scrimmage, however, was a modified one, with the freshman eleven.

Coach Mal Stevens, tried out a new angle to the scrimmage lesson when he gave the ball to the first year men on the varsity ten yard line, with instructions to make a touchdown. Three times out of six attempts did the froshies put the pigskin over the line, using an overhead attack each time; and on one occasion they slipped one over on the veterans by drop kicking for a goal. Stevens made matters much more difficult for the first string men by giving them the ball in their own territory and insisted on an aerial attack throughout. The varsity however, were unable to make the grade against the freshmen. No kickoffs were used and very little line or end plays were ordered. Stevens ordered passing and passing both elevens got.

Preceding the modified scrimmage, the varsity squad were put through light signal drills and some punting and passing.

Today's workout was the most strenuous that the Eli gridders have had this season. Norman Hall, guard, who returned to the fold yesterday, after being laid up with an axe-cleft foot, was in the lineup today.

HARVARD PERFECTS ITS DEFENSE AGAINST ARMY

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 18—(AP)—Playing entirely on the defense, the Harvard varsity football team had but fair success against a team of ineligibles which used Army plays during today's long dummy scrimmage.

The varsity was unable to stop the Army plays the first time, but smeared them easily after Head Coach Arnold Horween halted the scrimmage and analyized the cadet attack.

After the dummy scrimmage, the varsity backs and ends were put through a long forward passing drill, during which both Tommy Gilligan, the sensational sophomore quarterback and Elliott Putnam, his seasoned rival for the varsity signal calling job participated about equally. Coach Horween has not yet selected the starting quarterback for the Army game next Saturday.

Horween relieved Captain Arthur French of the punting asignment, placing the kicking task on Dave Guarnaccia, who has kicked but once in each of the games Harvard has played so far this season. Guarnaccia, Horween explained, was given intensive punting training and has reached the point where he can kick 50 yards, a distance which no other Harvard player can even threaten.

SOCCER GAME AT TAFTVILLE ON SUNDAY

The J. B. Martin F. C. are to open their schedule on the home grounds this coming Sunday against the fast Goodyear team and as the upstate boys already have one victory to their credit having defeated Jewett City 2-0 last Saturday at Goodyear they are coming down full of confidence expecting to carry off the bacon but as the Velvetmen are also eager to start the season with a win the management intends to put a strong lineup in the field as most of last year's players are available and some new men have been signed one of them being Frank Thompson who made quite a reputation on the other side playing with some fast teams. Further particulars as to starting time and lineups will be found in Saturday's morning's paper.

FRESHMEN HOLD WILLIAMS VARSITY TO NO SCORE

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Oct. 17—(AP)—The Williams college varsity eleven, which has won its three-games this season, was held scoreless this afternoon for the first time in several years by the freshman team in a lengthy scrimmage session. The best looking man on the varsity team, on the defense, was Brown, who has not yet played in a regular game. Gaffor and Healy, regular linemen last season, are back with the squad but have not yet been used.

VON PORAT WINS FROM WIGGINS ON A FOUL

CHICAGO, Oct. 17—(AP)—Otto Von Porat, hard hitting Norwegian heavyweight, won on a foul in the third round of his scheduled ten round bout with Chuck Wiggins of Indianapolis tonight. Wiggins was on the verge of a knockout when he fouled Von Porat three times with hooks to the groin, and the fight was stopped by Referee Eddie Purdy.

SPORT SLANTS

(By Alan J. Gould, Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Oct. 17—(AP)—Football's greatest spectacles nowadays know no sectional barriers or restrictions. Last Saturday the big jam of the day was on Chicago's lake front, where some 122,000 fans turned out to see two teams that may both be out of the cup running this year but still possess their old drawing power.

This week the main scene, from the spectacular viewpoint, will be at Berkeley, where California and Southern California meet in the first of the major tests of Pacific coast conference strength. Anywhere from 75,000 to 100,000 will get at least a bird's eye view of this tussle from the hillsides if not altogether from the big Berkeley bowl itself.

Next week should shift the spotlight back to the near east, with Yale's big arena packed to its usual limits of around 75,000 for the colorful visit of West Point's Cadets.

Major teams in all sections of the gridioron battle front get down to more serious business this week. Title hopes will be at stake or intersectional laurels involved in a flock of frays.

It's a trifle early to take up the All-American angle but the fullback crop, at least, appears to offer some of the best material in recent seasons.

At Minnesota, where Herb Joesting made the position famous, the praises of Bronko Nagurski, a converted lineman, are being sung. Nebraska's plunging star, Blue Howell, is leading the Missouri valley big six scoring array so far while "Dutch" Clark, fullback of Colorado college, leads the touchdown parade in the Rocky mountain conference.

Georgia's human battering ram, Mayes, who was a front rank contender for All-American honors last season, gave Yale something to worry about last Saturday.

The University of Iowa's Indian star, Maynes McLain, has all that a great fullback needs, plus unusual experience. McLain was the country's leading scorer while at Haskell two years ago but this is his first campaign for the Hawk-Eyes.

There is also Jimmy Armistead, Vanderbilt captain. Armistead had to share the spotlight last season with Bill Spears, Vandebilt's All-American ace but he is off to a good start on his own account this year.

Miles of Princeton, although now laid up with injuries, and Murrell of Army are among the east's outstanding fullbacks.

YALE MAN SENTENCED FOR DOUBLE AUTO CRASH

STAMFORD, Oct. 17—(AP)—George Henry McGowan, 19, a freshman at Yale, who was arrested last night as the result of a double auto crash, was fined $100 and given a six months suspended sentence in city court today. After being arrested last night he informed police officials that he wanted to rally Gov. Trumbull and have his arrest put aside, but reconsidered and did not call.

YOUNG DEFOREST FIGHTS DRAW AT BRIDGEPORT

Young DeForest, the Danielson lightweight, fought a hard six-round draw with Joey Brown of Norwalk last night at the Acorn A. C., in Bridgeport. The bout was fast and furious through the six rounds and was one of the features of the card.

Will Play Exhibition Games

MONTREAL, Oct. 17—(AP)—Les Canadiens, local French-Canadian entry in the National Hockey league, will play two pre-season exhibition games at Providence, R. I., on November 8 and 10, it was announced here today.

HOT WEATHER HAMPERS PRACTICE SESSIONS OF FOOTBALL SQUADS

NEW YORK, Oct. 17—(AP)—Unseasonally hot weather scored heavily on eastern football teams today but in most cases it did not keep the coaches from giving their men heavy workouts. Wednesday generally has been chosen as the last day for hard scrimmages in preparation for Saturday's games and scrimmage they did. With Chick Meehan insisting on speed, 50 New York university players lost 100 pounds in their workout.

Dartmouth and Army yielded to the heat, cutting down their workouts, but their opponents of Saturday were hard at it. Columbia, although it has not beaten Dartmouth for 28 years, is developing a strong attack and will head for Hanover tomorrow with an optimistic air. The three sophomore backs, who with Hank Kumpf, veteran fullback, will do the ball carrying made a strong showing against the freshmen, each scoring a touchdown. Harvard did not do so well in its attempt to analyze Army formations and Coach Arnold Horween had to step in and explain the plays the ineligible team was using before the varsity could stop them.

Yale had its first real scrimmage since the Elis played their first game ten days back. With the whole squad back in uniform again, Mal Stevens sent his men through a carefully supervised workout against the freshmen with everything but passing taboo. Stevens does not intend to take any chances on having anyone go back on the injured list by giving them hard line play before the Brown game Saturday.

At Princeton the coaching staff played host to a group of visiting newspapermen by putting on a 20 minute game between the second team and Rutgers which the Tiger reserves won 7 to 0. The first string players had a light drill.

Pennsylvania and Penn State each went through a last hard drill in preparation for their battle Saturday. The Philadelphians showed a strong and varied attack in going 80 yards through the scrubs for a touchdown in seven plays. Three line plays, two passes and two end runs covered the distance. The Red and Blue will enter the game without the services of Ralph Monk, guard, who is suffering from a severe boil, but with the rest of the squad in good condition. The Nittany Lions are lacking two regulars because of injuries and spent the day trying out new men in their places, in hope of finding a strong enough combination to repeat last year's feat of wiping out a defeat by Bucknell by beating their traditional rivals.

The Navy, hoping to break into the scoring column against Duke, drilled on a forward passing attack to help out the running backs and on the defense.

Syracuse began the movement toward Saturday's battle grounds tonight when the Orange squad embarked for Lincoln where it will try to wipe out last year's 21 to 0 defeat by Nebraska.

NORWICH TOWN

MRS. GEORGE KINNEY DEAD—NATIVE OF SWITZERLAND

Following an illness of several months and having been critically ill for the past four weeks, Mrs. Rosa Weaver Kinney, 82, widow of George Kinney, passed peacefully away shortly before 12 o'clock, Tuesday night at the home of her brother, William Weaver, of Norwich Town. She was born in Switzerland, March 6th, 1846, the daughter of Melcer and Mary Ann Uverist Weaver, and came to America with her parents, when six years of age. In Fitchville, Conn., about 1862, she was united in marriage with John Senter. Her second marriage was with George Kinney, of South Coventry, about 40 years ago. She retained her residence there for many years, being an active member of South Coventry Methodist church. Mrs. Kinney came to Norwich Town about ten years ago to make her home with her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Weaver. During her prolonged illness she has received the most devoted care of Mrs Weaver, who has been assisted by Miss Annie Ward. Of her children, five survive her. Those by her first marriage are, Mrs. Hattie Larned, of Stafford Springs, Mrs. Lizzie Andrews, Hartford, Mrs. Emma Lynde, Spencer, Mass., and Charles Senter, of Natick, Mass., also George Kinney of South Coventry, by her second marriage. She also leaves a brother, William Weaver, of Norwich Town. There are eight grandchildren and six great-grandchildren. Mrs. Kinney was a good Christian woman, a loyal mother, sister and friend. She was greatly interested in reading and during her declining years devoted many hours to this, while enjoying the hospitality of her brother's home. The sympathy of many friends is with those left to mourn her death.

George Kinney of South Coventry is a guest at the home of his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. William Weaver, of Huntington Green, having been called to Norwich Town by the death of his mother, Mrs. Rosa Kinney. When leaving his home Wednesday, Mr. Kinney left his wife's father, R. J. Fox, 86 critically ill.

A member of the staff at the Johnson home picked a bunch of blue violets from the garden Wednesday, something unusual for October 17th.

Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey read the following notice to his congregation Sunday morning at the Congregational church: "You are ordially invited to spend 'Old Home Day' with the Montville Center Congregational church, Sunday, Oct. 21st. Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Congregational church, New London, accompanied by his church choir, will have charge of the afternoon service."

WILL HOLD NIGHT SESSION IN LESTER WILL HEARING

Judge Nelson J. Avling of the probate court conducted another all-day hearing here Wednesday in the contest over the codicil to the will of the late Frances Dawley Lester, widow of Daniel M. Lester, which would dispose of half of Mrs. Lester's estate, the whole estate to amount to $450,000. Under the codicil, Dr. Thurman A. Hull, of Troy, N. Y., who was Mrs. Lester's attending physician in Samaritan hospital at Troy, is named to receive five-eights of a half share of the estate. Dr Lester E. Walker of this city, Miss Fanny Wright, who was Mrs. Lester's housekeeper, and Miss Mary Ross, a friend in Troy, are named to receive the other three-eighths.

In order to hurry the case along, the judge and attorneys agreed to hold a night session tonight (Thursday). Attorney Charles L. Stewart, with whom is associated Senator Robert L. Lawson of Brooklyn, as counsel for those trying to break the codicil, told the court he had only three more witnesses and he thought his testimony would be in by 2 o'clock this (Thursday) afternoon. Attorney Arthur M. Brown with whom Andrew B. Davies of this city and Attorney John P. Taylor of Troy are associate counsel in defense of the codicil, stated that his witnesses will be Attorney Taylor, the two Doctors Hull, and several local witnesses. He said it would not take long to put his case in.

Dr. E. S. Burdsall, superintendent at Norwich state hospital, has been an attendant in court at the request of Attorney Stewart and it is anticipated that he will be called upon to give testimony as an alienist. Protestatic copies of the will the codicil and the checks signed by Mrs. Lester were taken Wednesday in order to be used when brandwriting experts are called.

Local Witnesses.

Testimony from two local witnesses was brought into the case in the afternoon session Wednesday when Frederic H. Cranston of this city, a teacher at the Norwich Free Academy and a relative by marriage of Mrs. Lester, was called to the stand. Mr Cranston testified to seeing Mrs. Lester at her home at 26 Warren street some day between June 4 and 5 of this year. He saw her for four or five minutes and said she was looking very ill, was vividly nervous, pacing up and down, sobbing, wringing her hands her language confused and a little inarticulate. There were indications that she was somewhat irrational, he said.

Mrs. Vera C. Neale, who lives at 30 Warren street, next door to Mrs. Lester's residence, and who runs a public service motor car for ladies and invalids, testified that she saw Mrs. Lester nearly every day in May and June and took her for rides, Mrs. Lester's physical condition was poor, she said, she was very changeable in disposition. Mrs. Neale told of an occasion when she took Mrs. Lester for a ride and when they had gone scarcely a block, Mrs. Lester tried to get out of the door of the car and yelled to be let out. "She wasn't right" the witness said, "and I wouldn't take her again unless there was someone with her for fear she would jump out. She was unbalanced."

On cross examination, Mrs. Neale said she had heard Mrs. Lester speak of Dr. Hull and she was being treated by Dr. Hull through Dr. Walker who had to "give her the water." Asked what she meant by giving her the water, the witness said Mrs. Lester did not believe any medicine would do er any good unless she took it through her mouth and Dr. Walker used to give sugar and water that way. The witness indicated that the real medicine Mrs. Lester was receiving was through a serum treatment.

Miss Grace E. Anslow, director of nurses at Backus hospital in this city, read the Hippocratic oath at the request of Attorney Stewart, without comment by any of the attorneys, and this was followed by the concluding witness for the day, Miss Marie Antoinette Authier of 360 Madison avenue, Albany, N. Y.

Nurse Identified History Sheet

Miss Authier had only about five minutes to testify before court adjourned for the day. She was the nurse at Samaritan hospital for the last nine nights of Mrs. Lester's life, from July 14 to July 22. She was asked about Dr. Thurman Hull writing a history of Mrs. Lester's case. She said he did this on the night of Saturday, July 21. When she went on the case on July 14 she saw a history of the case in Mrs. Lester's room. Dr. Hull, she said, took this out on the 21st and brought back the other one. Miss Authier identified the history sheet which was shown her in court.

When court opened in the morning, the nurse at Samaritan hospital who was on Mrs. Lester's case on July 12, the day the codicil to the will was signed was introduced as a witness by Attorney Stewart.

Nurse Gives Testimony

This witness was Miss Gertrude Russell. She proved unusually hesitant about giving direct answers to questions and by the time Attorney Brown had put her through a cross-examination just before the noon recess she was on the point of tears and she broke out into a weeping spell after she reached the hallway outside the courtroom.

In her testimony she told of coming on the case the morning of the 12th of July about 7 o'clock. She said she was asked to be a witness to the codicil by Dr. Thurman Hull, but she refused to sign any papers which migh "incriminate" herself. She told the court she had been advised, when entering nursing service never to sign any papers. "I hope you'll be able to follow that instruction," remarked Attorney Brown.

She testified that Dr. Thurman Hull wanted her to omit from the bedside chart what she had written about Mrs. Lester's mind being "completely disordered." He said it was unnecessary. The nurse testified she made no answer to this request and she did not comply with it. She identified the chart when it was shown her in court.

The nurse told how she arranged the furniture in Mrs. Lester's room when Dr. Hull said he wanted Mrs. Lester in a chair so that she could write. She told of the arrival of Attorney Taylor, Drs. DeForest, Martin and Stanton Hull, and Miss McLaughlin. While they were in Mrs. Lester's room she went out and when they were gone again she found Mrs. Lester much agitated and gave her 30 grams of bromide to quiet her down.

On cross examination in the afternoon, Attorney Brown devoted much effort to having Miss Russell fix the time when Dr. Stanton Hull came to the hospital on July 12. She finally said it was between 10:15 and 10:45 in the morning.

"If it could be proved that Dr. Stanton Hull was in court at Troy at 10:45, what would you say?" queried Attorney Brown.

"I would say he was in the hospital some time that day," was the answer.

Attorney Brown questioned Miss Russell as to whether in disclosing to De Forrest Dawley and Attorney Stewart the circumstances about Mrs. Lester's illness she had not violated the Nightingale oath which nurses take. After a long wait for an answer, the attorney remarked, "Well, you needn't answer that, Miss Russell."

"Miss Russell, if you thought a forgery were about to be perpetrated," said Attorney Stewart, as he began to frame a question, but he got no farther as Attorney Brown was on his feet, thundering an objection which the court sustained, after a hot exchange between the lawyers as to what Attorney Stewart was intimating.

As Miss Russell concluded her testimony and was about to leave the stand Senator Lawson said he wanted to ask her one question.

"Is this the first time you ever testified in court, Miss Russell?"

"Yes."

"And I guess you hope it will be the last, don't you?" interjected Attorney Brown.

Bible Study at the Y. M. C. A.

At the weekly Bible study for men at the local Y. M. C. A. Wednesday evening the topic was "The Coat of Discipleship," and the scripture used was Mark 10:17-27. The following points were brought out in the discussion: The essence of all the commandments is love for God plus love for man. It is probably easier to love God than to love some of those with whom we come in contact. The young man's supreme allegiance was to his wealth. Jesus did not mean that it was wrong to make plenty of money honestly, but when a man chases the dollar at the expense of the higher and better things he is making a very serious mistake. When Jesus put his finger on the sore spot in the young man's life, he left Jesus in a sorrowful mood, for he could not bear the thought of parting with his money. The reason why so many men refuse to follow the Jesus way of life is because it cuts into their selfish designs etc. They feel that they must give up much, but they fail to take into consideration the fact that their gain in genuine satisfaction far outweighs what they lose. A selfish man cannot be a real Christian, because to be a Christian means to follow the example of Jesus and inasmuch as he was the essence of unselfishness one cannot follow him and remain selfish.

Nolled in Collision Case

As a question arose in the city court Wednesday morning regarding the condition of Leland Fitzpatrick, of Hartford, arrested Tuesday evening on a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor, the case was nolled absolute. He was arrested near the city line in Thamesville, after his machine had figured in a collision with a trolley car. Conflicting testimony as to the driver's condition resulted in the case being nolled.

MEN!—FREE!

This Magnificent 24-K. GOLD-Plated Genuine Gillette Razor (Complete with Blade)

With a 35c Tube of

Palmolive Shaving Cream—All for 35c!

Go to the drug store. Put down 35c for a tube of Palmolive Shaving Cream. Get this razor free. Strict limit one to a customer—dealers' stocks rigidly limited—come early

Gentlemen:

Here is a gift offer which we believe has no parallel in merchandising. An offer made solely to attract men to a fair trial of Palmolive Shaving Cream.

Our experience proves that most men who try Palmolive Shaving Cream become regular users. Thus our whole sales problem is to get every man we can to TRY IT.

To solve that problem, we go to great lengths. We occasionally make an offer that no man can afford to turn down. This one, you'll agree, is the greatest we have ever made—the most remarkable, we are told, in merchandising history.

Go today to the drug store. Buy a tube of Palmolive Shaving Cream at the regular price of 35c. The razor described above will be given you with it FREE with blade—all for 35c.

But remember: Dealers' stocks are strictly limited. When your store is out, it can get no more. Thus early acceptance of this offer is necessary.

Corrects the mistakes of old-time shaving preparations

Palmolive Shaving Cream is a scientific creation. Men by the millions are flocking to its use.

We started by asking 1000 men what they most desired in a shaving soap. Then met their exactments one by one. It is different in formula, action and effect from any other shaving preparation known. It corrects the 5 mistakes of old-time shaving preparations.

1. It multiplies itself in lather 250 times.
2. It softens the beard in one minute.
3. The lather maintains its creamy fullness for ten minutes on the face.
4. The extra strong bubbles support the hairs for cutting, where weak bubbles let them fall down.
5. The blend of palm and olive oils brings fine after-effects.

Accept today

Now to win you over to a trial, we make an offer which we believe is the most remarkable any manufacturer ever made to gain a fair trial for his product.

In your interest and in ours, please accept it today. Go now to the drug store. You'll thank us for the gift today—and for many days—for the new shaving comfort our cream offers you.

DANIELSON

SELECTMEN GETTING APPEALS FOR TOWN AID

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 17—Applications for town aid are coming to the selectmen in unusually large numbers these fall days. The requests for help are so numerous as to cause the selectmen to scan and investigate thoroughly each and every one of them before taking any action. Desiring to be just, these officials do not intend to be imposed upon.

Killingly's net expenditure for the poor during the year that closed July 31 last was $19,455.91, and rated a major item among the various expenses of conducting the town's business. The cost of caring for the outside poor—those who are not at the town farm or in state institutions—amounted to $10,278.08, a matter of about $200 per week.

Such applications as are now coming to the selectmen for help are largely in this class. In some cases during the past fiscal year the town contributed amounts ranging from $300 to in excess of $700 for the support of members of single families.

It is recognized that there are some unfortunate cases where the town must lend its aid to innocent victims of untoward circumstances, but the selectmen are fully alive to the fact that they are apt to be made the objects of imposition, if they are not extremely careful as to who receives town aid. For instance, it is not unusual for families who have invested in such luxuries as pianos, radios, electric floor lamps, electric washing machines and other devices to seek aid from the town, and to misrepresent their true circumstances in order to get that aid.

The promise is that it isn't going to be easy for such applicants to obtain town help this year. Each case will be searchingly investigated.

OBITUARIES

Dwight Webster

After an illness of several years Dwight Webster died today at the age of 74 at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Gladys Greene, of Railroad street. Mr. Webster was a native of Eastford and had lived practically all of his life in Windham county. During long terms of his active years he had worked in lumber camps and had done other such work. He had been a resident here for years.

Mrs. Mary Waldo Witter

In Woonsocket, where she had made her home with her nieces for a long term of years, the death of Mrs. Mary Waldo Witter, 84, occurred Tuesday. Mrs. Witter was the widow of Joel Witter, for many years in the coal and wood business in Danielson. A great many of the years of Mrs. Witter's long life were spent in Danielson, where she had a great many friends. She leaves a son, Clarence Witter, of Boston. Mrs. Witter was a sister of John Waldo and Simon Waldo, both now deceased, who under the firm name of Waldo Brothers were in business in Danielson for close to half a century. Mrs. Witter's body is to be brought here Friday afternoon for burial in Westfield cemetery.

State department officers of the G. A. R. and W. R. C. attended the inspection this evening of McGregor Woman's Relief corps in G. A. R. hall. The inspection was preceded by a chicken supper served by a committee of the local corps. The inspection was by Mrs. Annie Maynard of New London, who was accompanied by Mrs. Frances Tucker of the same city and a well known figure in W. R. C. circles. Others at the inspection were Commander George A. Tucker, New Haven, of the department of Connecticut, G. A. R., Miss Lillian E. Bailey, Danielson, and Miss Annie Page, Danielson, respectively president and secretary of the department of Connecticut, W. R. C., and Mrs. Ethel Tourtellotte of Putnam, instituting and installation officer.

Politically, there is very little activity in Killingly just now. The situation appears to be that the electorate rests upon its oars, awaiting the balloting of two weeks from next Tuesday. Leaders of both political parties are perfecting their arrangements for getting out the vote. This work will be gone at very methodically. It will involve assigning to each party worker a list of the names of the voters he or she will be expected to get to the polls, and charging them with the responsibility for doing this. With from 600 to 800 new voters on the lists, depending on how many are admitted next Saturday, the vote in Killingly on November 6, will probably be the largest in the 120 years of the town's history.

Mrs. Charles Brannan of New London, injured in an automobile accident on Hopkins hill in the town of Plainfield a fortnight or more ago, remains under the daily care of a physician. Harry Goodman of Danielson, driver of the car with which the Brannan machine was in collision, has been fined, in the town court of Plainfield, the assessments against him being $10 for failure to grant the right of way and $1.00, with costs of prosecution for not carrying an operator's license.

Slow but steady progress is being made on the construction of more than four miles of state highway on the Danielson-Brooklyn route in the town of Brooklyn. Crews are at work on that section of the highway known as the flats at the present time and on Ledge hill at the point where the new highway leaves the old route and follows a new one through the fields. Even though all the details of construction may not be completed before cold weather sets in, the assurance now appears to be that this much used trunk line will be open for safe and rapid travel throughout the winter season.

Mill men in this territory, speaking of wage reductions that are to go into effect in some of the cotton manufacturing plants along the Quinebaug Valley, say that the change will put the local plants upon about the same basis as workers in New Bedford mills who were out on strike for so many weeks against a ten per cent reduction and who recently, in a compromise adjustment, accepted a five per cent reduction and returned to their machines.

Miss Dorothy Hamilton has gone to New York to spend two weeks visiting with her mother, Mrs. A. S. Martin.

Thursday evening, Harmony Court, No. 12, Order of Amaranth, will have as guests members of Chapman Court of South Manchester and Floral Court of Hartford. Among those who will attend will be Mrs. Abby Y. Bergmann, mother of Harmony Court. A supper is to be served at 6:30.

Little change in the condition of Dr. Warren A. Tanner, a surgical patient at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam was reported today, but he continued to hold his own.

Miss Mildred Bates of Putnam won the award at the dance at Rum-Along-Inn on the West Side last evening.

Residents of Killingly have been giving almost daily consideration to affairs of the town since the new board organized early in the month. A special meeting of the board is planned to take up the matter of division of highways for care and other matters.

More than a score of musicians came out last night for a meeting of the new Community band, and it is hoped to have double that number in the near future.

Three neighborhood prayer meetings were conducted by the Baptist church tonight, one at the home of E. B. Wilbur on Broad street, one at Walter Rawson's home on Riverview and one at the home of E. E. Allen on Main street. These services were conducted as a part of Loyalty week program of the Northern Baptist convention.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Morin of Apponaug, former residents of Danielson, were visitors here today.

Top dressing of fine stone and oil has been applied to the final stretch of new roadway east of the Gallup farm, and the going is fine for motorists using that route now. The new cut off, though nearly completed, has not as yet been opened for travel.

The Civic federation will have a large organization to solicit when its annual Tag day is held on Saturday, October 27. The hope is to raise at least $600, thus matching the success of last year.

It was stated at the office of Supt. W. E. Parker of Killingly's schools that 20 applications to attend an evening school had been received up to this afternoon, and that an open night is being planned at which it is hoped to receive sufficient additional applications to make it possible to open the school this fall.

A force of workmen this morning tore up the old sidewalk along the frontage of the Eastern Connecticut Power company's property here preparatory to putting in a new walk, which will be completed during this week.

At the Quinebaug mill notices of a wage cut have been posted. Though the amount of the reduction is not stated in the notices, it is understood to be approximately five per cent. A similar cut will be effective at the Wauregan company mill.

Arthur G. Hendricks of Springfield was a visitor with friends in Danielson today.

Herbert H. Vars of Lower Pawcatuck has returned to his duties as a driver for the Westerly branch of the American Railway Express company, after passing a vacation visit with his uncle in Massachusetts.

PUTNAM

SETTLEMENT REACHED OUT OF COURT IN DAMAGE SUIT

PUTNAM, Oct. 17—The civil session of Windham county superior court was continued at Putnam today with Judge Edward M. Twomans presiding. The only case left on the trial list for hearing today was a damage suit entered by Gabriel and Edward Nelson of Westerly, R. I., as plaintiffs and naming Howard G. Glawson of 2 Farrows street, Putnam as defendant. Both the elder and young Nelsons were suing for $10,000 each.

The plaintiffs it is alleged were riding in their car on the morning of Sept. 2, 1927 on the Post road near Niantic, Conn., when a large Reo truck owned by the defendant swerved across the highway and crashed into the Nelson car, severely injuring both of the occupants and permanently injuring the elder Nelson to an extent that he is being kept from his daily work because of the accident.

Gabriel Nelson testified that he was driving his car along the highway at a rate of speed not exceeding 19 miles an hour. The time was 6.12 a. m. daylight time and a few minutes before sunrise. His attention was attracted to the approaching vehicle and he pulled to the extreme right of the road to allow ample room to pass. As the truck neared his car, it began to cut across the road, and the crash followed, Nelson testified that he did not remember any more details of the accident as he was rendered unconscious. On cross examination by the state's attorney, Howard C. Bradford, attorney for the defense, Nelson said as far as he knew his car was properly lighted, but even though there were not any lights displayed it was late enough in the morning for any driver to see an another car on the highway.

Dr. George P. Cheney, physician and surgeon at the Lawrence Memorial hospital in New London testified to an examination of the injured persons, when they were brought to the hospital, both in critical conditions. The doctor also told of operations performed on both the father and son and the length of their confinement in the hospital. He introduced X-ray photos of the various injuries sustained by both Nelsons and termed them as curable only by the risk of a very serious operation. He said that the men would be permanently disabled for the remainder of their lives, because of fractures of several parts of the spinal columns and lacerations of the skull.

Dr. Michael H. Scanlon, a physician and surgeon of Westerly, R. I., upon request of Attorney Rathbun, counsel for the plaintiff, told of an examination of the Nelsons, terming their injuries as uncurable. His testimony was similar to that of Dr. Cheney's, as he outlined the meaning of the photos and explained the medical terms given in court.

John W. Barrett, of New London, an employe of the government naval base at New London who was a witness of the accident, told of bringing the occupants of the Nelson car to the hospital, both in an unconscious condition. He testified that the tail light of the Nelson car was functioning when it passed him on the highway about 300 feet before the Glawson truck crashed into it. According to Barrett's testimony, Gabriel Nelson was thrown out of the car against a stone wall and his son was knocked out of the car striking the highway with a severe force. He stated that Mr. Glawson made no attempt to assist him in bringing the victims to the New London hospital. When asked why, Barrett said Glawson appeared to be in a dazed condition himself.

Officer Frederic O. Johnson of the Connecticut state police, a member of the Groton barracks, testified as to receiving a telephone call informing him of an accident on the post road. Officer Johnson said he jotted down the hour of the day as soon as the call came in, it being a rule of the department, and the records indicated 5.15 a. m. standard time. Officer Johnson accompanied by a brother officer went to the scene of the accident and following an investigation placed Mr. Glawson under arrest, road and tire marks showed the Glawson truck had swung directly into the path of the other car.

Officer Johnson had not finished his testimony, when Judge Twomans called a noon recess, setting the opening hour at 2 o'clock. At 2.30 p. m. attorneys entered the court room and announced a settlement had been reached and that further court procedure was unnecessary. The exact amount of settlement was not made known.

The members of the Putnam Rotary club, met at the Putnam inn this evening and after a banquet and business meeting were addressed by District Governor James A. Gunn. Mr. Gunn's evening in Putnam constituted his annual visitation. In his talk he stressed the fifth object of Rotary obligation, "Vocational Service" and devoted a considerable part of his speech to the 4th object of the organization, "International friendship."

During the evening he inspected the work of the local club during the past year and congratulated the officials on their success. New ideas for work of the coming year were also forwarded the officers by Mr. Gunn.

LAPOINTE AGAIN ARRESTED FOR DRUNKEN DRIVING

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, October 17—Victor Lapointe of Smith street, who pleaded guilty to a surgery charge at a special criminal session of superior court Tuesday afternoon at Putnam, sentenced to a year at the state reformatory in Cheshire, and through the mercy of the court sentence was suspended and placed in care of a special probation officer for a year, was again arrested this afternoon by State Trooper Royal V. Scranton of the Danielson state police barracks on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquors.

Officer Scranton was en route to a court session in North Grosvenordale this afternoon, when in Mechanicsville he came upon a Ford car which was being operated in a peculiar manner. Lapointe was immediately placed under arrest and taken to the Putnam police station. Lapointe was later arraigned in a North Grosvenordale justice court and bound over to the superior court under bonds of $2,000.

Political embers that have been smouldering during the past month burst into flame today when it became generally known that the democrats had placed a full ticket in the field for the first time in several years. The nomination of James J. Charron of Smith street, local business man, as candidate on the democratic ticket for the office of judge of probate came into the republican camp this morning as a bomb shell and its explosion started the republican workers on their trip in an effort to defeat the ticket and return Judge Henry N. Benoit to office.

The democratic slate was adjudged one of the strongest ever presented and every effort is to be made to defeat it at the polls on election day.

J. Otis Fox and Leon A. Talbot, democratic candidates for general assembly were assured the nominations as their party choices several weeks ago and both have been doing considerable preliminary campaigning. Mr. Fox is the son of the late John O. Fox, former representative to the legislature from Putnam. Mr. Talbot's political aspirations came a few weeks ago when the party leaders came to him and urged him to run for the office. His nomination was favorably received this morning by the members of the party, who termed him as a strong candidate for the ticket.

Five hundred miles of new wires for use in the improvement of telephone service will be strung within the boundaries of the city of Putnam during the coming month by the line gangs, which forces have been augmented for the project, it was said here today.

On Marshall, South, Church, Grove, School and Canal streets new poles are being erected to carry the wires.

Judge Edward G. Yeomans of the superior court today awarded a decision in the case of David Meyer of Brooklyn vs. The Bulgers Globe Insurance company of Hartford. The case was tried in court yesterday. The plaintiff was awarded $1,000 for damages sustained by him when his store in Brooklyn burned to the ground last March in addition to interest accumulating since April 1, on the principal.

Edward Meagher of Thompson, arrested last night by State Policeman Royal V. Scranton of Danielson, was presented in justice court in North Grosvenordale this afternoon and was found guilty of abandoning a car on the highway. He was fined $5 and costs of court.

The Putnam republicans will gather at a rally on next Monday evening, Oct. 22, at the Victory theatre and will listen to an address from United States Senator Hiram Bingham, the principal speaker of the evening. The other speakers will be Edward Donnelly, secretary to former United States Senator Calder of New York.

The French republican population of the city will be afforded an opportunity to hear a speech in their native tongue when Attorney Harry B. Gaucher of Willimantic takes the floor in favor of the Hoover-Curtis cause.

A representative gathering of the parents of the Putnam school, children met at the Putnam high school last evening and later attended a Hallowe'en party sponsored by the Parent Teachers' association.

Entertainment was in charge of Mrs. L. Edwin Hill, Mrs. James F. English, and Miss Esther Wells, district nurse. The evening was principally devoted to the playing of the seasonal games.

Mrs. J. Dyer Potter, Putnam's only representative at the American Legion convention held at San Antonio, Texas, returned to her home in this city Tuesday evening. Mrs. Potter was a delegate from the Woman's auxiliary of the Anselm Mayotte post, No. 18.

Dominick Martino, accidentally shot with a rifle by a playmate last Friday afternoon, and who has been at the Day Kimball hospital recovering from the effects of the lead shell, was sufficiently well enough today to warrant his being discharged from the institution.

WARRENVILLE

Justin Burrill and Fred Chism were nominated for representatives at the republican caucus held last week. Ed Buck and Norman Baker are the democratic nominees.

Miss Gladys Bassett spent the week end with her sister, Mrs. Walter Richardson, at the Ridges, Willimantic.

Mrs. Heringer, Miss Lillian Heringer and William Heringer of East Hartford visited Mrs. Ellen Weeks and O. P. Durkee Saturday.

Webb Warren visited relatives in Vermont last week.

E. B. Verney chose as a text Sunday morning the twenty-first verse of the eighteenth chapter of Exodus and spoke on the topic "The Christian in Politics." He also gave the children a sermon to teach that all good things are worth work.

Mr. and Mrs. Gono Hattin of Pomfret and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Busse and two children of Willington visited Otto Hattin Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Cannon of Hartford spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Lawton.

Mr. and Mrs. Harlow Eastman of Hartford were week end visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Barlow.

Several from here attended Stafford fair.

JEWETT CITY

BOTH PARTIES PREPARING FOR POLITICAL RALLIES

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Oct. 17—Conferences were held Tuesday evening by the democratic and republican town committees, relative to the coming public political meetings. Wednesday, Oct. 24, has been selected by the democratic committee and Wednesday, Oct. 31, by the republican. Manager John F. Barnett of the Finn Opera house has offered the use of the theatre for both rallies free. The republican plans as far as perfected provide for the main address of the evening by Norman Stevens, ex-mayor of Hartford. Other speakers will be Mrs. Edith Cook, New Haven, one of the leaders in the interests of the woman's vote, and John Koulas, who may address the meeting in Polish. State's Attorney Arthur M. Brown will be chairman. George H. Bradford of the republican state committee for this district, was in town Tuesday in the interests of the republican rally. Further plans will take care of the music and fireworks, with every indication that both parties contemplate a regular old-time celebration. The democratic committee is Edward Blake, Timothy E. Shea, Lionel E. Boucher, the popular democratic nominee for representative, Dennis Grimm, William McGovern, John F. Barnett. The republican committee is W. B. Montgomery, L. G. POETRY

October

Every minute of October
Is a moment set in pearls
And the leaves, all molten golden,
Are a crown of flame, girls
Dancing on their toes and singing,
Yellow leaves come hurrying by.
Now, did you ever see one dancing
In some grassy niche to die.

Every hour of October
Is a filmy vignette,
All the trees are empty sonnets
Autumn has not written yet;
Tripping, are purple asters
Hurried in my garden lanes,
Fearing Autumn's frosty scale
That some night will die them down.

Eve, day of blonde October
Is a testimony said
Of God's fearless architecture,
Dripping silent words of gold,
Floating through the air at twilight
Half uncertain where to go,
Leaves, without a destination,
Are like loves we never know.

—Peggy Field, in Detroit News.

The Explorers

Once more we've yearly tribute paid
To memory of the dauntless
(There may have sandemy others been)
Who westward sailed uncharted seas.

Same moment world watched eagarly
(From wireless)
The stately ship which westward pushed
Around or through the storms of skies.

At moment came it warmly gave
Hail and farewell as out to sea
Byrd sailed with ship, cog, plane, to dare
Antarctic ice waste's mystery.

Aye, ever bright the flame,—though but
Envy or praise in average breast,—
To span the void, to plumb unknown,
High, far, alone, in deathless quest!

—B. F. Griffin, in Boston News Bureau.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

He—Wouldn't you like to hear me sing "Because I Love You"?

She—No; if you love me, please don't sing.—Answers.

"June is marrying that X-ray specialist."

"What can he see in her?"—London Calling.

Cook (to clergyman's wife on Monday morning)—And what is to be done with the soup that was saved, ma'am?—Boston Transcript.

Prospective Purchaser—What an odd room this is, with no ceiling and open to the sky.

House Agent—Yes; it's a shower-bath room. The house was built by a Scotchman.—Home Seeker.

"Return to school I much enjoy,"
Said little Bennie Blatt.
The teacher smiled and said, "Dear boy,
You'll make a diplomat."
—Washington Star.

Mother insisted that Betty take her small brother Ted with her to the children's party. This fussed Betty not a little and finally she said fretfully: "Well, mother, how is I ever goin' to say I had a nice time when I come away if I take him?"—Chicago Tribune.

An Irishman who was an eligible bachelor visited a widow in the district every evening and had tea with her. A friend suggested that he should marry her.

"I have often thought about it," he said, "but where would I spend the evenings then?"—Washington Star.

Punch is printing some flowers of American speech. Here are two examples:

Fair New Yorker (disappointed in celebrity who has taken her to dinner)—Say, you're rather a dim bulb tonight, aren't you?

Fascinating American (to partner, after a delightful dance)—Gosh! That was great. Now we'd better park our frames a spell after that.—Boston Transcript.

KALEIDOSCOPE

Babylon was once the world's chief gem market.

The American dollar of 1804 is rarer than many ancient Greek coins.

Women in Iceland retain their maiden names after marriage, if they wish.

The army and navy flying schools require that their students spend at least 300 hours flying.

The French army's slightest soldier among this year's conscripts is Emile Lmsbonniere, a 51-pound Norman, four feet tall.

Texas has 11,771 unprotected grade crossings, the largest number in any state, while Rhode Island has only 53, the smallest number.

In the Manchu dynasty the right to store natural ice for use in hot weather was restricted to a few princes of China, who sold ice to the public.

When Daniel G. Benson of Bernard, Me., found a large piece of whalebone on the beach he remembered helping his father and grandfather haul ashore, 60 years ago, the carcass from which it came.

For seven years James E. Hudson, Negro, has served without pay as assistant chaplain at the Kentucky reformatory. Now Hudson, who runs a restaurant during the week, seeks to be chaplain. He has missed only five Sundays in seven years.

Twenty-six marble fireplaces, all imported from France and England, are in Wingwood house, new mansion at Bar Harbor, Me., of the Edward T. Stotesburys of Philadelphia. In the basement are five air furnaces, and each room is electrically heated.

Work has been started on the demolition of the Jesuits' church at New Orleans, one of the most widely known church structures in the United States. The wrecking was made necessary by the weakening of the structure due to the erection of large office buildings near by. It is estimated that 1,500,000 people visited the church annually. A new church, costing $400,000, will replace it.

A diamond ring and a ruby ring dropped into a hole in the wall of a Jackson (Mich.) hotel 25 years ago have just been recovered by workmen razing the structure. A man named Hawes now says he took the rings from his mother, and, boylike, poked them into the hole from which they could not be recovered. Hawes asked the workmen to watch for the rings when they tore down that section of the wall, and by sifting the debris the valuables were recovered.

RELIEF FROM CURSE OF CONSTIPATION

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.

Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Orderlie at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c today at the nearest Rexall or Liggett Drug Store.

NON-RESIDENT CLERGYMAN MAY PERFORM WEDDINGS HERE

The question has been raised whether a clergyman who is not a resident of Connecticut may perform the marriage ceremony in this state, in view of the fact that in Massachusetts this is not permitted. Dr. Charles P. Botsford, superintendent of health at Hartford, in whose department the marriage license bureau is located, explained today that the Connecticut law is clear on that point and differs from the Bay State statute.

In section 5267 of the Connecticut general statutes it provides that "ordained or licensed clergymen belonging in this state or any other state, so long as they continue in the work of the ministry may join persons in marriage." The Massachusetts law, as quoted by Dr. Botsford, states that persons may be joined in marriage by any ordained or licensed clergyman "who resides in the commonwealth and continues to perform the functions of his office."

Until 1812 Connecticut had the Massachusetts law which is thought to be a holdover from the early days when the states guarded more eagerly their sovereign independence.

SEPTEMBER BUSINESS IN NEW LONDON IMPROVED

Secretary Garlepy of the New London chamber reported as follows to the state chamber of commerce on the condition of business in September: Retail business in New London during September, 1928, showed an increasing activity and a marked improvement over September of last year. The local factories are operating the same as last month, about 70 per cent of normal. The building inspector reports 46 permits amounting to $118,917, 14 families provided for; showing a decrease over September, 1927, which showed 70 permits amounting to $224,138. Post office receipts for September, 1928, $14,404.32, an increase of $129.52. The number of real estate sales remained about the same as September of last year with prices about the same. For September, 1928, 1,826,140 kilowatt hours and 13,871,600 cu. ft. of gas were reported, an increase over September, 1927, of 202,128 kilowatt hours and 650,400 cu. ft. of gas. During September, 1928, electric meters installed totaled 10,326, [illegible] meters 7,312, an increase of 240 electric meters and 298 gas meters over September, 1927.

NORWICH TOWN

The Sunday school board of the First Methodist Episcopal church were guests Tuesday of Rev. and Mrs. George Warren Fetter at the parsonage Monday evening. A supper was served by Mrs. Fetter assisted by Doris Rose and Alice Brown. Following the supper the October business meeting of the board was held, the pastor presiding. Prayer was followed by the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting by the secretary, Inez Edmiston. The board voted to divide the class taught by Effie Ladd at her request and Mrs. Richard Carter was elected to take charge of the new class. The board voted to observe Sunday, Oct. 28th as Rally Sunday. It was voted that cards be sent to each pupil in the school by the teachers. A pin will be given each child or adult attending the Rally day exercises. A program is to be given at the Sunday school hour, each class taking part. Those present at the meeting were Supt. Lewis Aldrich, assistant superintendent, Florence M. Bennett; Mrs. Richard Carter, Effie Ladd, Mrs. Lewis Aldrich, Inez Edmiston, Doris Rose, Alice Brown and Rev. and Mrs. Fetter.

For Burial in Bridgeport

Undertakers Cummings and Ring sent the body of Mrs. Angelina Gardenia, 39, to her home in Bridgeport Wednesday. The woman committed suicide Tuesday by jumping into the Thames river near the Norwich state hospital.

HEAVY PROFIT-TAKING FAILED TO CHECK SPECULATIVE OPERATIONS

NEW YORK, Oct. 17—(AP)—The stock market, having advanced rather steadily for a week or more, ran into heavy profit taking today, but major speculative operations were again on the up-side. Spectacular advances of 5 to nearly 30 points took place in a few specialties and net gains of 1 to 4 points in a long list of standard rails and industrials were offset by a sizable group of net declines, several of which ran from 2 to 5 points.

Some of the day's selling was inspired by fears of another large increase in brokers' loans in the Federal Reserve statement to be published after the close tomorrow. A few of the large commission houses also sent out bearish market advices, which brought about rather heavy liquidation by nervous investors and speculators. Judging from the number of stocks "loaned after the session," "short" selling also was a factor, but it appeared to be rather cautious in character.

Loans in the "outside market" were freely available at 6 1-2 per cent. During the afternoon, time money and commercial paper rates held steady with the demand relatively light.

International Nickel was the spectacular individual feature, soaring 19 points to a new high record at 166 1-2, as against a low of 72 5-8 earlier in the year, on buying influenced by reports of a 6 for 1 stock split-up, and rumors of important developments in the company's Canadian mines. The rise in this issue was accelerated by active short covering.

With more than a score of the large industrial companies already having provided for stock split-ups, and several more reported to be considering such action, recapitalization rumors again played an important part in the day's proceedings. Dupont ran up 11 points to a new high at 418 and General Motors touched a new top at 224 1-2 and then slipped back to 219 1-2, up 3-4 net. Wall street hears that General Motors directors will discuss a stock dividend of 25 per cent and split up the stock on a 2 for 1 basis at the next meeting. One of the chief advantages of this plan is to obtain wider distribution of the stock.

Other high priced issues to move into new high ground included Case Threshing, Victor Talking Machine, Jewel Tea, National Bellas Hess, Johns Manville, American Express, Otis Elevator and Montgomery-Ward. The run-up of 12 1-4 points in Murray corporation to a new high record at 118 was based on unconfirmed reports of a new Ford contract. The brisk demand for Nash Motors was accompanied by rumors of buying for the account of the Fisher Brothers.

Among the low and medium priced issues to break into new high ground for the year were Alaska Juneau, Kennecott Copper, Household Products, American La France, Bush Terminal, Grand Union Stores, City Stores B, National Cash Register and Marlin Rockwell.

Oils again changed hands in enormous volume although some of the recent leaders fell back moderately on profit-taking. Superior was one of the most active features, touching a new top at 9 1-4. Other issues to attain new highs were Barnsdall "A" and "B," White Eagle and Warner Quinlan. Wall street was still in the dark regarding the outcome of recent conferences to bring about a world curtailment of production, but bullish enthusiasm was created by the increase in Wooster Crude and the falling off in domestic production last week.

Motor Products, which broke 15 points yesterday, fell back another 15 points today to 180 and then snapped back to 192 3-4. The decline in Certainteed Products to a new 1928 low at 33 revived fears for the safety of the dividend. Curtiss and Wright Airplanes, Hudson, Motors, International Harvester, International Silver, the Kelly-Springfield issues and Union Carbide also were conspicuously heavy.

Trading in the foreign exchanges was quiet. Sterling cables held fairly steady around $4.85 1-32, or just above the commonly accepted "gold import" point.

A further rise of about $2 a bale in cotton prices, based on unfavorable weather reports, attracted the most interest in the commodity markets. Wheat futures declined fractionally and coffee quotations sagged 12 to 15 points. Sugar prices held steady.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre.

Manager M. J. Levinson of the Broadway theatre announces today as the opening date for "The Lion and the Mouse," Warner Bros.' extended run production, with May McAvoy, Lionel Barrymore, William Collier, Jr., Emmett Corrigan and Jack Ackroyd. "The Lion and the Mouse" is based on the famous Charles Klein stage success. It recounts the grim trials of Judge Ross after he has the temerity to make a decision against Ryder, financial leader. Ryder ruins Judge Ross, whose daughter, Shirley, studying sculpture in Paris, returns home just after his downfall. Ryder's son has fallen in love with the girl. Shirley gains the opportunity to make a bust of Ryder, and while in his house, enlists young Ryder in the search for a letter which will free her father. The story is exciting and intensely dramatic. The screen version catches al lthe spirit of the original latitude in staging permitted by motion pictures. Lloyd Bacon is to be commended for his superb direction. It must not be forgotten that this production is one of the first Warner Bros.' talking pictures made, and as such has caused a sensation wherever heard and seen. All of the leading characters have talking parts and deliver their lines in a clear and distinct manner, which make the performance such a marvelous production. In addition there is presented three Vitaphone acts, all enjoyable and interesting and last but not least the Movietone News, which you hear as well as see. Norwich surely will enjoy these presentations.

Patronize These Well Known Concerns

WHY NOT CALL AMBROSE SULLIVAN FOR YOUR CEMENT WORK?

Perhaps there is some kind of cement work you have been planning to have done this past summer but you have kept putting it off? Now that fall is coming upon us fast why not get that work done before cold weather sets in and another year rolls around?

Ambrose Sullivan, phone 2808-5, Norwich, is just the man you need for this type of work. His prices are extremely reasonable and his work is of the highest type. No cement job is too large, and none is too small for him to do. He specializes in a mix of 1-2-4, the best in other words, and cement sidewalks are his specialty.

There is nothing that beautifies your property as does a good cement sidewalk. They wear longer and there is no after expense in their unkeep. The trend is all for cement sidewalks at the present time, few people going to the expense of putting in tar sidewalks. Once tar sidewalks were the vogue but everyone remembers how they soften up in the heat of the summer, holes appear in them in winter, they crack open. Cement sidewalks do not feel the weather. They keep that same new appearance for many years, are safe to walk upon and are economical in everyway.

Why put off having any cement work done at this time of the year? If you are worrying about the cost of the work, why not call Mr. Sullivan and allow him to quote you prices? He has many people who will be pleased to give you references as to the quality of his work. See Mr. Sullivan first and then forget your cement problems. He will handle them to your satisfaction and at a price that will pleasantly surprise you.

WHY NOT HAVE YOUR PLUMBING WORK LOOKED AFTER NOW?

Becker and Goldstein, of 77-79 Water street, Norwich, telephone 1306, are the men you should get in touch with if you are planning to have any plumbing done in the near future. Perhaps there is some small thing that you have neglected to have done during the summer? With winter rapidly approaching you should no longer put off this work.

The most valuable part of any plumbing job is the work of the men who install the plant. A fine heating system may be a wonderful thing, but if the men who install the plant are not qualified and do a poor job, the value of the heating plant is a complete loss. Poor plumbing stands out at its worst just at the season of the year when you need it most. In summer you do not need a heating plant but when the snappy cold days of winter are with us and the thermomster drops near the zero mark—then it is different. A poor job of plumbing at that time of the year is a terrible thing. Lack of sufficient heat, trouble wit hthe piping, and a hundred other little things stand out like mountains. No one wants the heater to fail in the dead of winter but this is likely to happen if the workmen are not fit to do good work.

Becker and Goldstein guarantee their work and have many people who will gladly tell you the type of emciency they put into their plumbing jobs.

In addition to being good plumbers, Becker and Goldstein handle those popular and long lasting Dupont paints. They also sell window glass and hardware of all descriptions. See them before you buy or have any work done.

TAKE THE WASH OUT OF WASH DAY AND ADD TO YOUR DAYS OF JOY

Wash day has a long history in the United States. It is the usual synonym for Monday. Its history dates back to the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth for what was one of the first acts of the Pilgrims after landing in this country? The women took all the dirty clothes of the colony down to the ocean front and washed them on the nearby rocks. This was Wash day inaugurated in America.

But Wash day is gradually becoming a thing of the past. The New System Taftville Wet Wash, phone 3223-2, is going a long way to eliminate the day of dread for women in Norwich. Instead of Wash day, the woman of the house merely takes the telephone off the receiver and calls Norwich 3223-2. The New System Wet Wash does the rest.

Its a great habit, and the women of Norwich who haven't got onto the idea yet are fast falling in line. Future Mondays will be days of pleasure—not of Wash days.

LET THE SHU-FIX LOOK AFTER YOUR SHOES TO OBTAIN GOOD WEAR

Now that the time has arrived for discarding summer shoes your winter shoes are going to again come in for hard wear. Why not have them put in first-class condition by The Shu-Fix shoe repair specialist, 256 Main street, Norwich? Unless the heels and soles are in proper shape you are not going to get the wear you should out of your shoes. Even a heel just slightly worn will throw the weight of your body in such a manner that the shape of the shoe will be destroyed and it will come in for some hard wear at points that otherwise would not have to carry much strain. It pays to be careful about your shoes for you know well enough the high prices that you have to pay for new ones. By having your shoes properly looked after from time to time by The Shu-Fix you will find that they will wear much longer and you will also have greater foot comfort.

Shu-Fix New Cement Process system has revolutionized the methods of shoe rebuilding.

The E-W Cement Press makes it possible for us to render this service to our patrons and to wearers of fine shoes. By this process we are in a position to offer to the ladies of Norwich the most up-to-date shoe repairing ideas.

We also use with this process of rebuilding, E-W Cement, which is a waterproof cement. E-W Flexible is known everywhere as the better flexible leather. It is oak tanned, not chrome, therefore giving the proper body for the E-K Cement process.

Where the Best Is None Too Good

Nothing is too good for our patrons. The utmost effort and pains we possess is put into every piece of work that leaves our plant.

UNION CAB CO. DRIVERS, NEW LONDON, WALK OUT, THEN SOME RETURN

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 17—All of the day drivers in the employ of the Union Cab company discontinued work this afternoon because of alleged dissatisfaction over working conditions. The cab company employs about a dozen drivers during the day. The walkout did not interrupt the service of the company, for the proprietors called out the night drivers and tomorrow a sufficient number of drivers will be employed to take care of the service of the cabs. After the walkout several of the drivers quitting work applied for reinstatement and requested that they be placed back at work. Some of them were, but others were told that their services were no longer required.

Joseph Cozzalino, 246 Canal street, Westerly, was arrested this afternoon by Traffic Patrolman Thomas Cavanaugh charged with violation of the traffic ordinances in passing the traffic signal, corner of Bank and Howard streets when the red light was set against him. He will be in court Thursday morning.

Another session of the board of selectmen was held this afternoon and evening for the purpose of making voters, the selectmen sitting from 1 o'clock this afternoon until 8 this evening, during which time about 700 voters were made. Most of the new voters were women, for throughout the afternoon and evening most of the applicants to be declared eligible were women. There is another day in which voters can be made and that is next Saturday. Those who have placed their applications with the board of selectmen and who fail to appear before the board will be barred from voting at the election.

MISS MANSFIELD BRIDE OF JOSEPH McDONALD

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 17—The marriage of Miss Ellen Mansfield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Mansfield of 25 Colman street, to Joseph MacDonald, son of Mr. and Mrs. John McDonald of 14 Center street, was solemnized yesterday morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church. Rev. Dr. Timothy M. Crowley performed the wedding ceremony and sang the nuptial high mass.

The bride was attired in blue transparent velvet with hat to match and carried pink roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Alice Mansfield who wore maroon crepe, with a hat to match and carried yellow roses. John McDonald, Jr., a brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Guests were present from Hartford, Pomfret, South Norwalk, Norwich and New York.

The bride presented a white gold aquamarine ring to her bridesmaid and a green gold watch chain to the bridegroom. The bridegroom's gift to his bride was a platinum and diamond brooch and to the best man a set of military brushes. Many beautiful gifts were received by the bride. Mr. and Mrs. McDonald left at noon by automobile for a wedding trip and on their return will be at home to their friends at their new residence 33 Colman street.

The bride was formerly in the offices of the General Roofing Co. Mr. McDonald is employed at the G. M. Williams store in State street.

Salvatore Annello, 78 Jefferson avenue, was charged in the city court today with breach of the peace and he was sentenced to jail for 10 days but execution of the sentence was suspended. Annello went to his residence yesterday noon and not content with verbally abusing his wife, Annello struck her several blows and then choked her.

A new sign post has been erected in the rear of the municipal building and will be used for posting legal notices.

Mrs. William Slocum and infant daughter of 298 Huntington street and Mrs. Daniel Weyant, 54 Howard street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

The funeral of Mattie B., wife of Frank Dowsett, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at Huntington Street Baptist church, the services being conducted by Rev. Joseph A. Elder, former pastor of the church. The bearers were Robert Hyde, William Costello, Edward McLaughlin, Frank Maxson, Earl Rose and John Gee. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

The funeral of Allen M. Strickland, formerly of New London, who died at Hartford several days ago, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at 48 Shanley street. The services were conducted by Rev. Charles F. Spaulding, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church. Mr. Strickland was a member of Niagara Engine company and members of that organization acted as bearers. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Vincenze Alviani, 86, died early today at his residence, 120 Poquonoc road, Groton. He had been in ill health a long time. Mr. Alviani is survived by his wife and seven daughters, three of whom reside in Italy, and Mrs. Elvira Zeppieri, Mrs. Bianca Mariani, Mrs. Louise Orlando and Miss Maria Alviani, who reside in this city and Groton. Mr. Alviani, who was born in Italy had resided in this country since a young man. He was a tailor.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles R. B. Stoeckel today ordered the suspension of the driver's license of M. T. Takac, United States coast guard. Takac was convicted in the police court recently of a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor and was fined $100 and costs. Commissioner Stoeckel also granted the right to drive to James H. Tomlinson, submarine base.

SIX DELINQUENTS LISTED TO HAVE PROPERTIES SOLD

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 17—The property of six more delinquent taxpayers of this city has been ordered sold by Tax Collector Alexander, as follows: A house and lot on Lincoln avenue owned by John and Rose B. Herbert, amount involved $157.95. A house and lot in Midway place, Ocean Beach, owned by Fannie Parskey of Hartford, $91.77. A house and lot on Shaw street owned by Virginia O. Giardina, $19.56. Three tracts of land with buildings belonging to Joseph Mariano, $1,594.64. A house and lot in Ocean View place, belonging to William Gladstone, of Hartford, $51.81. A house and lot at 27 Boardwalk, Ocean Beach, owned by Julius Weinstein of Hartford, $186.49.

David Main, 19 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Main, of Railroad avenue, Noank, narrowly escaped death the other morning, when the motorcycle he was riding collided with an auto, the driver of which speeded away after the accident, that occurred on the Post Road in Groton. Young Main is in Home Memorial hospital suffering from an injured hip and possible internal injuries. The youth was discovered by another motorcyclist and was rushed to the local institution.

Mary E. Burgess has purchased a house and lot on Crystal avenue from Frank B. Scaplan, administrator of the estate of Anne M. Scaplan.

The Ericsson, local coast guard destroyer, was pulled into dry dock at Boston today for a general overhauling.

The Peruvian submarines the R-3 and R-4, left this city today for South America where they will immediately go into active service in the Peruvian navy.

Thirteen autoists will be before the county court next Monday to answer charges of reckless driving and improper markings.

FINE OF $200 AND COSTS ON EACH OF TWO COUNTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 17—Abraham Shapiro, 449 Bank street, was in the police court today charged with two counts, transporting liquor and having liquor in his possession. He pleaded guilty and was fined $200 and costs on each count, but the court ordered $200 of the fine remitted. A charge of violation of the liquor law against Clarence Heffernan, 65 1-2 Montauk avenue, driver of the truck that contained the liquor which resulted in Shapiro's arrest, was nolled. The prosecution of Shapiro today is his third conviction in less than three months. In imposing the fines today Judge Victor Prince informed Shapiro if the latter came before the court again on a liquor charge he would be bound over to the superior court and he was advised to engage in a business that is not contrary to law.

WEDDING

Bowes-Foley

Mary E. Foley, daughter of Mrs. Mary Foley of Waterford and John J. Bowes, son of John Bowes of Saybrook were united in marriage at St. Joseph's church at 9 o'clock yesterday morning.

Following the ceremony Rev. William C. Fitzsimons, assisted by the Rev. James B. Hussion of Saybrook celebrated the nuptial mass. The bride was attired in white chiffon and wore a veil caught in place by a wreath of lilies of the valley. She carried white roses. Miss Helen Foley, sister of the bride who was the bridesmaid, wore a peach-colored crepe de chine gown with picture hat to match and carried roses. Joseph Bowes of New York, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. After the wedding a reception was held at Ocean Beach, with 100 Saybrook, Brooklyn, Norwich, New Haven and this city. The bride is a graduate of St. Mary's school and the New London Business college and for the past six years has been employed by the Southern New England Telephone Co. The bridegroom is a selectman in the town of Saybrook and is employed by Frank S. Pratt, Saybrook contractor. The bride received many beautiful gifts, silver, linen and furniture.

After the reception they left for a wedding trip and after Nov. 1 will be at home at their newly furnished home in Saybrook.

Being a missionary among Indians means something more than giving them spiritual advice and comfort it even goes beyond the point of trying to convert them to Christianity, because most missionaries have long since discovered children are the only ones who can be induced to give up the ancient beliefs.

Fred Thomson, motion picture star, is himself a clergyman and was naturally interested in the work of missionaries while he was on location with the Navajos in Arizona during the filming of "Kit Carson" for Paramount. One of the best known of these, Hush R. Smith, conducted all negotiations with the Indians.

The Indians all referred to him as "Shine." Several years ago he tried to teach them a little song which started: "Shine, shine just where you are." It appealed to them so much they gave him the name.

The Indians go to him with all their troubles. One squaw had a toothache. Squaws never speak above a whisper. She pointed to her jaw. He made arrangements to have the tooth pulled at Flagstaff that afternoon. Mothers brought ailing babies. A brave appeared, pointing to his stomach. He received a dose of castor oil.

Whatever "Shine" says goes with them. They have absolute faithin him. They sit around in circles when he talks to them.

Mr. Smith is a Georgian. For eleven years he has lived among the Hopis and Navajos, and he hopes some day to get his work organized so that he can have traveling aides and minister to the needs of his people the way Dr. Grenfell does in Labrador.

Mr. Thomson's latest production for Paramount is an authentic account of the famous scout's romantic life. No man in American history has had such a varied career, in this country's romantic history of exploration and settlement at Kit Carson and the film promises to be one of the outstanding achievements of the cinematic year. It will open at the Palace theatre today for a three days' engagement.

GREENEVILLE

Mrs. Tyler Gilbert entertained the A. C. G. club at her home on Prospect street Monday evening with a large attendance. A delicious supper was served by Mrs. Gilbert, which consisted of chicken salad, olives, pickles, Parker House rolls, Neapolitan ice cream, lady fingers, macaroons, salted nuts and hot chocolate. The dining room was very artistically arranged with the hallowe'en scheme of decorations being used, consisting of witches, black cats and hob goblins neatly arranged. A very enjoyable evening was spent by all. Among the guests present were the Misses Isabel Marsnall, Bessie Thompson, Julia and Ruth Sayles, Mildred McCluggage, Mildred Olson, Margaret Gohery, Doris Burr, Marian Jeffers, Harriett McCluggage, Leoretta Alley and Mrs. Bernice Purvis.

Mrs. Howard Rydholm picked a dandelion in full blossom from her front lawn Wednesday afternoon.

George Walsh has returned to his home at Newark, N. J., after spending a few days with relatives on Boswell avenue.

Miss Mary Keenan and Katherine Bergon have returned to their home on Fifth street after being recent visitors in Waterbury.

On Monday evening the members of the L. H. D. club were the guests of Miss Loretta Gadle at her home on Hickory street with a large attendance. Regular business was transacted with the president, Miss Marie Desmond, presiding. After the business meeting, a social hour was enjoyed. The entertainment was furnished by piano solos, rendered by Miss Mary Wieler, and vocal solos rendered by Miss Desmond and Miss Gadle. Refreshments were served of salads, Parker House rolls, ice cream, lady fingers, macaroons, salted nuts and hot chocolate. Miss Elizabeth Sullivan and Miss Catherine Finnegan assisted the hostess in serving.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Laros and son, Harry, have returned to their home on Fourth street, after being recent guests of relatives at Willimantic.

FUNERALS

Dennis J. Driscoll

The funeral of Dennis J. Driscoll was held Wednesday morning from his late residence, No. 157 North Main street, at 8:15 o'clock, followed by a solemn high mass at St. Mary's Memorial church at 9 o'clock. Rev. William A. Keefe, pastor, was celebrant, with Rev. John J. Reilly deacon and Rev. Frederick M. Coholan as subdeacon. The musical program of the mass was in charge of Mrs. Michael J. Farrell, organist. Miss Josie Hartlis rendered Pie Jesu at the offertory and Nicholas Spellman sang Beautiful Land on High as a waiting hymn. At the processional the church choir sang Abide With Me. Burial was in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery, where Rev. Father Coholan conducted the committal service. The bearers were Florence Driscoll, William, John and David Carey and John and Florence J. Driscoll. Among the large attendance of relatives and family friends were people from Detroit, Roanoke, Va., New York, Hartford, Wallingford and Southbridge, Mass. The floral tributes were both numerous and beautiful, speaking a mute testimony of the high esteem in which the deceased was held by his many acquaintances in this city. Undertakers Cummings & Ring were in charge of the funeral arrangements.

RECORD BREAKING CROWD OPENS ELKS' CHARITY FAIR AT ARMORY

The Norwich Elks' charity fair started off with a bang at the state armory on McKinley avenue Wednesday night with an attendance of between 2,000 and 3,000 that filled the armory to the doors and packed the aisles between the booths with a milling crowd of merry makers from the time the doors were first opened. Elaborate decorations overhead and along the sidewalls in the purple and white, the colors of the Elks, gave the armory a carnival atmosphere and public approval of the purpose of the Norwich Elks in holding the fair was evident in the crowd present and the patronage given to the great variety of booths and entertainment ranged about the big drill shed at the armory.

The Elks parade at 7:30 from the club house on Main street to the armory started the crowd going along and there was a constant flow towards the armory all through the evening. Brother John M. Swahn's band provided the music for the parade at the head of which marched Exalted Ruler Henry Bamber and General Chairman James M. Osten leading a line of Elks burning red fire as they marched.

Shortly after arrival at the armory, the fair was formally opened with a few brief remarks by Exalted Ruler Bamber who introduced Mayor Robbins. The head of the city government expressed his cordial good wishes for the success of the fair with an expression of appreciation for value of such an organization among the citizens and especially in its purpose of increasing its charity fund by which it would be fitted to enlarge its work in this worthy line.

When the salvo of applause that greeted the cordial words of Mayor Robbins had quieted down, the fun, frolic and jollification began while Swahn's orchestra furnished a programme through the evening from the elevated stage at the end of the hall. There was something to entertain and amuse every taste in the early part of the evening and at 10 o'clock the big feature was introduced with the appearance of the Happiness Boys, famous among the radio fans all over the country. From the first when they smiled and sang their infectious "How Do You Do," they had the audience with them and they gave almost a solid hour of the rarest sort of excellent entertainment with their song hits and line of chatter and antics.

This (Thursday) evening is to be New London night at the fair when a big delegation from New London lodge is promised to be in attendance and announcement was made that the free entertainment for the rest of the week will be by vaudeville acts from the big time, which will include the comedy acrobats, Poodles and Dotty, the Clark Raziliams, strong act, Lorette and Morton, comedy skit and the El Ray sisters, novelty roller skaters, one of the greatest teams in its line.

WORCESTER MAN WEDS NORWICH GIRL IN N. Y.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 17—Carefully budgeting the time allowed in a two day leave of absence from his duties at the Crompton and Knowles Loom Works here, where he is a shipping clerk, Leo E. Connolly of 176 Lincoln street, this city, estimated he had exactly two hours in New York city in which to marry Miss Helen P. Fitzgerald of 10 Shetucket street, Norwich, Conn. Several weeks ago Mr. Connolly wrote the office of a newspaper here, inquiring "the quickest way to get from Grand Central station to City hall, New York," and from Pennsylvania station to the same destination. All this sounded suspiciously like an elopement.

Bearing out the suspicion, word was received here today that the couple obtained a wedding license in the Municipal building, New York city, and were married yesterday in the Municipal chapel. That city was chosen as the scene of the wedding as a convenience to the bride's mother, who was unable to make the trip to Worcester. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David J. Fitzgerald. She was born in Norwich, Conn. The couple are expected to return to this city tonight, where they will make their home.

OBSERVED THEIR SILVER WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Rivers of Watercress avenue held a reception Saturday evening for their freinds on the day of their 25th anniversary. Piano and vocal selections were rendered and the radio furnished the music for dancing. Refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Wilfred Tortolsheli and Mrs. Peter Morin.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Octave Caron, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jarvis, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Flynn, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Morin and son, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Huber and daughter, Arlene, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Karkutt and children, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Tortolshell, Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Karkutt, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Caron, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Huber, Jr., Mrs. Clara Lafleur and Mr. and Mrs. Rivers.

MEN'S BIBLE FEDERATION IN EASTERN CONNECTICUT

An enthusiastic meeting of representatives of men's Bible classes of eastern Connecticut was held in New London in the parlors of the First Baptist church. Charles D. Wicks, state vice president, acted as chairman, Elton Downes as secretary.

At this meeting was born the Eastern Connecticut Federation of Men's Bible Clasees. The following officers were elected:

President, Charles D. Wicks of Niantic; secretary, Elton Downes of New London; treasurer, R. W. Potter of Mystic; vice presidents, A. V. Canfield of Willimantic, Charles Sawyer of Poquonoc Bridge, Benjamin Walker of New London, Ira Rathborn of Waterford, George Wallace of Mystic.

A vice president from Norwich is to be elected at the next meeting. As Mr. Wicks holds a state office he will serve only until a permanent president can be elected at a later meeting.

CONNECTICUT'S RED CROSS GAVE VOLUNTARY SERVICE

Volunteer service is the life of the American Red Cross, which says its annual report made public by the local chapter, owes to the energy and devotion of workers in Connecticut the production of a large stock of garments, surgical dressings and comforts for disabled service men and disaster sufferers, as well as other forms of aid.

In Connecticut, 30 chapters were credited with volunteer service in the last fiscal year, ending June 30. Of these, 29 chapters produced 5,830 garments and 292,801 surgical dressings. Twenty-four chapters maintained emergency closets of garments and surgical dressings, ready for release on call. In canteen work, volunteers were active.

Trained volunteers are a necessary part of the Red Cross organization. In American territory, the women who give freely of their time to the Red Cross produced last year a total of 253,040 garments and 2,276,621 surgical dressings. This was in addition to the unlisted thousands of garments made for the Mississippi Valley and Vermont flood sufferers.

These statistics, the report explains, are not complete, as much of the work done by volunteers is not reported. What the volunteers contribute in spirit to keep chepters active and flourishing in small communities, where all forms of service must be done by volunteers, is another thing that may not be measured or counted. Yet such figures as are obtained give an impressive picture, according to the report, of the varied activities of the volunteers in this state and nationally.

Operators' Licenses Suspended

Charles H. Cooper and Charles Peterka of New London and George S. Geer of Stafford Springs are in this week's list announced by the state motor vehicle department of operators having their licenses suspended for a year for driving under the influence of liquor. There are 30 in the list this week.

GRIEST CONTINUES TALKS AT BETTER BUSINESS CONGRESS

John W. Griest of Chicago delivered two more interesting addresses Wednesday morning and afternoon at the Better Business Congress held at the Wauregan hotel under the auspices of the merchants bureau of the Norwich chamber of commerce. The Personality of the Salesperson, the third factor of successful salesmanship, and What Business Management Means were the subjects of his talks, to which large audiences listened at each session.

Continuing his talks on Successful Salesmanship Mr. Griest stated that the personality of the salesperson is more important than the knowledge of your merchandise. A customer is sometimes swayed into buying an article by the personality of the salesperson, although he does not really care to buy it. Personality is a character which is developed and not born in a person. Assurance, determination, willingness to do things and the ability to love your job are requirements of a salesperson.

The salesperson who can not learn to love his position should obtain one that he does like, as he is in the wrong pew. You owe it to yourself and everyone concerned. Overcome timidity, nervousness and fear and be tactful, complimentary, courteous and considerate. Go about your duties with a smile and be cheerful, as the customer expects cheerful service. Listen to the woes and troubles of the customer if he cares to tell you them. Be sympathetic. Other important requirements of a salesperson are a self respect and poise. Be tidy and clean and above all things be sincere.

On Business Management

What Business Management Means was the topic for Mr. Griest's address before the Better Business Congress at the afternoon meeting in the Wauregan hotel. Every business must have some sort of control, he said. Business management means simply the ability to guide and control the activities of a business to a goal of success. The first thing in business management is to make sure of our information.

What is the ultimate aim in business management? The ultimate foal in business is profit. What is the biggest problem the management has to face today. The British merchants say that the average retail merchant in America has created such a keen competition that he was doing a big business without a profit. We are volume mad, said Mr. Griest, mad have lost sight of the ultimate goal for which we are striving, profit.

What is wrong with American business today? The average retail merchant has gone volume mad. He should take time to analyze his business cutting down his non-profitable territory and volume of business. The operating expense has been increasing and has been slowly decreasing your profit, until the average retail merchant is only making a profit of about 1 1-2 per cent, according to statistics. A number of stores have been showing a profit of less than that.

The only hope is to decrease your operating expense. How do you do it? Here is what I found one gentleman in New Haven did. He cut down the volume of his business. What class of people in the retail business is making a profit. As a rule the chain stores are making a bigger profit. Take any successful retailer. He has two distinct operating expenses, one is carrying and the other is the selling cost. A manager must spend his time in analyzing his business. He should ascertain how much it is costing him to carry his stock.

The manager should know which lines are not. If certain lines are not paying you, throw some of them out. I would not get rid of all of them, but carry a few which are not producing a profit, and make the department pay in which these articles are carried. Know when to buy, what to buy, and how much to buy. The four vital organs of business management are price, sales, margin and costs of doing business, concluded the speaker, after which there was a questionaire.

Mr. Griest will take for his topics today (Thursday), The Art of Closing a Sale and Where Have Our Profits Gone?

ENGAGEMENT OF FAIRBANKS, Jr. OF INTEREST ABOUT WESTERLY

The announcement from Hollywood of the engagement of Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Joan Crawford is of interest to Westerly and Watch Hill people who remember Doug. Jr., when he was a boy at Watch Hill. The young actor's mother before her marriage to Watch Hill with Doug. Sr., was Beth Sully, daughter of Daniel G. Sully; the boy spent his school vacations at Kenneth Ridge, the Sully summer home at the Hill.

Young Fairbanks says he is going to save up a plump bankroll this year before marrying Miss Crawford. The boy always was an athlete, and since going to Hollywood he has continued to devote much attention to his physical welfare. He works out two hours daily in the Hollywood Athletic club gym and says that he is in the pink of condition.

Dorothy Herzog in a copyrighted story from Hollywood says: "Since Doug Fairbanks, Jr., became engaged to Joan Crawford he looks like a million dollars.

"Joan made him cut down on cigarettes. Instead of "eating" two packs a day Doug smokes ten and likes it. He doesn't go skylarking to parties when he's emoting in a picture. Doug, Sr., is quite pleased with his son's engagement."

CHAS. W. HUBBELL MEMBER OF CLASS OF 1853, N. Y. U.

Charles Wheeler Hubbell, 97, who died Monday morning at New London, is to be buried after religious and Masonic services tonight (Thursday) at Brooklyn N. Y. Mr. Hubbell was born in Charlotte, Vt., in 1835, but had lived in Brooklyn the greater part of his life. He was the last surviving member of the graduating class of 1853 of New York university and then for 50 years was head bookkeeper of the National Park bank in Manhattan.

He joined Keystone lodge, No. 245, F. and A. M., in 1862, and later became affiliated with Hyatt lodge, No. 205, of which he served as master. He was later appointed deputy district grand master of the Grand Lodge in the Second Masonic district and in 1873 was made a Royal Arch Mason in DeWitt Clinton chapter, No. 142, R. A. M. He was a past president of the Brooklyn Masonic Veterans' association, and a member of Aurora Grata Scottish Rite bodies, Kismet temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., Brooklyn council, No. 4, R. & S. M., and DeWitt Clinton commandery, K. T., of which he was commander for two terms.

WITHDRAWAL IN MASONS ISLAND SLANDER SUIT

Dr. Gurdon S. Allyn has withdrawn from the docket of the superior court for this county his $10,000 slander action brought against Edward H. and Wanda Leadbeater, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Masons Island, while Mr. Leadbeater has withdrawn his $2,000 damage and injunction suit brought against Dr. Allyn and the Masons Island Co. Withdrawal papers without costs in both suits were filed Wednesday with Clerk John H. Walker of the superior court.

On May 4, Attorney Arthur L. Keefe, counsel for Mr. Leadbeater, obtained an injunction in the superior court restraining temporarily the Masons Island Co. and Dr. Allyn from interfering with the rights of Mr. Leadbeater in travelling over the island.

The following day, Attorney Philip Z. Hankey, counsel for Dr. Allyn, instituted a $10,000 slander action against the Leadbeaters, claiming that slanderous statements were made in connection with the obtaining of the injunction.

EIGHT PERSONS INJURED IN JUNKERS PLANE CRASH

Plane Fell on the Meadows Back of Atlantic City—Six of the Injured Were Members of the Investment Bankers' Association—Plane Went Into a Nose Dive and the Injured Were Caught in the Wreckage.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 18—(AP)—Eight persons, six of them delegates to the Investment Bankers' association convention here, were injured today in the crash of an airplane in which they were sightseeing over the city.

The plane, a sister ship of the trans-Atlantic monoplane Bremen, was piloted by George King, who had brought it down from a flying field on Long Island. It had sped back and forth over the city and turned westward toward the mainland over a broad stretch of meadow.

Suddenly it went into a nose dive and crashed in the marshes. The injured were caught in the tangle wreckage.

Because of the inaccessibility of the spot aid was delayed in reaching them and a freight train was commandeered to bring the injured to the city, where ambulances carried them to a hospital.

The injured were:

Pliny Jewell of Conn and Burr, Inc., Boston, possible fracture of the skull. Condition poor.

PLANE CRASH FATAL TO DENVER BROKER

DENVER, Col., Oct. 18—(AP)—W. Octave Chanute, prominent Denver broker injured in a plane crash at Atlantic City, was a grandson of the late W. Octave Chanute, the first, of Chicago, who was known as "the father of aviation."

HICKMAN TO BE HANGED SHORTLY AFTER 10 A. M. TODAY

SAN QUENTIN, Calif., Oct. 18—(AP)—William Edward Hickman will be hanged here shortly after 10 o'clock tomorrow for the murder of Marian Parker, Los Angeles school girl.

A final effort today to have Warden James B. Holohan delay the execution until Hickman could be examined mentally met with failure.

Thomas Hickman of El Paso, Tex., father of the condemned youth, went before the warden with a long affidavit signed by Dr. C. M. MacFall of the University of Virginia, which said the slayer is insane. Dr. MacFall examined Hickman several times before his trial in Los Angeles.

Warden Holohan declined to call a board of physicians to conduct a sanity investigation and the elder Hickman left, probably to see his son no more until he sees him on the gallows in the morning.

The condemned youth spent the day in the death cell, devoting most of his time reading his Bible and meditating. No one is expected to visit him tonight or tomorrow but the chaplain, the Rev. William A. Fleming, a Catholic priest, and the two guards who maintain a vigil over the cell.

Gov. C. C. Young has declined to intervene in the case. Defense attorneys exhausted all legal moves in behalf of the slayer when the United States supreme court refused to consider an appeal.

Hickman was removed to the death cell from condemned row at 9 o'clock last night. Removal was delayed four hours because Jerome Walsh, the slayer's chief attorney, said he expected his client's mother to call and prison officials did not want her to see him in this cell. Mrs. Hickman did not come and is not expected now. She will remain in seclusion near her home in Kansas City until after the execution, friends said.

The body will be buried in San Rafael, near here.

AIR MAIL PILOT LONG OVERDUE AT CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, Oct. 18—(AP)—Long overdue with the night mail from New York, William C. "Wild Bill" Hopson, veteran pilot and World war veteran, was missing tonight and fears were felt for his safety.

Three planes were sent out by the National Air Transport company, on whose New York-Chicago air mail line Hopson was a pilot. More than seven hours search, however, failed to result in any trace of the missing flier. He was last reported at Marion, Pa., at 1:05 a. m. today, flying nearly on schedule. He was due at the Cleveland airport at 3 a. m. Fears that he had fallen victim to unfavorable weather in the mountainous district of Pennsylvania, long one of the most dangerous hazards of trans-continental fliers, were allayed with the Clarion report.

Hopson, who once was forced down in Pennsylvania, also was reported to have passed Bellefonte, Pa., safely after taking off from Hadley field, N. J., at 9:40 p. m. o'clock last night.

He was a veteran of eight years' flying experience. One of his feats was to wake villagers of Warrensville Heights, Cleveland suburb, while making a night run in order to arouse them in time to prevent a serious loss by fire.

WEST VIRGINIA INJUNCTION PROTECTS WORKERS' PARTY

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Oct. 18—(AP)—By unanimous action the state supreme court today granted a temporary injunction restraining city authorities of Wheeling "from interfering with any lawful political meetings which may be held by the workers' party," in Wheeling and Ohio county, W. Va.

The injunction, issued upon complaint of three candidates of the party as presidential electors in West Virginia, stipulated, however, that the injunction would not become effective until the plaintiffs executed a bond for $200 before the clerk of the Ohio county court.

The plaintiffs, in their petition, cited several instances where they claimed meetings were "suppressed" upon orders of Wheeling police and stated that Scott Nearing, and another man, were arrested recently as they started to address a meeting.

KILLED JANITOR BECAUSE HE REFUSED TO GO TO WORK

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 18—(AP)—Dr. Frank L. Burleigh crippled physician of Burbank, near here, who yesterday shot and killed his office janitor, Jack Stachiel, told sheriff's officers who questioned him in jail here today that he killed the man because he refused to go to work.

INCREASING ACTIVITY IN TRADE AND INDUSTRY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18—(AP)—Industrial and trade activity through September, as reviewed by the federal reserve board's monthly bulletin of financial conditions at home and abroad, showed increasing activity, with an expansion of banking credit reflecting seasonal demands. Firm money rates, a greater volume of bank loans than a year ago, and stiffening wholesale commodity prices were items the bulletin mentioned.

"Productions of both manufactures and minerals increased considerably during August," the bulletin said, "the output of manufacturing plants being larger than at this season of any earlier year. Distribution of commodities showed seasonal increases during August.

"Loans and investments of member banks in leading cities have increased in recent weeks, indicating chiefly an expansion of loans on securities. Compared with last spring, however, the volume of loans and investments of member banks is about $220,000,000 lower. * * *

"Figures indicate that credit has been available to the bank's commercial customers for their usual seasonal requirements. The cost of bank credit, however, has been higher than at any other time in the past seven years."

BINGHAM ADDRESSED HUNGARIAN SOCIETY

SOUTH NORWALK, Oct. 18—(AP)—Criticism of Secretary Andrew Mellon, of the treasury by Gov. Alfred E. Smith, democratic nominee for president, was called "brickbat throwing" by U. S. Senator Hiram Bingham, in an address before the Hungarian society here tonight. The senator had spoken of the tariff in its application to Connecticut industries and upon prohibition, explaining that the president of the United States cannot change the laws, and asking the audience not to be misled by any claims that Gov. Smith, if elected president, could modify the so-called dry laws.

Senator Bingham then said: "Judging by Mr. Mellon's reply to Gov. Smith it seems to me that the 'happy warrior' has been having such a good time fighting that he hasn't had time to be accurate. Of course, it is very easy to grab the first brick that comes to hand when you are in a good, old happy scrap. Throwing brickbats may be good fun. Nevertheless, do we want for president the happiest brickbat thrower in sight or the careful builder who uses bricks to build better homes?"

HOOVER ENDORSED BY BRYAN DEMOCRATIC LEAGUE

NEW YORK, Oct. 18—(AP)—The Bryan democratic league, which was organized in 1900 and which has busied itself since in state and national campaigns, endorsed Herbert Hoover for president today.

The statement was signed by the 19 persons comprising the league's 1928 campaign committee, all of whom were described as democrats.

"Mr. Hoover embodies the very qualities which from his first campaign," the statement read, "attached us to William Jennings Bryan—the same passion for the common man, the same fine scruples against underhand dealings, the same quick action against tricky injustices, the same mind on prohibition and tammany."

INTEGRITY OF GOVERNOR TRUMBULL UNQUESTIONABLE

HARTFORD, Oct. 18—(AP)—The ominous silence that has followed the disposition of the case of Roger W. Watkins, self-confessed stock swindler and now a Wethersfield convict, was broken today by Gov. John H. Trumbull with the statement that he would not sell his good name for any profit.

The governor's statement was followed by one from State Banking Commissioner Lester E. Shippee in which he said, "If there is anyone who has been fair and square and above board in this Watkins affair, it is John Trumbull."

VISCOUNT PEEL TO BE SECRETARY FOR INDIA

LONDON, Oct. 18—(AP)—Official announcement is made that Viscount Peel will succeed Lord Birkenhead as secretary for India. Lord Peel was secretary for India in 1922-24. The earl of Birkenhead resigned several days ago.

Lord Londonderry will replace Lord Peel as first commissioner of works.

Lord Birkenhead on the occasion of his resignation has been appointed a knight grand commander of the order of the Star of India by the king.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

LONDON, Oct. 18—(AP)—Sir Francis Bernard Dicksee, president of the Royal academy since 1924 and one of Britain's outstanding artists, died in a London nursing home today at the age of 75 years. He recently had undergone an operation.

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 18—(AP)—A contract to carry mail by dirigible between Spain and Argentine has been signed by Argentine postoffice officials and representatives of the Spanish Trans-aerial company, which is reported to have leased the Graf Zeppelin from German interests for two years. The service is expected to begin in six months.

WIFE ASKED TO PAY $150 A MONTH DIVORCE ALIMONY

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 18.—(AP)—A wife was asked to pay $150 a month alimony in a divorce petition filed today in circuit court.

John Hussey, 65, former vice president of the South Louisville bank, stated in his reply to the divorce action of Mrs. Birdie B. Hussey that in 28 years together they had saved $200,000, but the property was in her name. He now is virtually penniless and crippled, he asserts, and is about to be expelled from their home.

In addition to the temporary alimony of $150 a month, Hussey asks $50,000, which he asserts, is only a part of the estate he has entrused to his wife since they were married in New Haven, Conn.

Mrs. Hussey asked a divorce on statutory grounds and Hussey does not contest.

GOV. SMITH ATTACKS SECRETARY MELLON

CHICAGO, Oct. 18—(AP)—Secretary Mellon was a target today for the verbal fire of Governor Smith, who accused the treasury department head with ducking the issue on the question of a reduction in the operating costs of the federal government.

The democratic nominee said that Mr. Mellon in replying to his challenge to republican claims of economy in government had talked about tax reduction and remained silent on the question of a paring down of federal expenditures.

Gov. Smith, who has not discussed the subject of his address for tomorrow night, was waited upon late today by a group of labor officials. He told them that he probably would discuss the question of labor in a speech in Boston next week.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE SUPT. TO SERVE SENTENCE

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 18—(AP)—Dr. E. S. Shumaker, superintendent of the Indiana Anti-Saloon league, today gave up the battle to escape the sixty day sentence on the state penal farm imposed on him by the Indiana supreme court for contempt. He was alleged to have caused the publication of statements criticising members of the court for their decisions involving the enforcement of the prohibition law.

Following his conviction on the contempt charge, the Rev. Mr. Shumaker and his associates declared an appeal would be taken to the U. S. supreme court, but in statements today they declared that lack of funds to carry on the case prompted the decision to abandon the fight.

CIVIL LIBERTIES UNION TO HELP MONARCHISTS

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 18—(AP)—City fathers of Dallas almost were ready to believe they were being "snoofed" tonight as the American Civil Liberties union offered to help monarchists and communists obtain "rights of free speech" in Dallas.

"Who is your candidate for king?" inquired a telegram purposting to come from an official of the union and addressed to Richard Potts, who styles himself "secretary-general of the Royalist League of America."

The royalists, who like the communists failed to obtain use of the city hall auditorium for meetings, accepted an alleged offer to help from the union and in turn offered to help the union obtain rights of assemblage for the communists.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE TO DEDICATE PARK TODAY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—(AP)—A new national park, commemorating the bitterest battles fought on Virginia soil during the Civil war between the the states will be dedicated by President Coolidge at Fredericksburg tomorrow.

Accompanied by Senator Swanson, of Virginia, and by ranking officers of the army, navy and marine corps, the chief executive will travel to Fredericksburgh to deliver an address commemorating the Fredericksburg and Spotsylvania county battlefields. The address will be broadcast over a nationwide hookup. The president will return to the white house in the evening.

The park which Mr. Coolidge will dedicate includes the battle fields of the Wilderness, Chancellorsville, Spottsylvania, Fredericksburg and Salem Church.

KIDNAPED HIS SWEETHEART AND MADE HER HIS BRIDE

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Turning cave man, Fred Obynik, 27, today kidnaped the sweetheart who had refused to see him after a quarrel and made her his bride.

Miss Ruby Crockett, 27, capitulated to Obynik's brand of love making and married him a few hours after she was abducted. Obynik stopped William Krauland, 31 who was driving Miss Crockett to work, threatened him with a jack handle and drove away with the young woman.

The couple returned home to find police awaiting Obynik. Instead of occupying a jail cell for his audacity, however, the cave man, with his bride, will entertain William McMullan, police chief, at a wedding party.

Rum Craft Waiting To Run Blockade

Approximately 25 Rum Ships Are Lined Up Along the Canadian Shore of the Niagara River.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 18—(AP)—While coast guard, immigration and customs patrol boats co-operated in the Niagara river tonight in an attempt to maintain a blockade, approximately 25 rum runners, lined up along the Canadian shore, awaited a favorable opportunity to make a dash for the American side and land their illicit cargoes.

Their task was a difficult one. Last night and early today, nine of the craft attempted to run the blockade, ordered yesterday by Lieut. Martin W. Rasmussen, district coast guard commander, and seven of the boats fell into the hands of the American patrols, although all but one member of the crews escaped. Two of the rum runners apparently made safe landings and disposed of their cargoes, probably Canadian ale worth $5.70 a case, wholesale, or twice what was paid for it in Canada.

Lieutenant Rasmussen, who took several newspapermen for an inspection of the river today, said he was satisfied with the results of last night's work. He felt, he said, that an average of 50 per cent of captures was "pretty good" and last night's haul was much higher than that. With continued co-operation of the immigration and customs boats, he said he felt that his own men were in a most favorable position to hold off the invading craft.

Eighteen coast guard boats were on the river tonight, all of the effective craft in this area. They were supplemented by a number of smaller immigration and customs boats.

NEW YORK CITY TO HAVE ELEVEL VEHICULAR HIGHWAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Plans for an elevated vehicular highway, which with already existing motorways, would permit travel from the Bronx to lower Manhattan virtually uninterrupted by crosstown traffic, were approved today by the board of estimate.

Borough President Julius Miller of Manhattan announced that work on the $13,500,000 solution to the traffic problem would start January 1. He expects it to be completed in a year and a half. The vehicular tunnel under the Hudson from New Jersey emerges within a few blocks of the lower end of this proposed highway and near the upper end is building the first bridge across the Hudson within the limits of New York city.

The plans call for an elevated structure, broad enough for three streams of traffic each way, to be erected over the marginal way from Canal street to 59th street, and thence over yards of the New York Central railroad to 72nd street, where it would enter Riverside drive, which has no cross traffic.

This is a distance of four and a half miles.

SEARCH FOR SLAYER OF BEAUTY SHOP PROPRIETOR

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 18.—(AP)—Search for the slayer of Mrs. Genevieve Stultz, 32, beauty shop proprietor whose body was found near Elkhart, Ind., Monday, turned today to Chicago where the police hoped to find a Don Walker who in correspondence with Mrs. Stultz a year ago referred to her "trouble."

Meanwhile efforts were renewed to find Harvey Smith private detective whom Mrs Charles Revher said she hired for $50 to break up a suspected love affair between Mrs. Stultz and her husband.

HOME TOWN WELCOMED HASSELL AND CRAMER

ROCKFORD, Ill. Oct. 18.—(AP)—Hometown friends today turned one en masse to welcome home Bert Hassell and Packer D. Cramer, whose projected flight from Rockford to Stockholm, Sweden, last August ended in frozen Greenland.

Rockford extended to the flyers a riotous greeting, featured by a shower of ticker tape, waste paper, stationery, newspapers and torn telephone books.

The aviators were guests tonight at a banquet held in their honor. Each flyer was presented with a gold watch.

MARQUIS AT THE AGE OF 75 MARRIES VISCOUNTESS, 59

LONDON, Oct. 18.—(AP)—The Marquis of Abergavenny, who is 75, married Viscountess Hardinge today, the ceremony being performed quietly in a London church. Viscountess Hardinge, who is 59, is the widow of the third viscount and mother of Lord Hardinge, aide-de-camp to Lord Willingdon, governor-general of Canada, who married Margot Fleming in Ottawa recently.

The Marquis of Abergavenny succeeded the third marquis last year. His first wife died in 1880 and his second wife died last year.

The crew was reported to be in good health.

Puckett was asked to communicate at 6 each morning to pick up a radio message for relay. The operator said Puckett was the only person he had heard since leaving California.

Hoover Talks To A Group Of Exporters

Stressed the Necessity For Government Cooperation With American Industry to Get Foreign Trade.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18—(AP)—Discussing the necessity for government cooperation with American industry in building up foreign trade, Herbert Hoover told a group of exporters today that it was of extreme importance that men whose eyes were fixed upon the country's future should get into "this campaign and see that the public mind is corrected."

Although the republican presidential nominee did not refer directly to any phase of the alleged "whispering campaign," in speaking to the members of the Hoover-Curtis national export committee, he assured them of his appreciation of their activity "because campaigns are filled with many issues and movements that have nothing to do fundamentally with the prosperity and progress of the country."

In addressing the visitors the nominee spoke of the strides taken by foreign trade in the past several years and asserted that he felt one primary factor in the stability of American business and continuation of employment was the expansion of foreign trade. In working toward this end, he explained that a basis of co-operation between government and industry had been resorted to instead of compulsion.

"You know as well as I know the enormous volumes of opportunity that are constantly coming into American industry through the governmental agencies throughout the world, and the effect they have had in the actual expansion of trade," he said.

"But more important than that, this whole organism set up in cooperation with industry and extended all over the country, has resulted in directing the public mind and our merchants and our manufacturers to the primary necessity of trade as the basis of stability. So we have made many gains out of it. We have the gain in employment, probably to the extent of four or five hundred thousand in the export trade alone.

"The next few years are going to be a time of necessity for even more intensive cooperation for the recuperation of the world is going to make competition more intensive. At the same time the world is going to expand its demand enormously, and our problem is to get our share of the world's growth and expansion."

The spokesmen for the exporters, Elon H. Hooker of New York declared that it was the desire of the exporters to see Hoover elected "so that your larger enterprises may come to fruition," and that the policies of the department of commerce might not be changed.

TO CONTROL BETWEEN 150 AND 200 THEATRES IN N. Y.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18—(AP)—The Fox Theatres corporation, which recently purchased the $25,000,000 Poll chain was reported by reliable sources to have completed arrangements for the control of between 150 and 200 theatres in Greater New York to be operated by a new company to be known as Fox-Metropolitan Theatres. The theatres involved have a seating capacity of 250,000.

Offices of the Fox Theatres corporation refused either to confirm or deny the report.

SENATOR BINGHAM TO GIVE RADIO TALKS ON AVIATION

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 18—(AP)—United States Hiram Bingham will open the series of radio talks on aviation which will be inaugurated in New York tomorrow night and conducted weekly to give information on the subject to those who have an interest in it. Each talk will be for half an hour at 7:30 p. m., Friday evenings, from station WABC and Senator Bingham will launch the series by reason of his new office as president of the American Aeronautical society.

$2,300,000 SUIT AGAINST ESTATE OF THE LATE WM. M. WOOD

BOSTON, Oct. 18—(AP)—The $300,000 suit and the $2,000,000 suit brought by the American Woolen company of New Jersey against the estate of the late William M. Wood today were ordered consolidated by Judge Crosby in the supreme court here. He also decreed that both suits be heard by Arthur Black as master. He is now hearing the larger suit.

A third suit brought by the American Woolen company of Massachusetts against the estate is not consolidated with the others or referred to a master.

MOTHER AND HER FOUR CHILDREN ASPHYXIATED

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—(AP)—A mother and her four children were asphyxiated today when water boiled over on the gas range in their home. The mother, Mrs. Buelah Fisher, was found by police lying in the bed where she had evidently fallen asleep while waiting for the water to boil.

The children were grouped about the floor in the kitchen as though they must have been playing when the escaping gas suddenly snuffed out their lives.

COLLEGE DEGREE FOR FRANK B. KELLOGG

NORTHFIELD, Minn., Oct. 18—(AP)—In recognition of his constructive service to the nation and for his leadership "in the realization of humanity's hopes for a warless world," the degree of doctor of laws was conferred upon Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg by Carleton college today.

Conferring the degree took place immediately after Secretary Kellogg had dedicated Severance hall to the memory of his lifelong friend and law partner for nearly two score years, Cordenio A. Severance.

INDIANA MINERS SIGN WAGE SCALE AGREEMENT

TERRE HAUTE Ind. Oct. 18.—Indiana miners and operators today signed a new wage agreement to supplant the old Jacksonville scale. The action closed five weeks session of the scale committees of the two organizations.

The new contract provides for $6.10 per day for the day wage men and 91 cents a ton for men on a tonnage basis, the same scale as adopted several weeks ago in Illinois.

FEAR FOR SAFETY OF MOTH PLANE BOUND FOR EUROPE

No Direct News Has Been Received of Commander Macdonald Since He Hopped Off at Harbor Grace at 11.51 a. m. Wednesday—Wednesday Night at 7.30, E. S. T., the Dutch Steamship Hardenberg Sighted a Plane About 700 Miles East of St. Johns—No Anxiety is Felt by Builder of the Plane.

LONDON, Oct. 18—(AP)—The silence in which the audacious attempt of Lieut. Commander H. C. MacDonald to fly the Atlantic in a little Moth plane from west to east has been shrouded since the British aviator left Newfoundland, was broken tonight by a message that brought more of thrill than of hope.

The Dutch steamship Hardenberg, bound for Antwerp, and about 700 miles east of St. Johns reported to the Associated Press sighting an airplane which passed its position half an hour after midnight London time, or 7:30 p. m. eastern standard time last night.

The MacDonald plane had hopped off from Harbor Grace at 11:51 yesterday morning, and the plane reported by the Hardenberg undoubtedly was the lone British flier. The message records its progress for nearly eight hours, but leaves a vast abyss of space and time which imagination and speculation are left to explain as hopefully as they may.

The message read:

"Airplane passed Steamer Hardenberg latitude 53.29 north, longitude 41.30 west, 00.30 Greenwich meridian time. Master."

Commander MacDonald's slim young wife, who has patiently watched and waited in her Kensington home since her husband's great adventure began so many miles away, voiced the ominous nature of the message.

"That is a long time ago," she said quietly, while keeping her tones bravely under perfect control.

This single message on the progress of the flight was relayed to The Associated Press by the Steamship Leviathan, which left Southampton yesterday. It came after more than 25 hours of complete silence and several hours after the time of the plane's calculated arrival on the Irish coast.

Despite a constant watch by civic guards throughout Ireland, there was no news of the dauntless naval officer who won the D. S. C. for gallant submarine war service. Hopeful friends were still bolstering their optimism tonight with the possibilities that Commander MacDonald may have landed in some obscure spot in Ireland, or—encountering trouble over the ocean was able to find some craft and descend near enough to save his life.

The British people and press were unusually stirred today by the incomplete story of their countryman's unboasting daring. They recall that he was still almost in the apprentice period as a solo flier and point to his tiny ship lacking wireless or buoyant devices. His known skill as an expert navigator is given as a potent factor in his favor, partly counterbalancing his lack of experience as a pilot.

NO ANXIETY FELT BY BUILDER OF THE PLANE

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 18—(AP)—No anxiety was felt late this afternoon for Lieutenant Commander H. C. MacDonald, by R. H. Loader, general manager in Canada for the De Havilland company which built MacDonald's Moth plane.

"I feel no anxiety yet," he said. "I have the greatest confidence in his ability as a navigator and the northern route which he is apparently taking would probably lengthen the time of his flight."

ANXIETY PREVAILS AT HARBOR GRACE, N. F.

HARBOR GRACE, N. F., Oct. 18—(AP)—This little town, familiar as it is with trans-Atlantic flight tragedies was fearful tonight for the safety of Lieut. Comdr. H. C. MacDonald, of England, who has been unheard of since leaving here yesterday in his Moth airplane in an attempt to span the Atlantic.

The fear that MacDonald's name had been added to the list of fliers who failed in their attempt to cross the ocean by air increased rapidly after 3 o'clock this afternoon. This was the hour when word of the Englishman's successful voyage was expected should he have crossed safely.

Even Mechanic Williams, who had helped MacDonald prepare his plane for the flight, had fears as to the aviator's safety. Williams said that if the gasoline tanks on the plane were one-third full when the flier was forced down he would have about 10 or 29 minutes in which to send up flares before the plane would sink. He would not give up hope that MacDonald would be heard from, however.

GOV. RITCHIE VIEWS ON "THIS ANTI-TAMMANY STUFF"

STAMFORD, Conn., Oct. 18—(AP)—Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland, speaking at a democratic mass meeting here tonight declared that "Tammany Hall no more dominates Alfred E. Smith than I do."

"If there is any dominating," he added, "Smith dominates Tammany."

Answering what he termed "this anti-Tammany stuff," Gov. Ritchie declared that to say Gov. Smith would not make a good president because he is a member of Tammany hall, would be the equivalent of saying that no democrat from the city of New York could be eligible for president "because," he said, "there are few New York city democrats who are active party men who do not belong to Tammany."

"Tammany," he said, "is simply the historic name of the democratic party organization in Manhattan. It has had its black sheep and its black and white days, as every party organization has had in every state, city and county of the Union. It would be just as reasonable to hold Hoover or Coolidge responsible for the notorious scandals of Grant's day, as to hold Smith responsible for the iniquities of Tweed or Crocker."

Gov. Ritchie described as an "affrontery" any attack on Tammany "from a party which relies for its life and sustenance on the Vare machine in Philadelphia, the Mellon-Magee machine in Pittsburgh, the Crowe-Thompson machine in Chicago, the old Cox machine in Cincinnati, the Watson state machine in Indiana, and the Small state machine in Illinois.

TO EXHUME BODY OF FARM HAND INSURED FOR $15,000

TUSCOLA, Ill., Oct. 18—(AP)—The body of Walter McAllister, farm hand who was insured for nearly $15,000 in favor of the wife of his employer, will be exhumed here tomorrow by county authorities who are inquiring into the manner of his death. McAllister was killed, according to Emil Carroll, wealthy farmer, for whom McAllister had worked for 15 years, as they rode on to a grade crossing in the path of train.

Carroll says he leaped to safety. Members of the train crew which struck Carroll's automobile testified before a coroner's jury that McAllister's body was wrapped in a blanket when they found it following the accident. It was crushed and broken.

Carroll admitted that he owned a baseball bat found near where the crash occurred.

Mrs. Carroll said she had not known that she was named as the beneficiary of the insurance policies.

Coroner Raymond C. Gillogly declared he found an automobile inner tube twisted about McAllister's right leg, beneath his trouser leg.

RIDING A DONKEY FROM WASHINGTON TO ALBANY

NEW YORK, Oct. 18—(AP)—A 78-year-old veteran, who is riding a donkey from Washington to Albany, N. Y., called at democratic national headquarters today to report progress on his 400 mile jaunt, carrying messages from the Smith-Robinson Veterans' club at Washington to Governor Smith at the state capital.

The veteran is Bill Patterson, whose army service began 30 years ago. Geo. Henry T. Allen, chairman of the National Democratic Veterans' organization, and Senator Millard E. Tydings of Maryland received him at headquarters, posed with him for photographs and sent him on toward Albany with a new batch of letters for the presidential nominee.

RUSHING REPAIRS ON THE GRAF ZEPPELIN

LAKEHURST, N. J., Oct. 18—(AP)—Repairs were being rushed on the damaged fin of the trans-Atlantic dirigible Graf Zeppelin today so that the great ship may take the air early next week for a two day flight into the middle-west.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, pilot of the dirigible, spent the day here and received many letters from cities between here and Chicago requesting that the airship fly above them.

Hans Von Schiller, navigator of the Zeppelin, answered the letters, saying that the itinerary of the trip had not been definitely determined, but that the ship would pass over as many cities as possible, to enable the greatest possible number of people to see it.

It is fairly definite that the ship will pass over Akron, Ohio, home of the Goodyear Zeppelin company. American representatives of the German Zeppelin works, and Detroit, where it is likely the ship will tie up at the Ford airport mooring mast. The flight may continue as far west as Chicago.

There was a conference here today of persons it was understood might be interested in Dr. Eckener's dream of a $14,000,000 trans-Atlantic airship service, but Dr. Eckener, himself did not attend it, being represented by Hugh Allen, of the Goodyear-Zeppelin company.

Tonight's program for the visiting airmen called for a dinner tendered by the city of Philadelphia and tomorrow there will be a trip to Washington.

WASHINGTON TODAY WILL WELCOME ZEPPELIN CREW

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18—(AP)—Official Washington tomorrow will welcome Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the dirigible Graf Zeppelin, which paid a brief visit to Washington Monday near the end of her trans-Atlantic flight.

The party, in addition to Dr. Eckener, includes Count Alexander Von Brandenstein-Zeppelin, son-in-law of the late Count Zeppelin, Staff Captain Ernst A. Lehmann and Col. Emilio Herrera of the Spanish air force.

The party will be entertained at breakfast at the White House as guests of President and Mrs. Coolidge in company with Secretaries Wilbur of the navy department and West of the interior department, and Acting Secretary of State J. Reuben Clark. Dr. Otto Kiep, charge d'affaires of German embassy, and the three assistant secretaries of aeronautics.

Courtesy calls will be paid the state, war, navy and commerce departments and Herbert Hoover, the republican nominee for the presidency, during the morning hours, following which flights over Washington will be made by army and navy transport planes.

MOODUS SUMMER COLONY THREATENED BY FIRE

MOODUS, Oct. 18—(AP)—Fire tonight caused damage of $15,000 and for a while threatened to wipe out the summer colony here. A two-story summer boarding house, owned by Nathan Randel, was burned to the ground. At the time of the fire, a high wind was blowing, and help was summoned from Chester. After battling the flames for over an hour they were brought under control. At one time during the height of the blaze, sparks were carried by the wind to the roof of the Southern New England Telephone company, across the street, but the blaze was extinguished by volunteer fire brigades.

LOCAL S. W. V. DELEGATES RETURN FROM HAVANA

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 18—Past Commander William E. Jackson of this city and Commander John Gallivan of Lebanon of A. C. Tyler Camp No. 8, United Spanish War veterans returned to New York Wednesday night after attending the national convention of the U. S. W. V. at Havana, Cuba, the past week. Commander Gallivan is spending a few days visiting relatives in New York, but County Detective Jackson returned here today. Mr. Jackson, who was a member of Company F, Twelfth Infantry, U. S. A., attached to Roosevelt's Rough Riders at San Juan Hill in 1898, stated that the only other member of that command who was at the convention was Paul Sweeney, a member of Company D of Milford. Past Commander Jackson reports a most hospitable reception by the Cuban government and officials of Havana. The freedom of the city was granted the veterans and royal entertainment provided. Commander Gallivan, who was a member of Company B, Sixth U. S. Cavalry met several of his fellow soldiers with whom he saw service. Windham county was represented by only four Spanish War veterans, the two members of the local camp and Henry Converse and John Mayo of Putnam. The delegation spent seven days in Cuba, one in Miami, Fla., and the remainder of the time in travel by rail and sea.

The private funeral of Mrs. Adelaide Parkhurst Hanks was held at her late home on Hanks' Hill, Mansfield, at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Rev. J. H. Wagoner of Gurleyville officiated. Several selections were rendered. The bearers were Arthur C. Hill, George S. Hutchinson and Edwin O. Sumner of this city and Louis B. Teeney of Storrs. Burial was in the Hanks plot in the Storrs cemetery. The loss of Mrs. Hanks has spread much grief throughout the community in which she had been a loving friend and neighbor for the past 64 years. Her devotion to her family and her Christian duty were unfailing and worthy of the highest praise. For over a half century she had been a member of the Gurleyville Methodist church and she was ever prepared to render unselfish service for her church. Mr. and Mrs. Hanks were married 60 years. On June 29, 1918 they had observed their golden wedding anniversary. Arrangements for the funeral held today were in charge of Avery and VanZandt.

Nurses connected with rural schools in the district supervised by Charles M. Larcomb of this city met in conference at the State Normal school building this afternoon to give reports of work since the opening of the fall term and discuss matters pertaining to the handling of cases of sick schol children in remote rural districts. Nurses at the conference were: Mrs. Noreen McIlurn of this city, nurse for Lebanon, Fitchville and Franklin schools; Miss Frances Kingsberger of Fitchville, for Bozrah, Colchester and Marlborough schools; Miss Margaret Danahey of this city, for Hebron and Columbia; and Miss Annie Pounch of Baltic, for the Sprague schools.

Company C, 169th Infantry, Connecticut National Guard, which is now recruited to its full strength of 64 enlisted men and three officers will participate in the Armistice day celebration in Manchester on Monday, November 12, it was announced today by Captain Ellison S. Smith. The celebration will be held on the 12th owing to the reason that the 11th is on a Sunday.

At the session of police court this morning further continuances were granted in the cases of Dominick Burmona of Waterbury, charged with reckless driving and George Shepaum of this city, charged with a motor vehicle law violation. The first case was set for next Monday and the second for October 27.

The annual Harvest Bazaar conducted at Knowlton Memorial hall in Warrenville for the benefit of Rev. William E. Bunn's missions Wednesday and this evening proved an all-round success. St. Cecile's quartet, Joseph F. Gaudread director, of this city, provided the entertainment. The auction block of farm products proved a big feature and the space reserved for dancing was crowded at all times. Local people attended the bazaar in numbers and members of San Jose council No. 14, Knights of Columbus of this city assisted Rev. Father Dunn in handling the affair. Several prizes were awarded at the closing of the bazaar this evening.

Louis W. Ripley of Glastonbury, well known astronomer spoke on Little Messages from the Skies and illustrated his talk with highly interesting stereopticon views, at the meeting of the Willimantic Exchange club held in the Nathan Hale hotel Wednesday evening. President Robert H. Fenton was in charge of the meeting and Alfred P. Abbe led the singing.

The organization of a woman's Democratic club was completed at a meeting held at the Smith-Robinson club rooms this evening.

Albert W. Keane, sports editor of The Courant and former resident of this city was heard in a delightful talk, full of human interest and very appealing to sport lovers at the season's first meeting of the Congregational Church Brotherhood held in the church house this evening. Mr. Keane, who has just returned from St. Louis where he attended the world series included many sidelights on the supreme baseball event of the season in his talk, making mention of some of the "locker-room" incidents that rarely reach the public ear. President Roland B. Jordan was in charge of the meeting and the speaker was introduced by Earl J. Arnold, chairman of the entertainment committee. A fine musical program was carried out under direction of Harry W. Standish. Including guests the attendance numbered over 200.

Reservations are being received by Mrs. Grace M. Blish of this city for a dinner to be held by the Windham County Republican Women's association in the Nathan Hale hotel next Monday evening. Several speakers of note have been secured for the affair which is open to all republican men and women of the county.

Several local physicians attended the 135th semi-annual meeting of the Windham County Medical society held in Danielson this afternoon.

Following the regular meeting of Francis S. Long, Woman's Relief Corps No. 28, in the G. A. R. rooms Wednesday evening whist was enjoyed, Mrs. Elsie Larned winning first prize and Mrs. Elizabeth Clark, consolation. Refreshments were served in charge of Chairman Mrs. Harriet Ladd. The meeting was presided over by President Amy C. Anderson.

It is evident in this section that the "craze" to speed along smoothly on good state highways for pleasure trips is gradually waning in popularity on the part of nature lovers who appreciate beautiful scenery and more or less freedom of the roads. Farmers along the rural routes report that traffic over the country roads is growing rapidly and tourists appear content to put up with a few defects in the road to take in the rustic beauty of the farming districts. Country roads are reported as being in the best of condition this month.

Mrs. Darius M. Bennett of The Ridges entertained at luncheon Wednesday in honor of her guests, Mrs. Myron Whitman and Miss Flora Bradbury of West Medford, Mass. Bridge was played, Mrs. Otto B. Robinson winning first prize, Miss Bradbury second and Miss Edith Ticknor, third. Those present received a gift from Mrs. Bennett's daughter, Miss Lila Webster of Hartford.

Deputy Sheriff Lester H. Blish of this city has been appointed head of the twenty-ninth senatorial district by Colonel Charles H. Allen of Rockville, state chairman, as one of the 18 district chairmen to organize the Hoover-Curtis Legion in Connecticut. The appointment was announced today and organization in this district is expected to be completed within a few days by Chairman Blish. The drive is to secure 62,000 contributors at one dollar each for the republican national campaign.

Mrs. Frank L. Williams and Mrs. Edgar W. Jacobs were hostesses at an outing and luncheon of the Entre Nous circle of the Methodist church held at Mansfield Depot Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. LaFleur of Columbia and Miss Irene Curran of this city are on a motor trip to Niagara Falls and Canada.

Miss Catherine O'Connor of Colchester has been admitted to St. Joseph's hospital for treatment.

Miss Lila Webster of Hartford entertained over-night, her mother, Mrs. Darius M. Bennett and her guests, Mrs. Myron Whitman and sister, Miss Flora Bradbury of West Medford, Mass. She entertained with a bridge party this evening.

Mrs. Fannie Dixon Welch entertained the Woman's Society of St. Paul's church at her Columbia home, "Noxid" Wednesday. Mrs. E. M. Yeomans of Andover assisted as hostess.

Rev. and Mrs. Arthur S. Wheelock, Miss Ethelyn Nichols, Miss Marion Colman, Carl Webber and Arthur H. Arnold attended the annual convention of the Windham County Council of Religious Education at Danielson last Monday.

Darius M. Bennett of The Ridges is on a trip to Vermont.

JEWETT CITY

STREET CLEANERS CAPTURE SNAPPING TURTLE OF 65 LBS.

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Oct. 18—The street cleaning department had a battle royal at the borough dump at Dorrville this afternoon.

As the men approached the place with a load of garbage, there was seen to be considerable commotion among the piles of refuse of different sorts. Tin cans were flying one way and old mixed rubbish the other. The men stopped the truck outside the dump limits and armed with shovels and a couple of fence rails, approached with caution. Soon a great snapping turtle was made out scratching about among the old bones and bottles. He had come up from the nearby pond, for a feed of whatever the dump might yield.

The department approached in close formation and attacked in a body.

Mr. Turtle put his would-be captors to rout, after he had bitten off a couple of hoe handles and chewed up one of the men's caps that was dropped in the scrimmage.

Finally, while his snappership was busy with a flank attack, a fence rail was thrust beneath his undershell and over he went, helpless on his back with his big flappers secured he was brought to the borough where he was found to weigh 65 pounds.

Suffering decapitation, he was forthwith dressed for the pot and Chef Bill Magel will tomorrow make a great stew, with tickets going at advanced prices.

The primary grades in Riverside Grammar school were dismissed at 1.30 Thursday that the teachers might have an opportunity to attend the Eastern Connecticut kindergarten primary association meetings, held at Bulkeley auditorium, New London. The speaker was Miss Olive Payne of Yale university. Those attending from Riverside were Misses Marguerite K. Bliss, Winifred Scates, Margaret J. Loughlin, May R. Driscoll, Christina M. Shanahan, Cecilia A. Ellis, Anna M. Walsh, Kathleen Kelley, Katherine McNamara and Annie E. Driscoll.

In response to the appeal of Robert S. Walker, grand master of Masons in Connecticut Mt. Vernon lodge, No. 75, F. and A. M., Harold R. Field, master, has contributed a pro rata sum for relief in Porto Rico and Florida.

Fine letters have been received this week from young Doctor Byron Sweet, who is taking a medical course at the college of William and Mary, in Virginia. His local friends are sending him "stay-with-'em Doc" letters, realizing at the same time how strongly the call of the woods at this season must appeal to such an enthusiastic sportsman as he.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Tracy are home from a long automobile trip, during which they were registered at Niagara Falls with calls at many other points of autumn interest in Canada and the border states.

The yearly increasing popularity of Christmas clubs is noticeable here. On the first day of December amounts up in the thousands will be distributed by the home town banks. Deposit books will show that the sums that have accumulated through the year, have been saved, as one who will pull down $50, said "without knowing it."

The steady values and evident results being gained through this column as an advertising medium, are seen in its rapidly increasing use as the months pass by. Those who desire to present any business matter or special notice to the 3,000 daily outlying district and local readers of The Bulletin and Record, seldom fail to mention its efficiency.

DAHLIA GROWING NOTES OF THE PRESENT SEASON

Dahlia growers through this section have been busy this week taking up the toes. Although, locally, the dahlia blooms have not been up to the mark of other years, yet the harvesting of the bulbs shows that the tuber formations are in excess of other summers. One man reports 8 plants of the beautiful Silva Quarta, as producing 147 bulbs, while many of the lower grade shows averaged only 4 to 6 for each plant. One flower gardener, in a small way, found many of his bulbs covered with small insects resembling white lice. Mrs. Patrick Weaver, whose husband has charge of the Jewett City water company's reservoir at Stone Hill has a dahlia garden of rare beauty. When seen today it was in finest bloom. Although her garden is 500 feet above the level of Jewett City, her flowers have been untouched by the several recent killing frosts.

Of the 666 names listed to be made voters in the two districts of Griswold for the coming presidential election, less than 50 per cent. have taken the elector's oath. Next Saturday being the last day to be made, there promises to be some tall hustling by the town committees of both parties. Town Clerk John Welsh directs attention to the fact that Connecticut is not one of the states where voting by mail is legal.

Last presidential election, three at least, natives of Griswold and voters here, who resided elsewhere, lost their votes for either Mr. Coolidge or Mr. Davis because of ignorance of the Connecticut ballot law.

The Ladies' Society of the Congregational church met at Mrs. C. D. Wolf's in Lisbon Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Andrew McNicol, the president, presided. The net receipts from the recent bazaar were reported to be $529.49. A rising vote of thanks was given Mrs. McNicol for the work, time and thought which she gave to make the bazaar a success. She in turn, accorded appreciation to the assisting young women who are not members of the society. A vote of thanks was also given Walter Benjamin for the artistic posters he donated. The net receipts for the Eastern Star supper were reported to be over one hundred dollars. The society voted to become a Chautauqua guarantor for next year. The members who assisted Mrs. Wolf were Mrs. Walter Marshall, Mrs. F. L. Kanahan, Mrs. J. T. Stewart, Mrs. John Whalley and Miss Louisa Schroder.

E. M. Gray has been confined at home for several days by illness.

Mrs. Lewis Hewlitt entertained the Ladies' Aid society of the Baptist church Thursday afternoon, Miss Alice A. Brown presiding. During the business meeting it was voted to serve a supper and hold an open sale. Mrs. Hewlitt was assisted in serving refreshments by Miss Brown, Mr. Nelbert Myott, Mrs. Emma Raney, Mrs. Thomas Brown and Mrs. E. M. Gray.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

400,000 Women Report Benefit

by actual record

"Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?"

A questionnaire enclosed with every bottle of medicine has brought, to date, over 400,000 replies. The overwhelming majority—in fact, ninety-eight out of a hundred—says, "Yes." If this dependable medicine has helped so many women, isn't it reasonable to suppose that it will help you too? Get a bottle from your druggist today.

"OVER THE COUNTER"

DEAR DOT:

Don't make any plans for Hallowe'en night because I am going to have a bridge party and of course you are one who must come to make it a success. And I just know it will be a success because I have the most adorable prizes—Tallies, Place Cards, etc., which are cleverly carried out in the season's colors. I am letting you "in" on all this inside information because I simply must rave about it to someone and when I feel this way about things the "someone" is usually you.

Today I went shopping for all the accessories for the "Bridge" and WILLIMANTIC ART & GIFT SHOP at 58 Church street is where I did all my buying. It surely is a modern mart of Novelties from nearly every country in the world. There is just an abundance of bric-a-bracs that are the handicraft of artisans from all over the universe.

While I was there Mr. Potter, the proprietor, spoke to me about Personal Greeting Cards for Christmas, which, by the way, is not so far away, is it? He carries a very exclusive line and every card selected is at once removed from stock to avoid duplication. These cards can be had for use of name card plate or not as desired and they surely are reasonably priced, especially when one considers their beauty, quality and the great convenience they afford. Jack and I decided last Christmas that we would never be without them again as we found them so easy to send and yet so effective as greeting bearers.

But of course there are always some people that you simply have to find something special for in the card line and Mr. Potter assures me he is going to have an excellent display of individual cards among the best lines where there will be variety enough to fit anyone on your Christmass list. This, for you to remember, Dot, dear.

The Willimantic Art & Gift Shop specialize in expert Picture-Framing Work and also carry an impressive display of Framed Pictures, including water colors and exquisite prints in both the imported and domestic subjects. It occurred to me that these pictures would make ideal wedding or Christmas Gifts. You will also find here a full line of stationery, pens, pencils, desk equipment, in fact, everything that one could expect to find in such a shop and lots more besides. I became very interested in the new line of fancy wrapping paper and ribbons and colorful boxes. Really essential material that eliminates a multitude of labor during the gift-giving season.

So when you are looking for anything pertaining to parties don't forget to run in and see what the WILLIMANTIC ART & GIFT SHOP has to offer. But I'm sure that after you see what I bought there you will be fully convinced that it is the place to go. I must stop writing before I tell you too much about the party, so good-bye for now. See you Hallowe'en Night.

As ever,
JANE.

OCCUM & VERSAILLES

MAKING PREPARATIONS FOR NIGHT SCHOOL SESSIONS

Electricians were busy at the Occum school on Thursday wiring the building for electric lighting in preparation for holding night school sessions. Occum up to the present time has not had the advantage of night schools.

A request recently presented to the school board by Thomas Bruno for the holding of night school sessions bore the names of over 25 prospective pupils.

Praises U. S. Optimism

STOCKHOLM, Oct. —(AP)—American optimism is a greater asset than cash, states Dr. Karl Petander, Swedish economist, who has just returned from a year's visit to the United States. He says he saw signs of optimism on all sides, coupled with friendliness and a desire to help. He was impressed with the way large industrial concerns stress the idea of "service."

MECHANICAL DEFECTS IN AUTOS

In connection with the "save a life" campaign which is to be conducted in Massachusetts during the month of November, it is the demand that every automobile be inspected. This inspection is to be insisted upon by the registrar of motor vehicles and it will be possible to determine whether this has been carried out by the presence or absence of a sticker on the automobile.

Such inspection will be made without cost to the automobile owner, it being recognized of course that if there are defects found it will be necessary for him to meet the expense of correcting them. Finding out whether everything is all right mechanically will cost nothing, and on every car that passes muster a sticker will be placed. Those which do not show such a bill of health will be in the way of facing an inquiry as to why they have not been inspected or why they are not in fit condition to insure the greatest degree of safety.

Massachusetts has good reason to insist upon such preventive measures for the protection of human life. But the same is true in most states, and perhaps Massachusetts is setting an example that should be followed.

In the testing of the cars attention is to be given to the brakes, lights, horns, steering apparatus, windshield wipers, and rear end mirrors on trucks. It is important that these parts of a car should be in proper condition. That is recognized in every state but different methods of insuring it are attempted.

From time to time there are inspections made by the state police in this state. There have been times when they have been the basis for warnings if the lights or brakes were found defective. Again the finding of bad lights and brakes have been the cause for arrest. There have been times when the state police have undertaken the testing of lights, provided the auto owners would drive to a police barracks, a distance of a few or many miles in accordance with the residence of the auto owner in respect to the barracks.

Massachusetts isn't showing partiality in its inspection work. The auto owners can have it done in their own community, as it should be done whenever undertaken in Connecticut, and it will be surprising if the results do not prove beneficial inasfar as mechanical defects are responsible for fatalities.

POLL STILL FAVORS HOOVER

Attention centers upon the poll which is being taken by the Literary Digest as the national election draws near. The poll, as recorded this week, has reached a total of more than 2,500,000 and as the votes of the southern states and New York city have come in there is shown a rise in the Smith votes, but Hoover has a lead of a little less than two to one, about 15 to 8 to be exact, and in all of the 48 states and the District of Columbia has a lead over Smith with the exception of the states of Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi and South Carolina.

While the lead is small in Alabama and Arkansas, there is nevertheless significance attached to it, quite the same as there is in the lead of 14,000 which Mr. Hoover has in Texas, although that has been one of the rock-ribbed democratic states.

It is necessary of course to keep in mind that the poll is not what determines the election. The manner in which it is taken, and the accuracy of a similar one four years ago, serves to create confidence in it and the situation which it discloses in the respective states.

Getting the sentiment of more than 2,500,000 voters may mean sounding out perhaps one in 20 of those who will go to the polls next months. Such a sentiment as expressed throughout the country isn't to be lightly tossed aside as meaning nothing. In southern states the poll shows the voters much more evenly balanced than they ordinarily are. This indicates that many democrats are voting for the republican candidate. Much switching is being done on both sides in the other states but the Hoover lead is substantial.

In the New England states the Hoover lead is better than two to one. In spite of the heavy Smith vote in New York city the New York state vote is still for Hoover.

The poll includes returns from the cities of Chicago, New York and Philadelphia. Hoover leads in both Chicago and Philadelphia and Smith in New York. In the total vote for the three cities Hoover has the lead this week by over 10,000, while last week the vote was in Smith's favor by 8,000. While there would never be any such grouping in election results the total shows a gain in Hoover strength in those cities.

SCHOOL SAVINGS

No better demonstration of the good results that have been attained by the plan of saving by school children could be asked than the report which shows that there are in this country nearly 4,000,000 school children engaged in this type of thrift. They are distributed among 14,000 schools in all parts of the country and during the year made deposits of more than $25,000,000. That in itself showed the interest that has been aroused in this movement, but when it is shown that they received in interest on their deposits the sum of $847,610 it helps to show the reason for such an interest. They have not only been able to possess a bank account but they have had the satisfaction of seeing their accounts grow.

The school savings bank has made a fine impression from the start. It was expected that it would concern small amounts, but the real point was to develop an interest in thrift at a time in life when there would be an opportunity for getting the best possible results. Many children are thus getting a training which is bound to be invaluable. Because they have made such good progress in their savings others have been encouraged to do likewise or better. The whole plan stimulates the idea of beginning early to put aside, under safe keeping, some part of their income against future needs. The real significance of it may not be grasped by many of the young depositors but they are getting a personal experience which is bound to leave its impress. Even the children can appreciate the advantage of having a bank account as a part of their assets and the manner in which they are participating in the plan makes it evident that they not only do but that it is going to be difficult to turn them from such an advantageous practice. They are cultivating a habit that should last for a lifetime.

FOOTBALL

No one will contend that football has the grasp upon the boys of this country that baseball has, but there are hundreds of thousands who are indulging in the game in the various states.

The figure has been placed at 250,000 by Athletic Director Yost of the University of Michigan after making a survey which included the colleges and schools of the country. It is at such institutions where the best organizations backing football are to be found. Mr. Yost includes the squads at 567 colleges and 10,000 high schools, but of course is unable to tell how many others are playing at football the same as huge numbers play at baseball upon the playgrounds, the parks and the backlots of the country.

Football isn't the game that it used to be. It isn't as rough a game although there are still plenty of opportunities for serious injuries. Changes in rules have brought welcomed modifications and reduced fatalities and accidents, although there are still too many of each, but interest from the standpoint of the participants as well as the spectators continues to grow.

Each college and each high school must have its football team. It is a game that develops quick thought, cooperation, courage and determination. It provides plenty of violent exercise, but which is beneficial if accompanied by the proper training.

From the standpoint of the spectators the big games make it evident that the public delights in such contests and only lack of seating accommodations holds the attendance down. In the past few years thoughts have had to be turned to increasing the provisions for the crowds demanding such entertainment.

The 1928 football season is now getting well underway, with another month to go, and there is certainly no abatement in the interest displayed in this game which came from across the water but has been so thoroughly Americanized as to leave but little resemblance to the imported article.

AN EXCLUSIVE MODEL

"Surprise!" called Gregory as his smiling face appeared in the cautiously opened door.

"Surprise!" shouted Gregory, his smile fading.

"Gloria! Surprise!" bellowed Gregory, advancing into the apartment with one hand held carefully behind him. A tiny sob answered his call. Two leaps carried him into the bedroom, where he gazed down in bewilderment at the miserable heap on the bed.

"Gloria, child—what's the matter?" One arm clumsily encircled his wife, the other remained at his back. Crumpled, tearful and inarticulate, Gloria sat up. The movement disclosed a wrinkled wad of felt that might still be recognized as a hat. Gregory's expression continued to darken.

"You've been lying on your new hat," he announced gravely.

"I don't care."

"But it's $30 worth of hat," he argued. "Don't you like it any more?"

"No!"

"And yesterday you couldn't live without it. This is a bit too rapid for me. Look!" With the air of a magician he produced from behind his back a small clump of violets. But Gloria apparently saw nothing.

"Violets," announced Gregory.

"To wear this evening," explained Gregory.

"With the hat," insisted Gregory. "They match."

"You dear," moaned Gloria. "But I can't wear the hat.

Gregory captured the wilted remnant and shook it gingerly.

"It's all right," he announced. "See! The wrinkles don't stay in. It's as good as new."

"I'll never wear it again. I hate Martha Perkin." Gregory shook his head.

"I simply can't keep up," he apologized. "What has Martha Parkin to do with it?"

"As soon as it came I put it right on and ran across the hall to show it to Martha. And then ——"

"Say no more," suggested Gregory. "I understand perfectly. Because Martha Parkin didn't happen to like your hat it's a total loss."

"Didn't like it? She went downtown and bought $3 worth of felt and made one just like it."

"Clever girl," murmured Gregory.

"She's a cat and I hate her. It's not the first time, either. She copied that blue chiffon dress I saved weeks and weeks to buy. Hers didn't cost her a tenth what mine did, and, of course, I never could wear mine."

"Why not?"

"Because we go to so many of the same places. What if I had met her! And mine was really and exclusive creation.'

"And you can't wear a dress like anybody else?"

"Of course not."

"Of course not," said Gregory. "The very idea. Let me think." For some moments he reflected deeply, coming to life at last with a brusque order.

"Give me that hat."

With the purple felt in his hand, he strode from the apartment. In ten minutes he was back, minus the hat and ready for dinner.

"Let's eat," he urged. "We can dress afterwards."

"But now I don't know what to wear," objected Gloria. Gregory maintained a mysterious silence, but minded as he attacked the cold supper.

A knock at the back door summoned Gloria before they were through dinner.

"It's Ella," she said, returning to the dining room. "You know—the woman who does washing for most of us in this entry, but she wants to see you. She says something about a dollar."

"Ah, yes," murmered Gregory. "A debt of honor." Swallowing hastily he moved into the kitchen.

"I did just as you said, Mr. Spaulding," announced Ella. "Here's the hat. I wore it up to Mrs. Parkin's and asked if I could come to her Tuesday instead of my regular day. And she did ask me, and I told her two ninety-eight at the 'Square Deal,' just like you said."

"Thank you, Ella. Here's your dollar," chuckled Gregory. As the door closed he tossed the felt to his wife and grinned.

"I dont think,' he announced "that Martha'll wear that hat. She'll be waiting to see your face when you see Ella's new creatiton. Probably she'll die of suspense during the next six months."

"Men," whispered Gloria, "are unscrupulous—but useful." — Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18—At this distance, the drafting of Franklin D. Roosevelt as democratic nominee for governor of New York has several highly interesting aspects, quite aside from what happens in November in either the state or presidential elections.

It projects the field of political speculation ahead say four or eight years, and to selection then of a democratic presidential nominee. From almost any angle now possible to foresee, it would be entirely logical for the democracy to come forward with this Roosevelt of its own as a white house candidate.

Should Governor Smith attain the presidency, he would in the natural course of things again be the party's standard bearer in 1932. That is almost a foregone conclusion. Should he be defeated by a narrow margin, but manage to carry his own state, it would still be according to custom that he again be nominated in 1932. But should he lose out through a Hoover landslide, there would be circumstances for the democrats to consider four years later which might well sweep Smith out of the picture altogether. In that event, Frank Roosevelt looms as logical heir apparent for the nomination. Whether he wins the governorship or not, he would undoubtedly afford a rallying point.

South Friendly

Roosevelt is steeped in Wilson administration traditions and appeals to a considerable class of democrats on that account. He is a power in upstate democratic politics of New York. While not a "Tammany man," he has been for three successive campaigns the leading convention champion of Tammany's favorite son, Al Smith. That should insure him not only Tammany support for a future presidential nomination, but that also of all the closely allied Smith delegations of this year at Houston.

Roosevelt is known and liked in the solid south, where much of his time has been spent in search of health since he was stricken with infantile paralysis. He credits his remarkable degree of recovery to the sea waters of Florida and the Spa in Georgia he and friends have acquired. There is no reason to doubt that political feuds bred in the southland by Smith's nomination could be eliminated in his behalf and southern and eastern democrats forget the past under his leadership.

Politician With Ideals

It is the Bystander's good fortune to have known all three of the Roosevelts who have figured in national political life more intimately than is the rule of Washington newspaper contacts. They had this in common, that they held politics to be a profession as honorable and upright as any American can pursue. High ideals of the duties of public service prompted that view. And of all public men the Bystander has known, Frank Roosevelt, who dubbed Smith at Houston the "happy warrior" of politics, is himself the happiest, the most keenly eager to play the greatest of American games for the sake of the game itself.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Improvement Under Prohibition

Mr Editor: In face of the opposition that shouts itself hoarse against the 18th amendment there are some facts that cannot be shouted down. Let me present a few concerning drunkenness culled from sources that cannot be gainsaid. We often hear that there is more drunkenness now than in the old days of the saloon. Of course, all right-minded people know that to be a lie, but it is sometimes hard to prove. Well, here are the facts:

From the World Almanac, 1928, under prohibition, drunkenness in New York city (perhaps the wettest city in the land) has declined 61 per cent. Commitments for drunkenness throughout the United States have declined 55 per cent, according to the census, page 31, table 12. The death rate from alcoholism in 1915-17 averaged 5.1 per 100,000. Death rate for 1920-22 was 1.8 for 100,000, showing a decrease of two-thirds. Prior to prohibition there were nearly 250 inebriate hospitals or "cures" supported by addicts seeking to escape the slavery of drink. Less than 10 per cent of these remain. "First time drunks" have fallen even in New York city from 24 per 100,000 in 1914 to 6 per 100,000 in 1925, a reduction of 75 per cent. These facts speak for themselves. The totals taken from the whole country show the aggregated good of the present regime. My own feeling is that with unlimited booze our roads would be impassable with drunken drivers and the moral and social conditions, especially in our great cities, would rapidly decline.

YOUR HEALTH

When the "Only" Child Won't Eat

By Charles G. Kerley, M. D., New York

Among the disorders of children that come under my observation, the complaint of poor appetite is the most frequent. I find that this feature of child-life is not limited to those who consult me, but that it is equally a prominent ailment in the practice of other pediatricians in different parts of the country.

The story is about the same in all cases, the child has little or no desire for food, he must be coaxed, urged, threatened and often times forced to eat, and this performance is repeated three times a day, day after day, eventually the child shows signs of illness such as nausea, belching, vague abdominal pains and constipation. He becomes irritable, sleeps poorly, there is failure to gain in weight, and medical advice is sought. An analysis in my cases shows that the trouble occurs most frequently in small families where there are but one or two children, and that the only child is responsible for most of the cases.

When such a case comes to my care, a complete physical examination of the child is made to determine whether there is any physical condition, diseased or otherwise, that may have a bearing on the poor appetite. In comparatively few cases, perhaps five per cent, there is a definite ailment that explains the reason why the child refuses food. In the great majority of cases, however, the dicorder is entirely of a functional nature, usually a mild stomach hyperacidity due to unsuitable food and improper feeding habits.

One of the most usual family bad-feeding habits is the giving of food at too frequent intervals. Many patients are being fed five or more times a day. The giving of milk to children at the school is entirely unnecessary to those who are already over-fed at home, and is one of the factors in causing poor appetite. It is just as bad in results as eating between meals in the home. After the eighteenth month in the well child, three meals a day are all that are necessary or desirable. Advisable and convenient feeding hours are 7.30 to 8 a. m., 12:30 to 1 p m. and 5 and 6 p. m. For children with vigorous appetites, a glass of milk or fruit may be given in the mid-afternoon.

Why the three meals? Because a properly selected meal in a normal child requires four hours to pass out of the stomach. Appetite and good digestion are both impossible when food is placed in a stomach that is only partially empty.

The national orange-juice and ice-water habit on an empty stomach is responsible for many cases of stomach disorders and loss of appetite in children. These substances act as irritants and produce what is known as a low form of gastritis or stomach catarrh. The only plan of management in the vast majority of cases of poor appetite is not to coax or to force the child. Cater not at all to his likes or dislikes, give three meals only of simple plain food, appetizing, properly selected and well cooked foods. If the child refuses to eat, let it cause no excitement or evidences of anxiety, as this is what many of these patients are looking for. Give nothing whatever until the next meal-time excepting water. The absence of one or two meals will generally bring the child to terms providing there is no physical ailment, and the most stubborn child at the end of twenty-four or forty-eight hours will look forward to meal time with more interest than he has ever shown before in his brief span of existence.

CHILD TRAINING

"I'LL KICK AND SCREAM"

Mrs. W. D. Bailey

It is very natural for young women to discuss their children, their neighbor's children and the children of the community at large. It is rather unusual to "listen in" when men are talking and hear them deciding how to correct and control children of pre-school age. Yet strange things do happen!

A young minister, a friend of a county superintendent of schools, stepped into the superintendent's office one day for a short visit. The two young men after discussing other topics of mutual interest drifted into a conversation about children—their control and training.

The minister related the following: "You know, I had a rare experience about a month ago. I had accepted an invitation to spend a week with some college friends. They have a beautiful little girl about five years old. I was at first very much impressed with her manners but in the afternoon of the second day of my visit the mother told the child they were to call upon her aunt and cousin. Whereupon the little lady began to create a scene by crying and shouting: 'I won't go! I don't want to go and I won't go!'

"'But, dear, you will have such a lovely time playing with Donald and that nice new tricycle he has,' pleaded the mother.

"'I won't either; I don't want to play with him.'

"'Don't you want to see Aunt Alice?'

"'No. And if you make me go I'll cry and kick and scream all the time,' the child wailed as she ran out of the room.

"'Dear me!' sighed the mother. 'What shall I do with that girl? You know, Elnore is such a sweet child when she wants to be but she is so temperamental. I never know when she will want to do what I wish her to do. If I take her she is just sure to make good her promise to kick and scream most of the time we are there.'

"'Have you ever talked with her quietly by herself about this?' I asked.

"'No,' came the rather halting reply, 'not very seriously. I have felt she was not old enough to understand.'

"'Well,' I said, 'I'll be perfectly frank and say I think she should be broken of such a vicious habit while she is young. At this rate you will not be able to control her at all in a year or so.'

"'What would you suggest?' asked the mother.

"'I should tell her quietly that happiness depends on each person's behaving properly; that one person must not be allowed to make the others unhappy; that she is to go with you and remember what you have told her!'

"Well, the mother acted upon my advice. The child did go, and she did kick and scream.

"When we returned home the mother said to me, 'You see, it did not do any good.'

"'You have not finished,' I answered. 'You must prove your words. It will be necessary to deprive her of some pleasure, but if I were you I should wait until morning, as it is now too near bedtime to do anything that may prove exciting.' We talked some more about it later.

"In the morning the mother reminded the little girl of what she had told her and gave her a choice between two kinds of punishment. She furthermore explained to her that she must not use such expressions as 'I won't go' and 'I won't do it.'

"A few days later I heard her again announce to her youthful daughter that they were going to call at that same home.

"'I wo . . . .' began Elnore, then she stopped, looked closely at her mother then smilingly went to her and said:

"'I almost did but not enough to be really rude, did I, Mother?'

"I had a letter from these friends today and they said the treatment is still effective and no second punishment has yet been needed."

Never an Iron on My Hair

Wherever my theatrical engagements happen to take me I could have a marcel, but I never do. I prefer my own method—waving my hair with my Wave and Sheen.

Edna Wallace Hopper as she looks today

I always keep my hair clean by shampooing once a week. I apply Wave and Sheen with a comb. You can use a brush, or just your hands.

I dampen the hair with it—insert combs in the direction I wish the waves and forget it for about an hour. Some types of hair require more time, some less.

The result is a soft, lovely, undulating wave. Most people in my audiences think I have it marceled. Many ask whether it is a natural wave. It is not.

You can have this same sheen no matter what method you use to wave your hair. Get a bottle at any toilet counter for 75 cents. One trial will convince you as it has thousands of others.

OBITUARY

Mrs. John Hanson

After a long period of ill health, Mrs. Johanna Anderson Hanson, 90 widow of John Hanson, died Thursday afternoon about 12.45 o'clock at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Amanda Lindberg, No. 353 West Thames street. Mrs. Hanson was born in Sweden in February, 1838, and came to this country in her youth. For 60 years she had made her home in Norwich and was one of the early Swedish settlers in the city. For a number of years Mrs. Hanson had resided in Greeneville, but for some time past she had made her home with her daughter, Mrs. Lindberg.

Surviving Mrs. Hanson are her two daughters, Mrs. Amanda Lindberg, this city, and Mrs. Frank Anderson, of Southbury, Ct., and a son, Oscar Hanson, of Studley, Kansas. Mrs. Hanson, during her long residence in Norwich, made many lifelong friendships and her many friends are grieved to learn of her death.

Mrs. Patrick Driscoll

Word has been received in this city of the death of Mrs. Johanna Donohue, widow of Patrick Driscoll, at her home in Springfield, Mass., Thursday. She had been in ill health for about a year, and was seriously sick for about two weeks with heart trouble. Mrs. Driscoll was born in Ireland, but had lived the greater part of her life in this city and Springfield, residing at the latter place for 29 years. Burial is to be St. Mary's cemetery, this city.

Clarence A. Parker

Clarence A. Parker, for the past year a resident of this city and the greater part of his life a resident of Bozrah, died at his home No. 99 Spruce street, about 2 o'clock Thursday morning. He had been seriously ill for about 10 days.

Mr. Parker was a native of Bozrah and was born July 22, 1856, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Parker. In Bozrah, March 22, 1882, he was united in marriage with Miss Elizabeth Avery, who survives him. He was a carriage painter by trade. Mr. Parker was an active member of the Congregational church at Bozrah and for years was prominently identified with the activities of the Sunday school of that church. He was also a prominent member of Bozrah Grange. Besides his wife Mr. Parker is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Olive Bishop of Bozrah and Mrs. Byron Wightman of this city. Mr. Parker was well known and popular with his many friends and was highly respected for his many fine traits.

Henry H. Trushonsky

Henry H. Trushonsky, 45, of 108 1-2 North Main street, who was stricken with a shock Sunday afternoon while driving his automobile on Roath street and has been a patient at the Backus hospital since then, died about 1.30 Thursday afternoon.

Mr. Trushonsky, who for years was a well known barber in this city was born in Norwich Town, June 4, 1883, and was son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Trushonsky. In 1910 he was united in marriage with Aldea Coiteux. Mr. Trushonsky was a charter member of the local barbers' union and followed his trade as a barber for 28 years. He was a member of St. James lodge, No. 23, F. and A. M., and of the Taftville Maennerchor. Surviving are his father, his wife and two sisters, Mrs. Harry W. Messler of this city and Mrs. Frederick W. Fogel of East Orange, N. J. Mr. Trushonsky was widely known throughout the city and was popular with his many friends who extend deep sympathy to the family.

Spoke at Preston City

At the Preston City Baptist church Wednesday evening, William D. Pardee, a representative of the Connecticut Temperance and Anti-Saloon league, gave a lecture with moving picture upon "Lest We Forget." There was an attendance of 75 and a generous offering for the organization was made.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

As farewells to Mr. and Mrs. Edwin A. Harris, who left Tuesday for their new home in East Norwalk, there had been a number of social affairs. Mrs. George L. Ingalls entertained twenty Saturday evening in compliment to Mr. and Mrs. Harris. At cards the prizes were won by Mrs. Charles E. Taylor, Mrs. Clarence A. Spear, Charles A. Gager and Harry B. Ford.

Mrs. Albert S. Comstock is giving a luncheon bridge today (Friday) at her home on Lincoln avenue.

Mrs. Louis T. Cassidy, of the Little Plain has arrived home, following several months' travel abroad.

When Mrs. James M. Morton, of Lincoln avenue entertained Monday for Mrs. Edwin A. Harris the prizes at bridge were won by Mrs. Samuel E. Smiley, Mrs. Joseph S. Whelan and Mrs. Harris.

Mrs. Carl Eaton and daughter, of Winchester, Mass., are to spend the week end in town.

The Monday Bridge club was entertained on Thursday this week by Mrs. Arthur M. Thompson, of Washington street. Mrs. Harry B. Ford, Mrs. Joseph S. Whelan and Mrs. Raymond B. Sherman won the prizes.

Stanley Vaughn has returned to Wilmington, Del., after a week end visit to his mother, Mrs. John E. Vaughn, of Bliss Place.

A luncheon at Osgood Memorial today (Friday) opening the season for the Federation will be in charge of Mrs. Raymond B. Sherman, assisted by Mrs. John F. Rogers, Mrs. Rollin C. Jones, Mrs. Joseph T. Hynd, Mrs. H. E. Hanson, Mrs. Charles W. Taggart, Mrs. Walter E. Turner and Mrs. W. Manley Eastwood, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Squire Gregson have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lorimer B. Slocum, at Winchester, Mass.

Hamburg residents, Mrs. Mabel Wheeler and Miss Marjorie Lord, are on a motor trip through the middle and southern states.

EXPERTS PRONOUNCE SIGNATURES ON LESTER WILL CORDIAL SPURIOUS

Contestants of the codicil to the will of Mrs. Frances Dawley Lester, whose residence in this city was at 26 Warren street and who died July 22 last at Samaritan hospital in Troy, N. Y., played their final cards Thursday afternoon at the hearing before Probate Judge Nelson J. Ayling when they brought in handwriting experts who gave it as their opinion that the signature of Mrs. Dawley on the codicil was spurious.

They were followed by Dr. Elijah S. Burdsall, superintendent of the Norwich state hospital, who declared that Mrs. Lester was insane at the time of signing the codicil, basing this judgment on what he had heard at the trail and from reading the Troy hospital records in the case.

Immediately following this, Attorney Charles L. Stewart, counsel for the two contestants, Mrs. Emma Clark Dawley and De Forrest Dawley, both of Brooklyn, N. Y., sister-in-law and nephew respectively of Mrs. Lester, announced that he rested his case.

Continuance to Nov. 13

Attorney Arthur M. Brown, counsel for the executor of the will, Dwight L. Underwood, at once addressed Judge Ayling, moving that further hearing in the case be continued to the middle of November. Attorney Brown said he had imperative assignments in the superior court for the next two weeks from which he could not be excused.

Attorney Stewart stated that he hailed the motion for continuance with satisfaction for he should have made it himself if Atorney Brown hadn't. However, he did not want it to go over so long. Senator Lawson of Brooklyn, N. Y., associated with Attorney Stewart, wanted an earlier date also, and after considerable discussion Judge Ayling set the continuance for Tuesday, Nov. 13 at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Court then adjourned shortly before 9 o'clock.

Afternoon Session

The afternoon session of the trial opened at 2 o'clock with ripples of a torrid interchange between Attorneys Stewart and Brown at the close of the morning session coming to the surface although a veil of secrecy was thrown over what went on and no one in the court room at the time would admit anything more than that the attorneys had had the hottest kind of a time in a verbal battle.

Before the taking of testimony began in the afternoon session, Attorney Stewart addressed Attorney Brown at the lawyers' table, saying that in view of what had happened in the morning and at other times in the trial he hoped personalities would be omitted in the future conduct of the case.

"But I don't want to be accused of crime," shot back Attorney Brown.

"I am not accusing you, at least," responded Attorney Stewart. "I have always considered you and will continue to consider you at all times a leader of the bar in Connecticut, but I hope personalities will be left out."

"There'll be none if it's left to me to introduce them," was Attorney Brown's response and the incident closed when Atotrney Stewart replied: "That will be perfectly satisfactory to me."

Motion to Impound

Attorney Stewart immediately made the motion, which was granted by Judge Ayling, that all exhibits in the case be impounded by the court at the conclusion of the hearing and be held at the disposition of the court.

Dwight L. Underwood, assistant cashier at the Uncas Merchants National bank, was the first witness in the afternoon. He is also executor named in Mrs. Lester's will and the contested codicil and he testified that Attorneys Arthur M. Brown and Andrew B. Davies of this city and John P. Taylor of Troy, N. Y., are his counsel in the suit.

The witness left the stand for a minute while Attorney Stewart had Attorney Davies take the stand. This attorney testified that he engaged Attorney Taylor of Troy to take the deposition of Attorney Armitage in Troy.

Mr. Underwood returned to the stand and testified that he was cognizant of the fact that Attorney Taylor who took the deposition was the same man who was in Mrs. Lester's room when the codicil was drawn.

Enlarged Pictures of Signatures

Don Houghton, Norwich photographer and X-ray technician, took the stand and exhibited enlarged photographs of papers bearing the signature of Frances Dawley Lester. These photographs were taken in the presence of Judge Ayling and Attorney Stewart. One was the signature on the will, another on two different checks and another on the codicil.

While the witness was testifying John H. Perkins, Walter M. Buckingham and W. Manley Eastwood, Jr., three Norwich bank men, were shown the different exhibits and for their instruction, Attorney Stewart had the two nurses, Miss Collins and Miss Russell, filustrate how Miss Collins assisted Mrs. Lester write her name on one of the checks while in the hospital.

They showed that Mrs. Lester, on account of her poor eyesight, wrote with her head bent over so that her nose almost touched the paper, while Miss Collins used the index fingers of both her hands on top of the corresponding index fingers of both Mrs. Lester's hands in order to enable Mrs. Lester to hold and guide the pen.

The court took a recess while the three bank men retired to an ante room to look over the signatures and the enlarged photographs.

When the three handwriting experts returned to the court room, the exhibits were spread out on the table and Attorney Stewart said the experts wanted to know the kind of pen used by Mrs. Lester on July 5 when she wrote her last admittedly unaided signature on one of the checks.

The answer was given by Miss Collins who was called to the stand and testified that the same pen was used on both signatures, a sharp pointed pen.

Dr. Stanton P. Hull of Troy, N. Y., was called to the stand and testified that it was his fountain pen which Mrs. Lester used when she signed the contested codicil. The doctor said he had several fountain pens but he could not tell whether a fountain pen he had in his pocket in court was the same Mrs. Lester used.

Describes Characteristics

John H. Perkins, assistant treasurer of the Dime Savings bank, testified he had cashed checks for Mrs. Lester for the last 15 or 20 years. Pointing out characteristics in Mrs. Lester's signature on the will he said the "S" in Frances ended like a "Y" and the capital L in Lester had a connection with "E" following. The capital "F" in Frances had a loop which the witness pointed out and the cross on the "T" comes after the letter instead of across it. In the signature on the alleged codicil he said the "F" was different from any he had ever seen her mark. The next letter looks like an "A" and it looks as if the person started to write "Fanny". The "S" at the end of "Frances" is entirely different in the codicil signature from any he had ever seen her make. There was no similarity in the initial D, the witness said, and the loop in "L" was different and the "T" in the codicil signature was crossed, which Mr. Perkins said was not Mrs. Lester's habit of writing. The final "R" was rather carefully made for her.

Attorney Stewart illustrated with Miss Collins, the nurse, how Dr. Stanton Hull held Mrs. Lester's arm two inches above the wrist joint when it is claimed she signed the codicil.

Mr. Perkins testified he did not believe Mrs. Lester could have written the codicil signature that way. The witness said he would consider this signature spurious.

On cross examination, Attorney Brown produced checks of January 28, April 4, May 23, May 25, 1928 and asked the witness if the initial "D" was like that letter in the will signature. The witness maintained that all were good firm "Ds" characteristic of Mrs. Lester's signature.

The attorney for the will and codicil also devoted some time to pointing out other letters in the will signature and the check signatures which he claimed were dissimilar.

Evening Session

When the evening session opened at 7 o'clock, Walter M. Buckingham, assistant cashier at the Thames National bank, W. Manley Eatswood, Jr., assistant cashier at the Uncas-Merchants National bank, were called to the stand one after the other and each gave his opinion that the codicil signature was spurious.

Dr. Elijah S. Burdsall, superintendent at the Norwich state hospital, where there are 2,200 insane patients, stated that he had been present at this trial, had heard the testimony, and had examined or heard read the bedside charts in Mrs. Lester's case and he considered Mrs. Lester's malady would be classed as a mental case. The doctor gave it as his opinion that Mrs. Lester on July 12 last was insane and incapable of transacting business. This opinion was from what he had heard in the court room and from reading the charts.

Dr. Burdsall was questioned briefly by Attorney Brown on cross-examination.

Morning Session

In the morinng session of the hearing, the principal testimony was given by Mrs. Isa L. Jennison, wife of Sanford F. Jennison of Troy, N. Y. a nurse, who was on night duty with Mrs. Lester for the period while Mrs. Lester was at the hospital.

Mrs. Jennison testified to the two Doctors Hull asking her to omit from her nurse's chart on the case any references to Mrs. Lester's mental condition. She said she made no answer to this request. She also told of receiving certain orders through the office of the hospital superintendent, Miss Allison, in consequence of which she endeavored to keep possession of the charts at all times and if she left Mrs. Lester's room she always made sure that the charts were in a safe place away from the eyes and hands of any one about the hospital.

In compliance with further orders she made exact copies of bedside sheets in Mrs. Lester's case, doing this in Mrs. Lester's room and while the door was guarded by Miss Helen Massey, superintendent at the private pavilion at the hospital. She took the originals and replaced them with the duplicates.

Mrs. Jennison read from her bedside notes, which described Mrs. Lester's condition as talkative, restless, imagining hearing voices and seeing people walking about the room. For the last ten days of Mrs. Lester's life, her mind was very blank, the nurse said.

She also told how she impersonated persons whom Mrs. Lester would call for. These, Mrs. Jenison said, included Fred Cranston, Grace Cranston, Dwight Underwood and Fannie Wright. When Mrs. Lester called for some of these persons, the nurse would step out of the room for a moment, come back and pretend to be the person who was wanted. This would quiet Mrs. Lester, who did not recognize anyone. At times Mrs. Lester informed her to "get these men away from here," when there were no men in the room but only the nurse and Mrs. Lester.

LIONS AND MERCHANTS INSTITUTE MET TOGETHER

A joint session of the Lions club and the Merchants institute of the Norwich chamber of commerce was held at 12.15 o'clock Thursday afternoon at the Wauregan hotel with John W. Griest of Chicago as the speaker of the day. Dr. Kopland K. Markoff, president of the club, opened the meeting with the singing of America and then called upon Max Hanover to preside. Earl Taggart acted as song leader and the blessing was offered by C. Edward Smith.

"I am sure the Lions are heart and soul with the appreciation of the good work of the Norwich chamber of commerce and the service it is rendering to the community, especially they appreciate the tremendous amount of hard work put in by Secretary Pilcher in his office—work unknown to the merchants and which does not find its way to the press," said Mr. Hanover during the course of the dinner. He also spoke of the benefits and lessons that are gained by the merchants through the excellent addresses of Mr. Griest. The Lions gave their roar for the chamber.

John J. O'Rourke then took charge of the Merchants institute, thanking the Lions for joining with them and explaining that the Rotary club was unable to do so Wednesday as District Governor J. A. Gunn had been booked for the day. Mr. O'Rourke then presented Mr. Griest, paying a glowing tribute to his previous talks. His talk was upon, Where Have Our Profits Gone?

WOMAN BADLY BURNED CLEANING WITH GASOLINE

Mrs. Samuel Blair of 305 Washington street was severely burned about the face, neck and arms shortly after 7 o'clock Thursday evening when a pan of gasoline which she was using to clean a fabric caught fire. Mrs. Blair's husband, being near at hand, threw a blanket around his wife and extinguished her blazing clothing and then devoted his attention to the gasoline. The fire department was summoned but Mr. Blair had the fire practically extinguished when they arrived. The wall near the sink was badly scorched.

The fire originated when the vapor fumes of the gasoline came in contact with a pilot of the gas stove situated approximately two feet from the sink. There was a flash and the gasoline in the pan started to blaze, enveloping Mrs. Blair as she bent over the pan. Members of the fire department said after the accident that this is one of the things that they have warned against repeatedly. Persons using gasoline to clean with should do it in the open air outside the house.

SALES AND PROFITS TALKS AT MERCHANTS INSTITUTE

The large turnouts at each of the better Business Congress held Thursday at the Wauregan hotel under the auspices of the Merchants bureau of the Norwich chamber of commerce is a criterion of the increasing interest of the merchants and salespersons of the city in the addresses delivered by John W. Griest of Chicago, who is conducting the Merchants Institute. The Art of Closing a Sale and Where Have Our Profits Gone were the subjects chosen by Mr. Griest for his talks Thursday. The institute will be brought to a close today (Friday) with morning and afternoon sessions at which record attendances are expected to attend to hear the closing speeches.

A sale is not made, said Mr. Griest in his talk at the morning session, until it is closed, but a number of salespersons believe that a sale is safe if the customer departs from the store with an interest in the article exhibited. In coming in contact with a customer you make an impression, which leads to a response, either immediate, delayed or unreasonable. An immediate response generally results in a sale, while one that is delayed or unreasonable ends up with the customer remaining away from the store for a long or definite period.

There are four steps that a salesperson must follow in building up a sale, the first of which is to command the respectful attention of the customer in the article being exhibited. The others are namely, to gain the customer's interest, to create a desire for the article and finally to get action by closing the sale. The salesperson creates a psychological moment, said Mr. Griest, in building up a sale. You can either make or lose a sale during this time. The ability of the salesperson to decide when the psycholorical moment has been reached and when the customer is in the attitude of deciding is most important. The winning salesman generally makes a sale at this time. Emphasize on the importance of showing the customer as much of the desired merchandise as was necessary to create his interest and to study the impression on the customer's face was also made by the speaker.

Talk On Holding Profits.

The attendance at the noon day meeting of the Merchants Institute was considerably swelled Thursday by members of the Lions club, which joined with the merchants and salespersons of the city to hear Mr. Griest on the fourth of his series of talks. John J. O'Rourke presided at the meeting and in introducing the speaker spoke highly of his previous addresses, his sole lament being that there was not a greater number present. The topic of Mr. Griest's talk, which was illustrated and informal was, Where Have Our Profits Gone?

There is only one thing that you actually know about your business, said Mr. Griest, and that is your volume. You must learn to figure your margin and profit from the things you know and that is your sales. Why do you profit from your sales? There are many reasons. In the first place all discounts are marked down from the sales. The successful store throughout the country uses sales upon which to figure. You are losing profits because you are not figuring it from the selling price.

What do we mean by carrying cost and selling cost? These points were explained in detail by Mr. Griest with an illustration on the blackboard, a tabulation showing the different things that are classed under carrying, and selling costs of a store. Eighteen per cent. of the dry goods in America were marked down last year. Keep accurate records of your markdowns. That is where your profits are going, said Mr. Griest. The markdowns should be charged to the carrying cost, but it should be a separate item from the bookkeeping.

The prestige and reputation of the store is another thing. It becomes an item of profit and loss. If you have a good standing in the community, have high ideals and do not keep away from sales that not O. K. you lose prestige and your business falls away. Take time to be informed of your business. Every store should have a store meeting every week, said Mr. Griest, at which all the employes are present. Instead of spending time in reaching out for more customers try to sell more merchandise to the present customers. Keep something different in the store. Buy oftener and quicker. It keeps up the interest of the salesperson. They like to handle it. It increases the sales. Mr. Greist concluded his talk by reviewing the points he had introduced, including a carrying cost, selling cost, miscellaneous expense, markdowns, prestige of store and shelf carrying cost.

During the week upon request Mr. Griest and Miss Waddell have had conferences with various store merchants relative to the business, which have proved very valuable to the merchants. The concluding talks will be given today (Friday) by Mr. Griest on the subjects, Salary Wise Opportunity Foolish and Creating Community Spirit.

NATIVE OF THOMPSON DIED IN WORCESTER

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 18—Noel E. Converse, a native of Thompson, Conn., died last night at his home 82 Franklin street in his 88th year.

Mr. Converse was one of the founders of George H. Ward post, G. A. R., of this city, a Mason and a member of the Knights of Pythias. For 30 consecutive years he was a clerk in the office of the Worcester Gas Light Co.

Born in Thompson, Conn., son of Albert E., and Rebekah (Kelly) Converse, he came to Worcester 65 years ago.

FUNERALS

Mrs. William Finlayson

There was a large attendance of relatives and friends at the funeral of Mrs. William Finlayson held Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock at her home, No. 6 Francis street, and the service was conducted by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor of the Greeneville Congregational church. The burial was in the family plot at Maplewood cemetery and Rev. Mr. Ricketts conducted the committal service. Alexander, Hugh and Neil Finlayson, sons of the deceased, Ellis Sage, Howard Adams and Henry Pukallus, sons-in-law, were the bearers. There were numerous beautiful floral tributes. Undertaker C. A. Gager had charge of the funeral.

Mrs. Andrew J. Woods

The funeral of Mrs. Andrew J. Woods was held from the chapel rooms of Undertakers Henry Allen & Son Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock and was conducted by Rev. George H. Strouse of Bozrah. The burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery, New London, and the committal service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Strouse. Friends were the bearers. There were many relatives and friends present and the floral tributes were numerous and beautiful. Out-of-town mourners included people from Providence and New York.

There is always room at the top, but in case of fire it is better to be at the bottom.

DISCUSS THE WORK OF CHAMBERS OF COMMERCE

At a luncheon meeting in Hartford Thursday for a state wide conference on chamber of commerce work, five speakers, including Governor Trumbull, discussed the work of chambers of commerce.

The speakers included James L. Case, a former president of the Norwich chamber of commerce, whose topic was on overcoming the short comings of the local chambers.

In part, Governor Trumbull spoke as follows:

"As governor of this state, I wish to command the idea of this conference and to say that I am very glad to participate in its deliberations and also to commend the business men of the state in coming together through the chamber of commerce movement for a better understanding of one another's viewpoints and problems.

"Surely, united efforts to work for the advancement of a community or state is reason enough why every far-sighted and broad-minded business man should take part in the chamber of commerce movement.

"It is my observation that those towns in Connecticut which have live chambers of commerce have a live, civic, progressive spirit. It is through the progress of the people in a community that that community grows. The chamber of commerce movement has done much to help our towns in Connecticut and the state itself. Our chambers of commerce can do much to keep Connecticut the progressive state we talk so much about.

"What we want in Connecticut is unity of purpose and co-operation and it seems to me that it is through our chambers of commerce that this can best be accomplished.

"Our chambers are becoming increasingly efficient over the years — they are doing more and better work —they are constantly attaining higher standards—they are making themselves more and more valuable to their communities. I believe that there has been an efficiency increase in the chamber of commerce field in the last 20 years quite comparible to the efficiency increase which the field of business has undergone. The chambers of commerce in Connecticut well measure up to the chambers in other states throughout the country. I believe that in the future they will continue to maintain this high standard.

"As we all know, many of our western and southern cities and states have developed in recent years an aggressive attitude with regard to their own self development. In my opinion, one of the best vehicles by which we here in Connecticut can do our part to meet this agressiveness of other sections of the country is through the combined efforts of the local chambers and our state chamber. Let us all do our part. Success will follow."

Mr. Case's Address

Mr. Case said in part:

"From a personal observation, I am of the opinion that the principle shortcomings of any chamber are caused by (a) poorly qualified officers and committees; (b) an indifferent membership; (c) lack of a constructive program. The success of any business depends upon the character and efficiency of its membership. To succeed, there must be master minds to plan and direct the every day activities, as well as to dream dreams of future greatness.

Every chamber of commerce faces such conditions but far too often a proper and qualified membership is sadly lacking. In such cases, and at such times, a group of men must be found who will unselfishly place community interest and civic pride above personal interests, and they must give to their organization the best they have to give.

They will have to assume burdens and responsibilities and serve as officers and committee men, for otherwise there can be no foundation upon which a superstructure must be built.

"Efficient committee work is one of the most important agencies in the entire program of my chamber and therefore may I again repeat that qualified and dependable officers and committees must be secured if chambers of commerce are to attain the highest standards of efficiency.

"I have thus called your attention to the importance and necessity of having in every well organized chamber an active and interested membership, as well as properly qualified officers and committees. I cannot emphasize too strongly their value and their importance, but they together will not be able to create the type of a chamber desired, unless a comprehensive and a constructive program of work is prepared and projected. It is at this point that many chambers literally 'fall down'."

METHODISTS HEARD SPEAKERS ON MISSIONARY TOPICS

A mass meeting on the World Mission of Christianity, held jointly with the annual fall gathering of the Norwich District Ministers association opened at 10 o'clock Thursday morning at the Methodist Episcopal church in New London with an attendance of about 150 ministers and delegates.

Three highly interesting addresses made up the morning's program. Rev. H. A. Musser of India talked on The New Day in Foreign Mission. The Rev. Cipriano Navarrow of the Philippine Islands had as his subject, The Youth of the Philippines and Their Churches. The Chinese Church and the Revolution was the topic of an address by S. K. Hu of Foochow, China.

Luncheon was served at the close of the morning session by Union circle of the church, of which Mrs. W. H. Cadman is president.

The program of the afternoon session began at 2 o'clock with a talk on Christian Education in Modern China, by Wan Liang Hau of Changli, China. Rev. A. D. Berry, president of the Theological school of New York, replaced Prof. Yoshima Abe of Tokyo, Japan, who was unable to be present. Rev. B. M. Jones of Burma gave the final address of the afternoon. His subject was Burma Today and Tomorrow.

In the evening at 7:30 Rev. Dr. E. Stanley Jones gave an address entitled Our Message, Jesus Christ.

EXPECT 1,000 MEN AT BIBLE CLASS CONVENTION

The fourth state convention of Men's Bible classes will be held in Meriden on Saturday, November 3rd, starting at 1 p. m. with the registration of delegates and concluding with an address by Dr. Samuel Graffin of New York city at 10 p. m.

The song service at 2 o'clock will be led by John R. Thomas of Rutherford, N. J., who is the song leader for the National Federation of Bible classes. These will be followed by reports of officers and city federations; Joseph B. Montgomery, president of the National Federation and other national officers will speak at the afternoon session. Rev. Harold Camp, pastor of Calvary Baptist church of New Haven, will give the address of this session.

The parade will be at 6:30, followed by the banquet at 7 p. m. with Dr. Samuel Graffin as one of the speakers.

The Meriden Federation of Men's Bible classes, with Charles C. Jones as chairman, is planning for an attendance of over 1,000 men from all parts of Connecticut.

TOMBARI, SCHWARTZ AND GILMAN WILL PLAY WITH AGGIES AGAINST LOWELL

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Oct. 18—That Head Coach Sumner A. Dole is putting the finishing touches on a well rounded out week of drilling in preparation for the Lowell Textile contest at Lowell this Saturday, was evident in the camp of the Connecticut Aggies this afternoon as the varsity was sent through a long dummy scrimmage on all plays. This form of entertainment provided for the players by the Aggie mentor was followed by a review of kick off formations and punting plays that included both running down the punt and receiving.

Ray Ryan, versatile New Haven backfield man, did the punting for the varsity and displayed some exceptionally long boots. Rhoar Flydal of Hartford did the kick offs for the Aggies and showed that the minor injuries that he had received in the Maine game are gone and forgotten. Eugene Lamoureux, Groat, McCoombe, and Harger did some nice work in receiving the punts and displayed a mid-season form in running them back. The ends and tackles were also checked up on their playing under the kicking attack and were found to be functioning perfectly.

Coe Hawkins of Hartford and tackle on the varsity was missing from the drill session held this afternoon due to sudden illness. No report of his condition has been available since it was indicated that the Aggie tackle left for Hartford for treatment last night and has not been heard from since. Head Coach Sumner A. Dole stated that his condition is not thought to be serious and it is expected that he will be in his position before the game with Lowell starts next Saturday.

William Knaut, regular center is still on the injured list while Captain Sayers was removed from the jinx roster and is now back with the active men on the squad. It is very probable that Frederick Schwartz will fill Knaut's shoes on Saturday since the sophomore center and understudy of Knaut is improving greatly and has been in the varsity lineup all week. Stangle, who was contesting for the center berth with Schwartz, was placed at guard this week because of his defensive ability and irregularity of passing the ball from the pivot position.

The Aggies are facing an eleven Saturday which has defeated three teams to date and have not allowed one score to be made against them. Lowell Textile defeated Trinity and Arnold college by the same score, 24-0, and in their opener beat New London Coast Guards 12-0.

HORWEEN PUTS FINISHING TOUCHES ON HARVARD TEAM

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 18—(AP)—The Harvard varsity football team put on its finishing touches for the Army game here today by going through a long dummy scrimmage against Cadet plays and perfecting its own passing attack. Head Coach Arnold Horween has any number of forward passing combinations and his actions this week have indicated that his team would attempt to bewilder the Cadets with short forwards and the tricky Harvard lateral pass.

Horween's scouts have reported that the Army failed to do much against the aerial attack of Southern Methodist two weeks ago and his practices this week have revealed that he intends to try this same attack on the soldiers.

Every member of the Harvard squad was reported as fit for action today and, though the Crimson has been given the under-dog role by most of the experts, the student body has plenty of confidence that tradition will be upheld and the Cadets defeated. West Point, which last played Harvard in 1910, has never defeated the Crimson team.

The Cadet squad of 38 players arrived in Boston early tonight and left immediately for a nearby country club. Plans called for a final pre-game workout at the stadium tomorrow morning.

ACADEMY FACES HARDING WITHOUT CAPT. LACROIX

The Academy will probably have to face Warren Harding at Bridgeport Saturday without the services of its captain, Buck LaCroix, halfback, who is on the injured list with two broken ribs. This will probably necessitate John Kahn, former tackle, continuing at fullback for the game in the Park city tomorrow.

Although LaCroix's ball-carrying ability is being missed in the Wildcat backfield, nevertheless Kahn's great defensive work helps considerably for any inexperience he may have in running. Jack Marks is another of the strongest defensive players that the Academy has had in quite some seasons. With two such deadly tacklers behind the line not many opponents are going to get away on long runs this year against the Red and White.

A light practice is scheduled for the locals today.

SCHOOL OF BASEBALL ORGANIZED AT LOS ANGELES

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 18—(AP)—Baseball has taken its place among the fine arts in academic science.

A school, the faculty of which will be composed of men who have won more or less fame in the realm of baseball, has been organized here to instruct young players in the national pastime. Rookies will come under the personal supervision of such men as Frank "Pop" Dillon, first base veteran of many years in both major leagues; Jess Orndorff, former Boston catcher, and Johnnie Bassler, ex-Detroiter and now star of the Hollywood Pacific Coast league club's catching corps.

AMHERST FACES LACK OF GRID MATERIAL

AMHERST, Mass., Oct. 18—(AP)—Coach White, of the Amherst college football team today sent out an emergency call for grid players to replace the injured regulars on the varsity team. Ted Parnell, captain of the freshman team four years ago, was among those to report today. He is at end. Marble, Ballou, Hall and Howe, other former freshman stars, also came out. Grosskloss and Tener, varsity backs, who have been on the injured list, returned to the squad today by played only a few minutes and probably will not start against Hamilton Saturday.

SHORTY GREEN TO COACH DULUTH HORNETS

DULUTH, Minn., Oct. 18—(AP)—Wilfred (Shorty) Green, coach and manager of the New York American hockey team for the last two seasons, has signed a contract to coach the Duluth Hornets of the American hockey association this season, the club management announced today. Green takes the place of Dick Carroll who will have charge of the newly organized Tulsa club this year.

YALE VARSITY HAS ONLY LIGHT WORK

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 18—(AP)—Light workouts featured today's session of Mal Stevens Yale varsity squad. Stevens is taking no chances on battering his first string men before the battle with Brown Saturday. Yesterday in the scrimmage with the freshmen eleven, Decker received a shoulder bruise that will keep him out of the game Saturday.

Stevens took his charges to the bowl after a short and snappy kicking and passing practice. At the bowl he had the eleven go through an extensive signal drill and also drop and place kicking. Absent from the squad today, because of slight injuries and colds, were Oldt, Kell and Decker. With the exception of Decker however, the other two men will line up against Brown Saturday.

Johnny Hoben, who has been laid up with an injured leg since the Maine game two weeks ago, has been practicing with the varsity this week and will be at his pilot position at quarter against Brown.

QUEENS PROS LOOKING FOR GAMES IN NORWICH

The Queens Professionals, Long Island's leading traveling club who are about to embark on their fifth season, are anxious to engage the professional teams of this district. This team made an enviable record last year against such teams as the Rennaisance, Visitation Triangles, Assumptios, L. I. Pros, Stamford, Bridgeport Caseys, Wilkes-Barre Barons, Townsend Big Five and teams of like strength.

Manager Ricco has succeeded in signing last year's star, Bill Anderson, whose playing caused him to be in demand by American league clubs. In addition, Russell and Smith have been signed to play guard, along with Posen and Gordon as forwards. The team has started training and will round into shape in a short time.

The schedule of the Queens Professionals is now being arranged and there are a few open dates available for home teams. Communicate with A. A. Ricco, 60 Roosevelt avenue, Corona, L. I., or P. Moruke, 36 Rose Park avenue, Stamford, Conn.

EDDYSTONE BOXERS TAKE FOUR OF SIX BOUTS

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 18—(AP)—Four out of six amateur boxers from Eddystone, Pa., were victorious in the feature bouts of the Independent Amateur association show in the Arena tonight. A crowd of 2,500 attended. Summaries:

Jim Hayden, Eddystone, defeated Al Gainer, New Haven, 3-150.

Joe Fournier, Westfield, Mass., defeated Al Levine, New York, 3-110.

Willie O'Connor, Westfield, defeated Frankie Mayor, New York, 3-120.

Billie Reeves, Bristol, defeated Henry Houghton, Eddystone, 3-160.

Eddie Russell, Eddystone, defeated Ernie Palmer, Waterbury, 3-118.

Art Needles, Eddystone, defeated Alex Tomkin, New Haven, 3-138.

Joe La Cover, New York, defeated Frank Kovolik, Bristol, 3-126.

Buddy Howard, New Haven, knocked out Jim Burt, Holyoke, 2-175.

Albert Geddy, Eddystone, defeated Johnny Andrews, New Haven, 3-128.

YOST DENIES HE IS TO LEAVE MICHIGAN

ANN HARBOR, Mich., Oct. 18—(AP)—Fielding H. Yost, in denying rumors he contemplated leaving the University of Michigan today took occasion to explain his official connection with the institution, regarding which he indicated there appeared to be much confusion.

Yost explained that he has not been employed as coach of football since 1921 when his contract was cancelled and he became director of intercollegiate athletics and a member of the faculty.

He stated that the idea of leaving Michigan has never been considered by him and will "not receive future consideration."

"I assume responsibility for the personnel and assignment of the coaches on the football staff: Wieman, head coach; Cappon, Blott, Osterbann and Veenker for the varsity, and Courtright and Brown for the 'B' team."

JARVIS WORKING WITH HOLY CROSS VARSITY

Lloyd Jarvis, baseball star for the Academy the last four years, has made quite an impression with Coach Jack Barry at Holy Cross, in the fall practice, according to reports coming out of Worcester.

Immediately upon entering last month, Lloyd was sent out with the makings of next year's varsity to work out and since then he has pitched against the upper classmen quite a few times, both in batting practice and in practice games.

Lloyd has started twice against the regulars in these games, once going the nine inning to lose 2 to 1 and the other time being defeated, 1 to 0, in five innings. Jarvis is looked upon as strong candidate for the Cross freshmen team next spring and it is probable that he will devote all his time toward making that team, foregoing basketball, in which sport he received two letters while at N. F. A.

MAGUIRE BEATS HANSEN TWO OUT OF THREE FALLS

BOSTON, Oct. 18—(AP)—Ned Maguire of Ireland, defeated Charlie Hansen, Swedish heavyweight, two out of three falls in a wrestling match here tonight. Maguire won the first fall in 38 minutes and 10 seconds. Hansen won the second in 22 minutes and Maguire the final in eight minutes.

Freddy Meyers of Chicago wrestled 45 minutes to a draw with Stanley Stasiak, Boston heavy. George Walker of Canada, light heavyweight, threw Jake Schaffer of Boston who substituted for Jim Franz of Germany, in 23 minutes.

SCOTT PEEVED WITH WRITE-UP IN MAIL

LONDON, Oct. 18—(AP)—Phil Scott, British heavyweight, annoyed by a statement, recently printed in the Mail, which he interpreted as a reflection on his courage, demended through his lawyers that the paper withdraw the statement and apologize. Otherwise, he said, he reserved the right to sue for damages.

The offending words were put into the mouth of an imaginary personality called "George" by the Mail's cartoonist, Tom Webster, whose humorously sarcastic reply, repudiating any intention of impugning Scott's courage was printed today.

SPORT SLANTS

(By the Associated Press)

The Harvard-Army practice rivalry has taken a new turn, first the Cadets failed to stop the Crimson style of attack when the scrubs used it, while Harvard's new plays produced free scoring. Yesterday the Harvard scrubs tried Army formations and the varsity fell down on the defensive job. The Army players stopped the contest by not scrimmaging yesterday.

Joe McKenny, Boston college coach, has his own way of deciding who will hold varsity places. With an open date Saturday, McKenny intends to send his whole squad through a stiff scrimmage and let the regulars and subs settle the matter among themselves.

Georgetown plays New York university two weeks from Saturday. Fordham completed more than half of the passes it tried against N. Y. U. Therefore Georgetown already has started developing a passing attack to use against the Violet.

Lehigh has not shown much strength yet this season but it is not because Coach Austin Tate has failed to recognize the weaknesses. After numerous experiments to find his strongest combination, Tate is working with each man to produce the best individual results.

It was too hot for the regulars to work at Princeton yesterday, but the second string men got a taste of real action. Rutgers came over for a 20 minute scrimmage session with the Princeton reserves and went back seven points to the bad.

Chick Meehan has four new assistants at New York university. The next opponent of N. Y. U., Rutgers, has a squad made up principally of former New York high school players so Meehan has called in all the men on his squad who came up from the Metropolitan ranks to advise him as to their habits and weaknesses.

The loud cheers from the north yesterday were Cornell greeting to John Anderson, varsity tackle for the past two years and more recently a discus thrower on the American Olympic team, when he reported for his first practice of the season.

Anderson was operated on recently for a leg injury and it was believed that he would not be able to play this year.

When it comes to close rivalries Fordham and Holy Cross, who meet next Saturday, take the prize. Holy Cross leads in the series with eight victories to seven and 197 to 195 in points.

PRINCETON NOT BLUE OVER TIE, ASSERTS ROPER

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 18—(AP)—Being held to a scoreless tie by Virginia merely means a new opportunity to Bill Roper, Princeton football coach, speaking at a luncheon given for a group of newspapermen yesterday, Roper said:

"We are far from discouraged by the tie game with Virginia and it will be a big help in preparing the team. We made mistakes in that game that we can correct and the experience will be much more valuable to the men than hours of mere lecturing."

Concerning Princeton's prospects for the rest of the season Roper said he expected to reach the Ohio state game with a clean slate but that the Buckeyes would offer the stiffest kind of opposition. "They certainly will come up ready for the hardest sort of play," he said. "They are tremendously anxious to wipe out their hard luck here in the east in 1927 and they are a hard rugged team.

"I don't need to say anything about Yale," Roper continued. "Yale always gives Princeton a terrific battle, and I am not being deceived at all by the early season record of Navy. There is good football down there, and some of it will be played before this season is ended."

The Princeton coach explained his return to the huddle system of calling signals after abandoning it for two weeks, saying it is an entirely different kind of game when the huddle is used and that no team can return to the old method in one season.

LARRIVIER WINS ON A TECHNICAL KNOCKOUT

WATERBURY, Oct. 18—(AP)—Leo Larrivier, Waterbury, 150, was awarded a technical knockout over Joe Marro, New York, 146, at the end of the fifth round when a cut over the ear of Marro prevented further fighting in the main bout of the Waterbury A. C. card at Buckingham hall here tonight. 1,300 fans witnessed the show. Results of other bouts were as follows:

Al De Cruez, New York, 112 1-2, six round decision over Jackie Harmon, Waterbury, 110 1-2.

Al Shubert, Bridgeport, 129, won on a foul from Lucien Gregory, Waterbury, 125, in the third round.

Pady Jones, Waterbury, 190, awarded a technical knockout over Terry Turner, New York, 195, first round.

Nick Florentino, New Haven, 116, four round decision over Jack Sharkey, Waterbury, 119.

M'LAUGHRY EASES UP ON HIS VARSITY SQUAD

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 18—(AP)—With five of the eight men injured in yesterday's scrimmage left on the field, Coach Tuss McLaughry executed a complete about-face from the severity of the previous day's punishing scrimmage and sent his players to the showers after one of the shortest and easiest workouts of the season.

McLaughry has definitely lost W. A. "Cy" Wentworth, B. team guard, from Saturday's game. Wentworth was limping badly today and did not even get into uniform. It will probably be at least another week before he is able to work.

Whether Lincoln Fogarty, sophomore backfield ace who left yesterday's scrimmage with a bad "charley horse" will be available was a question still undecided in the hill tonight.

COX AND CHAPMAN ARE SOLD TO PROVIDENCE REDS

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 18—(AP)—Abby Cox, goalie and Art Chapman, center, members of the Springfield Indians of the American Hockey league last season, received word fro mthe New York Rangers today that they had been sold outright to the Providence Reds. Both Cox and Chapman will report at Providence tomorrow. The Rangers have also sold "Clucker" Whyte, wingman with the locals last winter, to the Philadelphia Arrows of the American league.

Roach Bought by Rangers

NEW YORK, Oct. 18—(AP)—A sensational hockey trade announced today brought John Ross Roach, goal tender of the Toronto Leafs to the New York Rangers in exchange for Lorne Chabot, the New York goalie, and a bonus said to approximate $10,000.

HARVARD TO DEPEND ON AERIAL ATTACK TO TURN BACK THE ARMY

NEW YORK, Oct. 18—(AP)—Arnold Horween apparently plans to put his faith in the air when Harvard takes the field against Army's football team at Cambridge Saturday.

Informed by scouts that the Cadets had all kinds of trouble breaking up the forward passing attacks of Southern Methodist, Horween has hopes that the Army has not improved in that line. Harvard's workouts this week have stressed the forward pass as well as the Crimson's tricky lateral pass. Horween hardly expects to match the Army at straight football tactics but with the aid of an aerial attack Harvard may yet preserve her record of never losing to the Cadets. They haven't played since 1910 but the Crimson won the one that year and every one prior to that date.

The Cadets had an easy day, "Biff" Jones scheduling no workout before the Soldiers' train left for Boston early this afternoon. A drill in Harvard stadium is set for tomorrow.

Penn State and Pennsylvania had nothing but light workouts in preparation for their 50th meeting at Philadelphia and Yale, fearing more injuries, did the same thing for the Brown game.

With six changes in the lineup, Princeton's varsity scored twice on the scrubs in ten minutes but has little hopes of getting touchdowns that easily against Lehigh.

Charley Crowley watched his Columbia team workout at Baker field and then said he believed that if the Lions could stop Dartmouth's aerial attack they had a good chance to win.

Colgate's warriors left for the west where, with Syracuse, they uphold eastern banners against the middle west. Colgate meets Michigan State while Syracuse is tacking an even tougher assignment in the Nebraska Cornhuskers.

Navy ended its strenuous work for Duke as did Lafayette for Bucknell, the first real opposition the Leopards face.

High School Sport News

Westerly and Bulkeley meet at Westerly today in an Eastern Conn-Western Rhode Island league game. Bulkeley seems to be in for another rough year as a 21 to 0 lacing from Stonington last week might seem to hint.

Right now, the Academy, Stonington and Putnam are the leading clubs in eastern Connecticut and all going strong.

The Academy has never beaten Warren Harding in football seems to have a wonderful chance this week end.

Harding is playing but in-and-out football this fall, losing 3 to 0 to Torrington two weeks ago and them coming back to wallop New Haven Commercial last Saturday.

The Waterbury twins, Crosby and Wilby, are also experiencing stormy journeys. Wilby won its first game, 16 to 0, but that is the sum total of victories for both schools this year.

HAWLEY PUTS TEAM THROUGH LONG DRILL

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 18—(AP)—Dartmouth's second secret practice in two days was held today in a downpour of rain and ended only after the floodlights had been turned on the playing field. A long chalk talk preceded the practice, and first and second teams stood in the stands and studied Columbia plays put on in a scrimmage between the third team and the scrubs. The varsity then drilled on their new plays.

The first team had several men at the ends today. Booma, Swarthout, Bankart, Magee and Hetfield all worked out at the ends but it is expected that the first two will have the call against Columbia Saturday. Magee and Hetfield, sophomores, showed well.

ILLINOIS FINES AND SUSPENDS CHUCK WIGGINS

CHICAGO, Oct. 18— (AP) —"Chuck" Wiggins, Indianapolis heavyweight today was fined $500 and suspended for six months by the Illinois state athletic commission for fouling Otto Von Porat, Norwegian heavyweight in their fight at the coliseum last night.

Wiggins will be barred for that period in 27 states affiliated with the Illinois commission.

The Indianapolis veteran sunk three blows in foul territory in the third round when it was apparent he would be defeated, probably knocked out.

PADDY O'CONNOR NOT TO BE WITH HARTFORD IN 1929

HARTFORD, Oct. 18—(AP)—The Hartford baseball club of the Eastern league tonight announced that it would not re-engage Manager Paddy O'Connor for the 1929 season but would seek a playing manager. O'Connor piloted the local club to fifth place last season. Previously he had managed the Hartford club for three years, winning one pennant, and also managed at Albany.

HAHN WILL QUIT THE CINDER PATH

FALLS CITY, Neb., Oct. 18—(AP)—Lloyd Hahn has definitely decided to hang up his running moccasins and after that he doesn't know what he will do.

"I could probably run good races for three or four years," he said at his home here, "but what is the use? I have seen as much of the track as most runners and I am ready to retire."

When asked if he planned to go east in the spring, Hahn said "I shall never go east again to run, you can count on that. I will never put on my shoes again. I'm through."

As to his future plans the famous Hahn was silent.

QUIGLEY TO UMPIRE EXHIBITIONS IN JAPAN

ST. MART'S, Kans., Oct. 18—(AP)—The booming voice of Ernest C. Quigley will be missing from the nation's gridirons this fall. The National league baseball umpire, whose services also are in demand in many intersectional football games and on the basketball courts, is on his way to Japan. There he will umpire a dozen baseball games, five of which are to be played by picked college teams incident to the coronation ceremonies for the new emperor. Quigley said Ty Cobb would manage one of the teams and Walter Johnson another. He will conduct in Japan short coaching schools.

UZCUDUN-PETERSON BOUT POSTPONED TO TONIGHT

NEW YORK, Oct. 18—(AP)—The ten round match between Paulino Uzcudun, Spanish heavyweight, and Big Boy Peterson, of Minneapolis, at Ebbets field was postponed tonight because of rain. The match will be staged tomorrow night weather permitting.

Soccer Game at Jewett City

Soccer fans in this end of Connecticut are waiting for the big game which will take place next Sunday at Ashland park. The local team will line up against the Cottrell's of Westerly.

The Goodyear team took a hard fought contest from the local boys recently, but never again.

Bill McGuggae will be between the sticks again for next Sunday's contest. There will be a new and strengthened line up, and a battle royal is promised.

Jockey Shropshire New Sensation

CHICAGO, Oct. 18—(AP)—A freckled faced youth of 16, Jockey Elmo Shropshire, who used to gallop horses for his father back on the farm near Lexington, Ky., is the latest idol of Chicago turf fans.

Although still an apprentice, the boy has jockeyed his mounts across the finish line first more than 70 times since March 5. Yesterday, he rode three winners and came in second in the feature race.

Jockeys Warned About Betting

NEW YORK, Oct. 18—(AP)—Four of the leading riders on New York tracks, Laverne Fator, Frank Coltletti, Tony Pasquma and Frank Catrone, were called before the stewards of the Jockey club last night to explain charges of violating a rule against betting. No action was taken but the boys were warned to observe the rule closely.

DEMONSTRATION OF NEW TELEPHONE DEVICE

CHICAGO, Oct. 18—(AP)—John Collins, Waco, Texas, today demonstrated before a meeting of the Independent Telephone association an "Ansophone" which, when installed in the telephone, will receive messages when the telephone user is absent and later transmit them in the sender's own voice to the person for whom the message was intended.

The returning housewife of the future, it was pointed out, on returning home from marketing may expect to find anything when she turns on the telephone, from the latest neighborhood gossip to a message from the husband that he won't be home for dinner.

OCT. 27 SET FOR RETURN FLIGHT OF GRAF ZEPPELIN

NEW YORK, Oct. 18—(AP)—Hugh Allen, representative of the Goodyear Zeppelin company, said tonight that October 27 had been set for the start of the Graf Zeppelin's return flight to Germany.

The craft's westward cruise over this country will not require more than two or three days, he said, depending on whether she makes a trip from Detroit to St. Louis. Weather and other conditions, he added, will determine what action the ship's commander will take after reaching Detroit, probably next Monday.

Samuel Weiss, of New York and New Haven had a roll of pasty bills totalling $500 in his pocket when his body was found in the ruins of the Leopold building in Waterbury, on February, it was brought out at the trial of Louis N. Leopold who is charged with first degree murder and arson.

COOL FALL DAYS CAUSE BIG RISE IN GAS DEMAND

Exceptionally humid weather conditions throughout the entire summer season and cool weather during the early fall days have increased the use of gas in Connecticut to a considerable extent, due to the fact that its convenience, as compared with coal and furnace use, has turned many people to its use for heating their homes and shore cottages on damp and cold days. Every decrease in temperature in Connecticut, the records of gas utilities show, brings about a corresponding increase in the use of gas, and it is estimated that a drop of a few degrees in temperature increases the daily consumption of gas by several hundred thousands of cubic feet.

Small gas heaters of varying kinds have been used throughout the state during the past summer to an extraordinary extent. Gas companies have found that in a large number of homes even the gas ovens of the kitchen ranges have been brought to use in removing the chill of the house on cool and rainy days.

The wet summer and September chill have also served, according to Connecticut gas company officials, to increase greatly the number of gas furnace installations in the state, and it is believed that an unusually large demand for gas for house heating will result the coming winter. The use of gas for house heating has gone on apace with improvements in gas heating equipment and new methods in the insulation of dwelling houses. In a properly insulated house, it is now possible to have gas heat, with all its conveniences, at the ordinary cost of heating a house with coal and due to this economy, in addition to its cleanliness and convenience, gas manufacturers believe that gas will almost entirely replace coal as a house heating fuel by the end of the present decade.

Teachers from Rockville and nearby places will gather in Sykes Memorial, Friday evening to hear Dr. A. B. Meredith, secretary of the state board of education, explain the proposed changes in school laws. Dr. Meredith is giving 27 such talks throughout Connecticut.

BROOKLYN MAN IS AWARDED $1,000 DAMAGES

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 18—A verdict for the plaintiff to recover $1,000 has been handed down by Judge Edward Yeomans in the case of David Meyer of Brooklyn vs. The Globe and Rutgers Fire Insurance company. Meyer was proprietor of a store in a building that was destroyed by fire in Brooklyn last December. The insurance company held up payment of Meyer's claim for a loss on the ground that he was not the owner of the property, so Meyer brought suit to recover and the case was tried in the superior court at Putnam Tuesday of this week. Attorney Harry E. Back of Danielson representing Mr. Meyer.

In his memorandum of decision Judge Yeomans says: "The sole ownership of the plaintiff is sufficiently established by his exclusive possession and by his testimony and that of his wife that he purchased from his brother.

The defendant claims the recording of the bill of sale to his brother three days after the sale to the plaintiff is evidence of ownership in the brother. The date of the instrument is in accordance with the testimony of the plaintiff, and the recording was not at all necessary. The brother may have done this to protect the plaintiff from any possible claim of former owners.

The testimony as to the value of the goods destroyed is not very satisfactory, but it is not contradicted that a stock of goods containing many different articles was destroyed. Even admitting that the number of articles was doubtful, it is hard to conceive so varied a stock being less than $800 in value. The fixtures were undoubtedly worth more than $200.

Judgment may be entered for the plaintiff to recover $1,000, with interest thereon from April 1, 1928."

PORTRAIT OF PRUDENCE CRANDALL FOR LIBRARY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 18—There will be hanging in the public library Friday of this week and for some time thereafter some likenesses of Prudence Crandall, whose name and activities in the interest of education are imperishably associated with the history of the town of Canterbury.

That pictures of Prudence Crandall are extremely rare was demonstrated when members of the Killingly Woman's club sought for one recently, that she might be properly represented in The Portraits of Connecticut Woman program that the club for its meeting in the vestry of the Westfield Congregational church yesterday afternoon Members of the club, at this meeting, represented various famed women of Connecticut in the manner of costume of the days in which they lived.

In seeking for pictures it was found that Judge John E. Prior of Moosup was the possessor of two. One of these was a painting done by Frank Alexander, who was born in what is now known as the Phillips place at Alexander's lake, and the other a photographic enlargement of a photograph, showing Miss Crandall in the advanced years of her life. These pictures served to show how Miss Crandall appeared, and now they are to be made available, through the courtesy of Judge Prior, for public view at the library.

Mrs. Ellen Kennedy, 28, died today at Unqua-on-the-Thames, and the body was removed to her home in Moosup in charge of Undertaker L. E. Kennedy. Mrs. Kennedy was the wife of Ellis Kennedy, who is a patient at the Norwich sanitarium. Mrs. Kennedy was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Conklin of Moosup. She leaves her husband, a son, Leonard and her parents.

Eighteen physicians, representative of various sections of the country, met at the Park inn here at noon today in their 135th semi-annual meeting. Following a dinner, there was a business meeting and a scienitfic program The scientific papers presented were by Dr. Winfred Ney of New York, his subject being The Scientific Determination of Increased Intercranial Pressure and by Dr. Joseph A. LaPalme of North Grosvenordale, whose topic was Ether Analgesia in Obstetrics. Dr. Francis Downing of Moosup, president of the society, presided at the meeting.

All through this section game wardens have been posting notices requesting sportsmen to refrain from shooting partridge during the present open season. That this request of the state board of fisheries and game is being heeded by the great majority of sportsmen seems a fact. Game officials say that very few partridges are known to have been taken to date this season.

Saturday of this week brings the beginning of the open season on woodcock. This species of game bird is expected to be present in northeastern Connecticut when colder weather sets in than at present, though some of them are already about.

There were indications today that Friday evening's special town meeting will draw a very considerable attendance. This meeting is to pass upon a petition of citizens who request that an appropriation of $2,000 be made to meet the expense of auditing the town's books by expert accountants. Why this audit is desired likely will be explained to the meeting in detail, though spokesmen for the petitioners say their only motive in seeking such an audit is the business one that such a checkup should be made from time to time for the best interests of the town. No such audit has been made for many years, they point out, and contend that it would be worth all that it might cost.

Up to this afternoon nothing had been said as to how many years back such an audit would include, and this point is important in determining what the final cost would be. On the grounds of economy, there are voters who will oppose the appropriation, it was said today, as other such special appropriations have been opposed in Killingly for the past two or three years. The difference of opinion among the voters as to whether or not the audit should be made promises to make the special meeting an interesting one.

It was recalled today that the Attawaugan hotel, destined it now appears to be torn down within the next few months, was erected in 1856. At the time it was regarded as a very pretentious house and became the center of much of the community life of those years just prior to the Civil war. W. S. Brown, the present owner, was engaged today in conference with prospective buyers of some of the hotel equipment.

Venturing onto other people's land for the purpose of garnering nuts or fruits is not as safe a proposition as it might seem. Two Danielson boys have been presented in the town court and fined $2 each, with costs, a total of $9.52 in each case, for taking nuts from trees on land near Westfield avenue, without permission of the owner.

George Gendron has been spending a few days in Boston attending the National Laundrymen's association convention.—

Howard Withey is engaged in making a personal tax enrollment in Danielson.

Assessors meet Saturday, 9 to 4, town hall building.—adv.

This afternoon the temperature ran up to 80 degrees in Danielson, maintaining the unusual record of the week.

Danielson people were included in tonight's audience at the Community house in South Killingly where a musical program was presented by Harold Ainsworth, clarinetist, W. W. Reimer, vocal soloist, and Edward H. Bacon, all of Danielson.

Today County Commissioners Urgele LaFrance of Central Village, Arthur Keith of Putnam and Herbert Johnson of Woodstock and County Treasurer Clifford H. Starkweather were at the county jail in Brooklyn making ready their annual reports, which will be made public after auditing.

It is anticipated that new members will be received into the Westfield Congregational church on Sunday, Nov. 4, when there is to be a communion service.

Hiram W. Burton, who is ill, is at a Hartford hospital for observation for ten days.

Mrs. Michael Comiskey and Miss Nellie Sullivan of Hartford are visiting with Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Kennedy.

Election night radio parties are already in process of organization, and would seem as though the returns will be available for about anyone interested in listening to them.

The Week Day school of the Danielson Federation of Churches is following this schedule: Beginners at the Westfield Congregational church, Saturdays, 9 to 11 a. m.; grade 1, at the same church Mondays at 3.45, Grade 2, same church, Saturday 9 to 11, Grade 3, Baptist church, Thursday at 3.45, Grade 4, Westfield church, Thursdays at 3.45.

Mrs. W. H. Judson remains ill and under the care of a physician.

Members of the North Stonington C. E. union will make a visit to the Ledyard Union Sunday evening. The program will be in charge of the North Stonington union.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Holdridge and Rev. G. F. Goodenough of Jewett City motored to Plymouth, Mass., Saturday and were guests of Miss Dorothy Goodenough, returning home Sunday evening.

Harry Williams was the leader of the C. E. meeting held in the church Sunday evening.

Miss Louise Clark of Willimantic Normal school was with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Clark over the week end and Sunday.

"Stand still and see the wonderful works of nature," was the subject discoursed by Nelson Schlegal, in the Congregational church Sunday morning.

Mrs. Lusie Lillie of Hartford has been the guest of Mrs. Isaac G. Geer.

The young people are planning a masquerade Halloween social at the church.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Smith of Thomaston were guests Monday and Tuesday of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Holdridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith motored here from Bridgeport where they have been visiting for a few days. From here they motored to Boston where, they will stay two weeks before returning to their home in Thomaston.

George Geer of New York, David Geer of New Haven and Miss Marian Geer, of Connecticut college, were with their mother, Mrs. C. D. Geer, Sunday.

Next Sunday five members of the Sterling Co. of New Haven of which David Geer, formerly of this town is treasurer will be the guests of Mr. Geer's mother, Mrs. C. D. Geer.

UNION

Supervisor Martin B. Robertson has called a meeting of the teachers and pupils of Union schools to be held at the town hall on Tuesday evening, Oct. 23, at 7 o'clock. He expects to have the drawing supervisor, Mrs. Hanley demonstrate her method of teaching drawing and painting; the school nurse, Miss Miel, to talk on her method of work for the school children, and the music supervisor Miss Beckwith, lead the pupils in singing. All parents and friends and the general public have been invited to come and enjoy the program.

The following nominations were made at the republican caucus: For representatives to the general assembly, L. Morgan Reed and Paul Risner; justices of the peace, John Buckley, Raymond C. Barrows and Paul Risner.

The democratic nominations are: Representatives to the general assembly Edwin Heck and Olin Willis; justices of the peace, Harvey M. Lawson, Samuel L. Heck and Albert W. Heck.

Mrs. Ida Heck, who had been doing excellent work in the Red school, has resigned to teach in a school in Southbridge, Mass. Mrs. Heck closed her labors here last Thursday, Oct. 11, and Miss Helen Carlson of Holden, Mass., took her place Monday of this week so there was no loss of time for the school. Miss Carlson is a graduate of Worcester Normal school.

Mrs. Lottie Baker, who was moved to Southbridge, Mass., a short time ago, is reported to be gaining in strength slowly.

Ethelbert Webster of Enfield, Mass., has been spending a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Webster, in the East district.

The Home Economics club is to hold their first meeting of the season in the town hall, Tuesday, October 23, starting at 11 a. m. There will be a covered-dish dinner at noon. The L. B. A. members plan to hold a brief meeting directly after dinner. Then Mrs. Dakin, state nutrition specialist will speak on Serving the Community Supper.

PUTNAM

LAPOINTE UNABLE TO RAISE $2000 FOR BOND

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 18—Victor Lapointe, of Smith street, Putnam, was held at Brooklyn jail last evening after he failed to raise the prescribed amount of $2000 bonds set for his release by Justice Percy P. Tourtellotte of North Grosverndale. Lapointe, until today, had not raised the money and was still being held at the jail.

He was arrested by State Trooper Scranton of the Danielson state police barracks Wednesday afternoon and was arraigned before Justice Tourtellotte, Wednesday evening. He pleaded guilty to the charge of operating under the influence of liquors, and because of his week old police record was bound over to superior court.

It was said in police circles today that Lapointe may possibly be brought to court on a bench warrant when superior court, civil session, convenes at Willimantic (Friday) morning.

A number of the teachers of Putnam high school and faculty members of the Israel Putnam school held a "dog roast" at the new state park at Priest Island, Wednesday afternoon. The outing was more successful that the business man's outing of a week or so ago, which was adjudged by a Putnam periodical as a "fizzle." During the afternoon the teachers spent their leisure hours in games and a trip about the large tract of land recently converted to a state park.

Plans are now being made in the schools of the city for the observance of American Education week, which officially opens on November 5 and continues until Nov 11. The week is set aside by the American Legion, American Educational association and by other educational organizations devoted to the interests of the American youth. There will be "Health Day" in which health will be the principal subject of the day and need for better conditions in the schools and home will be impressed upon the children by the teaching staffs. "Home and Schools Day" will be the second of the seven to be observed. "Know Your School Day" will be celebrated on Wednesday, with Thursday being set aside as "School Opportunity Day." Friday will be "Citizenship Day," and Saturday will be "Community Day." Each day will have a special programme relating to its meaning.

The sabbath day will be the greatest of the year, Nov. 11th. Memorial services will be held in all the churches of the city, with the formal celebration of the day under the combined efforts of all committees from various orders on Monday November 12.

A meeting of the Armistice day committee, in charge of the programme for the observance of Armistice day was held last evening at the chamber of commerce rooms. The large attendance indicated the vast amount of enthusiasm centered in the observance of the day this year. Reports from chairmen of the various committees were read and accepted. It was stated that a military ball will be held on that evening, although final arrangements have not been completed yet.

Two post cards, carried across the ocean in 110 hours from Germany on the giant airship "Graf Zeppelin" were delivered in Webster it has been learned here. The cards of ordinary size were addressed to two Webster residents with German relatives on the other side of the ocean were placed aboard the big ship when it took off from its home post in Friedrichshafen and were delivered Wednesday in Webster. The cost of postage amounted to $1.00 for the two cards.

The giant iron horse a "3500" of the New Haven railroad was seen passing through the city today and attracted widespread of interest from those who were near the station platform. The large engine nearly 100 feet over all and almost twice the size of the common locomotives seen daily here, hauled a 110-car train over the main line to Pomfret with no exertion whatsoever. It will be remembered that the smaller engines of a decade ago needed an extra "horse" in the rear to aid in pushing over the steep grade on the way.

According to a statement issued today, Union Block, Putnam's tallest building and having the largest roof of any block in the city is to bear the word "Putnam" on its roof, which is intended to be a guide to aviators passing over the city. The word Putnam will be readable at a height of 1000 feet.

This is Putnam's first step towards aviation. A few months ago it was thought that the armory on Harris street would be the logical building to guide the birdmen, but the owners of the Union Block company are to bear the expense themselves, which will be a saving to the chamber of commerce and the common council.

In several instances Putnam has been the place where a number of air mail pilots have been misguided because of the absence of any means of guidance on the ground. The action of the Union Block company will tend to remedy this if the plan goes through.

The textile workers circles in this community were somewhat startled today when news of a five per cent wage cut in the cotton mills of Connecticut will be effective on Monday. The reduction of wages in the cotton mills will not materially effect Putnam, since there are no cotton plants in operation here, but many employees living in Putnam and working in the Grosverndale company in North Grosverndale will be victims of the five per cent wage reduction. Also, many other mills in the Quinebaug valley, will be working on the five per cent cut on Monday, since notices of such have been posted.

In North Grosverndale and Grosverndale where the Grosverndale company operates its large plants nearly 1500 men and women are employed. This mill has successfully continued in operation while many of the other cotton mills throughout the state have suffered from the southern competition have been forced to run on slack time.

Political kettles were at boiling points today and continued to give off scores of political dope on the campaigns of both parties. Party lieutenants in both the republican and democratic camps have taken the field and were busy today in securing vote promises that will aid their ticket on Nov. 6th. The democrats are to continue to hold party rallies during the few remaining weeks of the campaign, while the republicans, after the passing of several valuable weeks, have decided to resort to the rally and have announced a public rally to be held at the Victory theatre on Oct. 22, at which Senator Hiram Bingham will be the principal speaker.

Mrs. E. L. Beebe and Mrs. Iver S. Nelson were in Boston Wednesday on a business trip.

Mrs. Fred Swift was a recent guest of Mrs. Daniel S Clarke on Windham road. Miss Lucy E. Hyde and Mrs. Swift were in Norwich attending the funeral of S. J. Conant.

Frederick Johnson and Miss Hazel B. Swift were in Norwich Wednesday.

NOANK

WILD GEESE DAZED BY FOG LEAVE FLOCK AT LONG POINT

A large flock of geese were bending their wings toward the west, Wednesday morning. The fog was thick and the geese were flying low and lost their way. When they went past the Baptist church they were only about 20 feet over the roof and swung around toward Groton Long Point, where six of them fell out and landed on the water, while the rest kept on going trying to make the south. What is it a sign of, when the geese start for the warm country so early in the year? Does it mean that it is time to put away the lawn mower and get out the snow shovel? Several workmen were watching the geese swimming around at the Point, say they came right in on shore, not afraid, but all tired out from flying in the fog so long. They were Canada geese, someone said.

Mr. and Mrs. Todd and daughter, Rachael, of North Woodstock, Conn., are spending a few weeks at Mrs. Martha Smith's residence on Pearl street.

Eddie Mahoney has resigned as truck driver for the Tourjee company.

Modern Dances Demonstrated

Corona hall on Smith court was crowded, where 250 dance fans gathered for the music of the Russo orchestra of New London, who were in their new uniforms of orange and black, with caps to match. A moonlight dance was a novelty, where a fast fox trot was played and 50 couples were dancing as the full moon was shining on them. Floor Manager Roy Abate told everyone that during intermission a surprise was waiting. At 10:30 o'clock, presto! the leader said that Jack Peters of Essex, ten years old, would do a few new steps; he learned from a dance instruction book and kept on trying till he got them down pat. The orchestra played some fast music as he did the Harvard Hop in the new way, light as a feather on his feet, keeping up with the orchestra. He received a real ovation from the crowd. Next came the Charleston—skating around the hall like a hockey player chasing the puk, and he was called out three times doing the Black Bottom dance in the slow motion way; it proved the best exhibition of dancing seen in the fishing village since the old Brook street dance hall was running, 40 years ago.

M. Modo of Woodstock, Conn., has spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Todd.

Mr. Potter of East Woodstock is having a large cottage built at Groton Long Point. The three men at work claim it will take four weeks to finish the cottage. If those men can do it in that time it will break a record at the Point. The local carpenters are watching to see it done, and it will be a record for a cottage, going up so quickly.

At the Methodist church, Wednesday, a chicken pie supper was served by the Silver Link society of the church. Over 110 attended, many coming from out of town. One man from West Mystic said he had traveled around to different church suppers for the past ten years, but this was the best one he has ever had, for they cannot beat the Noank women at putting out chicken pies. The sum of $38 was cleared by the supper.

William Frazer spent Wednesday in Hartford.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Clemens of Putnam were recent callers in the village.

Walter Welles has resigned as night weaver at the Rossie mill in Mystic.

Alden Brocky has returned from a brief visit at Atlantic Beach.

Motorists "Tag" Themselves

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A ruse to "fool" traffic police has been worked here successfully for some time, but the police are on to it now. Motorists who had received "tags" for parking violations saved them and stuck them on their cars when they parked to make the patrolmen think they already had been tagged.

Motor Cars of the Future will be low, slender, graceful, like the NASH "400" today

NASH has achieved tomorrow's motor car vogue in the Nash "400," today.

Every line and contour of the new Salon Body style suggests the fleet, clean-cut profile of the thoroughbred. The "400" models are big, roomy cars, but without excess bulk, smart cars without exaggeration. They're low, slender, and graceful.

You only need to compare the appearance of the "400" to that of the other new cars of the year, to know definitely that you would rather have the Nash. You only need to drive the "400"—to steer it, park it—to know that here is exactly the kind of a car you've always wanted to own. Its new Twin Ignition performance and ease-of-handling are easily the year's most important additions to the pleasure-of-motoring.

We'll give you the key to any model you care to drive. Then, we'll leave it to you!

STONINGTON

YOUTH WHEN DISCHARGED BEATS UP OVERSEER

In the Stonington town court before Judge William A. Wilcox Wednesday morning Angelo Cofoni, age 18, of 56 Oak street, was charged with assault and breach of the peace. Cofoni was discharged by Overseer Panciera of the shearing room of the American Velvet Co., Tuesday evening with the result that he beat up Panciera, fracturing his nose, blackening his eye and severely cutting him about the face and head. Dr. James H. Weeks was appointed the youth's guardian. A plea of not guilty was entered. Prosecuting Attorney George R. McKenna asked the court to adjourn the case until Saturday morning at 9 o'clock owing to the fact that the accused told the court that he had not told his parents of the affair. Cofoni was paroled in custody of Patrolman Ostman after furnishing bond of $70 cash for his appearance.

The assembly of Stonington high school Thursday morning was given over to talks on the good qualities of Alfred E. Smith and Herbert Hoover, candidates for the presidency of the United States. A straw vote will be taken at an early date.

Mr. and Mrs. John Wayland have closed their summer home here and returned to New York Wednesday.

Calvary church Fellowship met in the chapel Wednesday evening.

Always Dead Tired?

How sad! Sallow complexion, coated tongue, poor appetite, bad breath, pimply skin and always tired. What's wrong? You are poisoned. The bowels are clogged and liver inactive. Take this famous prescription used constantly in place of calomel by men and women for 20 years—Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. They are harmless yet very effective. A compound of vegetable ingredients and olive oil. They act easily upon the bowels, free the system of poison caused by faulty elimination and tone up liver.

Be beautiful. Have rosy cheeks, clear eyes and youthful energy that make a success of life. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, nightly. Know them by their olive color. 15c, 30c and 60c.

THINK THINGS THROUGH

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

Perhaps some of you have heard the story of the rather pompous old Know-it-all who was very self-consciously strutting up and down the sidewalk before the group of idlers gathered on the store porch.

His forehead wrinkled, his eyebrows contracted, his back stooped and his hands clasped behind it, his lips twitching as if with the import of some tremendous message, he somehow suggested those pictures in the old histories of Napoleon striding up and down before his tent, planning the strategy of Lodi or Austerlitz.

"What's the matter with old Jonas?" asked a new-comer of the group. "What's it all about, anyhow?"

Nobody answered for a full minute. Then the village half-wit ambled forward, took the inquirer by the lapel and led him off one side to whisper in his ear: "S-sh, doan't disturb him; he thinks he's thinkin'."

"He thinks he's thinking."

Those four words constitute the complete mental history of tens of thousands of men who actually never thought a real thought in their lives, but have somehow managed to deceive themselves and others into the belief that they are "deep thinkers." They go through their lives with furrowed brows and affectedly meditative countenances, and have a way of looking at you when you say "Howd'ye" to them as if they were too intensely absorbed in the problems of the universe to be sure of what you mean or what you say.

They think they're thinking. Yet, 99 times out of 100, they don't even know what thinking means.

For thinking is about the hardest work to which a human being can set himself. It calls for all that he has in him, and takes out of him more than any other known task.

It may not lame his back nor callous his hands. But it strains his mental faculties to their limits; it whets his observation to a razor's edge; it calls into review all the stored-up memories of life; it sets his reason to turning the grindstone of experience; it stirs his ordinarily quiescent brains into a very stew of excitement.

Not every one is even capable of thinking. And, of those who are, not one in a hundred ever avails himself of his capacity.

Don't be too harsh with the culprit, be he infant, adolescent, or adult, who pleads "I didn't think." The chances are you don't think yourself,—at least not all the time nor even every day.

There's a handier and more deserving object for your rebuke and chastisement in the fellow who doesn't ever think, hasn't the ability to think, yet tries to fool you into the belief that he is thinking by an assumption of the thinker's outside manner.

The real thinker is never satisfied with anything less than thinking things through.

He isn't contented with taking a single step. He doesn't stop fishing when he's pulled in a single idea. He doesn't cackle and fly off the nest when his mind has laid one egg.

He can't stop till he has thought things through.

Ah, brethren and sisteren, it's that refusal or neglect to think things through which is responsible for more trouble in this muddled world than any other one mistake or fault.

By that phrase, "thinking things through", I mean just thinking them out to their logical results.

Nor can any of us seek to be excused from doing so on the ground that we don't understand the rules of logic. It may very well be that we don't know the forms set down in the text-books on logic; that we can't define a "major premise", or tell just what a "syllogism" is. But all of us who possess normal brains have an instinctive apprehension of the universal truth that effect always follows cause, and that there can be no effect without a cause. We don't need to go through college to know that winter succeeds summer, or that a cut blood-vessel will bleed, or that potato-rot follows potato-blight.

We know, without seeking the information in any book on logic, that pounding our own thumbs doesn't drive nails into boards. We don't need a professor to tell us that sowing dodder-seed is no way to get a clover crop. We know, without taking any formal course in logic, that election of spendthrifts to office means a waste of our taxes. We know that we can fall out of the apple-tree when the limb breaks faster than we can climb back on any ladder.

Oh, we know enough things worth thinking about to keep our think-factory busy and working over-time. And many of us,—a whole lot of us,—do occasionally set our think-machines at work on our own personal or social or political or religious problems. The trouble with 99 out of 100 is that, once we've started thinking, we don't think things through. We run up against obstacles, we get tired, we shut off steam when the job is barely begun; it's easier to roll over and take another nap than it is to go on with the task to what is as likely to prove a bitter as a sweet end.

Take politics, for illustration—Everybody is taking politics in daily doses, just now, anyway, so that's as good a subject as any other.—

Consider the presidential election, for just one thing. It is safe and sure to start off with the assumption that men's brains are so constituted that, on the same evidence, one man will favor a verdict of guilty and another a verdict of acquittal. But,—and here's the whole nub of the matter,—what's either verdict worth unless the one who renders it has heard all the evidence, weighed it without bias or prejudice, and thought the thing out to its logical, i. e., inevitable conclusion?

When a man starts to think things out, even in politics, he begins at the beginning and doesn't stop till he's reached the end. He isn't diverted by inherited prejudices, nor swayed by preconceived judgments, nor influenced by the opinions of others. He thinks things out for himself,—and he thinks them through. He doesn't vote democratic because his grandfather did, nor republican because his father did and he always has, thus far. He looks over the whole field, compares the records of both parties when in power, measures the experience, the mental capacity, the moral standing, the probable economy and efficiency of all candidates. He takes into account every likely and every imaginable emergency and bids his reason tell him which would be the safest to lead the country.

He goes much farther and covers a much wider territory than all this that I have set forth. He considers, not one or two outstanding features, but scores or minor tendencies. He digs deep and he peers high. In other words, he thinks the thing through.

And then he votes as his own self-drawn conclusions bid him, not as any "machine" or "organization" directs.

What is true of politics is just as true of every other phase of life. Farming included.

When T. B. Terry found himself loaded up with an 80-acre Ohio farm, which previous owners had abandoned as not worth paying taxes on, he didn't try to renew it by following their methods. Nor did he ask the jeering neighbors for advice. His own story, told in his autobiography, of the mental struggle he went through when he found what he was up against, is an inspiration to every discouraged farmer between the two oceans. He learned the history of the farm. He studied its soil foot by foot. He considered his possible markets. Day after day and week after week he spent in thinking his problem through. Big principles, trivial details, both were one to him. He overlooked nothing because it seemed unimportant. He thought out every line to its end,—till there was nothing more for his dragnet of inquiry to bring before his mind.

And, in less than 20 years, he had brought that worthless, barren, abandoned old segment of desert to such a state of fertile productivity as to gain the repeated award of first prize by the State Agricultural society for the best farm in Ohio.

He admits that this took some mighty hard manual labor. But he makes it equally clear that he never worked half as hard with his hands in effecting the result as he did with his brains in thinking things through before he touched plow-handle or hoe.

Now, most people are fundamentally honest. They want to do the right thing in the right way. And most people have brains enough.

At the same time, most people are too durned lazy to use the brains they have for the purposes for which brains were given, i. e., to think with,—not merely to think about things, but to think things through.

Even when they "think they're thinking," they really are not doing anything more than stirring up mental mud. They go round and round in fiddled circles, never getting anywhere except back to the old starting-point.

And yet the very men and women who never think anything through are apt to be the most "set" in their opinions, the stubbornest in their prejudices, the most bigoted in their partisanship or sectarianism.

In fact, this is so general that it is a fairly safe rule to set down that when you meet anyone who is cock-sure his opinions are immutably infallible, you may assume that he doesn't know how he got those so-called opinions nor where they came from.

If he had ever gone through the travail of thinking them out for himself, he would be the first to admit the possibility of flaws in them.

THE FARMER.

Autumn Magic.

It's a glorious day, with the sun overhead,
And the maples off yonder in cardinal red,
The elms spilling gold on the floor of the world,
And the sumach ablaze as the picture's unfurled.
Oh, poor little genus of those known as man,
Just work us such wonder as this, if you can.

It's a glorious day, with the magic of fall
Working its changes too swiftly for all;
Now the green turns to gold in the glint of the sun.
But not one of us knows how this marvel is done;
From the high hat of autumn gay ribbons are tossed,
And man merely calls it the work of the frost.

Here's a performance which dazzles the eye,
Here are illusions no Hindoo dare try.
Valley and hill-top and forest and field,
In garments of beauty are strangely revealed;
Oh, who can detect it, or who can explain,
Or who e'er can equal such legerdemain?

The world is a stage without curtain or wing.
Where autumn performs for the peasant and king;
No velvet-topped table he needs for his feat
As he scatters his silver and gold at our feet;
We see the scenes change in the glint of the sun,
But none of us knows how such wonders are done.

Burgess Bedtime Story

Why Jimmy Skunk Wasn't Caught

By THOMAS W. BURGESS

Pray always keep yourself quit fit
In body and in brain and wit.
—Jimmy Skunk.

When the man who had set the trap for Jimmy Skunk went down to look at them the next day he discovered at once that one trap was sprung. The two other traps were just as he had left them. "That's queer," said the man. "I don't see how that skunk could have sprung that trap without being caught." He picked up the trap and examined it carefully. He thought he might find some black or white hairs in it. But not a single black or white hair did he find in the trap.

"That Skunk didn't spring that trap," the man decided. "Something else must have sprung it."

He looked very carefully in the soft earth for Jimmy Skunk's footprints. There were none. When he had set those traps he had sprinkled some fine dust over them. It would have been impossible for Jimmy to have stepped in that fine dust and not leave a footprint.

"The Skunk is still under the barn" decided the man. "I'll just leave these traps here. I'll get him sooner or later."

So he reset the wicked steel trap that had been sprung, sifted more dust over it and went on his way. He was sure he would have that Skunk.

Now, Jimmy had been right near that opening when the man visited the trap. He had kept quiet, but he hadn't missed anything that was going on. He knew just what that man was doing. He listened to the sound of the man's footsteps drive away. Then he sighed. "It's no use," said Jimmy to himself, "for me to think of getting out this way. There isn't another opening I can get out. I guess I've got to do some work. I don't like digging, but it looks to me as if I shall have to dig this time. It's a good thing I can dig. If I couldn't dig I would be in a peck of trouble."

He went back to the other end of the barn. He went along the edge until he found a place where the earth was fairly soft. Then he began to dig. He was going to dig down under the foundation. He didn't hurry about it. You know Jimmy seldom hurries. There was nothing to hurry for. So he just took his time about it. He dug a while. It wasn't very much of a job after all. Sooner than he had dared hope would be the case, he was under the underpinning. Then he began to dig up. Presently he poked his head outside. Jimmy drew a long breath. Then he shook himself and combed the dirt out of his coat and made himself neat, for Jimmy Skunk is a very neat person.

He looked very carefully in the soft earth for Jimmy Skunk's footprints.

What do you think Jimmy did then? He deliberately walked around to the end of the barn where the hole was. He wanted to see those traps from the outside. You see, Jimmy has just as much curiosity as any one else. But he took great care not to go too near them. At first he couldn't see them, for they had been sprinkled with dust. It looked as if there were no traps there. But Jimmy knew better. There were some small stones lying about. Jimmy turned and with his hindfeet he kicked some of these stones toward the place where he thought the traps were. At first nothing happened. Then a fairly good-sized stone rolled right onto the pan of one of those traps. Two wicked jaws leaped into the air and came together with a snap. It was so sudden that, although he had expected it, Jimmy Skunk jumped. Then he turned and ambled away. He ambled back toward Farmer Brown's. He knew there were no traps over there. He knew that on Farmer Brown's farm no traps were ever allowed.

"There is nothing like being among friends," thought Jimmy.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

During the first two weeks in October there were 25 building permits granted by Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton for new construction work in the city. The new work is estimated by the owners to cost approximately $90,000. The largest contracts include the new building on Main street for the Metropolitan Chain store, the Uncas-Merchants bank new building, and the new athletic building at the Academy campus. Peck, McWilliams Co., has the contract for the bank building and the athletic building while P. F. Sweeney has the Metropolitan contract.

Favorable weather during the past two weeks has been a boon to the contractors, especially those who have large projects on hand that must be closed in before the cold weather sets in. The majority of contractors have been working at top speed during the last few weeks and rapid strides have been made.

The work on the new Masonic temple at the corner of Washington and Sachem streets has been brought well along by Contractor W. S. Spencer. Here the walls have been completed and the cement for the roof is being poured this week. Much work on the interior has been done, several of the rooms having been partitioned off and the floors in some parts of the structure are being laid. Electricians are at work putting in conduits for the wiring. It is expected that the roof will soon be completed and that work on the interior can be rushed during the winter months.

At the old Stead block on Main street Contractor Sweeney is working at top speed to erect the new building for the Metropolitan Chain stores. The old structure has been torn down with the exception of the floor girders on the first and second floors. The contract calls for the building to be ready for occupancy a week before Christmas.

Peck, McWilliams Co., who are building the new athletic building in the rear of the Converse Art gallery at the Academy campus have completed the excavation work and forms for the cement foundations have been built with the result that the pouring of cement will soon be under way.

The building permits issued by Fire Marshal Stanton are as follows:

To Sarah Abrahamson to add to the present frame garage at 361 West Main street. The addition will be 8x16 feet and is estimated to cost $25.

To P. F. Sweeney to erect a frame garage, 12x19 feet, on Chelsea court for Henry H. Vignot. The estimated cost is $500.

To P. F. Sweeney to erect a frame garage, 17x19 feet on Lake street for M. Bendett. The estimated cost is $546.

To P. F. Sweeney to build an addition to the present frame house at 6 Pukallus avenue, owned by Albert W. Taylor. The addition will be 12x16 feet and two stories high. The estimated cost is $1760.

To P. F. Sweeney to erect a brick building at 208-210 Main street for the Metropolitan Chain Stores Inc. The new building will be two stories high, the first story being approximately 50x120 feet while the second story will be 50x50 feet. The foundation will be of concrete. The building will have a steel frame and the walls will be of brick and hollow tile. The building will have an asphalt roof. A plate glass front will be installed along with large display windows. The estimated cost of the new building is $34,935.

To Peck McWilliams Co., to make extensive alterations to the Uncas bank building on Shetucket street. The interior of the bank room is to be thoroughly remodeled and rebuilt with new fittings of bronze and marble with a concrete floor. There will be no change in the Shetucket street front in any way. A new vault is to be built in the rear of the building. The cost is estimated at $20,000.

To Jerome Theve to add a frame porch to the present frame house at the corner of Elijah street and Boswell avenue. The porch will be 7x30 feet and is estimated to cost about $150.

To the Peck McWilliams Co. to erect a brick building to be used as an athletic building for the Norwich Free Academy. The building which is located in the rear of Principal Tirrell's house near the Converse art gallery, will have a concrete foundation. The walls will be of brick with a colonial front entrance. On the roof will be stained shingles. The floor construction will be of steel joists with cement slabs on the top. In the basement the partitions will be of common brick and in the shower rooms the interior will be in salt glazed brick. The main floor partitions will be of wire lath and plaster. The ceilings in the basement and on the main floor will be in plaster. The building will be semi-fireproof. The estimated cost is $12,000.

To Mrs. Mary Kacaj to add two rooms and a porch to the present frame house at 160 Sachem street. The addition will be 7x28 feet. The estimated cost is $200.

To Henry G. Montie Jr., to erect a frame 2-car garage on Oneco street for John Caryl. The garage will be 18x26 feet and will cost approximately $500.

To Anthony Celucci to erect a stone garage at 131 North street for himself. The garage will be 12x18 and will cost approximately $100.

To George Lambert to erect a frame dwelling house on Fanning avenue for himself. The house will be 26x26 feet and will contain six rooms and bath. The house will be modernly equipped and will have hardwood floors and trim. The estimated cost is $4,000.

To Antoni Przybysz to erect a brick and frame garage at 68 Roosevelt avenue for himself. The garage will be 18x22 feet and will be constructed of used brick and timber. The estimated cost is $145.

To Thomas Vatagliano to add to the present garage on Arnold street. The addition will be 10x20 feet and of frame construction. The estimated cost is $100.

To John A. Tracy to add a frame bath room to the present house on Hamilton avenue owned by Mrs. Harvey A. Spalding. The addition will be 8x6 feet and the estimated cost is $150.

To William H. Taft to erect a frame shed on Boswell avenue for Jane A. Henderson. The shed will be 9x17 feet. The estimated cost is $50.

To George F. Tibbitts to erect a frame garage, 18x20 feet, on McKinley avenue. The estimated cost is $200.

To Mrs. Leokadia Suplicki to add a veranda to the present frame house at 181 Cliff street. The addition will be 8x24 feet and the estimated cost is $40.

To Francis M. Toomey to erect a frame house on Stetson street for C. W. Thompson. The house which will be 28x30 feet will have a concrete foundation and cellar. The superstructure will be of frame construction with slate surfaced shingles on the roof. The interior will be in hardwood and plaster. The house will be of the semi-bungalow type with four rooms and bath. The estimated cost is $3,800.

To Edward Neiderman to erect a frame 2-story house on Western avenue in the Thamesville section of the city. The house will be 24x24 feet and will have six rooms and bath. The cellar will be of stone and the superstructure of frame construction. The interior will be in plaster and Arkansas pine while the exterior will be finished in clapboards and shingles. The estimated cost is $3,500.

To George W. Moore to alter the present frame garage on Chestnut street. The alterations will include new doors. The estimated cost is $100.

To Charles W. Burton to erect a house for himself in the rear of 607 Boswell avenue. The house will be 24x48 feet and two-stories high. The foundation will be of stone and the walls of cement blocks. The estimated cost is $6,000.

To Gelfand and Loskin to add a veranda to the present frame house at 43 Colt street for I. Gelfand. The estimated cost is $35.

To Saul Friedland to add a veranda to the present frame house on Pearl street. The veranda will be 6x18 feet. There will also be an outside stair case erected to the upper apartment. The estimated cost is $125.

To Frank Hertz to add a frame veranda, 8x20 feet, to his house on Colt street. The estimated cost is $175.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were 19 sales of real estate as compared to five sales for the corresponding week in 1927. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $36,200 and $20,200.

There were 13 sales of real estate in New London during the past week as compared to 20 sales for the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $55,360 and $146,338.

Connecticut Building.

Connecticut building activity took an upward trend during September as compared with August, half of the larger communities in the state recording gains in the volume of permits issued during the month, according to the monthly survey conducted by the Committee on Industrial Development of the New Haven railroad. The building permits issued in September, however, did not quite equal the volume of building in September, 1927, only seven of the 22 communities covered in the survey showing gains.

Increases over August totals were recorded in Bridgeport, Derby, Greenwich, Hamden, Hartford, Middletown, Naugatuck, Norwich, Torrington, West Haven and Waterbury. Hartford topped the list with permits valued at $1,866,465 for the month. As compared with their building figures of September, 1927, Derby, Middletown, Naugatuck, Norwalk, Norwich, West Haven and West Hartford showed substantial gains in building. The comparative figures for 1928 and 1927 as compiled by the railroad committee are as follows:

City	Sept. 1928	Sept. 1928
Bristol	$ 88,730	$ 127,644
Bridgeport	337,685	483,467
Danbury	112,295	167,160
Derby	18,575	8,000
Greenwich	514,455	620,600
Hamden	178,373	201,525
Hartford	1,866,465	3,449,402

New London

Favored by exceptionally good weather local contractors pushed all outdoor construction to the limit this week with consequence of practically all new work about the city gaining in its normal schedule.

That little unfavorable weather is anticipated for some weeks to come is indicated in the large amount of new work just being started at this time, there being about a score of new foundations just being started or finished.

In contrast to some years there does not seem to be any indications of a lull in the building trades in the next two months this year and most contractors have enough work to insure their being busy for the immediate future.

The H. Wales Lines company has been awarded the contract for an addition to the factory of the Gillette-Vibber company in Maple avenue. The new part of the building is to be used as a dipping room and for storage purposes. The company manufactures electrical supplies and fittings. The foundation for the new addition is now being excavated. The structure is to be 24 by 24 feet.

A new frame dwelling is to be built on the Riggs estate for Irving Lipton. The house will be 36 by 28 feet and will have an ell 7 by 15 feet. It will have eight rooms and a sun parlor. There will be a maid's room on the third floor.

The residence will have a hot water heating system, a fireplace, and other conveniences.

Work on the new nurses dormitory for the Lawrence and Memorial Associated hospitals, in Ocean avenue, is rapidly nearing completion with indications that it will be ready for occupancy within three weeks. The new structure, which was built by the H. Wales Lines company, is a handsome structure of brick and steel construction effectively set off with artificial stone trim. It will provide quarters for all of the Lawrence hospital nurses, replacing the frame dormitories now in use. The new building is four stories in height and has a large concrete basement.

Work has been completed on the construction of another new cottage built in Ocean avenue, opposite Gardiner avenue, for Silas Maxson, Jr. The new house is the third in that neighborhood to be completed for Mr Maxson. The new house is fashioned after the old Colonial type of architecture. It is finished with wide clapboards painted white. The white is nicely set off with the solid dark green blinds. The interior is finished with fine hardwood floorings and trim and contains six rooms and bath. Shrubbery has been set out and concrete walks completed.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

WELL-BALANCED RATION AIDS WINTER-LAYING HENS

A well-balanced egg-laying ration, according to Alfred R. Lee, poultry specialist in the United States Department of Agriculture, is a combination of feeds which furnish just the necessary amount of nutrients and accessory factors to produce the highest and most economical egg yields. This is what the poultryman strives for. In determining the make up of such a food, Mr. Lee says to remember the protein is the most important and most expensive of the ration. Animal protein is superior to vegetable protein in poultry feeding, but vegetable protein may be used economically in some sections where it is comparatively cheap, if it is supplemented with additional minerals and a small proportion of protein from animals. Best results are obtained from mash containing from 16 to 20 per cent of feeds high in animal protein.

For vitamin content of the ration yellow corn, green feed, direct sunlight, and cod-liver oil are especially useful. Minerals may be supplied by including limestone, oyster shell, ground bone and iodized salt. From 2 to 5 per cent of bone meal and 1 per cent of salt should be included in mashes.

It is difficult to overemphasize the value of milk in a poultry ration. The best known now available is that a well-balanced grain ration may be fed most effectively when ground and mixed as a mash.

"CAREFULNESS" AN IMPORTANT "INGREDIENT" IN CURING MEAT

In curing pork scrupulous care and cleanliness are fully as essential as the salt, sugar and saltpeter. K. F. Warner, meat specialist of the United States Department of Agriculture, elaborates this point.

"One hundred pounds of meat," he says, "can be cured with 3 pounds of salt or 12 pounds of salt and widely varying amounts of sugar and saltpeter, but unless carefulness is included, the resulting product will be neither economical nor palatable. The boys complain considerably nowadays about the fussy crankiness with which grandpa puts the meat in cure, but grandpa learned his lesson in the hard school of experience, and he knows that unless meat is put down with care, refind almost to the degree of crankiness, the result will be unsatisfactory."

Mr. Warner also calls attention to the fact that the home butcher should select the animals for slaughter with a view to the weight and quality of meat desired. Where lard and sausage are the products desired, very large and very fat hogs will serve, but when shoulders, hams, and loins are desired these will be in proportion to the weight of the animal. A trimmed ham will weigh about 1 per cent of the live weight of the hog, the bacon strip about 5 per cent. If one desires 10-pound hams the hogs should be butchered at about 140 or 150 pounds weight. If the family can make economical use of 20-pound hams the weight of the hog may run up to 300 pounds.

The backbone cut is appetizing but if the meat is to be canned it is much more convenient to split through the center of the backbone, which makes it comparatively easy to bone the loin muscles.

IF IT'S A POOR APPLE GRAFT ON A McINTOSH

New Hampshire fruit growers who have found mis-named and odd varieties of apples in their orchards are successfully grafting them over to one of the "New England Seven," a list of varieties recommended by New England horticulturists, according to H. A. Rollins, extension horticulturist of the University of New Hampshire. This list of proven and profitable varieties for New England includes, McIntosh, Baldwin, Gravenstein, Delicious, Northern Spy, Rhode Island Greening and Wealthy.

A. D. Rowe of Stratham, N. H., found in his six-year-old orchard, which he presumed were all McIntosh, 103 trees of worthless sorts. He grafted them all to McIntosh with the loss of but one limb in his whole orchard. John G. Christopher of Claremont topworked 98 Ben Davis, a low-quality, low-priced and disease-susceptible variety over to the luscious and popular McIntosh. His trees were good-sized, ten-year-old trees, which is the upper-age limit, according to Mr. Rollins for completely satisfactory work.

Miles S. Watson of Newington, nurseryman, enjoys grafting as a hobby. During this season he grafted for his neighbors more than 550 trees in McIntosh and used 2184 scions. Trees under six years of age may be completely worked over in one year; trees between six and ten usually require two years; and trees over ten years of age should be divided in third sections and the grafting should be spread over several years, says Mr. Rollins.

CONNECTICUT CROP PRODUCTION LARGER THAN LAST YEAR

Production of the more important crops in Connecticut is slightly larger than last year but with the exception of pears and hay is below average. Potatoes are almost an average crop with a production of 2,112,000 bushels. In 1927 1,635,000 bushels were harvested while the average 1923-27 is 2,260,000 bushels. Excessive rainfall during the growing season effected yields adversely and caused some soft rot in instances. For New England potato production is estimated at 46,508,000 bushels compared with 46,213,000 bushels predicted last month, 45,598,000 bushels harvested last year and 47,240,000 bushels the 1923-27 average.

The Connecticut commercial apple crop is now forecast at 228,000 barrels compared with 180,000 barrels harvested last year and 263,000 barrels the five year average. Of the six New England states, Connecticut shows the best apple prospects. All varieties reported except Wealthy and McIntosh show prospects better than last year but generally below those of two years ago. The commercial crop for New England as a whole is expected to total 1,470,000 barrels or about six per cent below that predicted a month ago. This compares with 1,635,000 barrels harvested in 1927 and 1,922,000 barrels the 1923-27 average. Peaches in Connecticut estimated at 189,000 bushels are a better than average crop while pears are not quite so good.

Oats in Connecticut are an average crop. The yield is estimated at 29.0 bushels per acre and production at 416,000 bushels. The 8,933,000 bushels of oats now estimated for New England is slightly below both the 1927 crop and the average. Connecticut corn condition was rated at 87 per cent, on October 1 compared with 76 per cent, last year and 88 per cent, the ten year average; it forecasts a production slightly below average.

A bumper crop of hay is now estimated for Connecticut; production totals 689,000 tons compared with 525,000 tons harvested last year and 457,000 tons the 1923-27 average crop. Due to the favorable growing season, hay made good yields, the average for the state being rated at 1.80 tons per acre. For New England tame hay production is estimated at 5,314,000 tons compared with 4,785,000 tons last year and 4,589,000 tons the five year average. Connecticut pastures continue in excellent condition—95 per cent.

With digging in progress in all late potato states, preliminary reports on expected yields largely confirm earlier forecasts of a yield above 120 bushels. The total United States crop is estimated at 463,723,000 bushels compared with 406,964,000 bushels harvested last year and 384,556,000 bushels the 1923-1926 average. Although some fields are still green, the yield will now depend largely on the extent to which growers gather the seconds and culls. The apple crop is developing about as expected, the prospects have declined slightly in the northeast and have improved a little in Washington. The commercial crop is now forecast at 33,483,000 barrels compared with 25,900,000 barrels harvested last year and 32,442,000 barrels the average. There is about an average supply of apples in the country as a whole and the crop is evenly distributed. The total crop is estimated at 177,560,000 bushels.

Hints For the Farm.

The same day that seed corn is gathered the husked ears should be put in a dry place where there is free circulation of air and the ears do not touch each other. The vitality of seed often is reduced by leaving the corn in a sack or pile even for a day after gathering.

When a hog is slaughtered with a view of preserving the meat, it is better to split the carcass through the center of the backbone instead of on each side as is usually done. This "center split," although eliminating the appetising "backbone," presents the two loin muscles so that they can be boned out readily and economically for canning.

Great quantities of unpalatable roughages will be eaten by cattle if diluted molasses is added to them. Molasses supplies carbohydrates and improves the palatability of rations which otherwise are not particularly relished by cattle.

Many farmers within the southern pine range who own land that is too poor or steep for cultivation and sometimes badly washed and eroded could advantageously raise pine seedlings to reforest it. Fresh seed is essential and a satisfactory way to obtain it is in the fall from the cones or from the butts of healthy, thrifty trees. The seed should be sown in nursery beds and the young seedlings particularly shaded during their first summer. Southern pine seedlings often can be planted in the field with success when two years old but another year in a transplant bed will strengthen their root systems and improve their chances.

INDUSTRIAL AND SPECIALTIES
FEATURES OF A BULLISH MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 18—(AP)—Violent advances in the high priced industrials and specialties, several of which recorded extreme gains of 10 to 36 points, kept bullish enthusiasm at a high pitch in today's stock market. Orders poured into the market in such volume that the ticker was 50 minutes late in recording the final quotation. The day's sales of 4,502,100 shares have been exceeded only about a dozen times this year.

Wall street apparently was not disturbed at the weekly federal reserve report on brokers' loans, issued after the close of the market, which showed an increase of $74,507,000, bringing the total to another new high record at $4,664,390,000. This compares with a total of $3,434,107,000 a year ago. Banks called upwards of $10,000,000 in loans but call money renewed at 7 per cent., as against 7 1-2 yesterday, and then dropped to 6 1-2, with a plentiful supply of funds available.

The rise in the high priced issues, many of which touched new high records, was used as a screen for distribution of a number of the low and medium priced shares. New York Tractions broke sharply on selling inspired by the belief that the United States supreme court would rule against the Interboro's plan for a 7 cent fare. Net declines of 1 to 5 points also were scattered among a wide variety of other issues.

Recapitalization and dividend rumors continued to provide the ground work for the advance in several of the stocks selling above $200 a share. The prospect of receiving 2 to 6 shares for each one now held, coupled with the possibility of higher dividends, had a choice speculative appeal to a small army of traders scattered throughout the country.

Powerful "bull" pools, meeting relatively little resistance from "bear" traders, continued to whirl un their favorites to the accompaniment of all sorts of merger and dividend rumors.

Montgomery-Ward, which sold as low as 117 earlier in the year, skyrocketed 31 1-4 points to a new high record at 339 and then fell back to 331 on realizing. Adams Express soared 36 points to 395 on a small turn-over and then fell back to 388. Dupont soared 24 points and lost 7. Allied Chemical, American Express, Kansas City Southern, Keith-Albee-Orpheum preferred and Warren Pipe & Foundry closed 6 to 11 points higher, all setting new high prices.

International Nickel, which is reported to be considering a stock split-up and a merger with Monds Nickel, ran up 9 1-2 points to a new top at 176 and then lost all but a fraction of its gain. Rossio Insurance jumped 15 1-4 points, American International 8 and Texas & Pacific 7, but they did not reach their previously established 1-27 highs.

General Motors moved up 4 points to a new top at 223 1-2 on a turnover of more than 200,000 shares but lost half its gain. Nearly 250,000 shares of Studebaker changed hands, the stock closing 3 1-8 points higher at 85 3-8 after having duplicated the year's high of 85 3-4. Packard, Nash, Graham-Paige and Chrysler, lost ground.

Oil shares quieted down somewhat after their spirited advance earlier in the week but Wall street is expecting formal announcement within a day or two of the results of the conference of oil executive seeking an agreement for a world wide curtailment of crude oil production. Only a few rails participated in the up-swing.

Commodity markets were reactionary. Wheat futures dropped a fraction of a cent a bushel and cotton dropped 75 cents to $1.50 a bale. Coffee and sugar quotations showed an easier undertone.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Except for a jump of 16 points in Japanese yen to 45.96 cents, there were no changes of consequence in the foreign exchange market. Sterling cables held steady around $4.85 1-32.

WESTERLY

CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR AT DEMOCRATIC RALLY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Oct. 18—At the democratic rally, under the auspices of the Smith-Robinson club of Westerly, held Thursday evening in Castagna-Morrone hall, the principal speaker was Alberic A. Archambault, democratic candidate for governor. It was the opening of Mr. Archambault's campaign speaking tour, and the officers of the Westerly Smith-Robinson club, which sponsored the rally, made arrangements for a large number of voters to hear him.

Another speaker was John P. Hartigan, democratic candidate for attorney-general, well known by many Westerly people.

Mrs. Jane Newton of the Democratic National Speakers' bureau, also addressed the meeting.

George A. Dolan, president of the Westerly Smith-Robinson club, presided at the rally and a short address was also made by Dr. John M. O'Connell, candidate for representative from the first Westerly district.

Washington County circle of the King's Daughters were guests Wednesday afternoon of the King's Daughters of Pawcatuck Congregational church. There were six circles present from Wakefield, Peace Dale and Westerly. Lunch was held at 12 o'clock and in the afternoon Mrs. Harry Thurlow, state president, told of attending the International convention held in Ottawa, Canada. Mrs. Marguarette Byrom gave a solo. Mrs. Alexander Ferguson of Westerly was chosen president; Miss A. C. Bradley, vice-president; Mrs. John Opie, secretary; Mrs Harriet K. Carpenter, treasurer; Mrs. Harry H. Coleman, Mrs. O. E. Stedman, Miss Margaret Connoley and Mrs. J. W. Forbes, members of the executive committee.

Wednesday evening marked the beginning of a series of Loyalty services at the First Baptist church, Rev. Byron U. Hatfield, pastor, which will be concluded Sunday. The service opened at 7.30 o'clock with a short devotional period. Informal speaking by officers of the various church societies and men of the congregation followed. A roll call showed nearly 100 per cent attendance. Refreshments were served during the evening. The program closed with a short entertainment.

A festival day in Providence will be observed next Sunday when over 100 members of Societa Cittadini Calabro America in Westerly are to go to Providence, where they will christen the banner for the Calabro society in that city. The exercises will take place in the hall of the Sons of Italy on Broadway. Special buses carrying the Westerly members will leave the New Haven railroad station at 8 o'clock.

Two young men, late Wednesday afternoon, made a forced landing from a monoplane near Hope Valley and proceeded by automobile to Westerly, where they were just in time to take the Gilt Edge express, westbound to New York. They reported making the trip that afternoon from New York to Boston in one hour and 35 minutes. It was between 3 and 4 p. m. when their monoplane, eastbound, flying at a low altitude, passed over Westerly. On their return trip rolling fog banks were encountered near Hope Valley and the plane slowly circled until a desirable landing field was found and the plane was brought down without mishap. The men announced that they would return later and take their plane away.

FONTANA EXPECTS TO DINE WITH GOVERNOR SMITH

WESTERLY, Oct. 18—Thomas L. Fontana is a Westerly vacation visitor in New York. During his stay he anticipates being one of 17 to take dinner in a small anniversary party with Alfred E. Smith, presidential nominee on the democratic national ticket. In the party will be some leading Long Island democratic residents who are summer visitors to the beaches in Westerly.

Seventh-day Baptists of Westerly and surrounding towns are making plans for the annual pilgrimage to the First Seventh-day Baptist church in Newport R. I. The building, used many years ago as a house of worship, is now a library, and it is in this library that the services are to be held. The preacher will be Rev. C. L. Hill of Farina, Ill. The Young People's society meeting in the afternoon will be led by Morton Swinney of Watertford, Conn.

Rev. Luther G. Coburn, pastor of Pawcatuck Congregational church, and the delegates, Mrs. James Fiddes and Mrs. John Rowe, have returned from Bridgeport, where they attended the 119th annual meeting of the American Board of Foreign Missions, Oct. 16-18.

John Raleigh has left Westerly for New Rochelle, N. Y., to enter the employ of the Dexter Folder Machinery company as a machinist.

This (Friday) evening, Church Family night will be observed by the members of Grace Methodist church, the second in the church year. There will be four periods, recreation, study, devotion and refreshment.

Henry L. Burdick is a week-end visitor in Boston.

Mr and Mrs. Frederick P. Wilcox were in Providence Thursday.

Reuben D. Austin will begin a week's vacation the coming week from his railroad duties as day ticket clerk.

Louis J. Rossi left Westerly Wednesday evening for New York and will sail Saturday to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Rossi, in Italy.

Hiram A. Edmond was in Providence Thursday.

Irving Silverstein returned Wednesday to his studies in Dean academy in Massachusetts after a brief stay with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Silverstein.

Russell Frances, in the employ of the Westerly branch of the American Railway Express company, is to work evenings for a taxi service in Westerly and at Watch Hill.

William B. Potter of Pawcatuck is having his annual vacation from duties as driver for the C. B. Cottrell & Sons company.

LeRoy Shea has returned to Norwich from a visit with Westerly friends.

Isaac Frank Partelo, who died Thursday in Ashaway, belonged to Pawcatuck lodge, No. 90, A. F. and A. M., of Pawcatuck, having become a member more than 30 years ago.

George O. Murphey of Pawcatuck was a business visitor in Boston Thursday.

At the democratic rally announcement was made it may be possible that Governor Smith's train may make a stop at Westerly on Oct. 25, the day he is to speak at Providence. Effort is being made to bring this about.

WATER MOCCASIN WATCHED SWIMMING ON CANAL

A water moccasin was watched swimming on the water of the canal recently by many of the villagers, an uncommon sight.

E Wolff has returned to his home in Brooklyn, N. Y., after a week's stay here with Mr. and Mrs. William Kempton. He was accompanied by his son-in-law, Sherman Rogers, of Hartford, who has been spending his vacation here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Rogers.

Mr. and Mrs. Felix Garceau have returned from a week's stay with friends in Holyoke.

Mrs. F. H Tracy spent Sunday with relatives at Narragansett Pier.

Mr. and Mrs. John Walsh and daughter, Bernadine, and Mrs. Myers of Hartford were recent guests of Mrs. F. H. Tracy.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bean and children, Loretta and Lucile, of Pittsfield, Mass., were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dumas.

Mrs. Charles Harvey has returned to her home in the village, having made rapid progress following a serious surgical operation in a Brookline sanatorium.

Charles Harvey and daughters, Marjorie and Dorothy, were recent visitors in Boston.

Mrs. Charles Congdon has returned to Stafford Springs, following a few days' stay with relatives here.

Mrs. Adolph Fleettner of Providence is spending a few days here with her daughter, Mrs. R. V. Congdon.

IN MEMORIAM BROCHURE BY EVELYN COUCHMAN

Although written to memorialize her husband, a dainty white parchment brochure with symbolic red cross, just issued by Mrs. Evelyn Couchman, of Norwich Town, is a collection of verses which have sentiment and form appealing to all those in sorrow.

It is inscribed, "To my Beloved." The poems here collected are entitled "A Cross of Flame," "Sonnet," "De Profundis," "Now You Have Passed," "Greater Far," "I Shall Return," "Fidele," "Music," "Requiescat in Pace" and "Expecto Resurrectionem." Each breathes the spirit of affection which, even from the depths of sorrow and loneliness, has faith to be assured that death is not all—merely the entering into a higher and fuller life.

Since going from Norwich Town Mrs. Couchman has been visiting with relatives at "The Home Farm," Moor Park, Rickmansworth, Herts, England. Owing to ill health she is spending the winter in the South of France, planning to study systematically and to take up a serious literary career. During the past month she has been at Mentone.

Last year Mrs. Couchman won much attention to her poems gathered under the title of "Songs of the French Riviera." The Connecticut Anthology issued recently reprints some graceful verses from her pen.

NEW ROUTE TO SUMMIT OF MOUNT HOOD FOUND

PARKDALE, Ore. (AP)—Mark Weygandt, veteran guide, has discovered a new route, the third known, to the summit of Oregon's famed snow peak, Mount Hood. The route, which has been named "Sunshine trail," leads across the Elliott glacier and then zigzags across snow fields on the north and northwest sides of the peak. The sun strikes it virtually all day long and another feature of the new trail is that life lines or secured ropes are not necessary, as on both other routes.

Weygandt is credited with having climbed the moutain 570 times having guided one party of 247 to the top.

His first party over the new trail included a woman, Mrs. Marion Branson of San Francisco.

AUTO SCORES KNOCKOUT OVER INFURIATED BULL

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., Oct. —(AP)—The automobile has won the championship of the road over hostile bulls—in one case at least.

Standing in the middle of a country road, a bull compelled an autoist to halt. When the driver sounded the horn as a polite request that the bull step aside, the animal became angry and charged the car.

The driver fled to safety, but the bull charged a second time and knocked itself unconscious. The car was damaged but not seriously.

River Threatens Airport

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP)—A huge mat of willows, 4,000 by 300 feet, is being woven by the United States engineering department to save Rosecrans air field from toppling into the Missouri river. The river is eroding the hill on which the field is situated.

NEW LONDON COMMERCE CHAMBER WANTS ZEPPELIN TO FLY OVER CITY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 18—P. LeRoy Harwood, president of the local chamber of commerce, has issued an invitation to the crew of the Graf Zeppelin to fly over this city, when the continental flight of the huge craft is started. Owing to the fact that this is the port at which the first trans-Atlantic submarine crossing was marked, the Deutchland, a German craft, it is felt that the invitation will be accepted. President Harwood also wrote to the commander of the Shenandoah, who married Miss Marie Scroggie of this city, importuning him to use his influence in having the huge air liner make the visit here.

The mass meeting on the World Mission of Christianity, which opened this morning in the Methodist Episcopal church attracted over 150 ministers and delegates. The morning session was taken up with addresses on important subjects. At noon a luncheon was served by Union circle of the church. The afternoon session was chiefly devoted to the discussion of missionary work in China. Tonight a series of talks on Christian education took place. The affair is being held jointly with the annual fall meeting of the Norwich District Ministers' association.

Patients dismissed today from Home Memorial hospital were Adrian C. Hewitt of Groton and William Gulley of 89 Harrison street.

The first meeting of the present scholastic year of the German's club of Connecticut college was held last evening in Dr. J. Lawrence Erb's room. The evening was spent in reading a full report of the activities of the past year and in discussing plans for the coming season.

The luncheon of the Women's Republican club, to be held at the Hotel Mohican Thursday October 25, bids fair to be most successful. So far more than seventy-five from this city have made reservations. If present plans materialize, Governor John H. Trumbull will be the principal speaker.

KEEP COL. TYLER'S NAME IS LECION'S URGENT REQUEST

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 18—At a meeting of John Coleman Prince post, American Legion, held last night in the post rooms, a resolution was adopted opposing the change of the name of Tyler square to Columbus square. It was stated that such an action would be an affront to the name of Colonel Augustine C. Tyler, Spanish war veteran and an officer of the regular army. The local post has just sent a shipment of clothes to a unit of the organization in Florida, to be used for the benefit of hurricane sufferers.

Local Catholic citizens are interested in the fact that a study club with 40 members held its first session of the winter under the direction of the Rev. Nicholas Caron of Jewett City at the headquarters of the diocesan bureau of social service in Jay street this week. The club is beginning the study of the liturgy of the Catholic church but because of the magnitude of the subject will consider only the liturgy of the mass, sacraments and sacramentals. General discussion followed the lecture by Rev. Father Caron. Questions will be sent in to the bureau during the week for discussion and will be answered at the Monday night classes.

Miss Mary F. O'Connell of Boston, formerly of this city, entered the novitiate of the Foreign Mission Sisters of St. Dominic at Maryknoll, on the Hudson last week. Miss O'Connell is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John P. O'Connell of Valencia Island, county Kerry, Ireland. She is a sister of Michael D. O'Connell of Huntington street and a niece of Miss Josephine O'Connell of Bulkeley place. She came to this city from Ireland in November, 1924, but moved to Boston with her sister in 1926. Her sister, Miss Josephine O'Connell, and James Kenney of Boston and Miss Mary Lavin accompanied Miss O'Connell on the trip to Maryknoll.

Delegates of Joynt assembly, Catholic Ladies of Columbus, have returned after attending the state convention at South Manchester. Those from here who went were Mrs. C. H. Cables, Mrs. James Dray, Mrs. James McQuillan, Mrs. Frank Spellman, Mrs. Bridget Saunders, Mrs. Mary Herlihy and Mrs. Anna Henley. Next year's convention will be held in Norwich.

WEDDING

Feeney-Lavelle

At 9 o'clock at St. Joseph's church, yesterday morning Miss Anna M. Lavelle of Montauk avenue became the bride of Michael J. Feeney of Niantic. Rev. William C. Fitzsimons solemnized the marriage and sang the nuptial mass. The bride was attired in white georgette, wore a picture hat to match and carried white carnations. Miss Catherine Lavelle, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, in white georgette with hat to match and carried roses. Edward T. Feeney, a brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the newly furnished home of Mr. and Mrs. Feeney on Lake avenue, Niantic. Mr. and Mrs. Feeney will be at home to friends by October 25 following a wedding trip to New York and Atlantic City. Before her marriage, the bride was in the office of Attorney Philip Z. Hankey. Mr. Feeney is employed at Seaside sanatorium.

A course of conferences and lectures has been planned by the faculty of Connecticut college for members of the graduating class who are planning a career of teaching. The first in the series is to be held on the evening of November 8th in the Knowlton Salon, when Franklin E. Pierce, supervisor of secondary education of the state, will deliver an address on the Inexperienced Teacher.

At a recent meeting of St. James' branch of the Girls' Friendly society, supper was served in the parish house by Sarah Jordan, Lillian Meyers and Mrs. Pearl Cunningham.

Members of the New London League of Women Voters at a meeting yesterday afternoon at headquarters in the Plant building, heard reports that the activity and progress of the organization has been greater during the past two months than in any period since its founding.

Students of Connecticut college will be addressed Saturday afternoon by Thomas J. Abernethy, World war ace. The affair will form a portion of the program arranged for the entertainment of delegates to the Women's Intercollegiate News conference.

Mrs. Harold W. Cruise of 40 Beckwith street, entertained last evening at a bridge party. Prize winners were Miss Ruth Harris, Mrs. Leonard Sheffelot and Miss Mary Maynard.

The annual inspection of Ann Rogers Lyon tent, Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil war, will be held tomorrow night in Union lodge rooms. The inspection will be made by Mrs. Mary Yale of Bridgeport. The department president Mrs. Jennie Newbury of Norwich is expected to be present.

More than 100 persons were present at a turkey dinner served last night by the Faire Harbour club to members of the Harbour club, at the rooms of the latter, Montauk avenue, by Mrs. John F. Noyes, Mrs. Frank Rogers, Mrs. Alfred Ligourie, Mrs. John P. Saunders, Mrs. C. Graham Chapin, Mrs. Edwin C. Ford, Mrs. Aborn F. Smith, Mrs. E. A. Harrison, Mrs. J. H. Redmond, Mrs. Kenneth C. Johnson and Mrs. William W. Smith. After dinner bridge was played and the prizes went to Mrs. Aborn Smith and Dr. Robert A. Chandler.

Members of the Martha Winthrop club held a bridge party last night with three tables in play. Winners of prizes were Mrs. Burton T. Gates and Mrs. Fred A. Parker.

TAX COLLECTOR ORDERS FOUR MORE REAL ESTATE SALES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 18—Four more pieces of real estate were ordered sold today at public auction by Tax Collector Hibbard N. Alexander because taxes due on the property, and some of the liens dating back several years, have not been paid. Tax Collector Alexander has ordered the sale of the residence of Margaret A. Dolan, Blackhall street, sold Dec. 21 at 2 p. m. It is claimed that Mrs. Dolan owes $397.67, which amount represents taxes on the house for the years, 1921, 1924, 1925, 1926 and 1927. The property of John J. Hogan, Cutler street, is ordered sold Dec. 22, at 10 a. m. The claim is made that taxes for the levies of 1926 and 1927, amounting to $201.83, have not been paid. The property of Mrs. Amelia T. Kuhns, Avery court, is ordered sold Dec. 22 at 2 p. m. Mrs. Kuhn owes taxes in the sum of $337.68 and for the levies of 1924, 1925, 1926 and 1927. Property owned by Mrs. Josephine Murphy, Montauk avenue, is ordered sold Dec. 21 at 4 p. m. Mrs. Murphy owes $334.91, which represents the aggregate tax of the levies of 1926 and 1927.

William V. O'Hara, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael F. O'Hara, of Waller street, has entered the employ of the Connecticut Power company.

The funeral of Mary C., widow of Clark S. Rogers, of Waterford, was held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Seventh Day Baptist church, Waterford, the services being conducted by Rev. Carroll Hill. The bearers were Isaac Gardner, Albert Brooks, Charles Gardner, Bert Brooks, Benjamin Neff and Herbert Maxson. Burial was in Great Neck cemetery, Waterford.

The funeral of Annie G., widow of William Aywood, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at her residence, Montville, and was attended by a large gathering of mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First church of Christ, this city. The bearers were Wilson Dolbeare, George H. Bradford, Ambrose Sullivan and Henry Nelson. Burial was in Comstock cemetery, Montville.

Joseph E. McCain, employed as driver of a truck owned by Jesse Beruman, 18 Arborton road, Jamaica Plains, Mass., made complaint to the police this morning that boxes of poultry he had left at the entrances of markets on Main and Bank streets earlier in the day and prior to the markets being opened for business had been stolen. McCain also reported that while driving on Bank street the truck collided with a cable box and damaged it.

Patrolman George Laboue reported at police headquarters this morning that a Ford automobile had been parked on land at the corner of Main and Douglass streets for more than a week and that youths were removing such parts from the car as it was possible for them to do. The car carries Connecticut markers, L-3561.

Acting Sergeant William Graham was unable to perform police duty today being ill at his home, Williams street.

Wilfred J. Peltier, 51 Eastern avenue, was in the police court this morning on a charge of reckless driving and was fined $25 and costs. Peltier was driving along the approach to the west end of the Thames river highway bridge last night at a time State Police Officer John Smith was also driving. Peltier did not give Smith proper room to pass, which act caused Smith to drive his car off the highway. The officer followed Peltier and arrested him.

Joseph Cozzalino, 246 Canal street, Westerly, was charged with violation of the state motor vehicle law in driving without a license and passing a traffic signal set at danger. He failed to present himself in court and his bond of $20 was declared forfeited. Cozzalino was arrested on Bank street yesterday afternoon by Traffic Officer Thomas Cavanaugh.

Carl Clausen, United States Coast Guard, state pier, charged with driving without a license and without having registration, was fined $10 and costs. Clausen was arrested by State Police Officer William Viockay.

Three cases of intoxication were also presented, the men being arrested on Sparyard street last night by Patrolman Dennis Murphy where they were conducting a drinking orgy. Two of them were given suspensions of judgment and the other, a frequent offender of the law, was fined $10 and costs.

Cornelius D Twomey has sold a building lot on Warren street to William D. Tracey.

The estate of Margaret Fitzmaurice, Citizens' and Merchants' National bank, Waterbury, guardian, has sold an undivided one-half interest in a cottage on Bentley avenue, Ocean beach, to Gertrude C. S. Grout. Mrs. Grout has also acquired the other two-thirds interest in the property from Loretta F. Carroll and Alma J. Jackson, both of Waterbury.

Samuel Chertoff has sold a building lot on Thames street to Edward I. Raymond.

Kate A. Newcomb has sold an undivided one-half interest in a house and lot on Oneco avenue to Alfred W. and Mary E. Roland. Mrs. Newcomb, as administratrix of the estate of Ernest L. Newcomb has also sold the remaining two-thirds interest in the property to Mr. and Mrs. Roland.

COAST GUARDSMAN AT SEA, WIFE ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 18—Mrs. Anna Rocque, about 38, residing at 10 Montauk avenue the wife of a chief petty officer stationed at the United States coast guard, is a patient at Home Memorial hospital tonight as a result of attempting self-destruction by swallowing a quantity of iodine. Her condition is serious for her throat, as well as the internal organs were badly burned by the liquid poison. The young woman's husband is at sea and occupants of the apartment building could not, or would not assign any reason for the woman's attempted suicide. Mrs Rocque made the attempt upon her life about 5 o'clock, for at that hour a woman occupant of the apartment went to Bank street and Montauk avenue and reported to Traffic Officer Thomas Cavanaugh that Mrs. Rocque had attempted to kill herself. The officer, on reaching the building found Mrs. Rocque unconscious. The officer had Dr. Charles Satti summoned and on the arrival of the physician emergency treatment was given and Mrs. Rocque was then taken to the hospital. At the institution tonight it was said that Mrs. Rocque's condition was serious, although she had regained consciousness, but was barely able to talk.

OBITUARY

Miss Ella C. Tate

Miss Ella C. Tate, a former resident of New London, died today at her home in Brooklyn, N. Y., in which city she had resided about 20 years. She was the daughter of the late William B. and Ellen Comstock Tate and is survived by a nephew, Robert L. Tate, 45 Federal street, this city, and by a sister, Miss Annie Tate, of Brooklyn. Miss Ttate was born in New London and was a member of the First Church of Christ.

Mrs. Elizabeth Rutgers Van Rensselaer Hull, widow of George L. Hull, died yesterday while visiting at the residence of her sister, Miss Margaret Van Rensselaer, in Old Lyme.

Warm weather has so affected business conditions in this city that merchants state sales have never been at such a low ebb since the depression shortly after the Easter holidays.

Mr. Joyce, Bank street, reported to the police this evening that his son's bicycle had been stolen.

Francis B Steele, Old Saybrook, was arrested this afternoon by Traffic Officer Dennis Cavanaugh, charged with violation of the traffic laws in passing an automatic signal at Bank and Howard streets when the signal was indicating danger and displaying a red light. He will be in the police court tomorrow morning.

SHAUGHNESSY CASE FOR TRIAL IN SUPERIOR COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 18—J. K. Shaughnessy, former manager of the Branford Farms, Eastern Point, was tried this morning in police court before Judge S. Victor Prince on a charge of embezzlement on three counts of misappropriation of funds totaling $851.50 from the Griswold company, owners of the Branford Farms.

He was arrested Oct. 11 on his farm at Pomfret, to which he moved after severing his relations with the Griswold company, charged with five counts with converting to his own use a total of $985.78. Two of the counts were later stricken off.

At the trial the defendant was represented by former Congressman Edwin W. Higgins of Norwich. The state was represented by Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin. Evidence on both sides was argued in detail. The trial started this morning and after adjournment for lunch, court reconvened for the afternoon session. However, the evidence proved so contradictory that the case was continued to the next session of the superior court for New London county. Shaughnessy was released on a bond of $1,750, furnished by Charles J. Ducy.

Orders have been issued to all patrolmen to arrest any driver who does not heed the lights of the automatic traffic regulators. Little difficulty however, is expected by the traffic officers as so far motorists passing through the streets where the signs have been installed have, for the most part, shown every inclination to obey the warnings.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Pontiac Registrations Lead Sixes

Continuing the record-shattering pace it has maintained since its introduction, the Pontiac Six for the three-month period ended July 31, led all six-cylinder cars in new car registrations in the United States, according to an announcement made here today by W. R. Tracy, vice-president in charge of sales of the Oakland Motor Car company.

This relative standing, based on the most recent compilations received by Mr. Tracy from R. L. Polk & company, credits the Pontiac Six with a total of 61 880 registrations during the three-month period—more than 1,000 cars in excess of its closest competitor, and nearly 2,000 units ahead for the single month of July.

This record is regarded as particularly outstanding because the Pontiac Six was first offered to the public less than 30 months before it attained first position in registration of all makes of six-cylinder cars.

Almost as remarkable as its gain over competitive cars is the increase in Pontiac sales this year over previous years. In May, registrations were 21,995 units as against 13,238 in May of 1927 and 5,908 in 1926. A similar increase was registered during June and July.

Registrations for the three-month period ended in July, in comparison with previous quarters, also reveal in graphic fashion how the Pontiac Six forged to leadership in its field. While registrations for May June and July of this year totaled 61,000 units, in the same quarter last year, the total was 38,000 cars and in 1926, 17,000 Pontiac Sixes.

Broadway Theatre

"The Lion and the Mouse," as the older generation will remember, was one of the amazing stage successes. Its original run was inaugurated by a man who hadn't a nickel to call his own. Before the end of the New York run, he owned the theatre in which the play was given. Its road popularity was quite as phenomenal.

Now comes a screen revival—not an ordinary revival, but an extended run production on which Warner Bros. have evidently spent not only much money, but much time in staging, research and choice of people.

No actor on the stage today could play "Ready Money" Ryder, lion of the industrial world, with such merciless authority as Lionel Barrymore, remembered for his characterizations in "The Jest," "Peter Ibbetson" and many other hits of stage and screen.

And if all screenland holds a more ingratiating small "mouse" than Miss McAvoy, the writer is not aware of the fact. Then there is Alec Francis, grand old man of the movies, and the manly charm of young Buster Collier. Jack Ackroyd, who was Alf in "The Better 'Ole" bobs in and out of the thrilling play, and Lloyd Bacon has out-classed even himself in direction.

The story is a rugged one, based on human relations which will be as true centuries from now as today. Ryder, the outstanding genius of the world of business, ruthlessly ruins an old judge, who has made a decision inimical to his interests. The judge's daughter, a sculptress, meets Ryder's ne'er-do-well son while abroad. He follows her back to America, where she discovers her father's plight and at once plans to set it right. This she does, in ways so devious, amusing and clever, that she wins the lion over to the point of his exonerating her father and presenting her with his son. "The Lion and the Mouse" is powerful drama, magnificently presented. And lest we forget, is presented with a master cast, all in Talking dialogue in addition to a beautiful musical score synchronized in a perfect manner by the Marvelous Vitaphone. An interesting and entertaining program of Vitaphone Vaudeville as well as the wonderful Movietone News Reel, which you hear and see, is also part of the entertainment offered.

Palace Theatre

Spectacular backgrounds, mass movements of whites and Indians, struggles between trappers and the red men, with Fred Thompson and his white horse, Silver King, at their best, combine to make "Kit Carson" one of the outstanding pictures of the season. Carson's life was a series of thrills and Mr. Thompson has skillfully chosen many of them in building up a remarkably dramatic story for his Paramount special which opened last night at the Palace theatre.

Two pleasing love stories are threaded into the drama—one with a pretty Indian girl, and the other with a Spanish woman. This latter role is played by Nora Lane, who first elaped into prominence in "Jesse James," and later added to her laurels in "The Pioneer Scout." The Indian girl, a newcomer, is Dorothy Janis.

Old William Courtright, who portrays his now famous lovable character, takes care of the sombre moments of the film. And Raymond Turner as "Smoky" furnishes plenty of comedy relief. Raoul Paoli as the French-Canadian trapper and rival of Kit Carso does an admirable piece of work.

The film version of the two romantic episodes in the life of this country's famous Indian scout and military leader is authentically done, the intensive research work undergone by Mr. Thomeson in setting it to the screen, being manifested realistically. It compares favorably with any of the big western specials produced by any film company in recent years. It's a Paramount picture.

A Passing Fad

In the evolution of radio receiving as in every other art, progress is not absolutely steady — departures are made in various directions in the progress of growth. Some of these innovation prove of practical value and they become established practices; others prove of only passing interest, or novelty, and when the fad for them wears out they are forgotten.

One trend in radio receivers, especially in the lower price classes, at the present time, is toward highly colored cabinets. Of course, the vogue for color in furniture has been marked for some time past. It must be remembered, however, that the artistic application of color to home furnishing is quite a complex matter. Unless a person has artistic sensibility and training his various articles of highly colored furniture are liable to clash rather than harmonize. Also, while a brilliantly designed article of furniture may have a high appeal for a time, due to its very novelty, it is liable on that account to become tiresome after living with it for a great length of time.

The telephone is a common article which has been subjected to artistic treatment at times. There are still a number of people who wish to refine the appearance of their telephone by inclosing it in more or less ingenuous objects of art, by concealing its essential outlines, or by painting it in plain or fancy designs. However, in the majority of even the most refined homes, this article remains a plain or unadorned black instrument. With radio receivers, also, it seems assured that the color fad will pass and that most receivers, even those of the highest class, will be of inconspicuous but nevertheless attractive brown wood or metal.—By Ray H. Manson, chief engineer, Stromberg-Carlson Tel. Mfg. Co.

The sight of hundreds of beautiful magpies along the Nevada highway while few are seen in the interior, is one of the puzzles of motoring across the Nevada wastelands or through such a city as Elko. A curious motorist investigated and learned that the dazzling blackbirds, spotted with patches of white feathers, lined the highways waiting for dinner. Speeding motor cars kill hundreds of the desert jack-rabbits and nothing tastes so good to a hungry magpie as fresh rabbit. So they line the highways.

Three years ago Mr. Morton, with the same animals, left Maine for the south, going in the same manner and consuming the same length of time to get there.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

ARLY SHOPPES TO OPEN IN NORWICH

Interviewed by a reporter of the Bulletin and Record Mr. Sol J. Lupoff, treasurer of the Arly Shoppe Inc., large chain organization bringing to Norwich Fifth avenue values at Main street prices, stated that his organization had acquired the former location of the Alling Rubber Co. at 191 Main street, Norwich and that having completed extensive alterations would open another Arly Shoppe Saturday morning, October 20.

Mr. Lupoff, who is a specialist in the buying of ladies apparel, when questioned about conditions emphatically emphasized that due to exceptionally warm weather for this time of the year, New York and Boston manufacturers have found themselves seriously swamped with merchandise. Their need for money has enabled the Arly organization to make some exceptionally good purchases, due to their tremendous outlets in different cities.

As a parting word he said that the wise shopper should purchase her fall and winter apparel now while the weather is against the manufacturer and reap the benefit of his loss.

GREENEVILLE

A surprise party was held recently at the home of Mrs. George Wills of East Main street, in honor of Miss Mae Riley of Twelfth street, who is soon to become the bride of Edward Beasley of New York. The house was prettily decorated in Halloween colors and during the evening bridge whist was played. The prizes were awarded to Mrs. Andrew White and Miss Riley, who scored the highest. A dainty buffet luncheon was served by Miss Grace Walz and Miss Deneault and at the close of the evening Miss Riley was presented a beautiful bridge lamp by those present. They included Mrs. Anna Burke, Mrs. Andrew White, Mrs. Neil Bresnahan, Mrs. Nicholas Spellman, Mrs. Viola Shea, Mrs. William Shea, Mrs. Fred Laycock, Mrs. Wilfred Lafreniere, Mrs. David Campbell, Mrs. Walz, Miss Grace Walz, Miss Deneault, Miss Lucy Woods, Miss Katherine Buckley and Miss Mae Riley.

The Ladies' Aid of the Third Baptist church met in the chapel on Wednesday afternoon and tied a bed quilt. At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by Mrs. William Lund, Mrs. Harry Concklin and Mrs. Fred Laycock.

Rev. Harry P. Brothwell has returned to his home, No. 748 North Main street after spending the first of the week at the Baptist State convention, held in Stamford.

Mrs. Andrew Dexter of Poquonoc Bridge has returned to her home after having spent a week at the home of her sister, Mrs. William A. Lund, of 37 Twelfth street.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert I. Peckham have moved their household goods from 29 Margerie street, Greeneville, to an apartment on the New London turnpike, East Great Plain.

Miss Dorothy Concklin of Prospect street has return to her home, after spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Louis Cadbois of New London.

The Junior Girls' Sewing club, who meet on Friday evenings, will be entertained at the home of Miss Mildred Turner of Prospect street this week. The members are Elsie Laycock, Dorothy Flynn, Mildred Turner, Marilyn Lund, Gertrude Johnson, Gwendolyn Gordon.

Mrs. Lillian Mills of Sixth street has returned to her home after visiting relatives in Danielson.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Wolff of Westfield, Mass., were recent visitors at the home of Mrs. Katherine Wolff of Prospect street.

Among the guests present Saturday evening at the reception which was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Rivers of Watercress avenue, in honor of their 25th anniversary, were Mr. and Mrs. Octave Caron of North Main street, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer J. Flynn of Boswell avenue, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Karkutt and family of Fourth street and Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Kerkutt of Page street.

Miss Mary Mallon has returned to the Baltic academy after spending a few days at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Mallon, of Convent avenue.

A pretty miscellaneous shower was given Wednesday evening by Mrs. Lloyd Geline of 210 Hickory street, with 25 guests present, in honor of her sister, Miss Zeena Cormier, who will shortly be married to Fred Erlbeck. Games singing and piano playing were enjoyed. Mrs. Henry Boyd sang several solos during the evening in a very pleasing manner, while Mrs. Lawrence Blanchard rendered several piano solos. Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Miss Cormier and Mrs. Howard Rydholm. The refreshments consisted of assorted sandwiches, fancy cakes, assorted wafers, ice cream, lady fingers and hot chocolate. The dining room was very artistically decorated with Halloween colors of black and orange being used. Along the sides of the dining room paper witches and black cats were placed. Among the guests were Mrs. Louis Erlbeck, Mrs. Frank Erlbeck, Mrs. Howard Rydholm, Mrs. Bernard Wunderlich, Mrs. William Fournier, Miss Ruth Campbell, Miss Irene Driscoll, Mrs. James White, Mrs. Henry Boyd, Mrs. Lawrence Blanchard, Mrs. Neil Bresnahan, Miss Mary Appleby, Miss Violet Blanchard, Mrs. Earle Judd, Miss Margaret Mullholland. Miss Agnes Shahan and Miss Eileen Ryan left Greeneville Thursday evening to spend a few days with relatives in New York city.

Republican Rally Cancelled

The republican rally which had been planned for next Monday evening has been cancelled by the town committee for the reason that the speakers whom it was desired to have could not be available for that night and the committee did not wish to accept any substitutes.

MAYOR WANTS NAME OF NORWICH ON POST OFFICE BUILDING IN CITY

The absence of the name "Norwich" on the front of the local post office has been called to the attention of Postmaste Casper J. Bailey by Mayor Lee Roy Robbins. In a letter to Postmaster Bailey, Mayor Robbins suggests that it would be of local advantage to have the word "Norwich" on the post office. The mayor informed Postmaster Bailey in his letter that if a proper sign cannot be obtained through government sources, he would be glad to furnish one for the purpose. Below is Mayor Robbins' letter:

Mr. Casper J. Bailey, Postmaster.
Norwich, Conn.
Dear Mr. Postmaster:

The absence of the name Norwich at the front of the local post office has attracted my attention. If it is there at all it is too obscure to be noticeable.

While I may be mistaken about my understanding that the federal law requires the name of the place to appear upon the post office building, I am sure that it would be of local advantage to have it there.

If there is no objection on your part and a proper sign cannot be obtained through government sources, I would be glad to furnish one for the purpose.

Please give this matter your consideration and oblige,

Very truly yours,
LEE ROY ROBBINS,
Mayor.

Postmaster Bailey said Thursday that he has forwarded the mayor's letter to the United States treasury department which department of the government has supervision of post office buildings.

SPARKS FROM BONFIRE SET FIRE TO ROOF

Sparks from a small bonfire were responsible for a roof fire at the residence of Mrs. Richard M. Powers, No. 5 Cliff place, late Thursday afternoon. Shortly after 4:30 o'clock, neighbors saw flames shooting from the roof and box 26, Cliff and Oak streets, was pulled, calling out the fire department.

Squad A laid an inch and a half water line and in a few minutes had the fire out. A number of shingles were burned and badly charred and when the firemen arrived the blaze was just breaking through into the attic. In addition to the damage to the roof there was some damage in one or two rooms of the house from water. The fire had evidently started from leaves in the roof gutter and worked up to the shingles, which had smouldered for some time before breaking out into flames. There had been a small bonfire in the yard of the residence of James Maloney, adjoining the Powers property, and sparks were no doubt blown into the roof gutter. The bonfire had burned itself out some time before the roof fire broke out. The recall was sounded a few minutes after the box was pulled.

RED CROSS INSTRUCTION IN HEALTH IN CONNECTICUT

Carrying on a health campaign through the year, the American Red Cross has given instruction to nearly 300 Connecticut women and girls in home hygiene and care of the sick during the organization's last fiscal year, according to a statement made by local Red Cross officials. While the course includes instruction in the care of the sick in the home, its principal object is to give students a deeper understanding of their own health needs, the needs of their family, and those of the community as a step toward the promotion of health and the prevention of disease.

Forming an important part of the course is training in the care of babies and young children, including theoretical and practical training in bathing, dressing, handling, and feeding them in a way to safeguard their health during the growing period. Personal hygiene and health habits essential to the health of individuals are stressed in the classes, and students are at the same time taught "how to plan a healthful home, perfect in cleanliness sanitation, ventilation, and lighting, as well as in furnishing and care."

The work in Connecticut during the year is part of a nation-wide effort by the Red Cross to train as many women and girls as possible in this subject, which is considered essential to health progress.

Given Miscellaneous Shower

A pretty miscellaneous shower was given Wednesday evening by Mrs. Lloyd Geline of 210 Hickory street for her sister, Miss Zeena Cormier, in honor of her approaching marriage to Fred Erlbeck. Games, singing and piano playing were enjoyed, and a lunch was served, the table being prettily decorated with autumn leaves and black and orange trimmings.

Hi-Y Club Opening Season

The Hi-Y club, of which Fred A. Fox is president, will get under way for the season at its meeting this (Friday) evening at the Y. M. C. A., which will follow the supper which will be served by Mrs. Sandberg. At the business meeting the various committees will be appointed to carry on the year's activities.

NORWICH TOWN

It was Charles Senter of Natick, Mass., that is a guest at the home of his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. William Weaver, of Huntington Green, not George Kinnew of South Coventry, as incorrectly stated in Thursday morning's Bulletin. Mr. Senter was called to Norwich Town by the death of his mother, Mrs. Rosa Kinney, widow of George Kinney, who was her second husband. Mr. Senter, a most devoted son, was a recent caller on his mother, whom he frequently visited.

Mrs. Benjamin L. Kennedy and Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lamb of Norwich Town accompanied Theodore Sterry to Mystic, Thursday evening. While Mr. Sterry was filling a violin engagement, the remainder of the party spent the evening at the home of Dr. Lamb's sister, Mrs. Harriet E. Brainard.

Mrs. Ray Holdridge (Mildred Kinney) of Ledyard, formerly of Norwich Town, was the guest Thursday of her grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth R. Kinney, and her cousin, Mrs. William E. House, of Town street. The early part of the week, Mrs. Holdridge, with Mrs. Alfred Smith, (Esther Marsh) also formerly of Norwich Town, now of Lincoln avenue, were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Smith.

Sunday evening, at 7:30 in the Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church, the pastor, Rev. George Warren Potter, is to deliver a public stereopticon lecture on "Applied Christianity." The lecture concerns the work of some of the 79 Methodist hospitals in which there are being cared for over 250,000 needy folk. This great number cared for by Methodist hospitals is only one-twelfth of the sick people of the country. During the past year over $8,000 worth of free work was done by the New England Deaconess hospital and this does not include surgeons' and physicians' share. The lecture Sunday night deals with the work done especially in the New England area and includes the New England Deaconess hospital in Boston, the J. W. Wilbur Health Home for Anaemic Children at Natick, Mass., the Concord, Mass., Home for Aged Women and Attleboro Springs, Mass., sanitarium. Over 70 beautiful slides will be shown during the lecture.

TEN BIRDS HAVE MADE RECORD OF 300 EGGS

With the ending of the fiftieth week ten birds have gone over the top by laying 300 eggs at the Storrs egg laying contest. The home stretch is about completed and in glancing over the egg records there is a possibility that three more will end the year with this distinction. Of the 300 eggers George Lowry owns three, Broadview Poultry farm two, George B. Treadwell, Hollywood Poultry farm, Charlescote farm, W. S. Hannah & Son, and Globus Poultry farm one each. To date Clarence E. Lee has one bird with a record of 293 eggs and LaBelle one with a record of 292 eggs.

The leading bird in the contest, a R. I. Red owned by George B. Treadwell of Spencer, Mass., has laid 326 eggs. Another Red owned by Charlescote farm of Sherborn, Mass., is a close second with 319 eggs.

The egg records for the fiftieth week show that the birds laid 2193 eggs or a yield of 32.6 per cent. The total production to date is 259,871 eggs which gives each bird in the contest an average of 185.6 eggs. The week's production was 130 eggs less than last week's and 221 eggs less than for the corresponding week a year ago.

First honors for the week were divided between a pen of White Leghorns owned by Jos. W. Means of Berlin, N. H., a pen of the same breed owned by George Lowry of West Willington, Conn., and a pen of Rhode Island Reds owned by George B. Treadwell of Spencer, Mass. These three pens laid 45 eggs each. For second place a pen of Rhode Island Reds owned by Clarence E. Lee of Auburn, N. Y., was tied with a pen of White Leghorns owned by W. S. Hannah & Son of Grand Rapids, Mich., with a yield of 44 eggs each. Third place was captured by a pen of Wyandottes owned by the Locusts from West Cornwall, Conn. Egg & Apple Farm's White Leghorns from Trumansburg, N. Y., was fourth with 42 eggs.

At the end of the fiftieth week a pen of White Leghorns owned by George Lowry has laid 2926 eggs. This is the highest record that has been produced since the contest started 17 years ago. Charlescote Farm's Rhode Island Reds is to date not only the highest pen of Reds trap-nested at this contest during the past 17 years, but has the highest record of any pen of Reds trap-nested in the United States by official egg laying contests. This record is 2520 eggs.

The leading pens in each of the principal varieties are as follows:

Barr Rocks—R. W. Davis & Sons, Rockland, Maine, 2071; Kerr Chickeries, Frenchtown, N. J., 2000; Spring Brook P. Farm, So. Wethersfield, Conn., 1879.

White Rocks—Granlote Springs farm, Granite Springs, N. Y., 2123; E. A. Hirt, South Weymouth, Mass., 2107.

WILL INVESTIGATE ON ELECTRIC RATES COMPLAINTS

The board of gas and electric commissioners at a meeting Thursday morning instructed Charles W. Taggart, general manager of the city's gas and electric department, to investigate the recently installed commercial rates for electrical consumption with a view to bringing in recommendations for the relief of this class of consumers. This action was taken because of the almost universal dissatisfaction of commercial consumers over the new rates which in some cases have doubled monthly electric bills.

In answer to the letter which Mayor Lee Roy Robbins sent to the members of the board Tuesday suggesting that a public hearing be held by the board on the new rates, the commissioners have sent the following letter to the mayor:

Norwich, Conn., Oct. 18, 1928.
Hon. Lee Roy Robbins,
Mayor of the City of Norwich,
Norwich, Connecticut.

Dear Mayor Robbins: Your letter of the 16th wherein you suggest that we investigate and correct the recently established rates for residential and commercial consumers, received. We find more or less dissatisfaction with the new rate, especially from those consumers using the commodity for commercial use. We realize and appreciate the fact that while some of the consumers in this class have been penalized, many have been benefited. The following solution adopted at a meeting held on Thursday morning will assure you and all others of our desire to cooperate with and to assist all consumers affected by a change in rate.

Resolved: That the general manager be instructed to investigate the recently installed commercial rate with a view of bringing in recommendations for relief for that class of consumer.

City of Norwich Board of Gas and Electrical Commissioners
J. A. Driscoll, Secretary.

ARMORY AGAIN FILLED AT ELKS' CHARITY FAIR

Another close to capacity crowd thronged the state armory on McKinley avenue on Thursday night for the second night of the Elks' charity fair and found profitable diversion for the evening in the varied entertainment features provided by the gayly decorated booths that line the hall.

Thursday was New London night at the fair and a big delegation of "Bills" from the neighboring city was on hand to add to the fun and hilarity. The orchestra programme provided popular selections during the evening and the vaudeville that was on the bill was of the top-notch variety that made this a big feature.

The two more nights during which the fair will continue this week promise to fill the armory each night when there will be special entertainment features in the music and the vaudeville.

WEST SIDE PINOCHLE WITH SCHULER LEADING

In the second night's play at the West Side Pinochle club Wednesday evening Schuler retained his lead, but Bailey, who made high score for the evening, moved into second place displacing Lewis who dropped back to third position. The scores Wednesday night:

Bailey 7,340, Schuler 7,625, Pettis 7,050, Lewis 6,965, McNaught 6,940, Ellsworth 6,905, Peckham 6,510, A. Jordan 6,545, Boynton 6,355, J. Jordan 6345, Underwood 5,975, Parker 5,825.

The standing to date: Schuler 14,985, Bailey 14,375, Lewis 14,190, Pettis 13,995, Ellsworth 13,640, Peckham 13,315, McNaught 13,250, Boynton 12,785, Underwood 12,680, J. Jordan 12,570, A. Jordan 12,585, Parker 12,450.

Eastern Connecticut Health.

Norwich reported two cases of scarlet fever and two of typhoid fever during the week ending October 13th according to the weekly morbidity report issued by the state department of health. Communicable diseases reported from towns in eastern Connecticut for the week, were as follows:

Diphtheria—New London and Tolland, one each.

Scarlet fever—New London 1, Norwich 2.

Whooping cough—Groton 1, Voluntown 3.

On College Glee Club

Miss Lois Latimer of this city, Miss Rosamond S. Holmes of Mystic and Miss Jean Hamlet of New London are among the new members of the glee club at Connecticut college at New London.

MACHINE STRUCK WOMAN ON WEST MAIN ST.

Mrs. Marie Barbetta of 561 West Main street was struck by a motor truck while she was crossing West Main street at the corner of Dunham street about 7:30 Thursday evening. The machine was reported to have been driven by a man named Herts who had a calf in the back part of the truck. Besides hitting the woman, the motor truck struck an electric light pole, bringing down the wires so that employes of the city department had to make repairs.

Mrs. Barbetta was taken to the Backus hospital in the ambulance and has a long laceration in the scalp and a bruised left shoulder.

Surprise Miscellaneous Shower

A surprise miscellaneous shower for Miss Frances Malerba was given on Tuesday evening at her home by her friends in honor of her approaching marriage to Joseph Mazzina of New York. Dancing and games were enjoyed and vocal selections were rendered by Nic Lamperelle and Anna Mazzarelli. Music was furnished by the Three Musketeers. Refreshments were served by Misses Elena Regina and Anna Mazzarelli assisted by Antoinette Malberba and Joseph Caldarola. Miss Malerba received many beautiful and useful gifts.

TAFTVILLE

Fred Thorpe who has been spending several months in town has returned to his home in New Bedford, Mass.

Notices have bene sent out for the Business Men's association meeting to be held Monday evening.

On Wednesday evening there was a meeting of a number of people interested in the annual fair of the Taftville Congregational church. The meeting was held in the parlors of the church and was largely attended. Plans were laid for the event, and booths were assigned to the various parochial societies—each society to have charge of soliciting and attending to the sales of the booth. An entertainment is being planned, and George W. Weller, Jr., and Victor H. Davis have been appointed a committee in charge of a minstrel show. There will also be dancing this year at the fair, it has been announced.

The first meeting of the season of the Thimble club will be held Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. George Helmboldt of Blissville.

Mrs. Thomas Perkins Sears, the president, presided at the meeting of the members of the American legion auxiliary held Wednesday evening in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah building. Mrs. Sears gave an interesting account of the national convention of the Legion and the auxiliary which has just closed at San Antonio, Texas, and which she attended as a delegate.

Mr. and Mrs. Hormidas Turcotte who recently sold their residence on the Old Canterbury turnpike to Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Godere and family of Providence street are moving to the house on North B street recently vacated by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Biskey and family who have purchased a farm.

Alfred Hulboj has resigned his position with the No. 4 weaving department of the Ponemah mills.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Peckham have moved from Mugerry street to a house at East Great Plain. The apartment they vacated is being occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Johnson and family. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Clarke and family have taken the house vacated by Mr. and Mrs. Johnson.

Surveyors in the employ of the state highway department have been busy in Blissville for several days, and rumor has it that there is to be a new concrete road built along the line of the present road from Taftville to Newent. Stakes already set out indicate that the road will take several feet from the grounds of some of the residences at the top of the hill leading from the bridge. It is also believed that the bridge will have to be widened or a new one built.

Mrs. Ettabel Davis who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Adams of North Third avenue has returned to her home in Arcadia, R. I., Mr. and Mrs. Adams motoring home with Mrs. Davis early in the week.

The beautiful dahlias used at the Taftville Congregational church for the past several Sundays came from the gardens of Mrs. Christian Bayreuther of the Jewett City road.

The American legion auxiliary has named as officers for 1929, the following: President, Mrs. Edward J. Kelley; vice president, Mrs. Clara T. Caron and Mrs. Arthur Bessette; secretary, Mrs. Theodore J. Belval; treasurer, Mrs. William Emerson; chaplain, Mrs. Patrick J. Fogarty; historian, Mrs. Thomas Perkins Sears and sergeant-at-arms, Mrs. Arthur Dufour.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Peltier moved Wednesday from Plainfield to the house on Providence street recently vacated by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fregeau, who have gone to Hartford to make their home with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Louis N. Paradis, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Tetreault and son have returned to their home in New Haven after being in town to attend the funeral of Mrs. Tetreault's brother, Lorenzo Paradis of South A street.

Mrs. Antoinette Kramisc has taken a house on South Third avenue.

Mrs. Charles T. Webster who has been spending several weeks with friends in Portland, Maine, has returned to her home on North A street, accompanying Mr. Webster who went to Portland for a week's vacation.

SMITH SPEAKS ON RENEWAL OF SALT CREEK OIL LEASE

Democratic Presidential Nominee Contends That Hubert Work, Now Chairman of the Republican National Committee, Was the Public Official Responsible For Renewal of Contract Which Has Been Held Invalid in a Ruling by Attorney General Sargent—In Smith's Opinion an Attempt Had Been Made to Suppress the Decision Until After Election—Criticized Republican Record on Farm Relief.

CHICAGO, Oct. 19—(AP)—The renewal of the Salt Oil Creek lease to the Sinclair interests by Hubert Work while serving as secretary of the interior came in for attention by Gov. Alfred E. Smith, in a speech prepared since his arrival here for closing his campaign in the mid-west.

The democratic nominee declared that Mr. Work, now chairman of the republican national committee, was the public official responsible for the renewal of his contract which earlier this week was held invalid in a ruling by Attorney General Sargent.

Further, the governor said it was his opinion an attempt had been made to "suppress the attorney general's decision until after the election had been held.

"On March 2nd of this year President Coolidge," he said, "forwarded to the attorney general correspondence and papers sent him in relation to this matter by Senator Walsh of Montana. What happened between the second of March and the 15th of October? This is a simple question of law and could be determined in one hour by any lawyer in the country.

"I do not know how the American people feel about it, but I am forced to the conclusion that there was an attempt to suppress this decision until after election and I am satisfied that it would never be given out in the heat of a political campaign if it was not forced into the open by the insistence of Senator Walsh, and newspaper activity, both designed to bring the facts to the American people at the earliest possible moment.

"The public official responsible for the renewal of this invalid and illegal lease is no less a personage than the chairman of the republican national committee and, according to the newspapers, his only explanation is:

"'I have no comment to make. Those things are past. People are tired of hearing of these oil leases.' The governor said Mr. Work had told the truth in that statement, but he added "he could have gone a little bit further, he could have said they are not only tired but they are disgusted."

The democratic nominee said on farm relief the republican party had failed to carry out party promises and declared that Mr. Hoover, who he described as President Coolidge's chief adviser on matters affecting agriculture, "held out no hope to the farmer in his speech of acceptance."

He also said that Senator Borah, who was referred to as the chief spokesman of the republican party today, now was making a special appeal to farmers and declared the record showed the Idaho senator had voted against the "only bill suggested to bring relief, and at the same time offered no solution of his own."

"We find the senator out now just before election time," he continued, "again promising that relief and again expressing that great love and devotion to the cause of the American farmer." The governor then accused Borah of misrepresenting the situation to the farmer in "an effort to make him believe that Mr. Hoover kept up farm prices during the war and in the reconstruction period thereafter."

"I read a cablegram addressed to one of the farm leaders by Mr. Hoover," the governor said, "in which he said he was keeping the prices down. Who is right, Senator Borah or Mr. Hoover, let them explain the matter to the American farmer."

The nominee added he was convinced the farmer was not "taking the senator very seriously" as Borah for many years had the "reputation of being a progressive representative of the great farming section," but that the campaign had disclosed he was more anxious for party success than he is for the "vindication of any great principle."

The democratic nominee also referred to utterances by Borah about Hoover at the time the latter was serving as food administrator under Woodrow Wilson. He quoted the Idahoan as saying said during a speech on a bill to appropriate one hundred million dollars for food supplies for Europe as follows:

"I challenge successful contradiction that three of the vast monopolies which control food in this country have, with relation to their commodities, directed and controlled the food administration since its organization."

The governor then referred to the withdrawal by Frank O. Lowden of his name as a candidate for the republican nomination for president at the Kansas City convention in protest against the convention's farm plank and said the difference between the former Illinois governor and Senator Borah was the "difference between a politician seeking success at the polls and a statesman devoted to a principle."

"I hold Lowden to be a statesman," he said.

The governor also referred to Senator Borah's activities over what he described as the "conscience" fund the Idahoan attempted to collect from the republicans to pay off party obligations. He said the senator had borrowed a "halo and a pair of wings" and started at the task.

"When it came to the conscience fund, widely heralded by the winged apostle of reform," he said, "lo, the mountain labored and brought forth a mouse. Instead of $260,000, they got one dollar and thirty-six cents.

"That apparently satisfied the senator, because he is now on the stump vigorously advocating the retention in power of the republican party, stigma or no stigma."

CRASHED DOORS WHERE SMITH WAS TO SPEAK

CHICAGO, Oct. 19—(AP)—A crowd of several hundred persons milling about the entrance to the armory where Gov. Smith is to speak tonight, crashed through the doors early this afternoon and a squad of police was despatched to hold them in check.

BORAH SAYS SMITH HAS SWITCHED ON TARIFF

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 19—(AP)—In an attack upon Governor Smith's stand on the tariff, Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, here tonight declared that the democratic presidential nominee had been "converted overnight" to the policy of "protection of American industries by the tariff."

Replying to the governor's exposition of his tariff views made here in a campaign for Herbert Hoover in a speech prepared for delivery at the Jefferson country armory said the democratic nominee four years ago had characterized the protective tariff as "a holdup of the American people" and now in his election race waps supporting the policy.

TWO SMALL BOYS FELL 13 STORIES TO THEIR DEATHS

NEW YORK, Oct. 19—(AP)—Two small brothers today fell thirteen stories to their deaths from the roof of the Hotel Surrey, East 76th street. Their mother, Mrs. Hazel Waldeman, had taken them with her to call on a friend who lived in a pent house apartment on the hotel roof.

A painter who saw the tragedy said that she had held Benjamin, 14-months old, in her arms to let him look over the three foot wall. Then Terrance, 4 1-2 years of age, climbed on a bench and apparently tried to make his mother pick him up also.

The baby fell from his mothers arms and after him toppled the other child. The mother fainted. The painter summoned help, but the tiny bodies lying on the roof of a three story building were lifeless.

The boys were sons of Dr. Milton Waldeman of the Hotel Plaza. Mrs. Waldeman was a daughter of Benjamin Guggenheim who went down with the Titanic in 1912. She was visiting the penthouse apartment of Mrs. Cornelius R. Love, Jr., daughter of Rear Admiral Louis M. Rosenthal of the New York state naval militia.

EPISCOPALIANS APPROVE BOOK OF COMMON PRAYER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—(AP)—While the house of bishops spent the most of today behind closed doors choosing bishops for missionary dioceses, the house of deputies the other legislative body of the Episcopal church in general convention here, placed its final stamp of approval on the book of common prayer and considered resolutions on many topics

A proposal which would place the convention on record to capital punishment "as a relic of barbarism" was contained in a resolution presented by Rev. Albert Broadhurst, of Titusville, Pa. It was tabled amid a chorus of disapproving shouts without formal discussion. The resolution referred directly to the Hickman case.

Denver, Colorado was selected as the place for the next general convention of the Episcopal church by the house of bishops of the present convention. The session will be held in 1931.

ROWDY RECEPTION FOR EVANGELIST MACPHERSON

GLASGOW, Scotland, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Mrs. Aimee MacPherson, Los Angeles evangelist got a rowdy reception when she addressed a meeting at the Glasgow Students' union today.

A noisy crowd of students thronged the hall an hour before her appearance and when the evangelist arrived they had decorated the platform with empty bottles and glasses of beer and had adorned the walls with posters declaiming the merits of "good old whiskey."

One group played cards on the floor and then decorated the table with kings and queens. When the American woman began to speak, girl students in the front row lighted cigarettes.

At one point Mrs. MacPherson coughs slightly and the students offered her a glass of beer.

Order was at length obtained on the appeal of a student on the platform.

CORK, IRELAND, TO HAVE FORDSON TRACTOR PLANT

CORK, IRISH FREE STATE, Oct. 19.—(AP)—The city of Cork is delighted with the news of the moving of the main Fordson tractor plant here and it is estimated that the move means $5,000,000 yearly in wages. The Free State government welcomes the advantage thus given to Cork and will facilitate conditions as much as possible.

Tariffs between the Irish Free State and England checked Ford's Cork automobile factory since its products were taxed on entering England and there was only a small local demand. The automobile production was therefore transferred to England. As far as tractors are concerned, however, there will be an Irish demand as well as European.

BODIES OF MAN AND WOMAN FOUND IN AUTO

DANBURY, Conn., Oct. 19—(AP)—The bodies of Miss Margaret Moffitt, thirty years old, dead from a stab wound in her chest, and Frederick Bowater, forty-one, of Bridgeport, were found on a country road in Ridgebury district, about six miles from here, this morning. The man had died from a shotgun wound which had torn out the greater part of the left side of his head. The state police believe that the man killed the woman and then shot himself.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

PARIS, Oct. 19—(AP)—Efforts looking toward complete and final settlement of the reparations problem, begun at Geneva last September, entered a decisive phase in Paris today.

Conferences were held this morning at which Premier Poincare, Winston Churchill, British chancellor of the exchequer, and S. Parker Gilbert, Jr., agent general for reparations, were present while this afternoon there was a luncheon at the British embassy at which Secretary Churchill, Mr. Gilbert and J. P. Morgan were guests of Sir William Tyrrell, British ambassador.

While the deepest secrecy surrounded the negotiations, Mr. Churchill previous to his departure for London late today said that he was "quite satisfied."

The presence of Mr. Morgan at the negotiations is interpreted as showing that both France and England desire to confirm the decision taken ten days ago to request that American unofficial member or members participate in the deliberations.

HICKMAN HANGED IN SAN QUENTIN PRISON

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Cal., Oct. 19.—(AP)—William Edward Hickman paid his legal debt to the state of California here today when he was hanged for the murder of 12-year-old Marion Parker, Los Angeles school girl, last December.

Hickman was hanged at 10.10 a. m. and 15 minutes later was pronounced dead. The youth's neck was not broken as is usually the case; he was strangled to death. This was because at the last second before the trap was sprung he began to collapse shortening the distance of his fall.

Marching with steady step the 30 steps or more from the condemned cell to the gallows and up the 13 steps of the scaffold to the trap, he smiled faintly as the noose was adjusted around his neck, and with palms unraised together, whispered a hurried prayer.

As the black cap was placed over his head, the prison chaplain, Rev. William A. Fleming, read the litany of the dead. Warren James B. Holohan waved his arm, and three convicts, enclosed within a box-like superstructure over the scafford cut three ropes, one of which released the trap. Hickman's body shot through the open space like a plummet. Hardly a tremor was visible in his body.

Less than half a minute after the slayer began his journey from the death cell to the scafford he was unconscious. The action was so quick that many of the 250 spectators did not see the warden's signal.

FOUL PLAY SUSPECTED IN SHOEMAKER'S DEATH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

MYSTIC, Oct. 19.—The body of Guiseppe Tudisos, 30 a shoemaker living at 19 Downer street, Pawcatuck, was found floating in Mystic harbor between Mason's Island and West Mystic late this afternoon by two fishermen, Antino Cormeno of 2 New London road Mystic, and William LaBlanc, of Mystic. Foul play is suspected and the state police are investigating.

The body of Tudisos was brought to shore and Acting Medical Examiner Dr. E. L. Douglass, together with Sergeant Henry Albright of the state police made an examination. Although neither would make any statement for publication it is understood that Tudisos had a severe bruise on his head and that his eyes were dilated giving belief that he was struck down before being thrown into the harbor. Medical Examiner Douglass said that he believed that the body had been the water only a few hours.

Tudisos, who conducted a cobbler's shop on Mechanic street, Pawcatuck, and boarded with Pietro Castagna, of 19 Downer street, was identified by his brother, Casparo Tudisos, after a bureau of immigration card had been found on the dead man giving his name and address. Little is known about him although he had resided in Pawcatuck about three years. It is said he has a wife in Italy.

The dead man is said to have been a member of the facisti and was concerned in the fracas between two factions of Italians at the Columbus day celebration at New London a week ago.

An autopsy is to be performed on the body to ascertain the reason for Tudisos's death. Whether there was water in the lungs of the man when he was found was not known tonight.

JUDGING AT NATIONAL DAIRY CATTLE SHOW

MEMPHIS, Oct. 19—(AP)—National dairy show cattle judging ended today with the selection of national grand champions for Ayrshire and Brown Swiss breeds.

Winning from the smallest field entered in the show, Alta Crest Ringleader, owned by Alta Crest Farms, Massachusetts, was adjudged champion Ayrshire bull. A Massachusetts Agricultural college entry, Bay State Pereeus, won the junior championship.

Kansas and Wisconsin shared honors in Ayrshire cow judging. Ten first prizes in brown Swiss contests went to the herd entered by J. Frank Zoller, Schenectady, N. Y., his brown Swiss bull, Maiden's Veronica College Boy, took the grand championship for cows and junior bull championships, respectively.

Gerald Linewaver, 24, of South English, Iowa, employed by the Emmadine farms, Hopewell, N. Y., was gored by a prize bull today. His injuries were said by hospital authorities tonight to be painful but not serious.

Closing of the show tomorrow will end its last season in the south, as a permanent home will be opened at St. Louis next year.

ROBT. GOELET CONTRIBUTES $10,000 TO THE SMITH FUND

NEW YORK, Oct. 19—(AP)—Robert Goelet, republican and a member of one of New York's old Knickerbocker families, has contributed $10,000 to the Smith campaign fund, it was announced at democratic national headquarters today.

"I predict that, if Governor Smith is elected, he will so conduct the affairs of the nation as to win the admiration and respect of republicans as well as democrats throughout the country," he wrote in a note that accompanied his check.

Coolidge's Address At Frederi[illegible]g

At Dedicati[illegible] Fredericksburg [illegible] Spottsylvania County [illegible]attlefields Memorial.

FREDERICKSBURG, Va., Oct. 19—(AP)—Delivering the principal address at the dedication of the Fredericksburg and Spottsylvania county battlefield memorial here, President Coolidge ascribed today America's present prosperity and power directly to the outcome of the Civil war.

Speaking from a stand erected on the scene of the battle of Fredericksburg in 1862, Mr. Coolidge reviewed present conditions in the United States saying that similar prosperity and living conditions were "never before experienced by any people in human history."

Discussing the import of the battles fought on the ground he and his listeners stood on, the chief executive added:

"Had the decision been otherwise we should all have been robbed of a great part of the pride which we all feel today in our country. Her achievements of the past years would have been divested of much of their value and her prospects for the future would have been devoid of much of their hope. Instead of one great country enjoying domestic peace and progress, holding a commanding position in the world, we should have been a region of hostile factions, impotent at home and despised abroad. The service which we did for the cause of humanity in 1898, the world crisis in which we successfully performed our part, would all have been impossible. Long since our common heritage would have been dissipated, our glory would have departed."

The president's special train was welcomed into Fredericksburg by a committee headed by Representative Bland and Governor Byrd of Virginia. A large crowd jammed the vicinity of the station and roared lustily when Mr. Coolidge detrained.

The city itself was generously beflagged.

After a twenty one gun salute had boomed out and Mr. Coolidge had been introduced to the reception committee a parade was formed with a squad of motorcycle officers at its head which, after winding through the principal streets of the city, led Mr. Coolidge to the battleground about two miles away.

Veterans of the battles fought within sight of the president's platform, occupied the position of honor in the front row seats. In some instances they were accompanied by their wives.

Mr. Coolidge after reviewing the dominant part Virginia played in the formation and aggrandizement of the United States, said that all Americans could join in commemorating the Civil war battles fought on her soil.

SHELTER HARBOR MAN INJURED IN COLLISION

(Special to The Bullentin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Oct. 19.—Richard Hayden, of Shelter Harbor, driving a Ford sedan of S. Bachem, also of Shelter Harbor, received lacerated and cut fingers when in a collision with the Ford coach owned and driven by William J. Thomas, 13 Lincoln avenue, Pawcatuck. The accident happened about 5.15 p. m., when the cars sideswiped each other. The Thomas car was proceeding toward Westerly and the other toward Bradford. State Trooper Ralph Bonat investigating the accident, found that one car had the headlights burning while the other did not. Each driver claims that he did not see the other No court summons were issued.

Richard S. Aldrich from Providence was in Westerly Friday for a conference with republican leaders.

Chief of Police Brown came before the council and demonstrated the new straight jacket secured for his department. The council voted to engage a new patrolman to replace Michael Crtin. William Beebe is to get the appointment

FORMER AUSTRIAN REAR ADMIRAL AND WIFE SUICIDE

VIENNA, Oct. 19—(AP)—Dressed in furs as though going on a last cold journey, the bodies of Rear Admiral Baron Arthur Von Bourguignon-Baumberg and his wife were found today in the small dark room where they had vainly tried to eke out existence on a meagre government pension. They had taken poison.

The rear admiral was once chief of the torpedo service in the Austrian navy. When the bodies of the couple were found, they were clasped in each other's arms.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Isabelle Grant.

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Mrs. Isabelle Grant, member of a Louisville family and an opera star in Europe 20 years ago, died today as the result of self-administered poison. She had pawned her fur coat to pay for the hotel room in which she took the poison

The Open Road.

Suppose you came suddenly upon two roads. One straight, well trodden—the other thin and twisting off into undergrowth. If you didn't want to arrive at any place in particular, you might choose the latter. But not otherwise.

Before you, as buyer, run two roads. One is the road of knowledge of the advertised product. Thousands use it. There's no mystery about it, no doubting, nothing hidden. It leads the way definitely to a fountain pen, a floor wax, a tooth paste that will give you satisfaction. When you use an advertisement you use an open road.

When you don't use advertisements you use the doubtful road. You have only hazy knowledge of the product ahead. No trademark or name to depend upon guides you. The result may or may not be worth the effort. You don't know.

Read the Advertisements. Advertisements put you on the open road to satisfaction.

Hope For MacDonald At Vanishing Point

No News of British Naval Officer, Since Reported 700 Miles East of St. John Thursday.

LONDON, Oct. 19—(AP)—More than two days have passed since Lieut. Commander H. C. MacDonald, gallant British naval officer, started on his long and perilous flight from Newfoundland for England, and still no news has come except an early report from the steamer Hardenburg which yesterday located him about 700 miles east of St. Johns.

Hope now has almost vanished, but the aviator's young wife and some of his friends, looking back to the providential rescue by a vessel in mid-ocean of Harry Hawker some years ago, refuse to give up. They are trusting that he has been rescued by some happy chance by a vessel which has been unable to communicate its good news.

Had MacDonald succeeded in landing anywhere, however remote, in the United Kingdom or France it is hard to conceive that he would not by this time have been heard from. Reports of his flight must have reached the out of way places and everywhere, particularly in Ireland and Scotland, a sharp lookout has been kept.

DANIELSON TO AUDIT BOOKS OF OFFICIALS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 19—A crowded special town meeting tonight in the town hall decisively said that a general audit of the books of the officials of the town of Killingly shall be carried out, and made an appropriation of $2,000 for that purpose. About 500 were in attendance. A resolution offered by Attorney E. L. Darbie provided for the appointment of a committee of citizens representative of both political parties and of all the voting districts of the town to examine the books, hold a hearing and then report back to the town at a special town meeting to be held following the adjourned town meeting next March, was rejected by the meeting. A. J. Cavanagh of Dayville insisted that immediate action was desired and that the town was in no mood to contenance further delay. The meeting developed a lively period in which several speeches both for and against the audit were heard. Those who talked were H. B. Mowry of Danielsville, A. J. Cavanagh, Atty. Darbie, Walter Anderson, Frank J. Gorman and Rev. Charles A. Downs. The meeting finally adopted a resolution authorizing the audit by a certified public accountant at a cost not to exceed $2,000 and named as a committee of the town to employ such an accountant, former Selectman Patrick Riley of Dayville, Att. Darbie and Frank J. Gorman.

After the meeting Walter A. Musgrave, a certified accountant resident here, in answering to the question as to whether he would care to undertake the task of auditing the town's books over a period of the past six years as the resolution provides said, "No." He estimated that the work to be done was worth at least $6,000. F. E. Bitgood was chairman of the meeting and Frank T. Preston clerk.

STAMFORD WOMAN KILLED BY HIT-AND-RUN DRIVER

STAMFORD, Oct. 19—(AP)—Miss May Parsons, 41, employed as a domestic here, was killed by a hit-and-run driver on Noroton hill tonight and her body run over by a second car, which also sped away. Residents of this section reported to the police that a body of a woman was lying on the road and upon investigation the woman was found dead. No details of the accident could be ascertained because there were no eye-witnesses to the tragedy. From lacerations on her body it was decided that one car hit the woman and a second car passed over the body. Police are investigating

MOTORISTS SENTENCED IN CRIMINAL COMMON PLEAS

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 19—(AP)—Thomas Mahan of Ansonia, was fined $50 and costs in the criminal common pleas court today, on a charge of reckless driving. His case arose from a collision on the Bridgeport turnpike in which James Fitzpatrick was arrested as the driver of the car. Mahan testified for the defense on Sept. 20, and claimed he was the driver and not Fitzpatrick. A bench warrant was issued for his arrest and the fine today was the culmination of the case.

James H. Sincaster of Waterbury was fined $25 and costs after being arrested for a traffic infraction on the Milford turnpike Sept. 3.

GOV. SMITH PAINTED AS THE TAINTED TOOL OF TAMMANY

W. H. White, Kansas Author and Editor, Asserts That Gov. Smith's Defense of His Legislative Record Was All Twisted With the Tammany Viewpoint—Declares That the "Tammany Oligarchy" Was the Real Issue of the Presidential Campaign and Said That the Democratic Presidential Nominee Typified the "Tammany Mind."

INDEPENDENCE, Kas., Oct. 19—(AP)—Renewing his charges that Governor Alfred E. Smith was subservient to Tammany hall while a member of the New York legislature, William Allen White, Kansas author and editor, took the stump here tonight and declared the explanations given by Smith of his votes on saloon legislation were "all specious, and all twisted with the Tammany viewpoint."

"In his defense of his record more than in the record itself," White asserted, "Governor Smith today by his shifting, undemocratic explanation of that record reveals himself the perfect flower of Tammany who does not dare, because he cannot, appeal to the American conscience."

"Young Al Smith always gave his vote on the liquor question to Tammany," White declared. "If Tammany has a good saloon record then young Al Smith should have been a Methodist bishop."

White in a statement issued in New York some weeks ago detailed Smith's votes as an assemblyman on various bills affecting saloons and drew a heated reply from the New York executive. Charges by White at that time that Smith's votes in the legislature had been cast for the protection of prostitution and gambling later were withdrawn by the editor.

In his address tonight at a rally under the auspices of the republican state central committee, White declared that the "Tammany oligarchy" was the real issue of the presidential campaign and he said the democratic presidential nominee typified the "Tammany mind".

In contrast, White said, "Herbert Hoover, idealist, humanitarian, a farm boy consecrated to public service, has the American mind and the American background."

Governor Smith's long unbroken record as a member of the legislature voting with Tammany on the question of liquor was published several weeks ago," White said. "That roll call was read to prove one thing, that in the New York assembly young Al Smith put his vote on the saloon and its interests in escrow with Charles Murphy, the boss of Tammany hall.

"These Tammany votes which he does not deny show him lining up with Tammany on every question affecting the saloon and its associates. The roll call shows him voting to allow saloons to operate near schools and churches.

"In vetoing a bill to allow saloons near schoolhouses, Governor Charles Evans Hughes revealed the American mind in sharp contrast to the mind with the Tammany taint. Governor Hughes evidently felt that the American schools have rights which Tammany and the liquor interests are bound to respect. But Tammany has no use for the schools. It has debauched them time and again for its own grafting ends.

"Governor Smith was confronted with his vote on bills which would make conviction easier for violators of the old saloon law. He justified that vote by saying that a majority of the assemblymen voted against it, not explaining that to make that majority he had voted with a solid Tammany block along with a few republicans—a branded tiger cub in a cage.

"He does not in any of the long roll call lists discuss the moral implications of the bills. Never once does he explain his vote for the saloon upon the ground of reason or conscience. * * *

"When it was proved that he voted to keep the saloons open after midnight in small towns, his defense was peculiarly a Tammany defense. Yet it was not made twenty years ago, but less than sixty days ago when he declared in voting to open saloons after night, he was representing his constituents. He lived in a part of New York city, then maggot-eaten with saloons, and because the liquor interests wanted more profits from the laboring men, Governor Smith, not twenty years ago but now, declares that his vote was a good one. A long list of explanations like this made up his defense of that Tammany record."

White said the discussion of Smith's legislative record was "not to pretend that any moral turpitude lurked in these votes," but to prove "how Tammany contaminates the minds and hearts of those who serve her."

"It is no attack upon Governor Smith, no imputation of his honesty as a man or a statesman, to presume that he would stand in the white house as he stood in Albany."

To national prohibition, White said, "Tammany and all the little Tammanies of the land pay the tribute of a horse laugh."

Acknowledging "that in our northern cities there is republican corruption and plenty of it," White said "republicans are not angels but they have not yet exalted corruption into the holy order of a million tips.

"They have set up no Tammanies. No republican presidential candidate kowtows to Bill Thompson and his Chicago machine or bows in reverence before a Sinclair filling station as evidence of his faith in Sinclair's vice-regency in republican politics."

In a statement White replied to a series of questions put to him by the third Kansas congressional district democratic committee and published as an advertisement here with the object of showing him to be inconsistent in his support of Herbert Hoover and Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas, the republican standard bearers.

The editor characterized the questionnaire as "silly" and stated, "I do not think and never have thought that Curtis was a nitwit, or Hoover a weapon, fat or lean, and never have indicated seriously such a belief."

Among other things White had been asked what he meant when he stated "that Charles Curtis was a 'nitwit' and 'an errand boy in the senate for the railroads.'"

The questionnaire, which was prefaced with the statement that "No one takes you seriously in politics, but we do enjoy hearing you talk and reading your fiction," asserted that within the last year White had referred to Hoover as "timid, fat capon," and asked when, in White's judgment, Hoover had "become a full fledged rooster."

White in his answer declared, "the democratic press has taken isolated phrases out of their context and garbled them; that's all there is to that."

W. C. HOPSON WAS KILLED FLYING THE NIGHT MAIL

PORK, Pa., Oct. 19—(AP)—William C. Hopson died flying the night mail.

A veteran of the service, Hopson died flying the night mail.

A veteran of the service, Hopson was killed when his plane struck the lofty peak of a tree near here as he was making the westward trip from New York to Cleveland on Thursday morning, shortly after midnight. The tragedy of the air was revealed today whe searchers found the wrecked plane and the bruised and burned body of "Wild Bill" as the flier was known to his fellow pilots.

Having successfully negotiated the high mountains of central Pennsylvania, the "graveyard" of aviators, it was apparent that Hopson was flying low at great speed when he struck the tree, a dead chestnut that protruded high above its fellows in a tract of woodland.

Thirty feet of the tree was broken off and carried to the ground with the ship, which crashed into a second tree before its momentum was halted. Wreckage of the plane was strewn for fifty feet and Hopson had been hurled headforemost to the ground.

Indications were that the plane had taken fire immediately after it hit the tree. Part of the wreckage was charred and Hopson's body was burned beyond recognition. It was removed to a morgue at Franklin.

ACTION IN MASS. AGAINST CAR OWNERS' INSURANCE CO.

BOSTON, Oct. 19—(AP)—Arthur E. Linnell, acting insurance commissioner for this state, asked Attorney General Joseph E. Warner to bring proceedings for a temporary injunction to prevent the Car Owners' Mutual Insurance company of Boston from doing any further business. Mr. Linell claimed that investigation by his department had revealed that the company is insolvent.

Monthly reports on the company attracted attention in the commissioner's office and the books of the firm were examined during the past few days.

DENIES HOOVER DANCED WITH A NEGRO WOMAN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19—(AP)—George Akerson, assistant to Herbert Hoover, today telegraphed Governor Bilbo, of Mississippi, denouncing "unqualifiedly false" a statement attributed to the governor that Hoover had called upon and danced with a Negro woman during his flood relief trips to the Mississippi river district last year.

DANIELS SEES CLEAR PARALLEL BETWEEN JACKSON AND SMITH

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 19—(AP)—A "nearly perfect" parallel between the lives of Andrew Jackson, "the man of the people of 1828, and Alfred E. Smith, the man of the people of 1928," was drawn here tonight by Josephus Daniels, war-time secretary of the navy, in an address supporting the New York governor's candidacy for the presidency. The speech was delivered almost within the shadows of The Hermitage the home Jackson left to take up his residence in the white house a century ago.

"Is there not a similarity between 'old Hickory' and Al Smith?" Asked Mr. Daniels. "The only degree Jackson had," he continued, "was H. N. O. (hero of New Orleans, where he made his mark with his sword.) His successor of today likewise comes up from among the people with no degree except that of F. F. M. (Fulton Fish Market). The parallel is nearly perfect between Jackson and Smith, except that one was born, bred and always was a countryman, and the other was born, at the lower end of Brooklyn bridge."

OGDEN MILLS PRAISES METHODS OF GOV. TRUMBULL

GREENWICH, Oct. 19—(AP)—Ogden Mills, under secretary of the treasury and former New York congressman, was the principal speaker at a republican rally tonight, sponsored by the Hoover-Curtis club and the republican town committee. Mills said that the methods used by Gov. Trumbull in this state of saving as he went along was greatly to his credit while the methods used by Gov. Smith in New York state, of piling up huge debts was deplorable. He said that Al Smith was deceiving the public with his speeches and that he has not said the same thing twice in any of his campaign talks.

PENNSYLVANIA MINERS POLITICALLY NON-PARTISAN

MINERSVILLE, Pa., Oct. 19.—(AP)—District No. 9 convention of the United Mine Workers of America, covering the lower fields of the anthracite region today adopted a resolution placing the district on record as not declaring for the candidates of any political party and urging each worker to vote according to his best judgment.

C. J. Golden, president of the district in declaring for a non-partisan attitude, said that "the miners have never received anything from any political party and that we must fight our legislation needed for our interests."

LARGE VOLUME OF BUSINESS BEFORE SUPERIOR COURT

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 19—A large volume of business including disposal of four divorce cases and the drawing of the jury for the term was done today at a short calendar session of the Windham county superior court held Yeomans of Andover on the bench here, with Judge Edward M. Yeomans of Andover on the bench. The assignment of two cases to be heard at Putnam next wek was maede in the cases of Elizbaeth Haveles vs. John Haveles and Zilma Forcier vs. Oscar J. Bernier, all of Putnam. The case of Dewey Bisoque of Killingly vs. The Danville Grain and Coal company was set for trial by jury in Putnam Wednesday, November.

Judgments for the plaintiff were rendered by Judge Yeomans in the cases of the town of Windham vs. Walter Timmins and William Timmins for support of their respective families. Former Town Counsel John H. King, in representing the town stated that an attachment had been made on dowries coming to the defendants from the estate of their mother. The bill of particulars in the cases were $233 against Walter Timmins and $579 against William Timmins.

The uncontested case of John L. Osier vs. Randolph J. Joslin, both of Putnam, a suit for a promissory note, was explained by Attorney E. C. Morse. The court found in favor of Osier to recover the amount of the note, $70250. The next case heard was that of Alvin P. Corey vs. Albert Gardner, both of Plainfield, a motion for disclosure of defense. Judgment was rendered by the court for the plaintiff, Corey, to recover $1,542.75. The time of limitation was set as the second Monday in November. Judgment for the plaintiff was also rendered in the case of the Packard Motor company of Putnam vs. Wellworth Hastings, also of Putnam, the Packard company being allowed the recovery of $212.97. An extension of two weeks was granted in the case of Clayton E. Smith vs. Alvina L Smith of Plainfield, on motion for continuance and further order of notice The case of Frederick W. Tillinghast et al vs. Alfred F. Gusweiller of Plainfield was not contested and the court rendered judgment for the plaintiff for $872.25.

Judgment for the plaintiff to recover $3,522.30 was rendered in the case of Florangelo Tieri vs. Charles Haggerty, both of Killingly, the suit involving a note .The case of Eckley R. Storrs of New York vs. Chauncey E. Macfarlane et al, of this city, was continued at the request of the plaintiff's counsel who stated that a settlement was being attempted

The divorce cases were then taken up. The first was that of Beatrice Potter vs. Harold T. Potter of Windham. Mrs. Potter was granted a degree on the grounds of intolerable cruelty and allowed alimony of $15 per week for the support of a child now ten years of age. In the second divorce action, Minola Tessie Fisher received a decree from her husband, Theodore L. Fisher of Killingly on the grounds of intolerable cruelty. Margaret Youngblood received a divorce from John W. Youngblood of Killingly, also on the grounds of intolerable cruelty. The fourth divorce action was of local interest, involving Lucy Kimball Ide as plaintiff and Wesley George Ide as defendant. The plaintiff testified that she had received ill-treatment from her husband on numerous occasions and that he had beat her and used vile language. The decree was granted on the grounds of intolerable cruelty and the plaintiff given alimony of $15 per week for the support of two minor children. Mrs. Ide was repesented by Attorney H. S. Gaucher.

Judge Yeomans, on the suggestion of State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford, appointed William V. Palmer, Sr., local court messenger, as superior court probation officer for the western section of Windham county.

The following names were then drawn for jury duty during the term: Windham, Joseph M. Berard, C. Harry Branch, Everett T. Ladd; Putnam, Frank J. Shippee, Joseph Morin; Ashford, Edwin A. Buck, Otto Mattin; Brooklyn, Elbra L. Baker; Chaplin, Samuel A. Chappell; Eastford, Gilbert Deane; Hampton, Charles Chester, George Thompson; Killingly, Walter E. Anderson, Alcide Page; Plainfield, Edward M. Allen, Fred Brownlee; Pomfret, C. E. Badger; Scotland, Samuel H. Spencer; Sterling, Charles Gardiner; Thompson, Clarence Magstrom; Woodstock, Frank Johnson.

The Windham county bar held a meeting in the forenoon to consider the application of Elsie Agnes Gallant of Putnam for admission to the bar after her examination at Hartford in December. The application received favorable action. Announcement was made by Judge Yeomans that the next session of court in this city would be Friday, November 2, when he would preside over a short calendar session. Friday of next week he will preside over a short calendar session of the Tolland county superior court at Rockville. Court adjourned today until Thursday morning of next week at 9:30 o'clock in Putnam.

FUNERAL

Miss Alphonsine Boucher

The funeral of Miss Alphonsine Boucher was held from the home, 25 Mill street, this morning with a requiem high mass in St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock. Rev. E. A. Mathieu officiated and Mrs. J. F. Gaudreau, organist, directed special singing. The bearers were George Houle, Arthur Girard, Pierre Mathieu, Napoleon Bacon, Delphis Bertrand and Edmond Sylvestre. Burial was in the family plot at St. Joseph's cemetery where a committal service was conducted by Rev. Father Mathieu. Arrangements were in charge of The Hurteau-Bosse Corp.

As the result of being run over by a wagon near his home in Warrenville this forenoon, Albert Varga aged 11 years, was taken to St. Joseph's hospital to be treated for injuries to his chest. X-ray photographs are to be taken to determine the exact nature of the injuries.

Mrs. Alice Jessie Keegan, wife of Edward J. Keegan of 91 Brook street, died at the Willimantic General hospital late Thursday afternoon. She was born in Manchaug, Mass., the daughter of Charles B. and Susan Tucker Maxham. Besides her husband she leaves two sisters, Mrs. William E. Higgins and Mrs. Orlando P. Smith of this city; a brother Frank Maxham of New York city and her mother, Mrs. Amy Maxham of this city.

Acting City Engineer John F. Collins stated today that with the completion of the surfacing work on Main street from the railroad crossing to Thread Mill square, within a few days, work will start in contiuuing the paving of the street easterly to the junction of Dunham street. The present area being surfaced with tarvia—lithic covers an area of about 4,500 square yards and the new stretch to be done consists of over 3,000 square yards. It was stated that while the surfacing work is proving most satisfactory with every promise of durability, the work was done for about $2.10 per square yard complete, including grading, bed rock and top surface. This unusually low figure for the work has left an old appropriation of over $8,000 remaining from the paving done on upper Main street, untouched. At a city meeting about one year ago it was voted to transfer this appropriation for paving on lower Main street and it will now be taken up for the additional construction. An agreement has also been made to surface the short stretch of Jackson street from the railroad crossing to Main street, giving a full section of well paved streets where traffic is heaviest.

Miss Nellie Larrow was tendered a miscellaneous shower at her home on North Windham road Thursday evening in honor of her approaching marriage to Leonard M. Wheaton of this city. Hyman Heller, a member of the Brown squad, is at present on the injured list.

Miss Elizabeth P. Anderson, secretary of the Welfare bureau is week end guest of friends in Springfield, Mass.

A group of people gathered in front of the Wilson drug store on Main street during the noon hour and gazed with amazement at a thermometer exposed directly to the sun that gave a reading of 108 degrees. There was considerable good-natured argument as to the correctness of the temperature measurement but the mercury was apparently in good working order and did not drop again until the noon hour had passed. A nearby thermometer underneath an awning read 82 degrees during the same hour.

Melvin Lincoln of Hartford is week end guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Lincoln.

Dr. and Mrs. William E. Hendry are entertaining Mrs. Emma Dickson of Bristol.

IT TAKES ALL-BRAN TO RELIEVE CONSTIPATION

More and more people are eating bran for "health's sake" these days. And it's a fine thing. But not everybody realizes what a difference there is in so-called "brans." Doctors say it takes 100% bran to supply enough roughage to relieve constipation. Part-bran products, at best, can only be partly effective.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is 100% bran. It furnishes roughage in effective quantities—and in the most effective form: cooked and krumbled. It does a work part-bran products cannot hope to equal. Two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal—are guaranteed to relieve constipation.

Serve ALL-BRAN often. With milk or cream—fruits or honey added. Be sure you get genuine Kellogg's though—in the red-and-green package. Use it in cooking. Sprinkle into soups. ALL-BRAN is sold by all grocers. Served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Study Sand and Gravel

WASHINGTON, Oct. —(AP)—An increase of more than 100 per cent. in sand and gravel production in the United States during the past six years has caused the bureau of mines to make a study of the various factors upon which the success of sand and gravel enterprises depends. It is pointed out that the ease with which new operations may be started is conducive to the undertaking of unprofitable projects.

Men! Dandruff Makes You Bald

Try This Sure, Easy Way To Clean Your Scalp and Stop Falling Hair

Dandruff chokes the hair and kills it. It combines with the oily secretions of the scalp and forms a sticky scummy mass that fits the head like a cap and causes unnatural sweating that rots the hair and makes it fall out.

DANIELSON

CORONER'S FINDING ON WILLIMANTIC FATALITY TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 19—Coroner Arthur G. Bill said this afternoon that his finding relative to the fatal accident case in which Congetta Rampolla lost her life when run down by a truck in Willimantic while on her way to church last Sunday will be made up Saturday. While Coroner Bill did not say so directly, the inference is that the child's death will be listed as an unavoidable accident, and that Leander Sherman driver of the truck will be absolved of responsibility.

There were 55 members of Sarah Williams Danielson chapter, D. A. R. and their guests at yesterday afternoon's monthly meeting, held in the parlor of the Westfield Congregational church. Mrs. Lena Tripp, regent of the chapter, presided. The outstanding feature of the meeting was the address on National Defense delivered by Mrs. John Laidlaw Buell, past vice-president general of the D. A. R. Other distinguished guests were Mrs. Charles H. Bissell, vice-president general and Mrs. George Maynard Minor, honorary president general.

During the afternoon vocal solos were served. The hostesses of the afternoon were Mrs. Ida Polhemus, Mrs. James E. Keech, Miss Nellie Keech, Miss Flora Keech, Miss Ethel Tillinghast, Miss Marion D. Chollar and Mrs. Arthur A. Dean.

From a source that should be accurate, it was learned this afternoon that no arrangement has been made to have Attorney Elphige Daigneault of Woonsocket come into this town to deliver any political addresses during the present campaign. Attorney Daigneault has gained a tremendous amount of publicity in Rhode Island through his controversies with Bishop Hickey of the diocese of Providence and through his eventual excommunication from the Roman Catholic church. It is a matter of current talk that Attorney Daigneault may make some speeches before Nov. 6, in some of the towns in this section of Windham county, but the assurance here today is that Killingly will not be one of them.

With the new Providence cut-off in use, it is now regarded as unlikely that there will be further agitation for the removal of the row of shade trees along the southern border of Davis park in that section of Reynolds street between Main and Broad. Traffic movements are expected to work out so that much of the in-bound travel will come down the new street, while out-bound cars will in many cases use the route through Reynolds street. On the other hand the out-bound traffic also will be reduced by reason of the fact that cars coming into Danielson from the north would, if east-bound, take the new route as the most convenient for them. This week end will offer the first opportunity to see just how the traffic divides up between the optional routes, but by the very nature of things at the junction of Reynolds and Stearns streets cars bound into Danielson, especially if driven by strangers will come down the new route.

FUNERAL
Jeremiah Sullivan

This morning the funeral of Jeremiah Sullivan was held from his home in the Flat Rock district of the town of Plainfield with a solemn high mass of requiem at St. John's church in that place at 9 o'clock. The officers of the mass were Rev. John H. Landry of Plainfield, Rev. J. C. Mathieu of North Grosvenordale and Rev. Ludovic Paradis. As a waiting hymn, Miss Theresa Sullivan sang That Beautiful Land on High. Burial was in Greeneville, where the committal service was conducted by Fr. Landry. The bearers were James Coffey, Augustus Coffey, Dennis Sullivan, Jeremiah Downing, Michael Shea and Michael O'Neill. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

Political leaders of both parties in Killingly were expressing the hope today that those who have filed applications to be made voters will be on hand Saturday to be examined as to their qualifications to be admitted as electors. In the interest of their parties many workers have sought out prospective voters and interested them in filing applications to be made. Upwards of 200 of those who had applications on file failed to appear to be made Saturday of last week. This week Saturday represents the last opportunity to be admitted before the election of November 6. Leaders today were urging these delinquents not to let Saturday pass without being made.

Following a meeting last evening at which Mrs. Abby F. Bergmann and Mrs. Eleanor Millen of Hartford were guests of Harmony court, Order of Amaranth, it was announced this morning that a series of social whists that have been held at the homes of members have netted $195 to date. Last evening's meeting was preceded by a supper at which fruit cup, cold meats, rolls, coffee, ice cream and cake was served. During the evening Mrs. Bergmann was presented with a beautiful bouquet of roses. Among the guests were Royal Patron Earl Knox and Mrs. Knox, newly married, of Norwich, and in their honor an informal reception was held during one period of the meeting at which they received the congregatulations of all the members.

The cafeteria at the high school is proving a self-supporting venture, and fully justifying its installation, from every angle. Scores of the pupils have their lunches there every school day—good wholesome food and ample servings at slightly above cost. Yet the small margin of profit has ben sufficient through the course of time to buy some additional equipment. Pupils are highly appreciative of the opportunity to have their lunches at the school, and it is obvious that preparing so muc food as is required for these lunches aids the pupils taking courses in the home economics department.

Waltsr Austin, whose home is in Greeneville, R. I., has be ensummoned to appear in the town court here on Saturday to answer to a charge that he has been operating more than one car on a single registration. Austin was visiting with his step-father at East Killingly last night when state officers ascertained that he has been violating the motor vehicle laws in the manner indicated.

PUTNAM

PUTNAM MAN MUST SERVE SENTENCE AT CHESHIRE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 19—Word was received from Willimantic this afternoon that Victor Lapointe of Smith street, arrested in Thompson on Wednesday afternoon on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquors, was sentenced to the state reformatory in Cheshire today by Judge Edward M. Yeomans at a special session of Windham county superior court held in that city today.

On Tuesday at Putnam, Lapointe was arraigned before a special session of superior court, on a bench warrant and pleaded guilty to burglary and theft of $80 in the store of Edward Mullan, a Putnam merchant. Because of his wife and family, dependent upon his freedom, Judge Yeomans imposed a sentence to Cheshire and suspended it for a year, placing him in charge of Attorney Harry E. Back of Danielson as special probation officer. On the following day Lapointe became intoxicated and attempted to drive his car to Thompson, where he was arrested by State Policeman Royal V. Scranton of the Danielson state police barracks.

In Willimantic today Lapointe made no plea for mercy and took the sentence with a sober expression on his face. Putnam attorneys present at the session said.

Lapointe has a past police record in the Putnam police station against him, but has had no criminal charges accredited to him. His wife and three children reside in Putnam.

Officers of the Danielson state police barracks and Sergt. George Liard of the Putnam police kept a vigil Thursday evening for reported stolen cars. During the watch a search was made in several places in Putnam where the cars were reported to have been concealed but no trace of such property was found in Putnam, and after midnight the watch was abandoned.

Rumors were current today in the north end of the city that Eugene Daigneault of Woonsocket, R. I., who for over two years was the leader of an anti-religious attack upon the Roman Catholic diocese in Rhode Island and articles published in his newspapers late: brought about his excommunication from the church, has been engaged to address a republican gathering in Putnam in the near future. The rumors were checked with A. Macdonald Jr., chairman of the Putnam republican town committee, who termed them as false. Mr. Macdonald said that he had no knowledge of any speaking committee working for the interests of the party, engaging Mr. Daigneault to speak in Putnam.

The plans for the large republican rally to be held at the Victory theatre in this city on Oct. 22 are now complete and the Woonsocket radical's name is not included among the list of those who will be on the speakers' stand.

When the word was first passed a few days ago murmurs against the act were issued in the city among those of Catholic faith. In Pomfret, the reading of the papers published by the Woonsocket man has been denounced from the pulpit and much of the friction recently stirred up in this city is believed to have had its source from sermons preached against Daigneault by the clergy.

No stone will be left unturned by the committee in charge of arrangements for the monster republican rally to be staged at the Victory theatre in Putnam on next Monday evening, according to reports today. It is expected that scores of voters will be unable to gain entrance to the auditorium. To remedy such a situation, the committee today were making arrangements to have an amplifying system installed in a vacant lot adjoining the theatre, so that the voices of the speakers will be brought to those who stand outside.

Although this plan has not been completed yet, it is almost a certainty that it will be carried out. The rally to be held next week, when Senator Bingham will speak, is the first of the campaign to be attempted by the republicans.

The democrats have resorted to the rally three times and all have been successful. Their plans are that a series of such gatherings will be held here before the campaign closes on Nov. 5.

Announcement came late this afternoon by Edmund Dubois, chairman of the democratic town committee, that another rally would be held in St. John's Hall on Providence street next Wednesday evening. The principal speaker of the evening will be Hon. John A. Matthew of New Jersey, a former congressman. Mr. Dubois was in receipt of a telegram informing him that Mr. Matthew had accepted the invitation of the Putnam committee. Other speakers have also been engaged, for this rally.

Wires that were formerly used as a source of power for the Connecticut company's trolley lines, when the electric cars were used in Putnam have disappeared from the business section of the city. A firm of wreckers has been engaged for the task of removing the overhead lines and the work has been started. A few months after the trolleys discontinued service, the company line truck removed a few miles of the wires about the city, but the brass lines in the business section were allowed to remain stranded until recently.

Several miles of track running from South Main to Grove and from Grove to Front and Main streets are still embedded in the street. There is no definite word as to when the rails will be removed. In Danielson the company, owning the rails removed them several months ago. The task was larger than expected and the Main street was tied up for several weeks. Since they do not obstruct the passing of traffic through the center of the city, it is believed they will be left in the present location.

NO WORD RELATIVE TO VETERANS' HOSPITAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 19—The committee of the Chamber of Commerce are without knowledge as to any action taken by the national Soldier Hospital bureau in charge of selecting a site for the proposed veterans' hospital that is to be somewhere in southern New England.

J. Dyer Potter, a member of the committee of the chamber of commerce and also on the committee appointed by the Anslem Mayotte post of the American Legion, has received word from the national committee of the Legion, informing him that nothing has been accomplished by the government committee working on the project. Mr. Potter said this afternoon that he has been promised by the committee in Washington that he will be notified of any action taken when the site is chosen and that Putnam will be given the same amount of consideration as that of any other city who submits desirable sites.

The seasonal watchword, "Do Your Christmas Shopping Early," is being put into practice at an early date by the post office force of this city. With the greatest of all holidays only a bit over two months away the local postmaster, Archibald Macdonald, Sr., is in receipt of a letter from the national post office department ordering him to place his order for the seasonal needs, such as extra stamps and other supplies. It is planned to have the necessary supplies for the Christmas rush in the post offices before Dec. 15. In past years the Christmas floods of mail commence about the middle of the month and continue beyond the first of the new year.

Judge M. H. Geissler and Attorney Irving H. Miron were in Willimantic this morning attending a session of civil court.

Costumes and other regalia typical of children ranging in age from 2 to 5 years adorned the bodies of the members of the senior class of Putnam high school today because it was

14—USED CARS—14
Sold Under an Entirely New Plan
October 22 to October 31 Inclusive
Buy At Your Own Price
Prices Have Not Been Raised
There Is Absolutely No Catch

Briefly, our plan is to automatically reduce the price of every used car each day at a uniform rate until they are sold. Cars below $300 at a rate of $10 per day and cars over $300 at a rate of $15 per day.

Every car is priced low to start and is worth more than the first price. These cars are reconditioned — have good tires—in many cases have been repainted—are in first class running condition. All good buys at the first price.

Here Are the Cars and Their Price Dates

Come In Monday, October 22 and See These Cars

Come early while there are many to select from, because they won't last long at these prices.
Compare these cars and then the prices with others. If you are in the market for a good car or have been disappointed in getting delivery of a cheap new car, you cannot afford to overlook this unusual opportunity of getting a good car at your own price.
Remember—The Indianapolis 500 Mile Race was won this year by a reconditioned used car! Very often they are as good or better than many new cars.
Don't wait too long—it is better to buy now at immediate or future delivery price than to miss your opportunity by waiting for too low a price. Your neighbor may not wait.

HICKMAN

William Edward Hickman has paid the penalty for the atrocious crime that he committed. Death has put an end to a career that was headed, according to the young man's own words, for worse crime than he had committed.

It is another one of the cases which should cause any and all of those who are harboring the idea that a criminal career pays to quickly change their minds. If the advice of Hickman is followed they will. He was brought to a realization of the weakness of his reasoning. He apparently carried the impression that he was too clever to be caught and punished. Somehow that is characteristic of criminals, or else they entertain the view that by some hook or crook, through sympathy or leniency, they can escape their desert.

Hickman is quoted as attributing his criminal career to education. It is difficult to see by what twist of the imagination he reaches that conclusion, but be that as it may there can be no question but what he has set an example which every other young man should avoid. He has managed to get into the limelight, but only to sacrifice his life and bring disgrace upon his family.

Still Hickman isn't the first to picture the error of such criminality. There is a long string of such cases, too long in fact, from which lessons can be easily drawn showing the mistake in such a course. Occasionally there are those who escape with a lighter penalty, once in a while there is a case where justice is cast to one side, but the young person who sets out by dedicating his life to crime, and especially the capital crime, deserves to give adequate thought in advance to the fact that many are executed and very few escape.

Hickman became aware of it too late. His education should have helped him to realize it instead of blinding him to the fact. His whole life is a warning to others to take the other course and follow the straight and narrow way. His was a wasted life.

MELLON REFUTES SMITH

When he made his campaign speech in Missouri, Alfred E. Smith may have thought that he could play fast and loose with the facts, or he may have thought that his statements would be allowed to go unnoticed. Secretary Mellon of the treasury department had no idea of permitting any such misrepresentations to be accepted as facts. He directs attention to the distortions made by Candidate Smith in his effort to belittle the Coolidge economy and puts forth the figures which showed what kind of jugglery the democratic candidate was resorting to in his bid for votes.

It was an opportunity for Mr. Mellon to show how far Mr. Smith came from the mark, how badly he fixed up figures to muddle the public and how poor his understanding is of national affairs.

In the first place Mr. Mellon was given the chance to set Mr. Smith right on the matter of economy, for he declared "Economy is not just saving but wise spending, the elimination of waste, the promotion of efficiency and businesslike methods, the building up of a sense of responsibility on the part of all public servants, the careful management of the government's finances, as exemplified, for instance, by a policy of steady debt reduction with consequent relief from the heavy burden of interest charges," and those things have been studiously carried out during the Coolidge administration.

When it came to the figures that Mr. Smith used, Mr. Mellon was able to show that instead of the claimed $200,000,000 increase in ordinary expenses it was only $29,000,000 or a seventh of what was alleged, while if all expenditures, including public debt items and postal deficiency were included there was an actual decrease of $13,000,000, even though $115,000,000 was spent in adjusted compensation for the war veterans which item was not in the budget in 1924.

Mr. Mellon's refutation was thorough and convincing, and it was apparent that it would have been much better had the Smith attack with its misrepresentations not been attempted. Like other of his speeches it reacts detrimentally to the candidate. A cause or a campaign that rests on such claims undermines itself.

NEW YORK VOTING MACHINES

Attention cannot fail to be halted by the situation which has developed in New York regarding voting machines. At a time when there is certain to be a big vote, at a time when there is a hard campaign underway and many new voters are being made, provision should have been made for sufficient machines to meet requirements in all of the country. Yet the election board makes the announcement that the boroughs of Queens, Richmond and Bronx must give up their machines to the others and return to the use of paper ballots.

The excuse for this is the alleged inability to get the machines, which can be understood with efforts being delayed too long, but machines have never been popular in New York city. There opposition to them was long and unflinching. Tammany didn't want to give way to the advantages which would accrue to honest voting. Thus with inadequate machines everything is lovely for Tammany. It will continue to have its own methods in three boroughs of the metropolis next month for another presidential election.

Whether the effort that is being made to upset the arrangement will succeed is a question, but if it does not, in the opinion of the New York Herald Tribune, "Tammany will have won a notable victory in its long struggle to postpone an honest ballot."

MACDONALD'S EFFORT

Unless all indications fail and he has, by a stroke of good fortune, been picked up by some vessels, the outlook is decidedly unfavorable for Lieutenant Commander MacDonald, who set out in his gypsy moth plane to fly from Newfoundland to Ireland.

MacDonald is an experienced aviator who has made long flights but he cannot be rated as expert since his flying has all been done within an 80 hour period, and he was not only taking chances in the use of such a small craft but he was making his premier flight on such a long water trip.

What has befallen MacDonald may never be known. Likewise it may never be known how far he got on the flight of nearly 1,000 miles, which, by the closest adherence to his course, would have taxed the capacity of his fuel tanks.

MacDonald occasioned much surprise by starting off on such a trip in a machine which is not intended for ocean flying. It was a case of displaying the necessary courage and taking a wild chance. It is to be hoped that it has not meant the sacrifice of another life in a needless manner, but all indications at the present time point strongly in that direction.

THE MAYOR IS RIGHT

In displaying his dissatisfaction with the action of the board of gas and electrical commissioners in simply asking the general manager to investigate the "commercial" rates, Mayor Robbins causes no surprise. His reaction is much the same as that felt by aggrieved citizens.

It was the whole question of rates upon which the mayor asked the board to hold a hearing, as well as upon the matter of selling appliances, and when the board undertook to substitute an investigation within the department it was endeavoring to escape just what was sought.

In placing the matter before the commissioners Mayor Robbins is acting in behalf of the citizens. His efforts are made in response to protests, in response to grievances, and it is time the trouble was cleared up.

The idea of conducting an investigation concerning the commercial rates indicates a feeling in the board that there is trouble there, but there are other users who are quite as confident that there is injustice done to other users of electricity. That phase of the situation ought not to be covered up. It ought not to be passed over because it concerns some of the small users. It ought not to be sidetracked because it involves the little fellows. Let all the cards be put on the table.

If on the other hand the board is able to show that it is justified in boosting the rates of some and lowering the rates of others it ought to be prepared to go before a public meeting and do so.

Mayor Robbins is again to be commended for the manner in which he calls for a complete revision of the new rates for all classes of aggrieved customers. There is no question but what he rightly interprets public sentiment in doing so.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Among the triumphs of science along the lines of practical utility nothing has surpassed the manufacture of synthetic silk. Up to a comparatively recent date the silkworm reigned supreme in this branch of textile industry. At last the noble and industrious little insect has been dethroned, or, perhaps more correctly, has found a keen competitor in her line of work. To Germany, only a few years since "apparently crushed to earth" industrially, has certainly been coming to its own along commercial lines. The high tariff walls have been leaped and Germany is now associating science and technical skill with American prosperity. The enormous factory in East Tennessee that is making synthetic silk is giving life to that mountainous country that greatly needed this touch of industrial energy. This new synthetic silk that looks, feels and wears like silk is produced by a scientific treatment of cotton "linters."

As one goes out into the country in the gorgeous period of October, nothing impresses him more than the beauty of dying vegetation. As a concrete illustration what a view is that just east of Shetucket Heights in the middle of the afternoon or, rather, what was it about a week ago, on a perfectly clear day. But for something more extensive, yet not a whit more intensive, take in the vision to the north, east and south of Franklin Hill from the turnpike. Or, again, all the way from Old Windham, to Plainfield. And particularly that wide expanse from the eastern slope at Westminster. Surely the Berkshires have nothing on eastern Connecticut for sheer autumnal beauty. And yet the sources of real beauty lie within ourselves. If they are wanting there will be no flaming maples on the hillsides or in the swamps.

Making another great national park out in that high region which lies partly in western North Carolina and eastern Tennessee, embracing one of the finest natural beauty spots of our broad country is going to add much to the happiness of nature lovers. This is the region of "the smoky mountains." It this beauty there is something which marks the beauty of the declining vegetable world. In this there is something which reminds us of the beauty of old age as many of those whom we have known have revealed it. Have we not seen those far past the alloted three score years and ten whose lives have exhibited all the rich tints of the sunset? Take that man of imperial mind that has been well trained for more than 50 years in what is richest and best in life, is there not a mental beauty that is quite easily discernable? And if that man has been found in the way of holiness, he is like the massive oak whose abundant foliage, under the touch of the autumnal frost, is a thing of beauty in its variety of colors.

Refering to this matter of making a great national park out of the smoky region of eastern Tennessee, is there not a great educational value in the scheme? Here is an area of 700 square miles of virgin forest as wild as any equal territory to be found in the United States, and yet it is only a few hundred miles from one of the finest settlements by the white race in America. Making a great national park of wild section will evidently have two marked results: First, it will bring the benighted mountaineers of this region into closer touch with civilization, and secondly, it will give vacationists from all the eastern parts of the nation an easy access to one of the natural beauty spots of the world. The Rockies are far away and other parks are very familiar.

Complaint has come from many quarters of our country, that since the annual vacation ended the people are very slow in getting back to their churches. And very naturally the question arises as to the reason. It is a fact quite generally recognized that for some time past, in all of our Protestant denominations there has been a noticeable decline in church attendance. Of course there is a cause for it, as every event has an adequate cause. The church as an organization may fail to function properly, and the people also may fail in their reasonable duties to the church. It is very apparent today that the average church member is not putting into his church just what the church has a right to expect. The church has not yet learned the art of absent treatment. It is perfectly safe to say that one is going to get out of his church just in proportion to what he puts into it and no more.

As the custom has been for several years past "Columbus day" received attention, and more than in some years, and yet in this section it was not a noisy demonstration. Columbus was a man so big that history will never forget him. Still it is hard to visualize the greatness of his accomplishments in the light of this day when crossing the Atlantic is for the most part only a pleasure trip. Possibly we who live here in the north would be more deeply interested in the deers of the great navigator if we had been more deeply interested in the deeds of tion which he represented. The Spanish civilization has never had any considerable influence over the Nordic race either in northern Europe or America. Still we admire his great deeds.

The writer has recently received from some kind friend a copy of a recent issue of The London Daily News and Westminster Gazette. The paper contains a number of marked articles and among them one paragraph "Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson," about whom, at the time of the article, a question was being raised by the home secretary, Sir William Joynson-Hicks, as to her desirability. The prevailing opinion seemed to be at that time that her presense was not desirable in England. To say the least there was some ground for this attitude. The character of this Los Angeles revivalist was not entirely beyond reproach. There are many devout people on both sides of the Atlantic who are pained at the antics of this woman who poses as an expounder of the Christian faith. As an evangelist she has a right to court publicity; that can be legitimately done. But she is not justified in seeking notoriety as she certainly has done.

It is quite natural for us in the heat of a presidential campaign to hark back to that immortal October 19, 1781, when Lord Cornwallis surrendered to General Washington at Yorktown. The name of this Virginia town will be forever linked in the American mind with that of Appomattox, when General Lee surrendered to General Grant. And also the two dates will be associated: that of October 19, 1781 with April 9, 1865. Is there not a certain parallel between the war of the Revolution and the Civil war? At the beginning of both of these terrible conflicts, how discouraging they were for the patrons of liberty during their earlier stages! And yet in God's own time the victory came, in the first case, in the freedom of the colonies from a foreign yoke, and in the latter case in the emancipation of the blackmen from the curse of servitude.

Dr. William J. Mayo, of Rochester, Minn., during his fellowship address at the convocation of the American College of Surgeons in Boston, said a decrease in recent years in the number of regularly trained physicians has been one cause of the increase in irregular practitioners.

CONNECTICUT MANUFACTURERS NEED PROTECTIVE TARIFF.

How important the protective tariff is to industrial Connecticut is disclosed by the statements of a group of Connecticut manufacturers. It is regarded as of vital interest to the tool industry, the silk industry, the manufacture of firearms and to machine shops. Why and how they tell in their own words as follows:

Disastrous Competition

"If the tariff were removed or reduced on the commodities we manufacture, I do not believe we could remain in business five years," said James W. Hook, president of the Geometric Tool company, one of New Haven's largest industries.

"The Geometric Tool company would have to meet disastrous competition in such circumstance. Average weekly wage comparisons in the tool industry as between United States and Germany show that in this country $28.18 is earned, while in the foreign country $10.90 is the wage. A schedule of the differences between the cost price of our goods made here in New Haven and copies made in Germany and Sweden shows that those copies are sold in competition with us in all other markets of the world except the United States for approximately half of what we can make them for here.

"We will not, of course, claim that the quality of these foreign copies is equal to ours, but, unfortunately, we are not the judges of this in the actual use of the product, and it would be tremendously tempting for a great many manufacturers in this country to save 50 per cent. on their threading tools if they could do so.

"The product we manufacture is mostly shipped by mail and express, so that the shipping expense from abroad to America would be very small. The men in our industry and factory, I think, thoroughly understand this, and, I believe that no issue in the present campaign transcends or even approaches in importance that of the tariff."

A Prime Essential

"Adequate tariff protection is a prime essential to the prosperous development of our business," said Sherry H. Childs, vice president of the Hendey Machine company of Torrington.

"Even under our present schedules," Mr. Childs said, "foreign machine tools are being brought into this country at prices decidedly below those of American-made goods. The quality may be at times inferior, but any possibility of increased sale of these cheap products through adjustment of the tariff would cause disaster to ourselves and to many other machine tool manufacturers.

"This is because the introduction into the domestic market of even a small percentage of low-priced machines is likely to result in a universal dropping of prices by all domestic makers in their apprehension over losing orders. The net result would be a price war against each other for the big volume of domestic business, while merely intending to protect themselves against a relatively small volume of foreign tools.

"That this danger is a very real one, we realize from foreign competition abroad where, since the war, we have found it increasingly difficult to sell tools made with American standards of wages and workmanship, when European-made copies of our machines are being marketed for just half the price of ours.

"The wage levels in our industry, when it is shown that the verage weekly wage in this country is $28.18, as against $10.90 in Europe, offer an excellent illustration of our interest in an uninterrupted continuance of the high, protective features of the republican administration's tariff policies.

"In brief, any injudicious juggling of the present republican tariff would in our opinion endanger the whole American machine tool industry, and the part this industry plays in making production and prosperity possible in this country is too well known to need emphasis."

Would Be Forced From Business

"It is safe to predict that were it not for the high, protective tariff on finished silk goods, the silk industry in this country would be forced out of business," said J. P. T. Armstrong, treasurer of the Corticelli Silk company of New London. "Such a happening would throw out of employment something like 200,000 workers who support, based on an average family of five to a worker, approximately 1,000,000 people in this country.

"The republican attitude toward the tariff is of vital importance to the silk industry. The raw material used in the manufacture of silk is, in most articles, something over 50 per cent. of the total value of the finished article, and as raw silk is the product of the silk worm, the cost of our raw material is all foreign labor, being the time spent by both men and women in Japan and China in caring for the silk worms, gathering the cocoons and eventually reeling them into skeins for use by the American manufacturer.

"While wages in Japan and China have advanced since the war, we believe that the average wage in Japan is today around 40 cents per day for silk operatives, which is less than one-tenth the average wage of American men and women working on this raw material, converting it from its raw state into finished threads and fabrics for use in this country.

"It is obvious that the republican, high, protective tariff is of vital importance to every silk manufacturer and to every one dependent upon the industry for a livelihood."

Tariff Necessary For Firearm Factories

"The effect of a reasonable tariff, of a low tariff, or of free trade upon the firearms business of the Colt's Patent Fire Arms Mfg. Co., at Hartford, is of vital importance to the more than 3,000 stockholders and to all employees of the plant, said Samuel M. Stone, president of that company.

"In the United States the production of small firearms during the war had been confined to strictly military models. Foreign manufacturers, realizing that there was a scarcity of small arms of non-military models in this country, immediately made their plans to capture the market. Because of the low rate of duty applicable to firearms under the Underwood-Simmons tariff act passed during the democratic administration, large quantities of foreign arms were imported and sold in the American market during the period following the war at prices lower than the actual cost for labor and material in making arms in the United States. For example, in the year 1922 there came into this market from Spain, Belgium and Germany 556,691 cheap, low-priced revolvers and automatic pistols.

"The price of labor in Spanish and Belgian plants is only from one-quarter to one-third of that paid the workmen in our plants for similar kinds of work. In the European plants the greater part of the work is done by women and girls, some of whom operate the heaviest types of machinery, carry their lunches with them, wear sunbonnets and wooden shoes and receive in many cases not more than $1 per day, and in other cases the equivalent to 20 cents per hour. Consequently the chief difference in the cost of making the arms in the European and in the American plants is represented by the difference in wage rates paid.

"When the market was being flooded with the cheap imported arms, numerous mailing houses sprang up in New York and other leading cities and these houses, in contrast with the policy of American manufacturers, advertised openly throughout the country that they would accept orders and ship firearms directly to individuals, without regard for state laws. No doubt, what has been called the "crime wave" has been encouraged by such illegitimate trafficking in firearms.

"If the Underwood tariff rate had continued, the European arms would probably have forced the home-made product from the market. When an effort was made to secure a more adequate rate of tariff in the Fordney-McCumber present tariff bill, the importers of the European arms raised strenuous objections because it would interfere with their business. These objections were raised in spite of the fact that their large incomes were derived solely from commission for handling the product of foreign workmen and that their business was of no benefit whatever to American workmen.

"Fortunately, under the guidance of the republican administration there was incorporated in the present tariff act in 1922 a rate of duty which makes it possible for the American manufacturers to continue operations.

"But if the democratic party, which has always been in favor of low tariffs or no tariff at all, should be permitted to control tariff matters, it is natural to assume that the firearms industry together with other manufacturers who are endeavoring to maintain a living rate of wage for their employees, would be confronted with great difficulty.

"The effort of the domestic firearms manufacturer to market his product in foreign countries, in competition with the low-priced products of European manufacturers, is sufficiently difficult without confronting him with the possibility of the loss of the domestic market by reason of similar competition at home through a downward revision of the tariff, which would, no doubt, result if the policy of the republican party for adequate protection should be reversed by the opponents of that policy."

Always Harmful to Textiles

"An immediate and severe strain upon those engaged in the textile industry in New England would be the disastrous result of meddling with the present republican protective law," said T. M. Russell, president of the Russell Manufacturing company of Middletown, one of the largest textile plants in New England.

"The Russell company has seen almost a century of continuous activity in the textile field, and during that long period has been subject to the influences of the various tariff policies of succeeding administrations. Not until the strong policy of protection of American industries was inaugurated by the republican party subsequent to the Civil war did our business, and the textile industry of New England, start upon its great development.

"From 1870 to 1885, when Cleveland was first inaugurated, the prosperity of our company was continuous and its growth satisfactory. With the free trade of the Cleveland administration, our activities were greatly curtailed and part-time operation, reduced wages, and no profits, became the order of the day.

"It required about a year of republican rule under President Harrison to restore the prosperous condition of former years, and then followed three years of good business resulting from increased wages, full time operation and good markets.

"Evidently the lesson of protection had not been learned, and Cleveland was returned to the presidency in 1893. My personal association with the company dates from that time, and during this second administration we were again on the part-time schedule and wages were materially reduced. We managed to weather this storm, also, but over a year of the McKinley administration, with its protective tariff, had gone by before the flood of cheap, foreign goods had been stopped and we were once more able to raise wages, resume full time operation and continue our growth and development.

"With the exception of the depression of 1921, which followed the Spanish war, general conditions in the New England textile field remained satisfactory until the fall of 1913. With the democratic victory of that year, the prospect of tariff reduction and importation of goods under a democratic 'tariff for revenue only' program, worked instantly to stop orders for American made goods.

"Had it not been for the war and the consequent unprecedented demand for our production, we would have passed through another disastrous period. Experience has shown the utter impossibility of contending against this wave of foreign imports if we are to maintain our standard of living and wage scales.

"The terrific hardships imposed upon the textile trade during the reconstruction period of 1920-22 were augmented by the entire lack of appreciation on the part of the 1917-1921 democratic administration of any steps which might have eased the burden. Industry had to work out its own salvation until legislation enacted under the republican administration had begun to function.

"Three separate times have I seen the disastrous results of democratic meddling with the tariff. Our return to prosperity has in each case been the result of and under republican administrations."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Electric Light Rates.

Mr. Editor: Well, I got my electric light bill with a 200 per cent. increase. Their rebort shows after every obligation was paid the department made a profit of $210,000 last year. The report also shows a profit and loss account of nearly $1,000,000 at the old rate.

Now what do they expect to do with the extra profit accruing from the 200 to 300 per cent. increase in the price of electric light?

Just as a comparison our water system is running today with the same water rate that prevailed 60 years ago. We have plenty of water and the water department turned over last year to the city treasurer $65,000 or more for the benefit of the taxpaying owners.

There are as many miles of water mains and property services under their care as there are miles of electric light wire under the care of the electric department. There are 12 or 15 men, a superintendent, cashier and lady assistant in the water department to do the work and 100 or more people to care for the electric and gas department. Some difference!

Is there any way for the taxpayer to find out what percentage of help it takes (paid for by the taxpayers) to run the merchandising department and just what the balance of the $210,000 is going to be used for after deducting the $50,000 turned over to the city treasurer for the benefit of the taxpayers less the $35,000 or $40,000 charged to the taxpayers for city light?

I am a merchant who is being driven to the wall, paying at 6½ per cent., city and town tax, up against the illegal and rotten competition of the municipal gas and electric department and now they have added 200 per cent. to my light bill.

Does the gas and electrical department intend to drive us all out of business and monopolize the whole thing for the benefit of a sales manager and his assistants? It is about time something was done by our city fathers and chamber of commerce before it puts us dealers in gas and electrical devices out of business. It seems very strange to me that we have a city department to which the city government has to get down on its knees and plead for the gas and electrical department to hold a public meeting and explain the reason for raising the electric ligt prices.

Why do not the mayor and city council order the gas and electrical commissioners to make known their reason for the increase of 200 to 300 per cent. on the electric light rates when their last year's report shows a net profit of $210,000?

I see by Friday's Bulletin the gas and electrical commission has requested the general manager to investigate the matter. That will be great and help out a lot.

A TAXPAYING VOTER.
Norwich, Oct. 19, 1928.

Favor's Hoover's Election

Mr. Editor: I want to answer "An Independent Voter's" letter of Oct. 16th, printed in the Norwich Bulletin. I am glad to see such a letter in The Bulletin. I wish that more people would speak out and not be so afraid of what a neighbor might think of them. I am a republican and were I a democrat I would not be one this fall. And when Nov. 6th rolled around I would be at the polls casting my vote for Herbert Hoover. I have heard Alfred E. Smith speak and his speech was nothing short of a mud throwing one. I grew tired of hearing his I's and what he was going to do when he was elected president of this fair land of ours. He's far from being elected, just let me tell the American public. I have not heard Mr. Hoover throw any mud so far when making a speech. And I do not believe that a man of Mr. Hoover's character and honest whole heartedness will at this late hour in his speech-making tour start in to throwing mud. Mr. Hoover is best fitted for the high office of that of president of this United States of America. I am sorry that Mr. Hoover has competition with a man of Alfred E. Smith's type. But I know that Mr. Hoover will be America's forth-coming president. The American people are awake. And thank God the women from coast to coast are up and working to put over this great fight between "right and wrong." The best man is bound to win. And on Nov. 7th there will be millions of happy American men and women throughout this great land. Happy because a clean, God-fearing man is America's president.

MISS LAURA I. MILLER.

Sunday Morning Talk

The Bridge.

"Behold what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the Sons of God."

The Christian is God's habitation, His temple, the dwelling place of His spirit. In whom ye also are builded together for an habitation of God through the spirit, collectively this is true of the whole company of believers. Individually, it is no less true that each Christian is God's temple and in each God's spirit takes up His abode.

Perhaps this is our greatest privilege. How near God comes to the soul of His child. How marvelous that, in some way we cannot understand, He designs to take up His abode in the lowly cottage of the human soul; never imagine that the pardoned sinner is like the criminal set free from prison left to make his way as best he may.

Rather may we compare him to a man loose from bondage and at once entering upon a beautiful estate, with its fair mansion and its lands fertile beyond any around.

Or shall we say he has crossed over from the land of sorrow and death to the land of peace and life and immortality.

Blessed are the people that are in this position. Yes, blessed are the people that have the Lord for their God. But what is the bridge between the two. How may you cross over from one to the other; how may you individually take up your lasting abode in the favor and love of God, and in the privileges He gives. Here is the bridge.

"But now in Christ Jesus ye who sometimes were far off are made nigh by the blood of Christ."

Here are the two lands: "Far off," the land of darkness and death. "Made night," the land of light and life. And here, too, is the bridge prepared at so great a cost by the Great King; Christ Jesus and His precious blood. "He is our peace." He came to open the way. He went through a sea of misery, agony and shame to prepare this safe pathway for sinners to draw nigh to God. And you need no more. By trusting in Jesus, by pleading His precious blood, by coming back to your Heavenly Father as unworthy to approach Him by reason of your sin, you are reckoned worthy because seen in Him and made white through His blood.

You will find no bridge but this. Jesus only. His death. His sacrifice and His free salvation, is the only path from death to life. And humble faith uses the bridge and is never disappointed. Blessed are all they that trust in Him.

YOUR HEALTH

Pupils Jump Half Grade As Result of Remedying Mouth Infections

(By Wm. R. Davis, D. D. S., Director Bureau of Mouth Hygiene, Michigan Department of Health.)

Ten years' experience, examining thousands of school children, has convinced me that the appalling amount and the evil affect of mouth infection among them has not been exaggerated.

Last year a survey of second grade rooms in many communities in various parts of Michigan showed that the average was as follows: 87 per cent needed teeth filled or extracted or both, 56 per cent had cavities in permanent teeth and 69 per cent needed extraction. In most cases the latter was on account of pus and putrefaction running down the throat twenty-four hours of the day, and not only from one abscessed tooth but in many cases from six, eight or ten abscessed teeth. Remember these were average conditions, not the worst, and that they were almost entirely in seven-year-old children. Keep in mind, also, that these infections in this age group were almost entirely from baby teeth. Many people even yet consider baby teeth unimportant. Also half of these children already had permanent teeth on the road to that condition.

If these abscesses had been on arms and legs, where mother had to bandage them, should would have been greatly alarmed, but in the mouth, mixing with the saliva and constantly running down the throat, she did not realize the danger at all.

Chronic abscessed teeth are not often painful. They have passed that stage, but they are very harmful. Many children are taking their food through a sewer, although the mouth is the gateway to the body and ought to be a clean healthy portal.

These facts are not exaggerations of an enthusiast; they can be vouched for by teachers, nurses, school superintendents, physicians and others who were present during these examinations and had an opportunity to see for themselves. Sschool examinations elsewhere reveal similar conditions, and these are a menace to health and may mean permanent injury. They are also a heavy drag and expense on the school program. Such children cannot do good school work.

The pupils of the first room in which we saw these conditions entirely remedied jumped a half grade by doing the whole next year's work in the first semester. There was not an absence during the whole year on account of sickness except one little girl who had pneumonia. Many places have made such an experiment, and in every case health and scholarship were always improved.

Mouth infections in children should not be tolerated. Teeth that cannot be filled and kept free from infection should be extracted at any age.

Prevent such conditions by proper diet and early dental attention.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19—If Senator Peter Norbeck has occasion to do more work next session on the migratory bird refuge bill which caused him such irritation in the filibuster clogged closing hours of the last gathering of the senate, perhaps he could be induced to look into Washington's claims in that regard. It is the greatest refuge for political lame ducks on the map.

Strictly speaking, "lame duck" in a political sense has come to mean a political office holder defeated for re-election or renomination and then given appointive political office as a party reward of merit or "for other purposes," as congressional bill titles always say.

"Lame Ducks in Office"

Washington has a considerable collection of such folks headed by no less personages than their excellencies, Secretary Kellogg and Postmaster-General New, both former senators. The fate show former Senator McCumber of North Dakota on the joint international commission, and Sutherland of West Virginia as alien property custodian.

Everett Sanders of Indiana is secretary to President Coolidge, Mills of New York is under-secretary of the treasury, Hull of Iowa commissioner of immigration, Winslow of Massachusetts on the railroad labor board, Humphrey of Washington state on the trade commission. All of these names and a number of others still on government payrolls once were prominent in the senate or house.

This is by no means all of the Washington crop of former elective office holders. A taste of Washington public life apparently has been conducive to abandonment completely of the old home town and the right to vote. There is no way of telling how many former members of senate or house, or former cabinet members now are permanent residents of the city. Among former cabinetees, of course, is Lansing, and W. G. McAdoo has a Washington law office.

Among the "Outs"

Just an off-hand glance at the classified list of Washington lawyers shows these names: Sydney Anderson of Minnesota, once chairman of the house agriculture committee; James M. Beck, once solicitor-general; Phil Campbell of Kansas, once head of the powerful house rules committee; C. C. Carlin of Virginia, Underwood presidential nomination campaign manager in that hectic democratic struggle in New York four years ago; the late Senator George Chamberlain of Oregon, war head of the senate military committee; Gore, the blind former senator from Oklahoma, and his one-time senate colleague, Owen; John Philip Hill of Maryland, hero of stirring rows with prohibition enforcement officials in his congressional days; Lenroot of Wisconsin, in his day a senate storm and news center; Sherley of Kentucky, war time head of the house fortifications committee; Slemp of Virginia, a former Coolidge secretary after house experience; Joe Tumulty of New Jersey, Wilsonian secretary at the White House; Thomas of Colorado, former senator; Weller of Maryland who has twice failed to get telephone book holds, nobody knows.

Stories That Recall Others

Off the Bone

Little Alice was visiting her aunt. When the dinner hour drew near Alice began wondering what was on the menu. When told that her favorite vegetable, corn, was to be served, she exclaimed:

"Oh, goody! Is it the kind you chew off the bone? I just luves dat!"

Knew One Word

Company from out of town was being entertained in this home. George, the visitors' son, age three, and Raymond, the host's nephew, age three, developed quite a friendship. When at last the guests were obliged to leave, the host asked the name of the street in which they lived. They replied as to the street and proceeded to spell it.

George, desiring to imitate his elders, asked: "What is your name and how do you spell it?"

Ray was acquainted with the spelling of just one word, so consequently he was somewhat baffled by George's question. Soon, however, he smiled and replied, "Why, my name is Raymond, s-t-o-p."

If every one could have his own way this world wouldn't be worth living in.

ALL DAY IN CELL BEFORE FINE WAS PAID

James Gilbert, alias Joseph Forte, who gave his address as Hartford, was fined $25 and costs in the city court Friday morning on a charge of operating a motor vehicle without having an operator's license. He was arrested Thursday and at that time he gave his name as Joseph Forte of Hartford. Later it was learned that Forte was not his right name. In court Friday morning the man removed two letters from his shoes, the letters showing that his name is James Gilbert. It was learned that the machine he was driving is owned by James Everett Dwyer of Providence. Gilbert remained in a cell at police headquarters until about 9 o'clock Friday evening when friends paid his fine.

TWO FOUND DEAD IN AUTOMOBILE AT NEWARK

According to word received Thursday evening by Roland R. Ockrey of No. 112 Chestnut street, this city, his niece, Mrs. Eugene McGreoy of Newark, N. J., and her small daughter, were found dead in their automobile in their garage Tuesday evening at 6:30 o'clock. No other information was given in the message sent to Mr. Ockrey. Mrs. McGreoy was the daughter of Stephen Ockrey of Newark, (a brother of Mr. Ockrey of this city) and a sister of Mrs. Lillian King of Hartford.

MARYLAND GOVERNOR MAKES STIRRING ADDRESS AT DEMOCRATIC RALLY

Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland made a stirring presentation of the democratic cause at the party rally Friday night at the town hall which was jammed with a standing room crowd of 1,500 while several hundred more outside on Union square stood in the half mist and did the best they could to hear his address through amplifiers over the noise and confusion raised by a crowd of active young Americans sporting around with shrill voices and scuffling feet.

Besides the principal address by the Maryland governor, there were shorter addresses by William M. Citron of Middletown, candidate for congressman in this district, Congressman Augustine Lonergan of Hartford, candidate for United States senator, and Frank P. Fenton of Willimantic, candidate for lieutenant governor.

Preceding the rally, there was a reception for Governor Ritchie at the Wauregan hotel and from this the speakers in automobiles headed a short parade as far as Burnham square and back to the town hall. Swahn's band led the parade, Smith banners were carried, and the line of about 500 men and women burned red fire along the way.

Ex-Mayor Milo R. Waters was chairman at the rally, introducing Mr. Citron as the first speaker and describing him as a man who had turned Middletown from a republican to a democratic city by the largest figures ever known there.

In part Mr. Citron spoke as follows:

"I come to you from that sister city of democracy on the shores of the Connecticut river, the city of Middletown, where in the last city and town election, we swept the republicans like chaff in the winds, and elected the mayor by the unprecedented majority of 864 votes, and my message from Middletown to Norwich is that we will carry it on Nov. 6 by a majority of 1,000 for Gov. Smith and the whole democratic ticket.

"As the candidate for congress on the democratic ticket, I stand four-square with Governor Smith on the stand he takes on the issues of the day. I believe that all want prosperity and that the democratic party stands for tariff protection. But the democrats offer the more progressive and constructive suggestion of a non-partisan tariff commission, a fact-finding body, which would avoid the present evils of logrolling and favoritism in Washington and substitute equality and justice for little manufacturers, just as only big industry has been receiving for the last seven years.

"I am in accord with Governor Smith's stand on prohibition I believe that the present evils flowing from the 18th amendment and Volstead act are solvable, if we accept Gov. Smith's suggestion. There is no question that the country is wet, and that the sentiments of the people are for a remedy, but only Smith has had the coutage of his convictions to come out bravely with a remedy.

"I challenge my opponent to explain whether he stands for a modification of the 18th amendment and Volstead act. The people of this district are tired of a man carrying water on both shoulders or of trying to face in two directions at the same time!

"I am in accord with Gov. Smith's stand on natural resources and water power. I believe in government ownership and operation of Muscle Shoals. With government operation in Ottowa, electricity is sold at 2.6 cents per kilowatt, but the average in the United States is 7 cents. Where does all the extra money go to?

"I hope that Norwich gives our ticket an unprecedented majority. It will mean that you are not giving your influences to personalities, but to the issues, and to that side of the issues as our party offers you."

Greeting for Gov. Ritchie

Governor Ritchie was given a rousing greeting as he was introduced by Chairman Waters, the crowd standing and cheering for him as he stepped to the front of the platform.

Governor Ritchie stated that there were two principles vital to the American republic in this campaign on account of which he approached the fight with a little more enthusiasm than he had known in any other campaign. First, there was the American doctrine of local self-government and state's rights, which he is applying to the prohibition question and demanding the right to vote by states whether we want a continuance of Volsteadism or to throw it out of the window. In the second place there is the American principle of tolerance and we insist, he said, that religion shall not be a factor in the right of any man to hold office of any kind.

It is hard to debate, he said, with a man who won't talk on his side and silence on the issues seems to be the distinguishing mark of Herbert Hoover. The American people have reached the opinion that political pussyfooting and evasion are not to be considered political assets.

Taking up the subject of prohibition Governor Ritchie said that this was a fundamental question of government and the rights of the states. One section is imposing its will on its sister states and when we want to express our rights they charge us with nullification. It is a deplorable situation, with danger and temptation to the young and an era of lawlessness and disrespect for law has been the result. He called attention to the situation in Philadelphia where every force is trying to break the wave of crime but no one seems able to do it. You can't solve local problems, he said, except in the locality where they exist. Let us settle our home affairs at home. We are asking congress to stop nullifying the rights of the states and we ought to root out the 18th amendment, lock, stock and barrel, but we know the difficulties and we join with Governor Smith's suggestion.

Unhappily into this campaign, said Mr. Ritchie, has come the issue of religious intolerance. For Governor Smith to be beaten on this issue would be a national disaster. I believe the only way is to talk this out in the open. I am not a Catholic but I say that from the day nearly 300 years ago when the Calverts founded in Maryland the first Catholic settlement in the colonies, no pope nor hierarchy, nor any one on behalf of the Catholic has ever attempted to exercise political power in our government. We want to get over the fear of what might happen to the country if a Catholic should happen to be president. No American boy who volunteered and fought and died for his country was ever turned down on account of his religious faith and you haven't got a right to turn down a great American who offers his services to his country, because of his religion. We admit that a Catholic is good enough to be admitted to heaven and he ought to be good enough to be president.

Governor Ritchie devoted some sharp comment to "political parsons" among whom he designated Dr. John Roach Straton and called them a menace, saying that they should understand it was time they stopped substituting the teachings of the Anti-Saloon league for the word of God in their pulpits.

On the subject of prosperity, he said that it is prosperity for the average man that is wanted and it doesn't look like prosperity for the average man with four million people out of a job, fifty per cent of the corporations showing a deficit and farmers in bankruptcy. What prosperity the country has had is due to its natural resources and the pluck and ingenuity of the American workingman and woman.

He condemned opposition to Gov. Smith "because of his Tammany affiliations," and pointed out Herbert Hoover as a student of practical politics who rose to his present political eminence through a political organization all his own.

"Fourteen years ago" he said, "Hoover was unknown. The war broke out and he came to be the American resident abroad who was entrusted with the disposition of relief we sent to Belgium. Then we entered the war. Hoover was made food administrator with unprecedented powers backed by all our zeal to win the war. He came out of the war as the one great civilian hero. Having tasted the fruits of acclaim he decided he would like to be president, as was his right. He went about it like a good engineer and began to study practical politics. Appointment to the Harding cabinet made him definitely a republican and he began to develop his first political policy—that of silence. At the same time he was developing his own cult of practical politics through a political organization all his own."

But the republican nominee, Gov. Ritchie said, lacks the "human understanding and the heart," that Gov. Smith acquired in "reaching his position by the step-by-step route of the democrat."

"Neither Hoover nor anyone else who does not possess that can hire it," he said, "but Smith can hire all the engineers the country needs. In him the people see an inspired champion and a national leader come to equalize the blessings of this rich land."

Applause that shook the hall greeted Governor Ritchie at many points in his address, and when he left immediately afterward in order to take the train for Baltimore, the crowded hall gave him a rousing farewell as he was escorted from the hall by Ex-Mayor T. C. Murphy and Judge T. J. Kelly, for whom Officer P. T. Shahan elbowed a way down the main aisle.

Candidate for U. S. Senator

Congressman Augustine Lonergan of Hartford, candidate for United States senator, was the following speaker, opening his address with an expression of pleasure at being in Norwich, where his parents lived about 50 years ago.

Mr. Lonergan spoke of the number of big business men who have endorsed the candidacy of Governor Smith, whose outstanding characteristic is courage. The nation, he declared, needs a leadership that shall be vigorous and positive, and he paid a high tribute to the leadership of Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, who, he declared, was the man for which the country has been waiting for years.

Mr. Lonergan stated that, if elected he should introduce a bill providing that no amendment to the constitution should be effective until all the states had had opportunity to vote on it.

Frank P. Fenton, nominee for lieutenant governor, who had come here from Willimantic to attend the rally and had a seat on the platform spoke briefly, expressing his gratification at being able to attend the rally.

Announcement was made of a democratic rally to be held in New London on Oct. 31.

The amplifiers on Union square were installed by Walter H. Nelson.

MAYOR DECLARES REVISION IS THE ONLY REMEDY

"As I sense the public pulse at this time nothing except a complete revision of your new rates will be adequate to allay the present general dissatisfaction," says Mayor Lee Roy Robbins in another letter which he has sent to the board of gas and electric commissioners. The mayor points out that the new rates are inequitable in many cases to all classes of consumers and also brings to the attention of the commissioners that the policy of selling appliances does not meet with the approval of the people and should be discontinued.

Several days ago Mayor Robbins addressed a letter to the commissioners suggesting that a public hearing be held by them with regard to the new rates. The commissioners, in answer, informed the mayor that they had held a meeting and had instructed the general manager of the gas and electric department to investigate the new commercial rate with a view to bringing in recommendations for the relief of that class of consumers. Following is the mayor's latest letter to the commissioners:

Norwich, Conn., Oct. 19, 1928.

Board of Gas and Electrical Commissioners:

Gent'emen:—

Your answer to my letter of the 16th, while it evidences the knowledge upon your part of "more or less dissatisfaction with the new rate," fails to convey assurance of your "desire to co-operate with and to assist" all consumers affected by a change in rate."

The resolution passed instructing the genera. manager to "investigate the recently installed commercial rate with a view of bringing in recommendations for relief for that class of consumer" assures no result satisfactory to that aggrieved class and clearly excludes from all hope of relief the smal. residential consumer whom I submit is equally entitled to your consideration.

In view of the conference had with a majority of the board at my office Wednesday afternoon, your communication fails to carry out my understanding of the course of action you decided at that time to adopt.

As I sense the public pulse at this time, nothing except a complete revision of your new rates resulting in actual relief to ALL classes of aggrieved consumers will be adequate to allay the present general dissatisfaction. Taking care of a portion of them does not meet the issue.

My purpose in suggesting that your board hold a public hearing was made in the beleief that through this medium you would become convinced that:

First—That the new rates are inequitable in many cases to all classes of consumers and those affected demand relief.

Second—The policy of selling appliances does not meet with the approval of the people, and for that reason should be discontinued.

If your board disagrees with these conclusions what else can make a public hearing more imperative?

Respectfully yours,

LEE ROY ROBBINS,
Mayor.

GIVES FINAL ADVICE IN BETTER BUSINESS CONGRESS

John W. Griest of Chicago, who has been conducting the Better Business congress under the auspices of the Merchants bureau of the Norwich chamber of commerce, concluded his series of addresses Friday at the Wauregan hotel upon "Salary Wise and Opportunity Foolish" and "Creating a Community Spirit." There were record attendances at each session. The institute was brought to a close with the noon meeting, at which Mr. Griest and Miss Wadell were each presented a gift of a Norwich product from the merchants. Mr. Griest will go from here to Burlington, Vt.

On Community Spirit

A capacity audience was present at the noon-day meeting of the Merchants Institute to hear Mr. Griest on the final of his series of talks, the topic of which was Creating a Community Spirit. Previous to the address John J. O'Rourke on behalf of the merchants of the city presented a beautiful bouquet of flowers to Miss Waddell and a fine Thermos bottle set to Mr. Griest as a token of their appreciation of their work in the past week. "I felt that a product of Norwich is an ideal gift," said Mr. O'Rourke, in presenting the gifts. Mr. Griest and Miss Waddell accepted the gifts with appropriate remarks.

Before dealing with the topic of the day Mr. Griest recommended a few things to the merchants which had been brought to his observation. First, you need to add a better line of merchandize than you are now carrying. Second, there must be closer cooperative efforts on the part of the retailers in advertising. Third, the need of store councils by salespersons and employers once a week. I have found in your city some very good window displays. A number of them lack continuity. There is a conglomeration of articles placed in the windows. He pointed out an instance in the city where a store had taken an old building, a liability and made an asset out of it. They've taken what they've had and made an asset, said Mr. Griest. Take what you have and create the atmosphere around it.

There is an opportunity for better lighting in your windows, said Mr. Griest, 50 per cent of them can be improved. Keep the windows lighted until the second motion picture show. The people like to do window shopping. In cooperative advertising I recommend that the golden rule plan be used in Norwich. I advise that an advertising campaign be started six or eight weeks before Christmas advertising Norwich as a trading center. A representative number, say 100, should join in the campaign and the newspaper should cooperate with you in outlining a plan which would meet with your approval.

Community spirit is the crystallization or visualization of ones faith in his community, said Mr. Griest. The retail merchant can not expect the buying public to buy here if he and his family order things outside of the city. You are wrong to think so. Let us shop here in Norwich. Give your home people an opportunity. If you do not have an article on stock do not tell him to order it direct from New York. That is a tremendous mistake. By doing this you will get the individual customer in the habit of ordering direct.

Norwich Needs Advertising

Another thing that Norwich needs, said Mr. Griest, is national advertising. I said "Norwich was slipping" in a previous address. I will explain this with an illustration. In driving over a steep hill near Uniontown, Pa., I became lost in the scenery and was forced to shift my car into second gear. The other cars passed me. That is what is the matter with Norwich. Norwich is not going backwards down the hill, but has shifted into second gear. It is your opportunity to shift into first gear. Through what medium, said Mr. Griest, I would say the New York or Chicago papers. Mr. Griest then named a number of cities which had profited through this sort of advertising, advertising their city to the country as an industrial or trading center.

In speaking of the hotels of the city, which Mr. Griest said were very good and filled most of the time, he brought out the fact that the city ought to take advantage of the hotel plan. It would be a great attraction for the tourists and outside man, concluded the speaker. At the conclusion of the address several merchants were called upon by Chairman Case to express their sentiments concerning the series of talks, all of them remarking that they had been greatly benefitted by the addresses.

PRESENT REPUBLICAN CAUSE BEFORE COLORED WOMEN

An enthusiastic republican rally of the colored women of the city was held Friday evening at the Mt. Calvary Baptist church with about 75 women in attendance. A letter from His Honor Mayor Lee Roy Robbins was read at the rally by Mrs. Frank A. Mitchell in which the mayor stated that he was unable to appear as the principal speaker as he was tied up for the evening with an important engagement.

The rally opened with the singing of America, after which Judge Arthur F. Libby of the city court was introduced as the first speaker. The republican party has numbered among the colored people many friends, said Judge Libby, and the party for many years has counted the colored people as their friends. You have always been loyal to the party and have supported it. It is well for us to take account of stock and see if we should continue to go in the same direction we are going, whether to make a change would mean progress or not. Every intelligent voter should ask that. We certainly have been in a state of prosperity. During this prosperity you people of the church burned your mortgage.

There are a few questions of importance that come up in this campaign. We should decide for ourselves how we should answer these questions. The farm issue is one of them. It does not interest us very much as this is an industrial city. One question that concerns us is the question of immigration. The republican party stands for restrictive immigration, while Smith and the democratics think that the immigration laws should be changed. If they were changed it would mean that a vast number from the southern part of Europe would come into the country. You will then have a cheap grade of people to compete with. So one question for you to ask yourself tonight is which party shall I vote for or stand for on the question of immigration.

Another question is the tariff question. The republicans have always stood for high protective tariff. A protective tariff is placed on imports from other countries. If there were no tariff the Europeans can manufacture the same goods as we are and put the goods on the American market on their own scale. In Europe the workmen works more than eight hours and receives a very much smaller pay per day. If the manufacturers and industrial plants of the United States are to compete with them they will be obliged to pay the same scale and make you work the same hours, longer hours than you are working now. So one question I would answer in my own mind is which party shall I vote for for the prosperity of the state and country on the question of protective tariff.

Still another question is do you want to vote and pay for the moving of Tammany hall from 14th street, New York city to Washington, D. C. I will not go into a discussion of this. Tammany hall stands for, you know, for the most corrupt and worst things in politics. There is still another question and that is the issue of prohibition. In the democratic convention it was brought out that they stood for prohibition. What did Mr. Smith do on the same night after his nomination. He sent back to the convention, but not until after he was nominated, that he stood for the repeal of the Volstead act. Are you going to vote for a man who goes back on his party's platform. You think whether you choose to support a party which is pledged for the enforcement of prohibition or a party whose candidate goes back on the party's platform.

The concluding speaker for the evening was Mrs. Francis Gilman Perkins, who said "that Hoover knows the world we live in and the world knows him." She proved this statement with an excellent biography of Herbert Hoover, stressing the varied experiences he had had and the notable work he had done in different parts of the world. She closed her talk by giving a number of reasons why Herbert Hoover should be voted for and elected president.

How Weak Nervous Women Grow Stronger

Feel Better, Look Younger and Have Steadier Nerves

If you only knew—you rundown, anemic women — who are dragging yourself around on your "nerve"—what a wonderful increase in strength and health Tanlac will give you, you wouldn't hesitate a moment about going to your druggist and getting a big bottle of this splendid medicine.

Mrs. Dora Robillard, of Bellingham, Mass., R. F. D. 1, Box 17, says: "I had no digestion nor appetite. Sick headaches laid me up in bed three days at a time. I couldn't even do light housework. Now I do all our cooking and washing in addition to the other work."

Tanlac is as free from harmful drugs as the water you drink—only Nature's own medicinal tonic herbs. Druggists know this and for the past 10 years have recommended it to men and women who need a quick "pick up" that will put them on their feet and give them a new interest in life.

So confident are the makers of Tanlac that if you are not helped by it, you get your money back on request.

STANTON FAVORITE TO WIN DUWELL FIVE MILE RACE THIS AFTERNOON

Led by Horatio Chief Stanton, lanky Narragansett Indian, who finished fifth in the Port Chester marathon a week ago, a team of distance runners from the Hope A. C. of Westerly will invade the city this afternoon to engage the Duwells in a five-mile team race. The race will be over the same five-mile course as was used in the first annual Memorial day race here in 1926, starting and finishing in front of the Duwell club rooms, at the intersection of Hamilton avenue and Main street.

The Westerly team is composed of Stanton, Angelo Murano, Zip Fusaro, Fritz Viglilo, Tony Quartromarria, Trenchy Vezina, Cliff Collins, Chape Beaumonot, Jack Fox and Albert Holt.

HORATIO STANTON

The first three mentioned have taken part in several of the big races staged here on Memorial day of the past three years and have placed well on each occasion. The remainder of the team are practically all new men who have been 'pounding the pavements" in races throughout Rhode Island during the past summer season.

The local team, composed of the Keeley brothers, Johnny and Austin; John Bolderghine, Alfio Urbanati, Arthur Rollband, Nipper Zinavage, Joe Enos, William Kerr and Eddie Antoofian, have been running together all summer in races about the state and have done fairly well. The race this afternoon, however, is only its second team race of the season, a previous event of this kind being run at South Manchester on July 4th.

Although each team has entered about ten men, only the first five of each club to finish will count in the scoring, which will be according to the low point system. To the team that places the winning team will be awarded a trophy, with prizes for the individuals that count in the scoring and those that take the first three places, regardless of club affiliation.

Both teams are fairly evenly matched and a hot contest throughout the entire five-mile distance is predicted.

The course of the race is as follows:

Start at Duwell club, proceed through Main street to Franklin square, up Franklin street and McKinley avenue, through Crescent street, up Washington street to the Backus hospital corner, through Lafayette and Sachem streets back onto Washington street, down Washington street to Washington square, through Water and Shetucket streets to the Shantok corner, through Franklin square and Main street to the finishing point.

YALE ALL READY FOR BROWN GAME TODAY

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 19—(AP)—Yale gridiron warriors were carefully handled today, to prevent any possible injury to the eleven, before the Brown game tomorrow. Mal Stevens put his charges through light signal drills most of the afternoon practice session, finishing the workout with polishing up the squad's passing and kicking.

The injury jinx seems to hang close to Eli's hells this season as several of the regulars will be unable to play in the Brown game. Eddie Decker, the powerful fullback, is not expected to be able to play at all, as he is suffering from a badly bruised shoulder received in scrimmage this week. Oldt and Kell, two first-string men, are also expected to be out of the line-up against the Brown Bears as both men are on the injured list, with bad shoulder bruises. If the three men are used, they will go in only in case of emergency.

Yale expects to face the strongest Brown aggregation tomorrow that she has had to contend with since the inauguration of the first Brown game 34 years ago. The famous iron men of Brown two years ago gave Yale a hard tussle but from reports this season that nationally famed eleven has been outdone this season.

Norman Hall, the veteran guard, will line up Saturday for the first time this year. He has been out with an injury to his foot, received last summer.

ALL-STAR BOWLING TEAM OPENS SEASON NEXT WEEK

The All-Star Bowling team of the Eastern Connecticut bowling league will open its 1928 season on next Tuesday evening at the Lawrence alleys in New London. The league team is comprised of Frank's Barber of Danielson, Chip Dugas of Taftville, Mike Morin of the Palace alleys, Claude Combles of the Aetna and one other player to be selected before the game. This team is scheduled to roll the best teams in the state and an effort will be made to get into the state tournament late in the season.

Sombathy and Battalino Matched

HARTFORD, Oct. 19—(AP)—Jules Sombathy of Bridgeport has signed to fight "Bat" Battalino, popular local boxer, at Foot Guard hall here on Friday, Oct. 26, according to Ed Hurley, promoter.

IMPORTANT CONFERENCE GAMES IN WEST TODAY

(By Charles W. Dunkley, Associated Press Sports Writer)

CHICAGO, Oct. 19—(AP)—The first major offensive toward settling the 1928 football championship of the western conference will be launched tomorrow with two undefeated teams, Indiana and Illinois, colliding in Urbana in the stadium "Red" Grange built.

It will be the game of the day, this row between the Hoosiers, conquerors of Michigan, and the Illinois, the 1927 title holders, who will make their 1928 debut in conference competition. There also are three other conference games on the fire, but in each contest an eliminated team will be fighting one that is striving to remain in the championship ranking.

This will be particularly true in the annual Ohio State-Michigan classic at Columbus. The Wolverines, twice defeated, are not one of the important teams of other years, and tomorrow's game will yield an opportunity for the Buckeyes to break the Wolverine jinx. Ohio, for the first time in recent years, will go into the game a favorite. In 23 years of football rivalry extending back to 1897, the Wolverines have scored 20 victories over the Ohioans, with three going to the Buckeyes.

With Illinois looming up as a repeater to win this year's honors, Coach Zuppke's men wil go into the battle a favorite. The teams have not met since 1914, when Illinois won 51 to 0.

Minnesota, one of the great threats of the year, following its 15 to 0 victory over Purdue, meets the much-mauled Chicago Maroons at Minneapolis. There appears to be little hope for Stagg's battered wariors against the rough Minnesota boys. The two teams are resuming football relations after a lapse of ten years.

Wisconsin and Purdue clash at Lafayette. The Badgers are more eager to wallop Purdue than they were to put the skids under Notre Dame. The Badgers are favorites.

Iowa, which sank Chicago a week ago, eases up with a non-conference game against Ripon college at Iowa City, while Northwestern meets Kentucky at Evanston in the other remaining games of the conference schedule.

UZCUDUN LOSES TO PETERSON ON A FOUL

EBBETS FIELD, BROOKLYN, N. Y., Oct. 19—(AP)— Paulino Uzcudun, Spanish heavyweight fighting his first match of a new American invasion lost to Big Boy Peterson of Minneapolis, on a foul in the second round of a ten round bout before a rain-sprinkled crowd of 10,000 here tonight. Uzcudun was disqualified for hitting the mid-westerner while Peterson lay unconscious, his head hung over the middle rope.

Peterson, after holding the Basque evenly in the first round, collided with Paulino's burly left hook to the head in the second and went down for a count of nine. As he staggered to his feet, almost helpless, the Spaniard swarmed all over him with crushing short arm jolts to the head and body.

Peterson reeled into his own corner under the barrage and collapsed as Paulino nailed him closely with both hands to the head. The mid-westerner went down and out, but Paulino, in his anxiety, applied one punch more than was necessary. He hit Petersen, slipping past Referee Magnolia's guard to do so and was promptly disqualified and the victory awarded to the unconscious battler. Paulino weighed 199 1-2, Peterson 201.

Amaldo Grillo, Italian light heavyweight, fought a draw with Jack Segan, of New York, in a six round match. Grillo weighed 172 1-4, Segan 168 1-2.

Marco Polo, Pittsburgh heavyweight, scored a technical knockout over Harry Fay of Louisville, in the fifth round. The referee refused to let the match go on in view of a big gash over Fay's left eye. Polo weighed 183, Fay 181.

Jackson Shaw, of Union City, N. J., stopped Francisco Cruz, heavyweight champion of Portugal, in the second round of another six round encounter.

Joe Jeanette, Negro heavyweight, from Little Rock, Ark., won the decision from George Neron, of New York, in the first four rounder.

ACADEMY FACES HARDING AT BRIDGEPORT TODAY

The Academy makes its longest trip of the season today, going to Bridgeport for the annual tilt with Warren Harding high. This is the first visit of the Wildcats to the Park City to tackle Harding, today's game inaugurating a home-and-home football series.

The locals are in fairly good shape for the fray and have strong hopes of pulling through a victory. To date, the Academy's record is unblemished, in fact, not a point has been scored against them in three tussles.

Practically the same lineup that took the field last Saturday for the Red and White against the Coast Guard Juniors, and although outweighed, beat them, 12 to 0, will start for the locals today.

A large number of supporters is expected to accompany the Academy for the contest. The team will make an early start.

Kaufman Outpoints La Fay

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 19—(AP)—Joe Kaufman, of New York, outpointed Frankie La Fay, of Troy, N. Y., in the ten round bout of the opening show of the American Legion indoor boxing arena. The going was close all the way with Kaufman giving La Fay enough of a beating in the tenth round to earn him the decision. Kaufman weighed 136 pounds to 134 for La Fay.

In the eight round semi-final, Jack Kiernan, of New York, won a close fight over Silent Frank Moran, of New Haven. The entire show was pleasing to the fans, not one knockout being made.

MOOSE CLUB TO STAGE AMATEUR BOXING SHOW

With Jackie Burns as matchmaker the Moose club will put on an eight-bout card of amateur boxing bouts at Olympic hall next Thursday evening. Mr. Burns who has long experience in the amateur boxing game has secured a number of boys from Montville, New London, Danielson and Norwich. The boys secured are well trained and evenly matched and there will be two bouts in each of four classes and then the winners are to meet in the finals on the same evening.

Holway Signs with Pirates

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 19—(AP)—The management of the Pittsburgh Pirates hockey team announced tonight that Hank Holway, Montreal Maroon defense man, had signed with the Pirates.

AGGIES GO TO LOWELL FOR CLASH TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Oct. 19—The entire Connecticut Aggie squad will leave here tomorrow morning by bus for Lowell, Mass., where the Nutmeg eleven will face the fast-moving Lowell Textile aggregation in the third contest for the Aggies. Coach Sumner A. Dole gave his charges an additional day of rest today, which makes the total for this week two. The varsity did not practice on last Monday following the Maine contest.

Practically the entire squad of men are in perfect physical condition to face the Textile machine but it is very probable that the Aggie mentor will use the least many varsity players as possible. This will depend largely upon the strength of the opponents who are facing the Aggies Saturday for the second time in several years. Last year the Lowell eleven put up a stiff defense and even succeeded in scoring once on the Blue and White. They were returned, however, on the short end of a 28-6 score. This year a much closer game is expected since the Lowell team has to date held its opponents scoreless and have themselves rolled up a total of 60 points against three teams. The Coast Guards of New London were defeated in the opening game by the score of 12-0. Trinity followed with a 24-0 defeat and last Saturday the Textile machine beat Arnold college 24-0. The Aggies, on the other hand, have fared nearly as well, having held their opponents scoreless in two contests. Wesleyan went down at the hands of the Storrsians 33-0 in the opening game and last Saturday a much lighter Nutmeg eleven held Maine to a scoreless tie following Maine's fairly good showing the week before against Yale at New Haven.

The varsity will probably line up as follows against Lowell this Saturday afternoon:

Linemen Aschenbach, Storrs, Libutzke, Levson Stangle, Murphy, Gulomb, Root, Fedus, Moore, and J. D. Murphey; backs, Lamoureux, Haversat, Powers, Harger, Christen and Williams.

DARTMOUTH MEETS COLUMBIA WITH BOOMBA CRIPPLED

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 19—(AP)—The report that Hal Boomba, Dartmouth's first string left end, was physically unfit for the Columbia game was given out here today when the Big Green's first and second teams were sent out for a short and snappy signal drill.

Coach Jesse Hawley said he would start either Bankart or McInnes in Boomba's place and the rest of his lineup would be the same as against Allegheny last week. Though Bob McDonough, considered the regular quarterback, returned to the squad this afternoon, Hawley said he planned to start Bob Harris, who has been running the team in the former's absence.

While the first and second teams ran through signals, Hawley had his third and fourth elevens scrimmaging on Columbia's plays.

The Columbia squad arrived here early this afternoon and Coach Charley Crowley reported that every member of the Lions' team was in excellent shape for tomorrow's game. Crowley said he would start the same team which opened against Wesleyan last week at Baker field in New York.

The Lions went through little setting up exercises and then ran through signals with Phil Lifelander at quarterback. Jimmy Sheridan, the Columbia sophomore who has been making a strong bid for the varsity signal calling job, relieved Lifelander half way through the drill. Crowley has been using both quarterbacks in every game and was expected to do so tomorrow.

Trojans vs. Duwell Tigers

Sunday afternoon, at the Lucas lot, the Trojan football team will meet the Duwell Tigers for the second time. In their last meeting the Trojans won, 18-6

The Trojans will be greatly strengthened by "Harry" Waters at left end, former Academy player, and Al Krohn at full.

The Tigers will depend on Jackson and Spivery two fleet ends, and Charley Curtis of Westerly at full.

The lineups are as follows:

Trojans—Waters, le; Leclell, lt; Hiscox, lg; Holden, c; Michelson, rg; O'Neil, rt; Stockwell, re; Carpenter, qb; Royce lhb; Frink, rhb; Krohn, fb. Duwell—Jackson, le; Quarto, lt; Urbinati, lg; Kirstein, c; Murphy, rg; A. Keeley, rt; Spivery, re; J. Keeley, qb; Ecomomos, lhb; Boldergine, rhb; Curtis, fb.

Tigers Buy Ray Johnson

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 19—(AP)—Verification of the reported sale of Roy Johnson, speedy outfielder of the San Francisco club of the Pacific Coast league to the Detroit Americans for $75,000 was given tonight by officials of the local club.

The transfer was made on a cash basis, with the privilege of accepting two players from Detroit.

MANY UNBEATEN TEAMS MEET ON COLLEGE GRIDIRONS THIS AFTERNOON

NEW YORK, Oct. 19—(AP)—Throughout the east tomorrow the college elevens which now are leading the football parade encounter worthy opponents. Before the day is over the roll of unbeaten and untied teams which now includes a score of names is likely to be reduced to about half that number.

In some of the most important battles of the day teams with clear records of victories stack up against each other. Outstanding among these are the Army-Harvard, Dartmouth-Columbia and Yale-Brown games. The Lafayette-Bucknell fray at Lewisburg Pa. also belongs in this category, as does the Syracuse-Nebraska intersectional contest at Lincoln.

Other games which will shed considerable light on the mythical "championship chances" of the eastern teams are those in which Carnegie Tech, Georgetown, Holy Cross, New York University and Pennsylvania engage. All of these still are in the unbeaten and untied list, as are such smaller colleges as Drexell, Haverford, Temple, Tufts and Villanova. Cornell and Boston college, also among the elite, are not scheduled.

Facing an old rival, Washington and Jefferson, which has proved an effective jinx in previous years, Carnegie faces a real fight if it is to remain undefeated.

Georgetown's high scoring aggregation takes on West Virginia Wesleyan which has lost to New York university and is rated as a distinct outsider.

Fordham was crushed by New York university last Saturday while Holy Cross was smothering Rutgers so they are picking the fast traveling Crusaders to win and hold their place among the eastern contenders. Chick Meehan's New York university steam roller is an overwhelming favorite to make Rutgers its fourth straight victim, while Pennsylvania, with a record as promising as any in the section, is favored over Penn State in the annual tussle at Franklin field.

The hardest games of all to figure on are those in which neither participant has met defeat. Army is favored over Harvard largely because of its veteran material and strong line, yet Crimson adherents hold that Arnold Horween has the best eleven he ever built and that the Harvard backs, including French, Harper, Guarnaccia, Gilliian and Putnam, compare favorably even with the backfield built around Cagle and Murrell.

Those who remember how Dartmouth smothered Cornell with passes and blinded the big Red and others with the speed of the fleet-footed Marsters, can see nothing but Green in considering the Columbia game at Hanover. But Columbia men will point out that Yale found weaknesses in the Dartmouth line last year and that little Allegheny pierced the Green defense for two touchdowns.

A Brown victory over Yale would be set down as an upset and Bucknell would also cause some surprise if it should defeat Lafayette. Syracuse is on the short end against Nebraska to about the same extent.

Navy, which has yet to score a point takes on Duke, Princeton, which was tied by Virginia, faces an apparently weak Lehigh team and Colgate, which lost to Vanderbilt, journeys to Michigan State to try to wipe out a defeat suffered in 1927.

Pittsburgh, which suffered a setback at West Virginia's hands, now can take it out on Allegheny.

Among the smaller colleges there are too many promising games to be even mentioned. Tufts, which lost not a single game last year and has beaten everything in sight thus far this season, takes on Bowdoin.

Davis and Elkins' giant-killing aggregation, which has downed the Naval academy midshipmen among others, Iowa will try to do as much for the Marines at Quantico, Va.

RAY HAS RUN CLOSE TO 1,400 MILES IN RACES

NEW YORK, Oct. 19—(AP)—Joie Ray, American distance star, worked out a problem in mathematics today and discovered that he will have run close to 1,400 miles over board and dirt tracks in competition at the close of his professional marathon debut against El Ouafi, Arabian Olympic champion, and seven others in Madison Square Garden Sunday night.

The former Chicago taxi driver unleashed figures tending to show that for 18 years his feet have pounded through an average of 150 miles of competition each season. As a professional, "Chesty" Joie hopes to run the total well up over 1,500 miles before hanging up his spiked shoes for all time.

Ray, for many years the American mile champion, trained today on top of Madison Square Garden with El Ouafi, who came up in the final two miles of the Olympic grind to win the championship. Joie's scrambled French made little impression on the Arab but his smooth, effortless stride, and perfect running form set "El Waffie" reaching for new linguistic heights with his hands.

Joie thinks that he can win this 26-mile jaunt in about 2 hours and 40 minutes Sunday night despite the handicaps of running indoors on a tanbark track that measures ten laps to the mile. He believes that El Ouafi will encounter great difficulty on the turns and after 15 miles will discover muscles around his knees and hips that he never knew were there before.

Arrangements have been made for Ray, El Ouafi and others to race in the major cities of the country, if the experiment in the Garden proves a financial success. So far the demand for tickets to the spectacle has been only moderate.

JEWETT CITY TO PLAY COTTRELL SOCCER TEAM

On Sunday afternoon at Jewett City the Cottrell team of Westerly will clash with the Jewett City Soccer team in what is expected to be one of the best games of the season. Jewett City will put the following men in the field: B. McCluggage, goal; A. Barthelet, lfb; McDonald, rfb; J. Perry, lhb; Sttez, chb; Contara, rhb; Gaudette, ol; Salinsky, il; Barnfield, cf; Miller or; M. Barthelet ir; T. McCluggage, reserve.

The Westerly team will present the following lineup: Marriott, goal; Kenyon, rfb; Thorpe, lhb; Cameron, chb; Red Mathews, chb; E. Mathews, lhb; Cruickshank, or; Woodfield, ir; Williamson, cf; Walker, ol; Gibson, il; Seidel and Buckley, reserves.

Connacher Goes to Toronto

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 19—(AP)—Alex (Rolly) Connacher signed a contract today to play for the Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey league this season. Connacher starred at left wing last year with the Marlboro Juniors, the team that won the Ontario Junior Hockey association championship.

A Challenge

Greeneville school football team would like a game Friday, Oct. 26, with Elizabeth Street school. Answer in this paper.

SOCCER GAME AT MARTIN FIELD SUNDAY

A large crowd is expected to turn out to watch the first soccer game of the season on the above grounds tomorrow (Sunday) afternoon, when the Velvetmen clash with the fast Goodyear team. As both are to put on their strongest lineups in an effort to win, the fans are assured of a hard-fough game. The referee in charge will be Leonard Day of Norwich, who has had many years' experience in this sport. The lineups are as follows:

J. B. Martin		Goodyear
E. Murphy	Goal	E. Childs
A. Headon	R. F. B.	W. Waldron
J. Joubert	L. F. B.	L. Bozii
N. Liberty	R. H. B.	C. Correia

Kick-off will be at 2:30 p. m.

BROWN TO PIT FULL STRENGTH AGAINST YALE

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 19—(AP)—Although four members of his first string team are suffering injuries, Coach Tuss McLaughry of the Brown football squad announced after the shortest practice of the year this afternoon that he will start his strongest combination when the Bruins clash with Yale in the bowl at New Haven tomorrow.

Lincoln Fogarty, sophomore backfield ace, has nearly recovered from a bruise in a leg muscle, but Dick Marsan, first string quarterback, is badly bothered by a spine bruise. McDonough center, and Gillies, guard, are the other two members of the Brown starting team who are injured. The Brown lineup which includes three members of the "iron team" of 1926 which defeated Yale 7 to 0, will be: Babcock, le; Kevorkian, lt; Farber, lg; McDonough, c; Gillies, rg; Schein, rt; H. Cornsweet, re; Marsan, qb; Fogarty, lht; Edwards, rhb; Capt. Al Cornsweet, fb.

BUCKY HARRIS TO MANAGE TIGERS

DETROIT, Oct. 19—(AP)—Stanley (Bucky) Harris, former pilot of the Washington Baseball club, signed as manager of the Detroit Tigers today, and his first act in assuming his new duties was to announce the acquisition of Roy C. Johnson, star outfielder of the San Francisco Seals of the Pacific Coast league.

COPYRIGHT UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD, N. Y.

STANLEY (BUCKY) HARRIS

The Detroit club is reported to have given $75,000 for Johnson, who ranked as one of the leading players on the coast, where he played with the Seals during the last three seasons. He finished the season with a batting average of .354. He also stole 26 bases and was rated as a fine fielder. He is 24 years old and weighs 175 pounds. He bats left handed and throws right handed.

Announcement of the signing of Harris came two days after George Moriarty turned in his resignation as pilot of the club. Jackie Warner, Tiger third baseman, goes to Washington in the Harris deal.

Information as to the length of Harris' contract and its financial terms was withheld.

Harris, who led the Washington club to two pennants and a world's championship, was relieved of his managerial duties with the Senators at the close of the baseball season this year. He was in the city today and signed the contract with Navin.

The new Tiger boss said he will not be a playing manager, "except in emergencies." This was taken to mean that Charlie Gehringer, flashy young Detroit second baseman, will hold down that position again in 1929.

Moriarty who managed the Detroit club two years, resigned after the Tigers had gone through an unsuccessful season. His management was criticized during most of the season. In his resignation he blamed "unfavorable circumstances" for the Tiger slump.

When Harris first came to the majors he trained with the Tigers under the late Hughie Jennings, but was sent back to the minors before the season opened because of his lack of weight.

BABE RUTH TAKES STUMP IN BEHALF OF SMITH

NEW YORK, Oct. 19—(AP)—Babe Ruth came to bat again for Governor Alfred E. Smith tonight—this time in a radio address over a nation-wide hookup.

It is because Governor Smith is "the greatest friend of American sport in public life today" and because he has never forgotten his boyhood friends that the Yankee's home run king would like to see him elected.

"Governor Smith is the type of man who appeals not only to the baseball fan but to all red-blooded lovers of American sport," he said. "When I was a little kid I admired the great Teddy Roosevelt just like I admire the great Al Smith today. * * *

"The thing that makes him so great is the very fact that he does not personally care for baseball or boxing but is so broad and considerate of the other fellow's wishes and of the great good that all forms of athletics can do.

"Up in my old home town of Boston the Red Sox and the Braves, once great ball clubs, are now nearly starving to death because they cannot get the crowds and they cannot get the money to pay good salaries. Sunday baseball is on the ballot in Boston in November and they tell me Sunday baseball is going across in good old Massachusetts, just as Al Smith put it across in New York.

"I am for Governor Smith because he is a friend of sport, because he has a clean record and because he helped the ball player get large salaries."

PLAINFIELD CLASHES WITH WARWICK HIGH TODAY

Today at Plainfield Capt. "Willie" Bakanowski, crack quarter, playing his final year for Plainfield high, will lead his warriors against Warwick, R. I. state champs, in a game that promises to be a thriller.

Plainfield after two heart breaking defeats are determined to break into the win column and in preparation Head Coach Monahan, former Colby ace, has completely revamped the lineup. Shippe, last year's crack end, has been shifted to the backfield and in Wednesday's scrimmage against a heavy alumni team ran wild around the ends and scored five of his team's seven touchdowns. In the two previous games the P. H. S. trouble was in the offense, her defense, being exceptionally strong for a light team. Now that they have well balanced running attack backed by a clever and tricky passing game they should force any team in its class to extend itself for victory. As the Academy plays away today Norwich fans can make the short trip to Plainfield and see a bangup football game.

This game is Plainfield's only home game of the season and it is an attraction as Warwick is their traditional rival.

ARMY FAVORITE BY TWO TOUCHDOWNS TO BEAT HARVARD

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 19—(AP)—The string of victories over the Army, which Harvard started 33 years ago, appeared due to be broken here today, when the Cadets and the Crimson football elevens held their final workouts in the stadium.

These teams have played 13 games in the last 33 years and the soldiers have scored a total of but six points against Harvard's 144. The last game, staged back in 1910, ended with Harvard on top of the six to one score.

Defeating West Point at football has long been considered a Harvard privilege but this year the Cadet team was conceded the victory by at least two touchdowns by most of the experts. The soldiers planned to start the game with a four-pound weight advantage in the line and a backfield which was expected to equal Harvard's poundage.

Though both teams have been undefeated so far this season, the Army appeared to have the edge in every department of the game. The soldiers rush line seemed much stronger than the Harvard forwards and the Cadet ball carriers were more impressive than the Crimson backs.

Harvard's hopes on its untested line, which contained three sophomores and only one veteran, Tim Clark, the right tackle, who started in the last Yale game. The Crimson backfield, Captain French, Guarnaccia, Harper, Putnam and the sensational Tommy Gilligan, the second string quarterback, appeared well able to make the game close if supported by the linesmen. Both teams held light workouts during the afternoon.

McVey Beats Nichols

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 19—(AP)—Jack McVey, New York middleweight tonight defeated George Nichols, Buffalo, in ten rounds. The weights: McVey 156, Nichols 160.

Lawrence Dayton, 147, Buffalo, boxed a six round draw with Tommy Bragan 145 1-2 Toronto.

Glick Wins From Gillis

DETROIT, Oct. 19—(AP)—Joe Glick New York lightweight won the decision over Hubert Gillis, Belgian fighter, in a ten round bout here tonight. Glick dropped the Belgian in the third round with a sharp left to the chin.

At any point about the country now drivers will meet motor parties who are touring to see the fall foliage while it is at its best.

God's Garden

The Lord God planted a garden
In the first white days of the world
And He set there an angel warden
In a garment of light unfurled.

So near the peace of Heaven
The hawk might meet with the wren,
For there in the cool of the even
God walked with the first of men.

And I dream that those garden closes,
With their glades and their sunflecked sod,
And their lilies and bowers of roses
Were laid by the hand of God.

The kiss of the sun for pardon,
The song of the birds for mirth—
One is nearer God's heart in a garden
Than anywhere else on earth.

The Pathway of the Year

We are taking about the last steps
That lead to the end of the year
With an earnest forward look
And with hearts that know no fear,
For where'in that path may lie
'Neath skies that are blue or gray,
We know that the father's love
Goes with us all the way.

Good friends we find and true,
As we journey the road along,
Who are ready to lend a hand
Or join in a cheery song,
And well may we all rejoice
Whatever each day may hold
In the friendship and faith and hope
That mean to us more than gold

To them who trust and serve
We know there can come no ill
Who is glad in his neighbor's meal
Shall find of joy his fill
As we give, 'tis measured back,
And so with a smile and cheer
We take each step as 'tis shown,
Down the pathway of the year.

OUR CRIMINALS

Dear Social Corner Friends: Many thanks to the Social Corner Editor for the prize check.

The great excitement among the prison officials over the proposed change in labor laws which would prohibit the free sales of convict-made articles emphasizes our need of a more thorough understanding of what we now have to do.

Our major job now is not to make life better or more enjoyable for criminals, defectives and insane, but to do away with the conditions which produce these unfortunate cases.

Prison workers seem to forget the fact that in this age of the world people are not going to continue to be willing to be bothered with the fear of crimes and the expense of the punishments.

The time has come when society will have to stop the making of criminals.

People are now too busy with enjoying modern inventions to have patience with anything that needlessly interferes with their comfort and enjoyment.

All our organizations and authority should be used in a scientific development of children that will entirely do away with criminals.

Our state institutions could be much better used as helps, as schools and hospitals, and recreation homes for helps instead of for punishment and confinement of criminals and defectives and insane, made so by ignorant or vicious treatment.

We can think of very few causes that would produce criminals, defectives and insane if all their living conditions were right.

Two major causes have been the brutal dispositions of a certain class of men; and, the silly mindless condition of a certain class of women.

There have been two kinds of parents: those who boss and tyrannize the child until he becomes either mindless or brutally viscious, too; and the kind to whom a child is just a pet, a doll, something to buy things for, something to indulge and spoil.

If the school tries to give them the training sorely needed, what a kick comes from these parents, and the threat, "You let my child alone or I will show you what will happen." We have made much progress in seeing that every child has good physical care, but it is much more important that every child has the best mental and social development and that should be made compulsory for every infant now. Through district and home and school nurses, nursery schools, school mothers, and the juvenile courts we are prepared to begin and to get results now.

Our criminals come largely from the very poor, but many also from respectable families.

It is very easy now to know the home conditions of each family in our district.

A brutal father or a silly mother should not be allowed to rear undesirable citizens any more. If they will not change and make the home conditions right for the mental and social as well as for the physical development of their children then something should be done about it at once.

A good use of some of our state reform institutions should be to make them into nursery schools for infants and young children.

In some cases a decent family life might be more possible to establish and maintain if the parents were relieved of the expense and care of their children.

To share in the benefits of life in this country should be made to mean to live according to Americanized ideas and to be a safe and capable and useful citizen and to insure us that their children will be so trained that they will be safe, capable and useful citizens, too.

A comfortable home, good food and clothing are nothing if not accompanied by good character development.

In some cases among the financially well-to-do absolutely nothing is being done for the mental and social welfare of their children.

When the child begins school the home training or the lack or home training is exposed.

The first grade school work should be almost entirely character building work. No child should be allowed to leave the first grade until he has a solid character foundation, and is responsible and can be trusted to know how to conduct himself properly, and be careful, and safe to have his liberty with others.

CARBOLIC ACID.

Dear Sisters of the Corner: Do you know what a blessing a bottle of carbolic acid is in the household? Three or four drops in a quart of water, used as a wash will cure a case of ivy poisoning in a short time, and will take all soreness and poison out of a bad cut or any similar sore. Use it when you have been badly bitten by mosquitoes and that stinging, itching sensation will cease almost immediately. For tired, aching feet I have found nothing to equal it. Of course as the acid is a deadly poison, you must be sure to keep it carefully labeled and keep it out of the reach of children; also be careful not to spill any of the clear acid on yourself.

M. A. J.: Where are you, are you still by the sick bed? Have not seen you in quite a long time. Hope you are not sick yourself. You remember what you promised the last time you were here. CRIMSON RAMBLER.

SOCIAL CORNER EVENTS

Oct. 31—Picnic at home of Sister 1926 at East Brooklyn, Conn.

ANSWERS AND INQUIRIES.

COLUMBIA: Your name has been added to the Social Corner list.

THE SIGN SCORPIO

Dear Social Corner: Just a line to thank the sister for sending in bread and butter cucumber pickle recipe. Ann Tenna asks about the flower celandine. My dictionary says it is a genus of plants of the poppy family, sometimes called swallow wort, because it appears about the time swallows come to us and it dies about the time they depart. Coxcomb is said to be related to it.

The lovely new moon of a few evenings ago reminded me that we are now passing out of the sign Libra (the balance) into the sign Scorpio (the scorpion), which is the eighth month of the zodiac and is the neutral sign of the water element. Scorpio corresponds to the reproductive organs in the human body and governs males, marriage and death in the astral. The ruling planets are the asteroids and Mars. The tribe is "Simeon"—meaning: "He who hears and obeys." The colors are scarlet, golden-brown and black.

The gems are topaz and malachite. The natural professions are surgery, medicine, the ministry or public speaking, and persons born in this sign are usually skilful and patient in all kinds of work. This sign begins about Oct. 22nd and ends about Nov. 20th every year. The vibrations are more favorable for Scorpio people from Jul. 3rd to 10th, and from Feb. 19th to 28th, but are considered unfavorable from April 13th to 20th. January and July are favorable for business enterprises, and Tuesday the best day of the week. The red carnation is the flower

For the invalid or for little children, on a rainy day, to amuse them try making ink-blots. Spread newspaper on table or bed first, for protection, then bring white paper and ink. Make a small blot on the paper, then fold the paper over and smooth with hand. Open the paper and see what you have. Some very decorative designs come out and others resemble other objects that are most surprising. It is fun to name the pictures thus produced. Some folks may thinkitchild's play, but it is astonishing what artistic effects are seen. Different effects are produced by using different qualities of paper, and the method of smoothing out has its effect on the blot. Just try it once. The Japanese are expert in the art.

But the wheel that does the squeaking
Is the one that gets the grease."

Good wishes to all from ARIES.

PUSS IN THE WALL

Dear Corner Sisters: The cook came running in, in the greatest excitement, exclaiming that several well-defined mews were heard issuing from the pantry walls. Visions of future discomfort suggested themselves to the more practical members of the household, while the problem of a suffering, starving cat nearly reduced the Sentimentalist to tears.

In vain we used our most persuasive tones, trying to convince Kitty that if she found her way in she surely must find her way out. We "puss, puss in the cornered" until our throats ached, and the poor little prisoner's crew fainter and fainter. Our jack-of-all-trades was summoned and we watched with breathless interest while he tore off the plastering and laths, but no cat was visible.

As a last expedient, the floor was taken up. Confusion most dire! And nothing to be seen but that same "still, small voice." So we left our phantom with hopes of a brighter tomorrow. A saucer of milk was left to tempt our wall flower on its milky way—that its "feeling of sadness and longing" might not be akin to pain.

The next morning, in that delicious state between waking and sleeping, when one's fancy runs riot, cats upon cats came trooping into my delicious day dream, cats with houses on their backs and pantries on their tails. When I awoke with the consciousness that I was being called, I hurried below to find the head of the household, with true New England thrift, had been busying herself with her lares and penates which means, my dear sisters, her home duties, and so had discovered the long suffering cat.

In vain I looked for the cause of yesterday's upheaval; all I could see was a bottle of yeast held triumphantly toward me. "Where is the cat, and have you fed her?" I asked.

For answer came the well-remembered mew from the bottle. Then I understood—there was held the secret of all our search, simply a fast-working bottle of yeast!

Poor deluded mortals, we confessed ourselves duped, and could not help quoting a line of Shakespeare in Much Ado About Nothing: "Hang me in a bottle like a cat."

PUSSY'S FRIEND.

ECONOMY FASHIONABLE

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: It is becoming fashionable in these pinching times to economize, and housekeepers are really finding it a pleasant pastime to search out and stop waste in household expenses and to exercise the thousand little economies which thoughtful and careful women understand so readily and practice with such grace. A statement has been made that a well-to-do French family would live on what an American household in the same condition in life wastes; and this may not be a great exaggeration. Here the greatest source of waste is in the blunders and experiments of the inexperienced. Women are slow to learn by experience of others. Every young housekeeper must begin at the beginning (unless her mother was wise enough to give her a careful training) and blunder into a knowledge of the practical duties of the household, wasting time, temper and money in mistakes, when such simple instructions as any skillful housewife might readily give would be an almost perfect guide. Lately there have been attempts to gather such instructions as are needed into a book, but they have been partial failures, because the authors have been good bookmakers but poor breadmakers, or because while practically familiar with the subjects treated they have failed to express clearly and concisely the full process in detail.

That I try to send plain directions when I send recipes I like to explain and I mean to take fragments that used to bother me. "How to make nice gravy." This is a problem many housekeepers never solve. Remember that grease is not gravy, neither is raw flour. Almost any kind of meat liquor or soup stock from which all fat has been removed, may be made into nice gravy by simply adding a little seasoning and some thickening; if browned flour is used for the latter, the gravy will require but little cooking, but when thickened with raw flour it must cook until thoroughly done, or the gravy will taste like so much gummy paste. It is best to brown a quart of flour at a time. Put it in a skillet, set it in the oven or on the top of the stove, stir often until it is a light brown, put it into a wide-mouthed bottle, cork, and keep for use. All gravies must be will stirred over a rather hot fire, as they must be quickly made and must boil, not simmer.

I had some cornmeal waffles for dinner this noon with warmed-over potatoes and sausages. Here is my corn waffle recipe:

To the beaten yolks of three eggs add one quart of sour milk. Corn meal to make a batter with a cup of flour, one teaspoon of salt, one of soda dissolved in a little warm water, then the well beaten whites.

For dressing for waffles put on the stove 1-2 cup of cream, a tablespoon of butter and two of sugar; when hot put two tablespoons on each waffle when placed on a dish to serve.

White fruit cake may be of value to some. Make up batter for a white or silver cake, then flour and stir into it two grated cocoanuts, two pounds of almonds, blanched, cut up fine, and one pound of citron cut in small pieces.

A crumb of bread, but save it and put it with other pieces; if you have a loaf about to mould, cut it in thin slices, place all together in a dripping pan and set in oven to dry, and you will find when pounded and rolled it will be very nice for stuffing, dressing, puddings, griddle cakes, etc. Keep in a covered box or in a paper bag tied securely and hung in a dry place. It is much more economical to prepare meals with a dressing of some kind, since they go much farther.

Sausage toast is made by scalding sausages in boiling water, frying to a light brown, chop fine and spread on bits of toast.

Always save all the currants, skimming, pieces, etc., after making jelly, place in a stone jar, cover with soft water previously boiled to purify it, let stand for several days; in the meantime take your apple peelings, without the cores, and put on in a porcelain kettle; cover with water; boil 20 minutes; drain into a large stone jar; als drain currants into this jar; add all the rinsing from your molasses jug, all dribs of syrup, etc., and when jar is full drain off all that is clear into vinegar keg (where of course you have some good cider vinegar to start with) If not sweet enough, add brown sugar or molasses, cover the bunghole with a piece of coarse netting and set in the sun or by your kitchen stove. In making vinegar always remember to give it plenty of air, and it is better to have the cask or barrel (which should be of oak) only half full, so that the air may pass over as large a surface as possible.

Vinegar must also have plenty of material, such as sugar and molasses. Never let your vinegar freeze. Paint your barrel or cask if you would have it durable. GUESS WHO?

FIRST MEETING OF CLUB NO. 1

Dear Social Corner Members: Those who did not attend the first meeting of Club No. 1, last Wednesday, missed a very pleasant occasion. Theoda was hostess and with her able assistants looked after the welfare of all.

Several sisters came from Norwich among them Nellie Bly and Kennebec. After dinner there was a program consisting of readings by Wee Wee, Lonesome Pine and Olga, travel talk by Huldy and Hope Cobweb. Kennebec recited the touching poem "The Pride of Battery B," and "The Inventor's Wife," in a very pleasing way. She also told interesting facts about Maine, her former home.

Mr. Peck, who has written interesting letters to Social Corner, was present and talked of his experience in the south. He has promised to come again and give a "real talk."

Huldy's brother was present and promised to talk about his travels and illustrate them by picture cards at a future meeting.

You see what you missed and what is coming soon to Club No. 1?

Bricktop: "Them's my sentiments, too."

Best wishes to all,

NEMA.

CORNER PICNIC OCT. 31ST

Dear Editor and Social Corner Folks: It is the wish of Sister 1926 (Mrs Mary A. Whitman) of East Brooklyn that I send in this notice for her of a Corner picnic to be held at her home on Wednesday, Oct. 31st. At the East Brooklyn schoolhouse, take South street and look for the large yellow bow Her home is about one mile from the railroad square in Danielson. Please bring your own dishes and also something for the good of your stomach, for after dinner we want a real Hallowe'en party, and there is no telling what stunts we may be called upon to perform. Hope we have a nice day, a good big crowd and everyone prepared to have a jolly time. Plenty of room inside if the day should not be pleasant.

TWICE TWENTY.

RECIPE FOR EGGLESS CAKE

Dear Sisters: I thought I would write a few more lines to help keep the Corner full. I like to see it running over and as Ma of Green Gables said, she thought I would be able to write a little oftener and as some of the Sisters thought short letters would answer, I very much fall in with the idea. The long letters are interesting but it discourages one to try to write long ones as everyone is not gifted that way so I think you can get the sum and substance in short ones, so let us see how that will work for a while.

It is such a lovely day today I felt just like letting some of the sunshine out through my letter. I hope all the sick ones are better, you can so much enjoy life when you are in good health.

I am sending in a recipe for cake without eggs: 3 tablespoons cocoa, 1 tablespoon lard, 1 cup sugar, a little salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup sour milk with 1 rounding teaspoon soda dissolved in it and flour enough to make quite a stiff batter. Kind regards. RURAL AUNTY (Club No. 4)

JOINS CORNER.

Dear Editor: I have had the women of the Social Corner at my house and had a lovely time, also enjoyed Mrs. Dakin's talk. I would like to join the Social Corner and would like for my pen name COLUMBIA.

GREETINGS FROM NONESOPRETTY

Dear Editor and Friends: We have been having some fine weather.

Kochia: Well, I did not go to the Fiskville fair, but I went to the Harrisville fiddlers' convention Oct. 14. You ought to have been there. There were 30 violins going all at once. Now there was some fine music.

Kansas Lily: Was by your house Sunday, but could not see you.

Velvie: How are you after your fall? All right, I hope.

Hoping all the sick ones are better. God be with you all.

NONESOPRETTY.

CLOTHES MAKE THE MAN

Dear Editor: It was an awful shock to mysterious man when once I confessed to him that we women put a great deal of faith in the old proverb which hinted that a great deal was done in the making by his clothes. I shall never forget the little lecture I received for my callous worldly point of view, but I sent Diogenes back to polish his shoes, change his collar and brush his hat, before I ever court defeat in the argument. You see, a man is apt to be beguiled by the fact that there may be many true gentlemen who pay no attention to clothes and countless cads immaculately attired as Bunthorne, and forget it is a case of omission on the one hand and the only saving grace on the other. Rejected suitors in the drama of the past would never have suffered, nor have caused their audiences to suffer so endlessly, if they had been more careful in the way they wore their clothes.

The carelessly dressed man may have all the good qualities in the world remaining undiscovered by the woman who finds little that is attractive in his presence This is not heartless selfishness but sound sense, for if we are expeced to become mere missionaries for uncovering the virtues of mere man in a disguise of slouchy attire there will be left to us little time to fulfill the myriad duties already imposed. Even when a girl discovers unsuspected qualities in a man who hasn't taken the trouble to look presentable, she stops twice before she can be sure his carelessness in sartorial matters does not really extend to a carelessness in other things. You must not be out of patience when a woman prefers talking to a stupid man whose collar is a perfect fitting one to listen to a genius who thinks his choice sufficient when he selects a winged collar for his thin neck and inflicts upon the sensitive perception of another an extended view of the mechanism of his conversation.

None of us are hypercritical about Adam's apple and there is a superstition a float that these lamps of masculinity are the attribute of sensitively artistic natures, but why every thin-necked man should desire to become his own Barnum is a mystery for which only the gods on Olympus are to blame.

There is one peculiar perversity with fat men also. They still cling to round cuffs and conspicuous cuff buttons. Indeed, I think fat men alone keep round cuffs out of public museums.

Another thing I can't overlook, unless perhaps on the person of old Zebedee Rogers, who spades our garden plot, and that is the blight of baggy trousers. Neither garments of the sort when "galloused" to the uncomfortable extreme may be well expected to bag at the hems, anyway, I think baggy trousers are a blot on man's civilization. To begin with, they are deceptive and never indicate the true locality of the wearer's knees.

Buttons and buttonholes were made to co-operate, yet dozens of men let their coats slide and become floppy through mere carelessness. I have observed the men who go around with their coats unbuttoned invariably buy their clothes too small for them or too tight across the chest.

When it comes to shoes, there is simply no excuse for a man to go around with his shoes unpolished. It isn't safe to marry a man who wears shabby shoes, and oh, the sins of muscular laziness that are laid to the shines of comfort, as though negelect ever could be comfortable.

The business woman strives to appear attractive, and if blessed man will do the same he wouldn't get so tired of himself between 9 and 5 and lay it all up against Jones.

The best dressed men are the men whose clothes are chosen with an eye to simplicity of form, inconspicuousness of detail, excellence of quality and harmony of color. A tie of the wrong color will make any beautiful suit unbecoming, and a false step in a general shade of a mixed fabric will turn an Adonis into an antediluvian suggestion.

I suppose as a mere women I have exhibited a great deal of feeling upon the subject but then there's so much I haven't that I shall ward off remorse with the charm of restraint.

To the different families: Why not begin to save 10 cents a week to make your friends a present? By Christmas you will have a dollar. KITTY LOU.

TWO WEEKS IN "THE LAND OF THE SKY"

Editor and Social Corner Readers:

As we were about to leave the Keener home, the guide discovered that his horse had a shoe loose. "I reckon we'll leve tew step at the blacksmith's shop, as old Fury hev a shew-loose."

After paying our bills, we were on our way to the blacksmith's. The sun had barely kissed the peaks of the Smokies, for the shadows lay dark across the cove; but to the west we could see the light of the sun reflected on the tops of the Chilhowies. Arriving at the smith's shop, all was confusion. Gathered around were some 30 or 40 mountaineers, old and young, with their usual side arms, the rifle. Horses were hitched here and there. Our guide asked, "What air the goins on heyr this yerly in the mornin'?"

"There air to be a gander pull, an morn a dozen air to strive fur the gander," says the smithy.

The gander pull, as it is called, is a sport indulged in once or twice a year by the mountaineers, which I will explain later. The blacksmith soon found time to set the shoe, after the sport was ended, which we witnessed.

The day was yet young, but we must go by Sugarville and stop at Bill Petty's to get corn and cornblades for the horses.

It was now mid-day. Our purchases of corn and blades were distributed among the four and securely fastened. As we passed on over the road toward the foothills we resembled a caravan, minus the camels. The burden imposed upon the horses nearly covered them from sight. The guide said as we couldn't make the total ascent of the Dome in one day, we would take it easy

After leaving Sugarville we followed the rapid flowing branch of the Little Pigeon river for nearly five miles, most of the way over a well traveled road, but through a narrow gorge. We turn to the right and commence the ascent of the foothills of the mountain range, the road leading through a dense growth of hemlock, cedar and pine. Then, further up, we enter a growth of monstrous tulip poplars, reaching heavenward, as if striving to overtop the sublime peak of Clingman's Dome. Here the ascent becomes more steep and we turn this way and that to shun a gorge or precipice.

Now we enter a clearing of many acres. Here we stop for a rest and to view nature's vastness spread out before us. On again, we meet an ever-changing panorama of color and shadow.

As we loitered along, the afternoon is far spent ere we realize it, and we have ascended but 2,000 feet above the valley, and are two miles away from Dan Ray's, where we are to spend the night. The day had been warm, but now we commenced to feel the cool air of the mountain top stirring the trees and cooling the clear thin atmosphere so easy to breath. All of a sudden my horse gives a snort and trembling, jumps quickly to one side, nearly unseating me. The guide being just behind me shouts, "Hold on thar, hit air a rattler." Looking just ahead, and to the side of the road, there he was, coiled and ready to spring.

The guide with a steady aim, resting his revolver between the ears of his horse, fires; the big rattlesnake lies writhing on the ground, his head nearly separated from the body. Such a buzz and rattling I never heard before. Dismounting we all viewed his snakeship, the guide saying, "hit air a whopper. I never seed the likes him in these mountings afore." With his knife he severs his 12 rattlers gives them to Mr. Colt as a souvenir to take to his northern home. On we go and are soon hailed by Dan Ray as we pass into view from a tangle of laurel and hododendron.

Like all moonhiners of the uplands he was on the lookout for revenuers, and halted us several rods from his cabin of great proportions and with pleasant surroundings.

Twining over a rustic porch is the southern honeysuckle, and on either side flowers of various colors and perfumes graced the well tiled beauty spot, made so by the hands of the female members of the family. "Is that er yew, Jim Trew? I knowed you uns was a-cumin, as I hearn uv yew at Jim Cote's gander pull. Didn't hearn tell who mought uv walked off with the prize."

We told him that the gander's head refused to be separated from his body and the little girl who claimed the lucky goose, got both money, paid in for chances and the kander.

"I bet a quart uv good old corn liker, 90 prufe, that Jim Cote's did mighty well on the spirits (half water) he disposed uv. Wor there any shutin did? Thit most alers follers a gander pull."

"Hev ye accomodations fur me, horses, an these gentlemen?" asked our guide, "who hev bargained fur me tew show em the old Dome tomorrer, if fog don't hinder."

"Say Jim, jist as soon as I hern ye wor a-cumin, I told Phillury an darters tew make a good show fur ya, an put on their best bib an tucker an see tem hit that that quarter uv venjun wor dun tew a turn. Course I kin keep you uns, wouldn't turn ye out in nite any heow, as afore midnight there air goin tew to an old rattlin thunder storm, an agin ye won't shew anybody the old Dome tomorrer, yess ye want tu bild bridges or drown ye fool selves an hosses; an ther Little Pigeon will be a roaring torrent fur most uv the day tomorrer."

"Sabina, yew tell Hiram tew just holp Jim Trew tew ten his horses an give em a good feed an don't furgit tew water em afore ye go tew bed."

"Jim Trew, who air these fellers ye hev brung along with ye? Hev ye lost what little perliteness ye ever had tew not introjuce these strangers?"

"I beg all uv yer pardings," replied Jim. "This air Mr. Colt and he air from Rhode Island, an knowed Gineral Burnside, who yew fit aside uv at Fort Sanders, an this air Mr. Blakeslee. He air from Connecticut, who knowed Gineral Terry, the hero uv Fort Fisher, an other places. Your older brother, Sam, fit with him down the coast an yew know he allers sed he auter ben called Gineral Terrer, fur he wor a terrer tew all uv them air shally-wag rebels that hunted yew uns in the mountings with blood hounds an sich."

"An this air Mr. Dumont, a regler Yankee, but neow lives in Knoxville an live with Jim Luttrell, who yew know wor born down in Eskaqua cove. Gentlemen, this air our host, as ye mount say, fur the nite an likely tomorrer, Dan Ray."

"Glad to meet you Mr. Ray. You have a nice home here with pleasant surroundings." (Mr. Colt speaking.)

"Yes, I reckon hit air."

"This air his wimmen folks, wife an darters; his three boys, I rekon air yit at the still house."

"Heow air business, Dan?" Air the revenuers makin ye any trouble neow er days, as ye mount say?"

"No, Jim, I hev got em putty well fixed; fur a few dollars handed out neow and then, shets there eyes an keeps ther tongue wher hit belongs."

"I always knowd ye was a good financier an kakerlater, Dan."

"Hay thar, Phillury, an gals, I reckon these air gents air powerful hungry, so let's hear the rattle on the ole brass kittle, sayin supper air ready. The boys will eat later, as we can't tell as thar will be anything but bones left frum that air fat doe I found dead or durned near hit, from fellin's gun who thought hit didn't hit ther mark he shot at. I got the benefit.

"Yes, paw, hit air ready." Haint ye goin tew give em a taste uv the contents uv brown betty ye allers keep fur company?"

"Whew, heow did I cum few fergit so important a matter. Say, Jim, this haint ben uncorked since yeow wor here lass spring; hit air your private bottle as ye mount say."

The roasted venison was greatly enjoyed by us all. Well seasoned vegetables with brown gravy were a delight, and above all the sweet potato custard that followed, was a treat, for none of us but Trew ever tasted one before. The two daughters served us at the table and showed themselves adept to the occasion. Before we retired for the night the distant rumble of thunder was heard as it echoed among the peaks. Darkness was intense nad soon we heard a deluge of rain that would forbid all mountain climbing the next day.

Biding the family good night, we retired and listened to the patter of the rain upon the roof. To be continued.

QUID NUNC

SHOP EARLY

Dear Social Corner Friends: A concerted effort was made last year, the country over, to lessen the Christmas rush by early buying. There was much constant relief to overworked clerks, carriers, deliverymen and others. But the lesson was only half learned Let us all do our part this year in the great reform. Begin studying shops and advertisements now, and don't delay your purchases.

Here are some games to play:

Holly and Ivy: Each person in turn is obliged to make a couplet about holly and ivy or drop out of the game. If he prefers not to drop out, he must pay a forfeit The couplets are often foolish and silly, but they arouse laughter. Here are a few examples:

"Holly and Ivy went out in the rain;
Holly brought Ivy home on the train."
"Holly and Ivy went out for a sail;
Holly brought Ivy home in a pail."
"Holly and Ivy went out to buy butter;
Holly brought Ivy home on a shutter."
"Holly and Ivy went out for the air;
Holly brought Ivy home in a chair."

A Doll Hunt! A grown-up friend entertained her small guests with a doll hunt. In the center of the parlor the hostess arranged a cobweb with bright colored strings. To the end of the string or end of each string a card bearing the name of the doll to be sought was attached. After much intricate winding of the string, each child found a small, pretty doll. In another room had been stretched a clothesline where each little girl found a dainty frock for her doll. After much merriment over the dresses of the dolls tea was served. ETHELYN.

TALENT IN CLUB 8

Dear Social Corner: I want to say "thank you" to the editor of the Social Corner for the yellow slip I received. It's the first time my literary efforts have been noticed and I'm correspondingly proud.

Every one seems to be telling of trips and vacations, so I may say the "good man" and myself went to Providence, Boston and Plymouth. It was all very much enjoyed and we drove by the duck farm and while I didn't count them I'm sure there were a million ducks.

We visited an aunt 79 years old who does her own work, goes down town shopping, goes to church twice each Sunday and teaches a class of young ladies in Sunday school.

Also saw a friend well in the sixties, who has recently returned from a strenuous trip abroad. So I say why grow old with such examples!

Have just returned from the meeting of club No. 8.

That the dinner was excellent goes without saying and the program showed that there is talent in that club.

Best wishes for a happy winter for Social Corner members. B. A.

LETTER FROM A STRANGER

Dear Social Corner Friends and Editor: This is another good frosty morning and the trees are getting bare and leafless again. I had a very nice, long letter from a stranger last week that sent me a beautiful discription of Wardsworth's favorite flower. I thought it was very kind of her. She is a constant reader of The Bulletin, but not a member of the Corner. Glad to see the Corner page over flowing with good letters last week.

Prarie Chicken: I very much enjoyed your letter entitled "Life in the Country." I sent in that riddle a short time ago, but it had not been printed.

Betsy Bobbit: Where have you been? Too late to try your corn fritters but I can keep your recipe for my Social Corner scrap book.

Kitty Lou: I agree with you about the corn meal cerial. I'd rather have it for my breakfast every morning than all the cereals that can be bought at the stores. It requires good milk with plenty of cream on it.

Brick Top: Your poem was a most laughable one and I think Adam was one lucky man. I have sent in a poem about Adam and Eve by Edgar A. Guest, but as yet it hasn't been printed.

Here is another epitaph:
Within this grave do lie
Back to back, my wife and I.
When the last trump this air shall fill,
If she goes up—I shall just lie still.

WESTERLY

THREE AUTOMOBILE CASES COME UP FOR HEARING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Oct. 19—The district court, Judge Oliver H. Williams on the bench was in session all Friday morning and did not adjourn until 1 p. m.

In the trial calendar case of State, Thomas E. Brown vs. Arthur B. Barber of Shannock, the respondent was fined $25 and costs for operating an automobile not equipped with two powerful brakes. He paid.

William McGarvie, who had previously pleaded not guilty to a charge of operating an automobile recklessly on the Watch Hill road on Sept. 18 last, being adjudged guilty was fined $50 and costs, which he paid.

A complaint brought against Joseph P. Dannor of South Kingstown, charged with operating an automobile on the Wyoming-West Kingston Road July 30 while under the influence of liquor, was discontinued by the state and the case was dismissed by the court.

In the case of State, Thomas E. Brown vs. John Wuick, charged with obstructing an officer, the defendant was given a suspended sentence and the case was continued three months.

The court docket was disposed of by Judge Williams as follows: New writ entered before the calling of the docket: Angelo J. Cappuccio vs. Nathan Noyes, alias. Continued two weeks. OBITUARY

Mrs. Charles R. Woodburn

Following an illness which covered a period of three years, Susan Angeline, widow of Charles R. Woodburn, died about 11.30 o'clock Friday morning at her home, 30 Liberty street, Pawcatuck. Mrs. Woodburn was born in Wakefield, R. I., where her early life was passed before moving to Westerly in which community she has resided for the past 53 years. The death of Mr. Woodburn occurred in July, 1926. Through following her profession as a dressmaker Mrs. Woodburn became well known. Until the time of her last illness she took an active interest in Pawcatuck Congregational church and the societies connected with it. Mrs. Woodburn is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Arthur J. Card, who resides at 30 Liberty street, Pawcatuck.

Oct. 18. Dickinson Bishop of Ottawa, LaSalle county, Illinois, sold to Frank W. Coy Real Estate Co., land at Watch Hill, lot No. 85 and No. 3 subdivision of parcel No. 3, bounded northerly by Ninigret avenue, easterly by lands of Helen W. Eustice, northerly and westerly by lands, now or formerly of Ethel Burnet.

BOXING BOUTS AND CHOWDER FOR THE SARDINES CLUB

The Sardines club met in their rooms, Albany avenue, Thursday evening when 25 members and guests had a smoker and relished a codfish chowder prepared by Steward Duke Hiscock, Jr. The big fish was given to the club president, Billie Fitzgerald, through the kindness of Mate Frank Muse of the boat Doris C., who caught a 71-pound cod. Cook Hiscock said that the chowder would not be done until 10:30, so a five-round boxing match was put on between Fighting G. Mahan and One-Punch H. Taylor, a lightweight battle. Referee Eddie Burns was the third man in the ring to see that the boxers did not bite. Fighting Mahan came out of his corner in his red tights like a lion, while One-Punch Taylor was looking his rival over, cool as a cucumber in a garden. For three rounds both men fought toe to toe and the rounds were even. But in the fourth. Mahan gave an oil can left hook that hit One-Punch on the chin and sent him to the floor to stay down until the count of nine. But getting up like Tiger Jack Dempsey in his day, he stayed until the round was over. In the final round, when both men shook hands, quick as a flash Boy Wonder Taylor got the one-punch over to the heart, that spilled Mahan to the floor for a short rest, getting up at the count of eight. Taylor wanted to finish him, but it was a Tom Heeney style, taking everything but the timer's Big Ben clock. It was a good draw "Come and get it—Noank's real chowder," were the words that Cook Hiscock said, and everyone soon had a big spoon and got busy. Smoky Joe Walsh had plenty, outeating the rest. Among the crowd was a golf player, who left many good players back home on the front end of the score; this was Smiling Earl Chapman. He gave a talk on golf, telling all about the game. "I was playing a game with a green man for the championship of the town—that was in Mills, Mass.—and he wanted to know how many points a fellow would get if he made the 19th hole. I told him an adding machine would be in action for two hours when the 19th hole was made. It was a great joke on the green golf player. Always take a good aim and a heavy swing at the ball." For 20 minutes his talk was interesting to the crowd. Two-Step O. Foote made arrangements to play Smiling Earl Chapman for a round of golf for the championship of Midway. Lawrence Sullivan, known as Card Trick Mike, showed how he could tear a pack of cards with his hands and doing tricks with cards where the hand was quicker than the eye, getting a big laugh from the crowd. He was cheered for several minutes.

Got Mail on Zeppelin

Since the Graf Zeppelin is safe at Lakehurst, N. J., after its trip across the ocean from Germany, several towns have had mail that came on the airship. The fishing village of Noank was not left out as several letters and post cards were received by residents of the village. The letters had special stamps on the envelopes. The letters were blue and the post cards were brown. Those getting them are proud of the souvenirs that came on the world's largest airship and have shown them to their friends. One resident declared that $500 could not buy the post card he received in the mail bag from the Zeppelin.

Glut of Cod on Market

Cod has taken a drop in Fulton market, where they have been giving them away for nothing as the market was flooded and the bottom has dropped out on the prices. Never were so many cod in the history of Fulton market—knee deep. The truckmen sometimes cannot get by. Large fishing schooners from Georges banks came in with so many fish around that sometimes the captain of a schooner could not be seen, the fish were so thick. Now the codfishing boats are out after mackerel; those fish are plenty, running in large schools. Boat Reliance with Capt. Grover Eldredge, had 12 barrels of mackerel after fishing only one and one-half hours. That boat had given up codfishing.

Burgess Bedtime Story

Jimmy Has a Fright

The overconfident will find,
To danger they are often blind.
—Jimmy Skunk.

Ambling along in his usual slow way toward the farm of Farmer Brown, Jimmy Skunk stopped to hunt for beetles here and there and now and then to dig out a white grub. Jimmy was feeling very good. He was feeling very pleased with himself. Had he not taught a silly young dog a lesson? Had he not outwitted the man who had set wicked steel traps for him? He felt that he had a right to feel pleased with himself.

Once he met Reddy Fox. Reddy grinned at him, said good evening, and went along about his business. Reddy had no desire to quarrel with Jimmy Skunk. A little later he met Old Man Coyote. Old Man Coyote grinned at him. "Hello, Jimmy!" said he. "You are looking fine. I don't know when I have seen you fatter."

"I am feeling fine," said Jimmy. "How is the world using you, Old Man Coyote?"

"So-so," replied Old Man Coyote. "Just so-so. You know, Jimmy, any one as fat as you are is very tempting."

Jimmy Skunk grinned and at the same time he raised his big plumy tail. Old Man Coyote hastily stepped backward. "You don't have to warn me, Jimmy," said he. "you don't have to warn me. I didn't mean anything personal by that remark."

"That's good," said Jimmy. "I'm glad you didn't."

With this each went his way, each with respect for the other. Jimmy was amused. He knew just how Old Man Coyote felt. "There is nothing like being well armed for defense," said Jimmy. "It certainly does save a lot of worry. It doesn't make any difference to me whom I meet, unless it is one of those two-legged creatures with a dreadful gun. It is a great feeling not to be afraid."

Jimmy's course led him along the edge of a little patch of woodland. Now Jimmy should have been on the watch for trouble there. But he was so pleased with himself that he actually had forgotten that there was one enemy he had reason to fear. Yes, sir, he had actually forgotten it. What it was that made him turn suddenly and look up, he doesn't know to this day. He had heard no sound. He had seen nothing. But he had had a sudden feeling that there was something wrong. He was just in time to look right into the great, glaring eyes of Hooty the Owl, the Great Horned Owl, the biggest of all the Owls. And Hooty was just reaching for him with those great cruel claws of his.

Jimmy didn't waste any time. He went into action right then and there. That little scent gun of his shot a fine spray full in the face of Hooty. It was a good thing for Jimmy that he didn't miss his aim, and it was a good thing that he acted when he did. The same thing happened to Hooty that happened to that dog to whom Jimmy had taught a lesson. Hooty was blinded for a minute. As it was, he almost got Jimmy. One of his great claws tore Jimmy's coat. It tore Jimmy's coat and it hurt.

But Jimmy didn't think about that then. For once in his life he moved quickly. He knew that Hooty, unlike the foolish young dog, would not be driven away by that scent. He knew that Hooty, just as soon as he could see again, would be after him. And so Jimmy ran. Then he wished he were not so fat. In no time at all he was out of breath and puffing, but still he ran. Just ahead of him was a cornfield, and the corn had been cut and was standing in shocks. He dodged around one of these just as Hooty swooped once more. Hooty missed, for he couldn't see any too well yet. Jimmy found an opening among the corn stalks and crept in. There he lay, perfectly still.

The next story: "Jimmy Skunk is Lame."

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

According to The Bulletin of October, 1878, "everyone was talking about the new electric light," which was then rather of a novelty to Norwich. The same week the First Hebrew society of Norwich purchased an acre of land at Fort Point for a burial ground. This is the present Brewster Neck cemetery. Interesting extracts taken from the file of The Bulletin of 50 years ago are as follows:

Monday, Oct. 15, 1878—The Sunday school connected with the East Main street Methodist church held its quarterly concert last evening. The pulpit and altar were covered with flowers and autumn leaves, artistically and effectively arranged. The exercises were very interesting to the audience, which was an unusually large one.

The Hon. L. F. S. Foster and wife returned Saturday night from the Berkshire hills. During the two days they spent at Lakeville they were guests of Governor Holly.

The Greentacks of the Norwich probate district met in convention in this city Saturday and nominated Henry Bellows of Franklin for probate judge.

Tuesday, Oct. 16, 1878—The water in the Shetucket river is quite high. The Ponemah cotton mill at Taftville and Sprague's cotton mill at Baltic have been compelled to run on half time or less for a couple of weeks past and the same cause has necessitated a reduction of time at the Wequonnoc woolen mill and the cotton mill at Occum.

A little 3-year-old girl named Katie Cox, living on Converse row, on Chestnut street, accidentally fell into a large pan full of hot water Sunday afternoon and was badly scalded on the breast and arms before she was rescued. The injuries are not serious.

Competitive examinations for persons desiring positions as teachers in the Central school district are to be held at Broadway schoolhouse next Saturday at 9 o'clock a. m.

Dr. Lewis Paddock sailed a few days since for Europe.

O. D. One business meeting this evening.

Judge Chapin of Worcester, who was well known in this city, died Sunday.

Wednesday, Oct. 16, 1878—The Hon. John T. Wait, whose excellent addresses at Jewett City and Lebanon have been received with such favor, will speak at Union hall, Voluntown, next Monday evening on the currency question.

A brigade of volunteer inspectors do duty on Union street, opposite Dr. Geer's new building. They find the fence wall a good seat while on duty.

Since the fast through train between Boston and New York via Norwich was started the number of passengers has averaged 350 per day.

This is unusually late for open cars, but they are still running on the horse railroads here and are not uncomfortable.

Thursday, Oct. 17, 1878—There will be an entertainment at Breed hall on Saturday evening next, given by the Olympic Variety troupe of this city, for the benefit of the poor of St. Mary's parish. The public are requested to aid a very commendable and worthy object.

Mr. C. W. Tubbs and wife, Norwich, Conn. was among the announcements on the registry of the St. James hotel, Richmond, Va., on Oct. 11th.

All the boxes of the fire alarm telegraph, including the new ones, have been tested and found to be in fine working order.

The oyster gatherers are reaping abundant harvests in the river.

Friday, Oct. 18, 1878—Mr. William Hurd of Dover, N. H., is the guest of the Rev. Mr. Montgomery of this city. Mr. Hurd is to remain two weeks in Norwich and will devote his time to temperance labor in this vicinity.

Eighty degrees in the shade yesterday. So high a temperature at this time of the year is said to be almost unprecedented in this latitude.

Mount Pleasant, West Side, is trailing water pipes up its rugged sides. Another fruit of the no license vote.

Non-intoxicating lager beer has been introduced into the streets.

Clam and oyster boats have obtained a shellfish monopoly at the wharf.

Saturday, Oct. 19, 1878—Our stove men wear sleeve buttons modeled after the newest devices in ranges. They are as large as stove lids and are monogrammed "Graphic," "Morning Glory," "Electra," etc.

Chief Carrier and Captain Whaley have nearly completed their new fish market at the side of the eastern Central wharf bridge. They design to connect it with the fire alarm telegraph so that families may order their salt cod and deviled oysters from the street boxes in their neighborhood.

The horse cars will run on both routes this evening, to accommodate those who wish to attend the entertainment at Breed hall.

The First Hebrew society of Norwich have purchased an acre of land at Fort Point for a burial ground, it adjoins the old Pilgrim burying ground.

Everyone is talking about the new electric light—a machine no larger than a common coffee mill is said to illuminate a whole city. Any small boy will answer for motive power.

TICKER FELL HOPELESSLY BEHIND ORDERS POURED INTO STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 19—(AP)—Speculation for the advance ran riot again in today's stock market. At least a score of high priced stocks were whirled upward 5 to 23 points to new high records, but meanwhile heavy selling, some of it representing week-end profit taking, forced substantial recession in a long list of motors, tractions, farm implements and minor specialties.

Orders poured onto the floor in such gigantic volume that the ticker fell hopelessly behind the market before the end of the first hour and continued that way all day. The final quotation was not printed until 58 minutes after the market closed. Total sales were 4,636,300 shares.

The advance took place in the face of an increase of nearly $75,000,000 in brokers' loans. Federal Reserve officials were represented as being concerned over the record breaking total of loans but inclined to the belief that inasmuch as there had been a contraction in commercial credit demands, the situation was not dangerous. Call money renewed at 6 -2 per cent, the lowest renewal rate since Monday, and held steady at that figure all day. There was a plentiful supply of funds available, despite the usual semi-weekly strengthening by the banks of their positions at the federal reserve.

International Nickel was the sensational individual feature, soaring 23 points to a new high record at 190 and then easing to 184 despite the announcement that reports of a merger or working arrangement with Monds Nockal of London were "premature." Montgomery-Ward ran up 19 points to a new high at 350 and closed a point below the top. Adams Express soared 22 points to a new peak at 419 and retained all its gain. American Smelting retained all but a point of its 14 point gain to a new high at 269.

Radio, emerging from a place of comparative obscurity, opened with a block of 10,000 shares at 220 and then ran up to a new top at 229 3-4, closing at 228 for a net gain of 20 points. Rossia Insurance, Simmons, Brooklyn Union Gas, Warner Bros. issues, Curtiss, Wright, American International, General Gas & Electric B and Johns Manville closed 6 to 12 points higher.

General Motors and Studebaker registered new peak prices at 223 7-8 and 87 1-2, respectively, but the former lost all but a fraction of its gain and the latter closed 2 3-8 points net lower at 83. Hudson fell back 3 points on the publication of a relatively poor third quarter earnings report and heaviness cropped out in Chrysler, Dodge Bros. A, and Briggs Motor Products fell 3 points to 111 1-2.

Reactionary tendencies predominated in the commodity markets. Wheat futures again sagged a fraction of a cent a bushel and cotton dropped a few cents to $1 a bale. Coffee quotations reacted 10 to 14 points and raw sugar futures eased 3 to 4 points.

Foreign exchanges again moved within narrow and irregular limits. Sterling cables eased slightly to around $4 85.

REAR ADMIRAL AND MRS. C. A. CARR'S 30TH ANNIVERSARY AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 19—Society in Norwich as well as in New London was interested in the fact that Rear Admiral Clarence A. Carr and Mrs. Carr informally celebrated the thirtieth anniversary of their wedding this afternoon at their home, 767 Montauk avenue, in The Pequot section. Mrs. Carr was Blanche Lanman, elder daughter of Admiral Joseph Lanman, of a pioneer Norwich family. While there was no strictly formal observance of the anniversary, about forty friends and neighbors called during the afternoon.

Their marriage took place at the close of the Spanish-American war, at which date Admiral Carr held the rank of commander. The ceremony took place at "The Elm" the Pequot avenue residence of Mrs. Carr's girlhood friend, Mrs. Cornelia Osgodo Tyler, wife of Col. Augustus Cleveland Tyler, formerly of Norwich. The year following their marriage they went to the Philippine Islands where they remained for two years and during the succeeding years they made their home in many parts of the world. Much of their time in this country was spent on the Pacific coast, but on Admiral Carr's retirement eight years ago they chose New London as the location for their permanent home.

Admiral Carr purchased their cosy residence, corner of Montauk and Gardner avenues, and here, with his garden and other activities is appreciating to the full the privileges of a retired life, after his years of exacting service in the navy. Mrs. Carr, who has become identified with several of the outstanding organizations here since she became a resident of this city, has earned a reputation as a tireless worker and has shouldered much responsibility in civic activities. She is chairman this year of the Red Cross roll call, secretary of the New London League of Women Voters, secretary of the Smith-Robinson club, secretary of the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women, prominent in the Garden club, the Diocesan Bureau of Social Service, etc.

Besides her active participation in these units Mrs. Carr responds generously to the calls of other organizations for support in developing worth-while projects. They began their anniversary celebration with a small dinner party Thursday evening. During Friday they received numerous gifts of beautiful flowers and other remembrances from friends who chanced to learn of the significance of the date. At the informal tea this afternoon, those who poured were Mrs. Wm. B. Waterman, Mrs. Charles A. Sackett and Mrs. Horace C. Learned.

NORWICH MAN IN LIST OF TAX DELINQUENTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 19—Tax Collector Hibbard N. Alexander today continued his drive to compel the payment of back taxes when he issued warrants calling for the sale of real estate, principally residences, of delinquents, some of whom have owed the city taxes for several years, although there are some warrants calling for the sale of property upon which the tax is but a year in arrears. The list includes: Property owned by Floyd R. Monroe, Norwich, located on the former United States Housing corporation plat, off Jefferson avenue, ordered sold at public auction Dec. 24 at 10 p. m., $175.75 levies of 1926 and 1927. Grace E. Harris, Riverview avenue, sold Dec. 22, at 4 p. m., $715.70, levies of 1922, 1923, 1924, 1925, 1926, 1927. Samuel Zaborsky, $206.25, levy of 1927; a building lot on Division street and a dwelling on Ocean avenue have been ordered sold Dec. 22, at 2 p. m. Antone Enos, Baycnet street, Dec. 24 at noon. Enos owes $292.17, due on the 1927 levy. Charles and Helen Stroneskyj, $175.18, on the levies of 1925, 1926 and 1927; property on Williams street, ordered sold Dec. 24 at 2 p. m. Rafaele Mariani, Groton, property on Mitchell court, taxes of $295.37, levies of 1923, 1924, 1925, 1926 and 1927, ordered sold Dec. 24 at 6 p. m. Prospero Santangelo, Griswold court, $120.25, levies of 1926 and 1927, ordered sold Dec. 26, at 4 p. m. Pasquale Santangelo, Shaw street, Dec. 24 at 4 p. m., levies of 1925, 1926 and 1927; amount assessed $1160.61.

Tomorrow will be the final opportunity for those desiring to qualify as voters to present themselves before the board of selectmen and prove their qualifications. The board will sit from 9 a. m. until 8 p. m.

SCIALABBA WHO APPEARS IS HELD FOR U. S. DIST. COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 19—Salvatore Scialabba, who has kept his whereabouts a secret to the authorities since his premises in the rear of Hillside home was raided by federal and prohibition agents two weeks ago when a still of 350-gallons capacity and another of the 50-gallon type were seized, appeared before the United States commissioner with his counsel, Attorney William T. Connor, when the case charging Scialabba with violation of the prohibition law came up on continuance. Probable cause was found and Scialabba was held in bail of $1,000 for his appearance in the United States district court at New Haven. He furnished a surety on his bond.

Francis B. Steele of Old Saybrook, was in the police court today, charged with violation of the state motor vehicle laws in passing a signal set against him at the corner of Bank and Howard streets. Judgment was suspended. The only other case presented was an old offender charged with intoxication and he was sentenced to 10 days in jail.

Mrs. Anna Rucque, 10 Montauk avenue, who attempted suicide last night at her home by swallowing a quantity of iodine and who was taken to Home Memorial hospital, was reported this afternoon as being in a serious condition and it could not be foretold whether the poisoning would bring about a fatal result. The young woman's mouth, throat and some of the internal organs are badly burned, particularly the mouth. The woman can only speak in a whisper and then with difficulty.

Annie W. Doyle has sold a house and lot, 27 Winthrop street, to Joseph and Mary sienski.

Archibald S. MacFarlane has sold to Fedat and Stella Beloblosky a building lot on Colman street.

Sadie Sternberg has sold a house and lot on Perry street to Samuel Katz.

NURSES GRADUATED AT LAWRENCE-MEMORIAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 19—The annual graduating exercises of the class of 1928 of the Joseph Lawrence School of Nursing, connected with Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were held this evening before a large gathering at Plant hall. Frederick W. Mercer, president of the hospital board presided. The exercises opened with an orchestral march, after which Rev. Philip M. Kerridge, rector of St. James' Episcopal church, made the invocation. Homer A. Underwood, M. C., delivered an inspiring address. President Mercer conferred the diplomas, following which the awarding of the school pins was made by Mrs. Nicholas M. Pond, president of the Women's auxiliary. After music and the benediction the nurses and their friends went to the assembly room at the hospital where from 9:30 until 11:30 there was dancing. JEWETT CITY

FIRE MARSHAL REPRIMANDS POOL ROOM PROPRIETOR

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Oct. 19— A whistle alarm for fire on Soule street was sounded about 1.45 a. m. Friday. A passerby saw a blaze in the pool room conducted by Albert Srakolo in the Glowacki block and gave the alarm. A blazing oil stove was thrown into the gutter. This is the second fire in a week in this pool room. The Hose company responded to the call and laid a line of hose, but water was not turned on. The woodwork was charred in several places but no serious damage resulted. Fire Marshal G. H. Prior with the consent of Warden Jodoin, gave some pointed advice to the proprietor and the owner of the block as to the proper and careful conduct of the place, and said, that he and the borough officials intended to see that there was no fire hazard in such a dangerous district. In the block are two tenements and an A. & P. store, besides the pool room.

the annual "baby day." The boys were attired in rompers, overalls and other childish garments, while the "Alice Blue Gowns" were the choice of the young ladies of the class. The large red and white bows, common a decade ago, were also fastened on the heads of the girls.

The class brought cheers from the underclassmen as they entered the assembly this morning. During the morning classes the "Sophisticated Seniors" conducted their annual parade through the classrooms of the undergraduates.

"Baby day" was inaugurated by the class of 1926 and has since been carried out by the following classes. In past years the day was observed on May 1, and was ended with a Maypole dance, but for other reasons the class of 1929 advanced the celebration several months.

The radio brought the Gettysburg address of President Calvin Coolidge to the homes of nearly every radio owner in Putnam this afternoon. Reception was at its best and the voice of the president was most audible as it came in over the air.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

JUNIOR AMERICAN MECHANICS

Buckingham council, No. 14 held its regular meeting in Eagles' hall, Cliff street, on Wednesday evening. Councilor W. O. Gates presided. Several applications were read and referred to committees on investigation for information before balloting. A special dispensation has been granted by the national council to commemorate the 75th anniversary of the order in the United States of North America. This dispensation will admit anyone who is desirous of joining the order for $2.00, between the 1st of October and the 15th of December, 1928, but the member must be initiated before December 31st, 1928.

The dance which is to be held was voted changed to a masquerade. Music will be by the Swanee Seranaders, who will feature both old-time and modern dances.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY

Norwich lodge, No. 172, will have one of its especially interesting meetings next Wednesday evening as this is the date for conferring the third and fourth degrees. In connection with these degrees the harvest supper will be held.

As is the usual custom the harvest supper will be served at 6 o'clock and the degree work will follow:

CATHOLIC LADIES OF COLUMBUS

The regular meeting of Mercier assembly, No. 12, was held Tuesday evening in the rooms on Broadway with the president, Miss Mary Hamill presiding.

The regular routine business was disposed of and reports of various officers were read. Miss Nonie Nagle, chairman of the dance held recently in the Wauregan hotel submitted her report showing that this was both a social and financial success. The assembly has planned a whist, bridge and pinochle to be held in the rooms next week for which Mrs. Williams has been appointed chairman and she will appoint a committee later.

As the date of the assembly's next regular meeting falls on election night, the meeting has been postponed one week.

Miss Mary O'Neil has been appointed chairman of the drill team and will start rehearsals in the near future.

The social hour this month was in charge of Miss Marguerite Delaney and her capable committee who planned a most enjoyable evening. The rooms were prettily decorated in halloween colors, with black cats, pumpkins, etc., as favors. Games were played, refreshments served and all present declared it one of the most enjoyable of halloween parties.

ODD LADIES, M. U.

Loyal Victory lodge held their regular meeting in Steiner's hall Thursday evening with Noble Grand Emma Lamphere in the chair. The regular business was transacted. Plans are underway for the annual supper which is to be the first Saturday in November. A social time was enjoyed after the meeting.

REBEKAHS

The regular meeting of Hope Rebekah lodge, No. 21, was held Wednesday night with Noble Grand Carolyn Howard in the chair. Reports of committee were read and accepted. The members are planning to visit with Westerly, R. I., lodge in the near future. At the next meeting a class of candidates will be initiated. Bath St. Building Sale

The two and a half story brick building at 11 Bath street, formerly occupied by the plumbing firm of Wholey and Haggerty, has just been sold for Mrs. A. J. Wholey by John A. Moran, the real estate broker, to Victor A. Tongren, who has a shoe store almost across the street. Mr. Tongren is to remodel the building and will occupy it for his shoe store.

Breed Theatre

"Show Girl," First National's picturization of the sensational Broadway satire by J. P. McEvoy, comes to the Breed theatre here starting Sunday night with Alice White in the title role. Alfred Santell, who is responsible for "The Patent Leather Kid," among recent First National successes, directed this much talked of picture.

As "Dixie Dugan," Alice White brings to life on the screen the sophisticated little heroine who is a type distinctly Broadway.

She is one of thousands, whom McEvoy plucked from the melting pot and presented with trimmings and sauce piquant for screen fare.

None could have filled the bill better than the flapper ingenue star, Alice White. Donald Reed, Charles Delaney, Lee Moran, Kate Price, Jimmie Finlayson, Richard Tucker, etc. —all sterling actors—play the other roles admirably. The settings are superb. "Show Girl" is a picture that begins and ends in a blaze of color. It is color. It is vivid, scintillating, vital and fervid. It is today; possibly even tomorrow. It is the picture of the period. It reflects the spirit of jazz—the thing that is New York—the New York of the night clubs and the shows.

There is a touch of burlesque, of course, and a riotous cascade of comedy.

No one can afford to miss "Show Girl," because it is dated—1928—is the day, the present day, with its froth and its tinsel, its lilting love, laughter and life.

Sale of Williams Street Residence

James L. Case has sold for Miss Mary E. Hall the property owned by her and known as No. 41 Williams street consisting of a tract of land about 60 by 200 feet in dimensions with a large dwelling house and barn thereon to Mr. Harold D. Larrabee, president of the chamber of commerce. Miss Hall is leaving town to make her future residence in Pawtucket, R. I.

Current Events Lecture

Prof. Ralph Henry Gabriel, of Yale, is to give the first lecture of the Womans' City Club's series on current events. He will speak in the Wauregan ballroom, at 8 p. m. on Wednesday, October 24th, upon the subject, "The Kellogg Peace Note and Disarmament." Tickets for the course are in charge of Mrs. W. P. Haugh. At 7:30, Wednesday evening, preceding the lecture, tickets will be on sale. Single admission for men in the families of club members, 50 cents.

Everyone who is interested in children and children's reading will want to hear the talk on "Christmas Books for Children," to be given by Miss Josephine Thomas of New Haven, next Tuesday afternoon, at 3:15, at the Woman's City club room in the Wauregan hotel. Miss Thomas is eminently fitted to speak on this subject, as she has been not only the children's librarian at the New Haven library, but at present is conducting in that city the most delightful of bookshops devoted solely to children's literature. The literature department of the club feels that her talk on the fascinating new books, and also on the old worthwhile favorites, will afford club members a really important occasion. Opportunity will be given to ask Miss Thomas questions concerning children's reading and it is hoped that everyone who contemplates giving books as Xmas presents for their younger friends, will avail themselves of this chance to guide their book selection, for the books that are put in the hands of children have untold influence on their minds and characters.

Announcements

The opening dance of the season at Pulaski Hall will be held tonight. The hall has been completely renovated and new lighting effects installed making it one of the finest in Eastern Connecticut. Dances will be held every Wednesday and Saturday evening through the entire season. Music will be furnished by Fred Thumm and his orchestra who have just completed a successful season at Hilltop Casino.

Broadway Theatre

The remarkable Sound synchronization, which startled the thousands who saw "Wings" at the Criterion theatre, New York city, the Carlton theatre in London and at other great theatres in the large cities of the world, where "Wings" played long runs to delighted audiences, will be heard when the Paramount epic of the "Aces" in the World war shows at the Broadway theatre for seven days, starting tomorrow.

The master synchronization, which, at the time of its introduction, was the first great Sound innovation, furnishes a splendid accompaniment for the wonders of the picture. Musical accompaniment of heart-stirring beauty forms the background for realistic Sound effects. The spirt of the music is carefully tempered to keep pace with the changing tempo of the picture.

The Sound effects elicited a wealth of praise from newspaper critics wherever the picture has played. The care which Director William A. Wellman exercised in the production made of "Wings" a thrilling story of the war in the air. The Sound effects added to these realistic and realistically photographed pictures the convincing ear accompaniment.

Falling airplanes really fall in "Wings" in picture and Sound. Machine guns blaze away and those who see them can also hear them. A band marches by and the music swells from the screen. The tramp of a thousands feet is measured in the regulated response from the Sound reproducers.

"Wings is a great moving picture but, with Sound, it is a marvelous piece of realism that records for all time the war as it was fought in the air in 1917 and 1918.

Broadway Theatre

Enthusiastic crowds are filling the Broadway theatre at each performance of "The Lion and the Mouse," Warner Bros. Extended Run production. This screen masterpiece directed by Lloyd Bacon from a scenario by Robert Lord, is a screen revival of the Charles Klein stage success and the all-star cast is headed by May McAvoy and Lionel Barrymore. Others are William Collier, Jr., Alec Francis, Emmett Corrigan and Jack Ackroyd.

The story is an enthrilling one, recounting the ways and means by which a clever girl, known as the "mouse," breaks the bonds of greed that bind a certain "lion" of the business world, in the end managing to free her father from the charges of dishonesty cast upon him by the lion —to change the lion to the proverbial meekness of a lamb—and to win his son in marriage! This, tiny May accomplishes with a verve and go, delightful to behold. Lionel Barrymore and May McAvoy do splendid teamwork as the "Lion" and the "Mouse." Here is a play you'll rave about, particulary when you hear the splendid music score as rendered by the Vitagraph Orchestra, the perfect talking sequences throughout the picture by Lionel Barrymore and the rest of the great cast. You surely will be thrilled as never before.

Feature Picture at Y. M. C. A. Sunday at 4 p. m.

At 4 p. m. on the coming Sunday afternoon in the gymnasium of the Norwich Y. M. C. A. the six reel feature moving picture entitled "Stark Love" will be shown. This picture story is a touching and beautiful drama of life in the great smoky mountains of North Carolina; the intense chapter in the primitive life of a people left behind by the march of progress.

The picture is enacted by natives and the settings are mountains, woods and huts of that bleak country.

Rob Warwick, an ambitious mountain lad is anxious to get away from the indolent life his ancestors have always lived. The painful reading of books instills in him the desire for a real education and he determines to strike out for the settlements and freedom. His experience is both interesting and at times thrilling. The story is one that strongly appeals to all because of a worthy ambition that leads one to sacrifice that he may make the most of his life.

Appropriate music will be furnished and a brief talk in line with the picture will be given.

To this service both sexes are invited provided they are at least fourteen years of age, and boys and girls eleven and over may come with their parents, but only on that condition.

Full timber crops can be grown profitably wherever cutover land is available, for timber always will be in great demand. There are in this country 250,000,000 acres of cutover land more or less stocked with second-growth or culled forest that is producing only a fraction of the timber that might be grown on it with good management.

GREENEVILLE

Mrs. William Mitchell and Mrs. Eugene Sabourin were joint hostesses to the K. B. Sewing club of Auxiliary No. 18, A. O. H. society Wednesday evening. The usual large class attended and a very busy hour occupied the members. During the social hour which followed the sewing period Mrs. Mitchell and Mrs. Sabourin, assisted by Mrs. Wilfred Sabourin and Mrs. Timothy Brennan served a lunch of sandwiches, cake, coffee and little snowballs. Owing to the Halloween frolic next week it was decided not to meet until Thursday evening, Nov. 1, when Mrs. Mary McNally is to entertain the club at her home, 406 Main street.

Walter Christy has returned to his home on Second street after spending a few days with relatives at New Britain. While there he attended the wedding of his cousin which took place Wednesday morning.

The T. D. Sewing circle held their weekly meeting Wednesday evening at the home of Miss Eva Coughlin of North Main street with a large number of members attending. After sewing a social hour was enjoyed with piano and vocal solos featuring the entertainment. A buffet luncheon was served by the hostess, assisted by Miss Alice Govern.

A surprise party was held Friday evening at the home of William Cyr at Boswell avenue with twenty of his friends attending. Among the guests present were people from Montville, Jewett City and Plainfield. Miss Anna Drescher entertained, rendering several piano solos while William Martinecki gave a fine exhibition of the black bottom and other popular dance steps. Refreshments were served by the hostess, consisting of assorted sandwiches, fancy cookies and cakes, fruit, candy, ice cream, lady fingers and coffee. At each place was a favor of the Halloween type. The dining room was prettily decorated for the occasion with the color scheme of orange and black being used. Along the sides of the dining room paper witches and black cats were placed. The party broke up at a late hour all present voting Mr. Cyr an ideal host.

John McClafferty, of Southbridge is spending a few days at his home on Hickory street.

George Swanton of Providence is spending the week end at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Swanton, 499 North Main street.

Miss Ida Marshall of Prospect street will leave today (Saturday) to spend a few days as the guest of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Marshall of Springfield. While there Miss Marshall is planning to make a trip over the Mohawk trail.

PRES. MARSHALL LISTED AMONG HOOVER SUPPORTERS

Dr. Benjamin T. Marshall, former president of the Connecticut College for Women, and Judge George R. Hinman of Willimantic, member of the supreme court bench, are listed among other leading Connecticut citizens who have come out in strong support of the candidacy of Herbert Hoover for the presidency. The list, made public from Washington, quotes Dr. Marshall as saying that one reason why he will vote for Hoover is that the candidate is "soundly and constructively American."

Dr. Marshall further states, "In character, Mr. Hoover is unimpeachable; in experience broad and international in outlook. He is sympathetic and practical in domestic affairs; brave and vigorous in action—the best equipped man presented to the American people by the republican party since Lincoln."

Judge Hinman is quoted as saying that he will vote for Hoover because of "all the reasons which, I think, should determine the choice of a president."

All of those quoted are listed in "Who's Who in America," and others from Connecticut who have recorded themselves for Hoover include Hiram Percy Maxim of Hartford, famous scientist and inventor; Francis Atwater, New Haven banker and publisher; F. A. Gooch, noted New Haven chemist; R. N. Bissell, well known insurance man of Hartford; William H. Corbin Hartford manufacturer; H. H. Long, professor of Romance languages and literature at Yale university, and Anna L. Ward, Waterbury authoress.

Very few of the Who's Who list expressed favor for the democratic nominee for president.

WILL BE SPEAKER AT CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH

Miss Meme Brockway of Philadelphia, who is the first woman to have made a trip around the world to visit the children, will be at the Central Baptist church on Sunday morning to give the story of her unique experience. Her address was the outstanding address at the state convention of Baptists recently held at Stamford.

351 MORE NEW VOTERS MADE BY SELECTMEN AND TOWN CLERK

Three hundred and fifty-one more new voters were made Friday in the council chamber by the board of selectmen and town clerg. This makes a total of 1,903 new voters made in the three sessions held by the board so far. Last Saturday the number of voters made was 657, and Wednesday of this week the total for that day was 895. The board was in session Friday from 8 a. m. until one in the afternoon and from 2 until 8 in the evening. All applicants for the oath who showed up Friday were taken care of and the final new voter for the day was sworn in just as the town clock was striking eight o'clock. The board then adjourned for the night, to convene again this (Saturday) morning, same hours as on the previous days. There are still over 1,200 names on the "to be made" list.

As on the previous days several applicants could not be administered the oath through neglect to produce their naturalization papers, neglect to file applications and inability to pass the reading test. Those who did not have their naturalization papers with them were informed that they can be made today (Saturday) providing they can produce their papers.

Below is the complete list of those made voters Friday:

COLLEGE GIRLS FAVOR HOOVER IN DEBATE

Connecticut College for Women gave Herbert Hoover almost unanimous support following a debate Thursday night by girls representing different characters in American public life on the subject, Resolved: That Alfred E. Smith rather than Herbert Hoover should be elected the next president.

The winning side was composed of Miss Achsah Roberts and Miss Barbara Ward of Bay City, Mich. The affirmative side was upheld by Miss Dorothy Fetzer of East Stuyvesant, N. Y., who appeared as Judy O'Connor, a cousin of Mayor Walker and secretary of the New York City Smith club, and Miss Frances Wells of Upper Montclair N. J., who represented Senator Borem of Jersey City. Senator Borem had a liquor bottle under his chair during the debate.

Miss Verne Hall, '29, of Hamburg, president of the college history club, opened the program.

PARK CHURCH WOMEN HELD GET-TOGETHER LUNCHEON

The get-together luncheon of the Woman's federation of Park Congregational church took place Friday noon in the dining room of the Hugh Henry Osgood Memorial.

The musical part of the program consisted of songs in unison, at different times, with Mrs. Aurin E. Payson song leader and Mrs. Charles A. Saxton pianist, and two solos charmingly sung by Miss Katharine Hempstead, "Where My Caravan Has Rested" and "My Laddie."

After the delicious luncheon had been enjoyed, Miss Hannah M. Crowell, president of the federation, greeted the members at the beginning of a new year of work, called for reports from the secretary and the treasurer and summarized the work of various federation groups, committees and departments.

The meeting was then handed over to Mrs. Frederick W. Cary, chairman of the parish house department. Her introduction of the different persons taking part was delightful and original even her preface to her own talk, which was "A Summer's Experience in a Business Girls' Home in New York."

Miss Anna L. Ely told in graphic fashion of seeing the Sultan of Morocco go to church.

Miss Margaret L. Sayles described the impressive World War Memorial in Edinburgh.

Miss Alice Sayles told of the Fairyland of Childhood being made real by travel.

Mrs. L. O Smith graphically drew word pictures of some scenes at the Kansas City convention.

The very interesting afternoon ended with the reading of four of her own poems by Miss Helen Newton. The last one—October—was especially intriguing.

There was a rising vote of thanks to the different committees responsible for the various features of the afternoon.

The luncheon was served by the hospitality committee, Mrs. Raymond B. Sherman, chairman; Mrs. John F. Rogers, Mrs. Walter E. Turner, Mrs. Charles W. Taggart, Mrs. Joseph T. Hynd, Mrs. Rollin C. Jones, Mrs. Hans E. Hansen, Mrs. W. Manley Eastwood, Jr. The decorations on the tables were under the care of Mrs. Leonard P. Church. Mrs. Robert Smith was in charge of the dining room, assisted by Miss Janet Plant Blackstone, Miss Louise Higgins and Miss Dorothy Prentice as waitresses, and by Mrs. Robert Cochrane and Mrs. Keene.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

Mr. and Mrs. Halsey Richards drove from Newport and were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Chase of Sachem terrace, over Thursday night.

Mrs. David H. Throope of Broad street has returned from Short Beach, where she has passed the season.

On a motor trip, which will take them as far as New Orleans, Dr. and Mrs. Witter K. Tingley are due in St. Joseph, Mo., today (Saturday).

With decorations and favors carrying out the colors of Halloween, Mrs. Albert S. Comstock of Lincoln avenue entertained with a luncheon bridge Friday. There were four tables of cards, the prizes being won by Mrs. Charles L. Stewart, Mrs. Henry W Lane, Mrs. Alfred M. Haring and Mrs. Herbert B. Cary.

Will L. Stearns of 17 Huntington place goes to Albany, N. Y., this (Saturday) morning for a ten days' stay.

Miss Harriet E. Breed of Broadway has returned from New York, where she has spent part of the week.

Given favorable weather today (Saturday), members of Gen. Ebenezer Huntington society, Children of the American Revolution, will be taken on their first outing of the season by their president, Mrs. Elisha E. Rogers, following the old trails to Norwich Town, East Great Plain, thence to New London, with visits to the old town mill, Nathan Hale school house and other historical points.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Carpenter of Newton street have returned from a motor tour as far as Hanover, N. H., with a week-end visit to Gloucester, Mass., where they were guests of Mrs. Albert Lewis at her cottage. Mrs. William H. Palmer is now the guest of Mrs. Lewis.

CATHOLIC WOMEN'S COUNCIL WILL HEAR STATE REPORTS

Before the annual luncheon meeting of the Catholic Council of Women, which is to be held today (Saturday), at the Hotel Bond, Hartford, a business session will be called at 10 o'clock.

The principal speakers at the luncheon will be the Right Rev. Maurice F. McAuliffe, D. D., and Miss Sarah Weadick, assistant director of the immigration bureau of the N. C. W. C.

At the business session, Mrs. Witter K. Tingley of this city will speak for New London county upon "Our Institutional Visiting," and Mrs. John Reilly for Windham county upon "Girl Scouts."

State committees will report as follows: Miss Mary P. O'Flaherty, chairman, committee on education and legislation; Mrs. James J. Quinn, National Membership; Mrs. Herbert F. Fisher, "Permanent Scholarship Fund."

Homes to Care for Children

The department of public welfare held a meeting in the state capitol this week, at which the following homes were licensed to care for children: Mrs Helen Alling of Plainville, for 1; Mrs. Felix Garceau of Yantic, for 2; Mrs. Louis Horowitz, Chestnut Hill, for 2; Mrs. Allen Latham of Norwich Town, for 1, and Mrs. Herbert Watson of North Franklin, for 2. The commissioner of child welfare reported the welcomed fact that for three months the number of children for whom other desirable plans could be made had far exceeded the number actually committed to county homes. Mrs. Frank A. Mitchell of this city was appointed to represent the department at the opening of the first Federal Prison for Women located in Virginia, to take place soon. The Christian Record Publishing company of College View, Nebraska, was licensed to solicit funds to be used in sending a publication to the blind. The secretary spoke of the urgent need for legislation which would give the department authority to refuse licenses for soliciting funds to outside organizations which had no claim on Connecticut money. As the law now reads, it is compulsory that such a license be issued providing the applicant is a bona fide charity and has integrity.

Engagement Announced

Announcement has been made by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Samul of New London of the engagement of their daughter, Helen Catherine, to Walter Krupinski, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Krupinski of this city. The wedding is to take place next month.

Will Go To Noroton

The president and several members of Sedwick Woman's Relief corps are to attend the annual Noroton day on Oct. 26th at Noroton.

TAFTVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gagnon have taken a house on Norwich avenue.

Mrs. Diana Prievey and son who have been in South Windham have leased one of the apartments in the block owned by Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Krauss of Bilsville.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Atkins and son Quintin Atkins of South Second avenue have been spending several days in New York.

James Hanley of Fall River, Mass., is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis C. Murphy and family of Jewett City road.

The first, second and third grades of the Wequonnoc schol omitted their sessions Thursday afternoon, to allow the teachers to use that time for visiting day.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert P. Hoyle of North Third avenue expect to move soon to New Bedford, Mass., where they have purchased a residence.

Mr. and Mrs. William LaRochelle have leased the house at 14 Providence street recently vacated by Mr. and Mrs. Mathew Carvie and family who have moved to Lisbon.

Local dealers are beginning to feature Halloween novelties in their stores and display windows.

Rev. William Ganley of North Wilbraham, Mass., is to occupy the pulpit at the Taftville Congregational church next Sunday as a candidate.

Grosvenor Beardow who has been spending the summer at his cottage at Pine Grove, Niantic, has returned to his home on Providence street.

Leonard Palva of lower Norwich avenue is returning to his home in New Bedford, Mass., today (Saturday).

Frank Treckman of lower Norwich avenue has returned from San Antonio, Texas where he has been attending the annual convention of the American Legion.

Miss Rosanna Benoit of Fall River, Mass., is spending the week end with relatives in the village.

The sessions of the night school are being largely attended and much progress is being made by the scholars. Special attention is being given to studies which will prepare the pupils for qualifying for citizenship, and in taking out naturalization papers.

It appears to be the belief of the residents of Blissville that the state highway department will run the new highway from the present Newent highway to the Jewett City road, thereby causing traffic to use the present concrete Blissville bridge, and eliminating the necessity of widening the Lisbon bridge or building a new one. The surveyors who are doing the work have some interesting documents in their possession, some dated as early as 1836, giving the state the right to a highway 3 rods in width through this section of the town.

NORWICH TOWN

RASKOB CALLS REP. PARTY THE PROHIBITION PARTY

In a Letter to Chairman Work, Mr. Raskob Asserts That the Policy of Protective Tariff is No Longer an Issue, as Both Major Parties Are in Accord—Declares That the Republican Party "Has Now Become Simply the Prohibition Party of the United States"—Charges Mr. Work and Senator Borah With Misrepresentation and Evasion.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21—(AP)—John J. Raskob, democratic national chairman, in an open letter to Dr. Hubert Work, republican national chairman, made public at democratic national headquarters today, declared that the republican party "has now become simply the prohibition party of the United States."

"I have noted a general call to arms of all your speakers, from Mr. Hoover down, since our demonstration that the issue of the policy of protection is no longer in politics," Mr. Raskob wrote. "I quite understand your perturbation. Without that issue, your party has only one permanent policy left. You now become simply the prohibition party of the United States."

Going into a discussion of Governor Smith's attitude toward the Underwood Tariff and Mr. Hoover's attitude on the postwar wheat price, Mr. Raskob charged Dr. Work and other republican leaders with deliberate misrepresentation of fact and with evasion of his challenges to prove the truth of their assertions.

He said the purpose of his first letter to Dr. Work in which he offered to resign as national chairman and vote for Hoover if Dr. Work could prove that Governor Smith had endorsed the Underwood tariff, was "frankly to raise a question of your veracity."

"Your reply," he wrote, "contains neither proof nor retraction of, nor reference to, your assertion. I assume from this that you thus express indifference to the question which it was the purpose of my letter to raise.

"This is not the first occasion in this campaign in which you have led and your speakers have followed a course evincing a like indifference to the same virtue. You recently and publicly charged Senator Robinson with falsely asserting that Mr. Hoover had held down the price of wheat after the Armistice. . . I promptly referred you to the cable in which Mr. Hoover himself had accepted responsibility for keeping down the price of wheat. You did not reply personally, but almost immediately afterward, Senator Borah read to a farm audience in Minneapolis all the numbers of the correspondence of which this cable was the climax—all of which was irrevelent to the point in issue—but omitted the crucial cablegram which I had brought to your attention.

"I know of no other public document so deceitfuly conceived as this speech of Senator Borah's."

On the tariff question, Mr. Raskob referred Dr. Work to Governor Smith's Louisville speech and said he desired to "commend it to your candidate as a much needed example of a man taking a definite stand on a political question."

"I can see no useful purpose in continuing the discussion between us," he concluded. "I am willing at any time to meet and discuss issues on accurate and clear-cut statements of fact, but I cannot do so on the basis of such misquotations and mis-statements as have uniformly characterized your side of this correspondence."

HOOVER WILL SPEAK IN NEW YORK CITY TONIGHT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 — (AP) — Herbert Hoover moved to an enemy stronghold tonight to deliver the last blow of his eastern campaign for the presidency, at Madison Square Garden. In the home town of his democratic opponent, the republican candidate will make his last speech east of the Mississippi river tomorrow night after a day spent with New York party leaders in mapping out their strategy for the closing days of the drive.

Although New York city in the past has given Governor Alfred E. Smith large majorities, republican leaders who have visited their standard bearer here during past weeks have expressed the belief that Hoover will be able to trim down this margin enough for the upstate republicans to deliver the electoral vote to the republican party.

Some of them said that many persons who supported the New York governor in past campaigns would not vote for him for president and that these defections would materially cut down his total in New York city.

Elihu Root, former secretary of state, will preside over the meeting at Madison Square Garden and Vice President Dawes will make his only speech of the campaign in presenting the candidate. Hoover spent today quietly at his home on S street going with Mr. Hoover in the morning to the Quaker church on Irving street. He left his home in mid-afternoon to board his train with Mrs. Hoover, their son, Allan, several members of his personal party and a group of newspaper correspondents.

INTERNATIONAL UTILITY COMBINE REORGANIZED

NEW YORK, Oct. 21—(AP)—Formation of the Trust Financier de Transports et Diontreprises Industrielles by banking and public utility interests of the United States, England, France, Germany, Belgium and other countries as the initial step in reorganizing the international utility combine known as "Sofina" was announced here today.

The new corporation, which has a capital of 100,000,000 francs (about $4,000,000), will be headed by Bannie Heineman, an American resident of Brussels, Mr. Heineman, as head of "Sofina," or "Societe Financiere de Transports et D'Entreprises Industrielles," was largely responsible in bringing the new interests into the reorganized corporation which will develop public utility projects throughout the world.

American interests represented as incorporators or subscribers include the Electric Bond & Share Co., International General Electric Co., and the banking houses of Dillon, Read & Co., Bankers Trust Co., Guaranty Company of New York, Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Lee, Higginson & Co., International Acceptance Bank, Inc., and the International Acceptance Trust Co. It is expected that the shares acquired by the American interests will be privately held, with no public offering.

OFFICERS ELECTED BY THE PROBUS NATIONAL

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 21—(AP)—The annual convention of the Probus National, an order of service clubs composed of professional and business men of Jewish faith, was held at Hotel Kimball, here this afternoon. The new national officers elected were: President, Dr. Alfred M. Glickman of Springfield; first vice president, Allen E. Price, of Worcester; second vice president, James M. Kent, of New Haven, Conn.; third vice president, Dr. David Waskowitz, of New Britain, Conn.; treasurer, Milton Bachrach, of Hartford, Conn.; secretary, M. J. Joslowits, of Springfield.

MAN SERIOUSLY INJURED WHEN STRUCK BY AUTO

WATERFORD, Oct. 21—(AP)—Charles Stebbins, 60, was seriously injured tonight crossing the Boston Post road, when he was struck by an automobile driven by John Coates, of this town. Stebbins was taken to the Lawrence Memorial hospital at New London, where his name was placed on the danger list. Coates was held under bonds of $1,000 on a charge of reckless driving.

JEWISH AGENCY TO REPLACE THE ZIONIST ORGANIZATION

NEW YORK, Oct. 21—(AP)—Four hundred Jewish leaders from 25 states and Canada attending a non-Zionist conference here today adopted the report of the joint Palestine survey commission as a basis for the formation of an enlarged Jewish agency to replace the Zionist organization now recognized by the British government as a provisional agency in Palestine.

The conference, called by Louis Marshall, is a development of five years' negotiation between Zionists and non-Zionists, which included two non-partisan congresses in 1924 and 1926. Chaim Weizman, president of the World Zionist organization, characterized the resolution as an important historic departure in the life of American Jewry and in the fortunes of the Zionist movement.

He urged the need of speeding the work of building Palestine as a Jewish homeland and predicted that Jewish agencies in other countries would follow the lead of this conference and co-operate in achieving Palestine's rehabilitation.

Others who endorsed the resolution included Horace Stein, Dr. Cyrus Adler and Rabbis Louis Wolsey and William H. Fineschreiber, of Philadelphia; C. I. Herbert H. Lehman, democratic candidate for lieutenant-governor of New York; Dr. Julian Morgenstern and Dr. David Philipson, of Cincinnati; Dr. Abram Simon, of Washington, and David A. Brown, of Detroit, Mich., national chairman of the United Jewish campaign.

TWO MEN WERE KILLED IN WELLAND CANAL LANDSLIDE

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Oct. 21—(AP)—Two men are dead and five others in hospitals here with injuries suffered in a landslide on the Welland ship canal at Thorold on Saturday.

The body of one was recovered by rescuers a few hours after the accident. He had been thrown against a steel dump car in the new canal channel and hurried beneath the slide. Another died today in a hospital after his leg had been amputated.

Ten men in a working crew were in the new canal channel when the clay above gave way and swept down the bank. Seven were partially buried. Three others, only slightly injured, were taken home after emergency treatment.

Those in charge of laying a track along the bottom of the new channel said they believed the jarring of heavy trucks along a highway detour at the edge of the canal was responsible for the landslide.

MADE ARREST ON COW CATCHER OF LOCOMOTIVE

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 21—(AP)—The Knickerbocker Press will say tomorrow that a man, reported to be mad, was taken off the front of the engine which hauled Governor Smith's special train from Syracuse to Albany today, after a hand-to-hand encounter on the cowcatcher with a New York Central railroad policeman.

The man said he was Lester Skinner, 23, who had escaped from the state hospital at Westboro, Mass., three weeks ago.

William Keith, the policeman, the newspaper will say, was sent to the Almank Union station after word was sent from Utica that the man was aboard the train. Neither the governor nor members of his party knew of the incident. Keith jumped on the cowcatcher as the engine slowed down at the station and arrested the man.

DIED IN PLANE WHILE ON WAY TO HOSPITAL

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Oct. 21—(AP)—Edward St. Albans, 50, oil operator, of Laredo, Texas, and husband of Mary St. Albans, noted writer of fiction, died in an airplane this afternoon while being rushed to a San Antonio hospital after hemorrhage of the stomach at Laredo.

Confusion in reports here led to the belief that the dying man was Guzon Gorgium, internationally prominent sculptor and artist. At the time of the report, Borgium was on a train speeding toward San Antonio from Raleigh, N. C., which strengthened the report.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

LONDON, Oct. 21—(AP)—A British white paper containing the documents relating to the Anglo-French naval proposals will be issued for publication tomorrow morning.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 21—(AP)—Emilio Portes Gil will take the oath of office as provisional president of Mexico before congress assembled in the National stadium on Nov. 30.

PEKING, Oct. 21—(AP)—The Chinese authorities have released the 35 crates of fossils which Roy Chapman Andrews, the American explorer, brought back from the Gobi desert.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 21—(AP)—The trial of Jose de Leon-Toral and Mother Concepcion on charges growing out of the assassination of President-elect Obregon is expected to open shortly possibly as soon as early November.

NANKING, China, Oct. 21—(AP)—C. T. Wang, Nationalist foreign minister, officially denied a Shanghai report that the Nationalist foreign office had dispatched a note to the powers concerned seeking the latter's relinquishment of extra-territoriality in China.

BERNE, Switzerland, Oct. 21—(AP)—A woman passenger on an airplane excursion over the Alps fell from her seat and was killed when the plane veered sharply as it was caught in a downward air current over Aletsch glacier. The pilot only discovered that his passenger had disappeared when the plane righted again.

LINDBERGH INSPECTING NIGHT FLYING ROUTES

CURTISS FIELD, N. Y., Oct. 21—(AP)—Col Charles A. Lindbergh took off here shortly after 2 p. m., today, on a westward flight during which he plans to inspect the night flying routes of the Transcontinental Transport company. As is his custom he departed without announcing his intended destination.

He flew a Curtiss Falcon plane equipped with landing lights for night flying. The colonel was dressed in heavy flying togs and carried a box of food with him, two details which were interpreted at the field to indicate the possibility of a long hop.

A number of maps upon which were plotted the proposed air routes of the Transport company were put aboard the plane.

Col. Lindbergh has flown over the air routes, associates said, but never on night flights. He is chairman of the technical committee of the Transport company.

SUBNORMAL CHILDREN NOT OFFSPRINTS OF WEALTHY

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 21—(AP)—What sort of parents produce the subnormal children, asks Leon F. Whitney, executive secretary of the American Eugenics society here.

His answer is that many of them come from fathers of good money-making abilities. The answer is based on a survey of an unnamed "eastern seacoast city," Mr. Whitney writes:

"From this study one would almost have to conclude that the ability to accumulate money was not necessarily associated with high intelligence. He finds that most of the subnormal children come from persons apparently normal, though "low grade," and that such persons are "almost certain to produce children of even less competence," although themselves good money makers.

DEMOCRATS TO ADVERTISE RELIGIOUS INTOLERANCE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21—(AP)—Henry J. Allen, director of publicity of the republican national committe, in a statement issued here tonight, said he had been warned the democrats were preparing to publish full page advertisements "to make it appear we are appealing to religious intolerance."

"In view of the known intention of the democratic leaders to carry forward this campaign with increasing intensity," the director said, "it might be wise for the public to be on its guard against the unrestrained indecencies of those whose fury has become desperate."

Allen charged that a "dozen reckless leaders" and a "long list of less known assailants, have given to themselves the task of uttering utterly unwarranted personal attacks on Mr. Hoover."

SMITH TO VISIT HARTFORD THURSDAY AFTERNOON

HARTFORD, Oct. 21—(AP)—Gov. Alfred E. Smith, democratic candidate for president, will come to Hartford from Providence late Thursday afternoon to be the guest of Connecticut democrats in a welcoming demonstration, National Committeeman Thomas J. Spellacy advised on his return from Albany late tonight.

That other Connecticut cities will have the opportunity to greet Gov. Smith on his visit to this state also appeared probable, according to Mr. Spellacy, who reported that Gov. Smith expressed a desire that his train might be routed that he might greet the residents of other centers of population.

TRI-MOTORED FORD PLANES FOR AIR-RAIL SERVICE

NEW YORK, Oct. 21—(AP)—The Pennsylvania railroad announced today that its associate company, Trans-Continental Air Transport, Inc., had ordered ten tri-motored Ford planes for use in the trans-continental air-rail service it plans to inaugurate next spring.

Col Charles A. Lindbergh, chairman of the company's technical committee, recommended the Ford plane, the announcement said.

France May Ratify Debt Agreements

It is Intimated That Premier Poincaré Will Request Parliament to Act.

PARIS, Oct. 21—(AP)—That Premier Poincaré will request parliament to ratify the Mellon-Berenger and Caillaux-Churchill debt agreements as a result of his conversations last week with Winston Spencer Churchill, British chancelor of the exchequer and S. Parker Gilbert, agent general for reparations, is strongly intimated in circles close to the French government.

Growing belief that the United States would refuse aid in floating the German bonds necessary under the proposed revision of the Dawes plan unless the Mellon-Berenger accord was ratified, is said to exert much influenc in framing the French financial policy for the immediate future, it also is pointed out in governmental and financial circles that as France is now meeting her war debt payments to both America and Great Britain with perfect regularity, ratification of the accords is only a logical step.

An additional argument in favor of ratification of the Mellon-Berenger accord advanced by government supporters is that next August France must pay $400,000,000 for the American army stocks left after the World war. This debt is now bearing five per cent interest whereas if the Mellon-Berenger accord was ratified it would be consolidated in the general war debt and the interest rate would be reduced to two per cent.

Lively interest is displayed by the French press and in political circles over the renewal of conversations on the debt question by Poincare, Churchill and Gilbert. The fact that J. P. Morgan was a luncheon guest of Chancelor Churchill and Mr. Gilbert at the British embassy last Friday, is pointed to by many as having great significance.

In well informed circles it is generally conceded that the total sum to be paid by Germany as fixed in 1924 is impracticable and must be reduced considerably.

EL OUAFI LEAVES RAY BEHIND IN MARATHON

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, Oct. 21—(AP)—El Ouafi, little Arabian king of Olympic marathon runners, ran away from Joie Ray, American distance star, in an indoor battle over the 26 mile, 385 yard route tonight, that drew less than 6,000 persons into Tex Rickard's arena. El Ouafi defeated Ray by almost three laps. The former American mile king, running his first professional marathon and the fifth of his career, could not cope with the speed and stamina of the Arabian who whipped him in the Olympic grind. After racing at El Ouafi's heels for 23 miles, leading at times and never more than 30 yards behind, Ray's strength crumpled and he was lapped by the Arabian in the 24th mile. El Ouafi picked up another lap and was well on his way to a third at the close of the grind.

Ouafi's time was 2:44:55 2-5, remarkably fast for such a distance indoors. The Arabian won first prize of $4,000 while Ray received $1,000. Of nine starters only five finished. Arthur Newton of England, was third; Juri Lossmar of Esthonia, fourth, and Sam Richman of New York, fifth. All were miles behind Ray and Ouafi.

RADIO SERMON BY REV. DR. S. PARKES CADMAN

NEW YORK, Oct. 21—(AP)—The world's peoples are invited in the cause of peace, and conference is supplanting controversy in the world's affairs, the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, declared today in the second of his Sunday afternoon radio sermons.

"I bring you the welcome news," he said, "that the representatives of thirty nations and four hundred million believers are bent on peace as against war. They are prepared to advocate and to defend the policies required for the assurance of just and honorable peace."

This message, he said, was founded on his own observations while he attended last summer three international conferences of churchmen in Europe.

DIED OF INJURIES DAY HE WAS TO HAVE BEEN MARRIED

PALMER, Mass., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Ernest Melvo Barto, a seaman at the U. S. naval base at New London, Conn., who was to have been married Saturday to Miss Mary Elizabeth Boulanger at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles I. Spear in Ware, died yesterday in Winn Memorial hospital as the result of his motorcycle colliding with a motor truck in Monson Friday night.

Guests from Springfield, Holyoke, Providence, Southbridge, Oxford and Webster already had arrived for the ceremony.

The truck which figured in the accident was being driven by Martin Furzal of Monson, who says Barto, at terrific speed came around a curve on Stafford street and he had no time to pull any further to the right. Barto was hurled 30 feet distant and some parts of the machine were 40 feet away.

TO HAVE MARKINGS TO AID AERIAL NAVIGATION

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(AP)—A nation-wide movement for the identification of towns and cities by roof markings as an aid to aerial navigation was announced today by Harry F. Guggenheim, president of the Daniel Guggenheim fund for the promotion of aeronautics.

With the co-operation of the post office department, he said, the fund has enlisted the assistance of 8,000 postmasters throughout the country in communities of a population of about 1,000 or more, who will take the initiative in identifying their communities by means of adequate roof markings.

BELGIUM WAR VETERANS WERE HONORED IN PARIS

PARIS, Oct. 21—(AP)—A signal honor was extended to Belgium today when 8,000 war veterans of that country, led by Crown Prince Leopold, filed under the Arc De Triomphe at the conclusion of their two day convention here.

Only three organized bodies of men have been allowed to pass under the monument since the armistice. These were the victory parade of 1919, the American Legion parade last year, and the Belgians today.

Wing Fell From Plane Two Persons Killed

Plane Was Caught By Strong Wind Over Oxford, Mass., Flying Field.

OXFORD, Mass., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Two persons were killed when a wing fell from a plane in which they were circling over the flying field here late today. Felix Brisbois, 26, the pilot of the small American Eagle biplane had as a passenger Joseph Bazinet. Both are residents of Webster. Witnesses said that the plane had been up for some time and had reached an altitude of about 200 feet when it was caught by a strong wind. The pilot appeared to have it in perfect control but suddenly spectators were horrified to see one of the wings drop off and the plane fall to earth. Brisbois it is believed, was killed outright for there was no sign of life when flying officials reached the tangled wreckage. Bazinet was breathing, although unconscious. He was extricated and placed in an automobile to be taken to a hospital but died before he reached the institution.

Brisbois was one of the best known fliers in this section being the first Webster man to secure a flying license. He flew his plane from St. Louis to Oxford and there was a celebration to welcome him at the time.

TWO AVIATORS INJURED TESTING AIR CURRENTS

HAVERHILL, Mass., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Two aviators employed at the commercial air field here were critically injured today, when an airplane in which they were testing air currents preparatory to taking up passengers, nose-dived into a grove about a mile out of the city.

The injured men both of whom were taken to the Gale hospital, were George F. Mosher of Brockton and Otto Mixaria of County Point, N. F.

The airplane with Mosher at the controls, had just passed beyond the city limits when it was seen to be in trouble. It was righted again for a moment and then plunged earthward. Mixaris was found to have suffered a crushed chest and leg injuries. Mosher, who at first seemed less seriously injured, was placed on the danger list sometime after his arrival at the hospital. The nature of the injuries were not definitely determined.

ARMY TO MANEUVER NEAR SAN ANTONIO, TEX.

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Battle lines were taut tonight as the staffs of 11 generals of the United States army, national guard and organized reserves poured over hundreds of maps for direction of the army's peacetime hypothetical maneuver schedule to get under way at dawn tomorrow.

This will be the first of such maneuvers to be held in the nine corps areas of the United States and is for the purpose of training higher commanders of the army, national guard and organized reserves in their duties in time of war.

About 450 army officers will participate in the maneuvers, with only a few enlisted men, although a representation of approximately 900,000 men will be involved in the problem.

Two armies, a red and a blue, will clash, representing a major operation of the allied troops in the Argonne during the World war. The officer personnel will represent a war strength field army in action at the various headquarters.

BROWN DERBY WAS PRESENTED GOV. SMITH

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Governor Smith's brown derby record at the end of his second campaign trip checked up today as four given away and one received.

The governor revealed the status of his headgear supply when he was asked how his stock was holding out, after his midnight stop in Cleveland Saturday night when he had graciously given away a derby to the first person to greet him as the special train stopped to change engines.

"But I got one in Utica," he said, referring to the stop the party made this morning at Utica to attend church service at St. John's church. "Some man handed it to Mrs. Smith to give to me. It is just exactly my size."

The hat that the candidate had given away the night before, members of the party recalled, had been the last one he had with him and did not fit him particularly well. The main use he put it to was for salutation of the crowds that greeted him at every stop.

HERBERT HOOVER HAS ARRIVED IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Herbert Hoover arrived at 9.30 o'clock tonight from Washington to wind up his eastern campaign for the presidency. After a day of conferences with party leaders he will deliver his last speech east of the Mississippi river at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

The republican presidential candidate was met at the station by a group of New York state party leaders including Charles D. Hilles, national committeeman, and H. Edmund Machold, state chairman.

A large crowd cheered the passage of the candidate through the areaway of the station and there were other cheers as his caravan passed into Seventh avenue in front of the station.

RAIDS ON SEVEN SOUTH JERSEY ROAD HOUSES

CAMDEN, N. J., Oct. 21—(AP)—More than 450 persons, mostly patrons, were arrested early today in raids on seven South Jersey road houses. The prisoners with few exceptions, were released in $25 bail each.

Chairs and bottles were hurled through the air and the whack of night sticks in the hands of the raiders resounded as doors were battered down and an effort made to round up the occupants in one room. Fifty state troopers made up the raiding party.

CALVARY BAPTIST CHURCH TO HAVE ELECTION PRAYER

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Calvary Baptist church, of which the Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton is pastor, voted today to set aside Sunday, November 4, as a special day of prayer, "for the triumph of righteousness and the defeat of the forces of evil" in the forthcoming election. The members also will fast on November 4.

The church invited other Baptist churches and other demominations throughout the United States to join in the day of prayer.

FURIOUS GALE SWEPT OVER BRITISH ISLES SATURDAY

Numerous Wrecks of Small Craft and a Few Fatalities Were Reported—In Scotland There Was Much Damage to Farm Property Through Floods and Wind—Several Ocean Liners Were Delayed in Entering or Leaving Port.

LONDON, Oct. 21—(AP)—Numerous wrecks of smal craft and isolated fatalities resulted from the furious gale which blew over the British Isles, especially Scotland, yesterday. There also was much damage to farm property through floods and wind.

The storm blew itself out during the night and the Transylvania, together with several other liners which were delayed in entering or leaving port, were able to resume their voyages.

None of the mariners imperiled by the storm had a more harrowing experience than the crew of the small Glasgow cargo steamer, St. Brendon. Their vessel was wrecked on a reef. They took to the boats and were tossed for hours in the angry waters before being rescued by a trawler which landed them at Tobermory.

A similar experience fell to the lot of the men on the Irish trawler William Castle. The boat was blown on the rocks of the Wigtonshire coast. One of the crew was swept into the sea and drowned. The eight others, as the wreck was slammed ashore, managed to scramble up the rocks.

They remained there throughout the night, huddled together for warmth. Only a short distance away were people on shore who had heard their distress siren, but were powerless to help them. When daylight came the shipwrecked men crawled to a house where they were given shelter.

DR. HUGO ECKENER WAS WELCOMED IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—(AP)—The sixth German city of the world tonight welcomed Dr. Hugo Eckener, pilot of the Graf Zeppelin. He came by train, accompanied by part of his crew. The great trans-Atlantic airship remained at Lakehurst.

A brief informal demonstration at the Grand Central railroad station was followed by a formal city-wide reception in Soldier field stadium, where 120,000 persons witnessed the Navy-Notre Dame football game eight days ago.

Mayor William Hale Thompson made a short address of welcome, and Dr. Eckener told of his pleasure at the happy completion of his trip. He promised his hearers, through the medium of loud speakers, that later in the week they would get a glimpse of his big ship when he flies it west.

Hundreds of men, women and school children of German descent staged a pageant picturing man's conquest of the air. The fliers were whisked away to a banquet of the Union League club, followed by a performance in the Chicago German theater.

Tomorrow the Zeppelin's captain and crew will be given an auto tour of the city, a conference with the mayor and his council, and a banquet, then they will return to New York.

THREE MEN INJURED IN AUTO AND TROLLEY COLLISION

MERIDEN, Oct. 21—(AP)—Three New Britain men are at the Meriden hospital as a result of a head-on collision between an automobile and a trolley here this afternoon near the business center.

The most seriously injured, Henry Walther, 52, of 96 Greenwood street, suffered a possible fractured skull and lacerations of the face. His condition is considered critical.

The driver of the automobile, David Sanquist, 32, who resides at the New Britain Y. M. C. A., is threatened with the loss of his left eye, which was pierced by flying glass. He also suffered a possible skull fracture, and lacerations about the face. A charge of reckless driving has been lodged against him.

David Johnson, 46, of 70 John street, the third person at the hospital, received a fracture of the left knee cap and multiple lacerations of the face.

A fourth person in the automobile, Herbert Sanquist, 27, brother of the driver, who also resides at the New Britain Y. M. C. A., was treated at the hospital for lacerations of the scalp and then discharged.

According to the police, the collision occurred after Sanquest had passed by two automobiles. His car was demolished.

There were no passengers in the trolley car at the time of the mishap. The motorman escaped injury.

MRS. MACDONALD IS BUOYED UP BY DREAMS

LONDON, Oct. 21—(AP)—Dreams are playing a part in upholding the hopes of Mrs. H. C. Macdonald, wife of the British naval officer who has not been heard from since hopping off from New Foundland for a trans-Atlantic flight last Wednesday. Two friends, one of them Sir Herbert Parker, have told her that they had identical dreams that Macdonald had been cast on a rocky island.

Swayed by this coincidence and holding trust in the flier's proverbial luck, she fixed her mind on Rockall, a lonely islet 200 miles off the west coast of Scotland. Straightaway she visited the admiralty to ask if anything could be done. Admiralty officials were extremely sympathetic but had to inform her that Rockall was nothing but a small, high rock, quite inaccessible to boats this stormy weather. They advised that it was so cold and exposed that nobody could survive there very long.

At Croydon where she next called to suggest the possibility of sending an aeroplane to Rockall, she received the same disappointing but sympathetic answer.

OBITUARY.

Charles Merritt Beach.

NEW MILFORD, Conn., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Charles Merritt Beach, 75, well known lumber dealer, died here last night. He was born in Washington, Conn., on April 14, 1853, and moved to this town when a young man and engaged in the lumber business with his father. During his lifetime Mr. Beach had been very active in civic affairs and in various lines of industry. He had been president of the New Milford Savings bank, director of the Milford Water company, chairman town school committee, president of the Connecticut Hardward association and active in other corporations. He was a member of Second company, Governor's Foot Guard and a 32nd degree Mason. In 1922, he was deputy grand master of the Connecticut grand lodge of Masons.

In 1901 and 1902 Mr. Beach was the New Milford representative to the legislature and was a delegate to the constitutional convention in 1902.

He married Ima Juliette Buckingham, daughter of Ralph and Elmira Wheaton Buckingham, in 1890. His widow survives him, as do two daughters, Mrs. Creighton Barker, of New Haven and Mrs. Herbert W. Barrow of Bridgeport.

SOVIET RUSSIA HOPEFUL OF AMERICAN INVESTMENTS

MOSCOW, Oct. 21— (AP) —Soviet newspapers and some Russian government officials see in the $21,000,000 contract signed by the Soviet union with the General Electric company not only a forerunner of American investments in this country but also as entering wedge which may ultimately lead to government recognition.

The newspaper, "Economic Life," hails the contract as a breach in the "credit blockade" which it says Great Britain sought to enforce after her diplomatic break with Moscow.

The signing of the contract was announced last Wednesday in New York. It called for the delivery of American electrical apparatus valued at more than $20,000,000, the payment basis being 25 per cent before shipment with the remainder covered by trade acceptances falling due within five years.

"Economic Life" says that sound and honest business methods which Russian trading organizations have followed abroad, have measurably increased Russia's prestige within the past year. It believes that the former hostile attitude of American big business toward the Soviet union has changed and it adds:

"If a few years ago anyone had suggested to Owen Young, chairman of the General Electric company, that he grant Soviet Russia $20,000,000 on a five-year credit, Mr. Young would have called that person insane."

The newspaper Pravda, organ of the central committee of the Russian Communist party, says that one of the most important aspects of the deal is that the state department at Washington was cognizant of the negotiations "and did not object to granting long term credits to the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, provided the money was spent in the United States."

GOV. SMITH RESTING FOR AN INTENSIVE CAMPAIGN

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 21—(AP)—Back home from a 3,600 mile campaign swing, Governor Smith was resting up tonight for an intensive campaign to be made in the north Atlantic seaboard states during the last ten days preceding election. He will open his final drive in Boston on Wednesday night.

The democratic nominee for president returned here shortly after noon today. He said he was looking forward to a quiet stay in the city and hoped to find time to inspect the menagerie of pet animals he has in the back yard of the executive mansion "and take the dogs out."

On his way here from Utica, where a stop was made to attend church, the nominee at a conference with press correspondents in the club car of the special train expressed satisfaction over his trip, which carried him through a part of the "solid south," the border states, and the mid-west.

He said he believed in a candidate's personally carrying his issues to the people and that in his opinion the value of this was demonstrated by the "number of telegrams and the number of letters that we get in response." He also said if he were elected president he proposed at times to leave the White House to visit other parts of the country.

IDENTIFICATION MAY LEAD TO MURDER CHARGE

SALEM, Mass., Oct. 21—(AP)—Mrs. Bertha Leyton of Marblehead tonight positively identified a photograph of Carl Panzram, being held by the Washington, D. C., police on a charge of housebreaking, as the man she saw in company with 12-year-old Henry McMann on the day he was slain in 1923.

A second woman, Mrs. Margaret Crean of Salem, told the police that she thought he was the man she saw in company with the boy on the same day.

On the strength of the positive and partial identifications, the police said that they probably would send an officer to Washington Tuesday with a murder warrant and a request for Panzram's extradition.

A copy of an alleged confession by Panzram was sent the Boston police Friday, and Boston and Salem officers agreed that the details correspond perfectly with those of the crime. The child was slain by a degenerate who lured him from his home.

CONSTABLE KILLED BY UNIDENTIFIED ASSAILANT

WOONSOCKET, R. I., Oct. 21—(AP)—Francis H. Robbins, 41, a special constable of the town of Smithfield, was fatally wounded by an unidentified assailant who attacked him with a blunt instrument just as he was about to enter his home in North Smithfield early this morning. He died of a crushed skull in the Woonsocket hospital several hours later.

Twelve hours later, the body of Maurice J. Smith, 37, of Smithfield, who police said, had threatened the life of Robbins, was found beside a remote road in North Smithfield. Smith had discharged a shotgun into his own head. A note found in his pocket and addressed to his wife indicated that he took his life shortly after the time that Robbins was attacked.

NEARLY 1200 NEW VOTERS MADE IN WINDHAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 21 — The names of 1,178 new voters are now on the town of Windham list that will be used in checking during the state elections on November 6. Of the total 578 were made prior to the town elections early in October, 490 were made at a session one week ago Saturday and 130 were made at the final session of the selectmen and town clerk last Saturday. In addition to these there were 24 restored to the voting list and there yet remain three or four to be made at a special session whose rights mature prior to the elections. This applies to cases in which the applicants have just become of age or their term of residence in the town and city just reaches the legal limit. The list of to be made complied by the registrars, A. Lina Weatherhead and Thomas A. Shea after the town elections contained 1,167 names, 780 of whom qualified. While definite figures were not available today, it is indicated that women outnumber the men by 150 to 200 in the list of new voters. The increase in the town list is the greatest since the year that women's suffrage went into effect.

Peter Nault, 40, and single, was arrested at his home, 54 Ives street shortly after 9 o'clock Saturday night by Officers William Hurley and Pierre Marrotte on charges of intoxication and attempt to rape, on complaint of Mrs. Hector Gelinas, of the same address, who alleges that Nault committed the crime against her 15-year-old daughter, Irene Desauniers. Nault will be arraigned in police court Monday morning. Also scheduled to appear in court Monday as the result of Saturday night arrests are five intoxicants and two young men charged with breach of the peace.

The funeral services for Mrs. Alice Jessie Keegan were held at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon with Rev. Harold H. Critchlow of the Methodist church officiating. Burial was in the Smith plot of the Willimantic cemetery.

A Westerly youth and a Taftville girl were arrested here Saturday night on a serious charge when found in a coupe at the corner of North and Valley streets.

NEW SILK COMPANY HAS LEASED FLOOR SPACE HERE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 21 — After nearly one year of untiring work by the chamber of commerce and associate interests represented within its membership, the chamber officers were in a position Saturday to make a definite announcement of having secured a new industry for the city. The announcement was based on word received from Walter R. Bradley representing the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company, that a definite agreement had been signed in New York with officials of a silk manufacturing concern. The agreement is the result of negotiations that have been underway for some time with the lighting company, which has available floor space to let, taking a leading part. Orders have already been given for the electrical equipment for the operating of the looms and other machinery. The first shipment of machinery is expected to arrive here during the coming week and several subsequent shipments are also anticipated. During the early part of the week an announcement will be made as to the time that the silk company officials will be here to employ help. As production begins and additional machinery is installed more help will be hired.

Another important announcement on "new industries" made at the chamber of commerce office Saturday was that a meeting of the subscribers to a metal screen plant would be called during next week for the purpose of incorporating. As soon as this incorporation is completed the order for the special machinery will be placed. It was learned that the machines to be used in making this newly designed product will take about six weeks in building. In the meantime accessory machinery will be shipped and installed in the plant formerly occupied by the S. C. S. Box company on Moulton Court so that production may start as soon as possible after the arrival of the special machines.

METHODIST CHURCH OBSERVES ITS 100TH ANNIVERSARY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 21 — The Methodist Episcopal church was filled to capacity for services held today in observance of the centennial of the church, giving evidence of wide interest in the celebration. The audiences included members, former members and guests. A number of former pastors were also present and letters were received from others unable to attend. The morning worship at 10:45 o'clock was in the nature of a reception to the membership and sacrament of the Lord's supper. Several new members were baptized. A Sunday school reunion and special program was held at 12:10 o'clock. At a service for worship held at 4 o'clock the sermon was by Rev. Robert S. Moore, a former pastor.

The union community meeting was held at 7:10 o'clock in the evening with the sermon-address by Rev. Daniel L. Marsh, D. D., president of Boston university. The edifice was crowded for this meeting which was the outstanding event of the two-day program which started Friday evening.

Among former ministers who took part in the centennial celebration were Reverends John Pearce and A. Stanley Muirhead. The latter, who was accompanied by Mrs. Muirhead, was pastor for four years up to May, 1927, when the pastorage was taken over by the present pastor, Rev. Harold H. Critchlow. Rev. Myron E. Genter, superintendent of the Norwich district also attended and extended words of greeting and encouragement. Verbal congratulations were received from Rev. T. Hawthorne Jones of Mansfield, on behalf of the Willimantic Pastors' Union; Rev. David W. Lovett of the Baptist church and Rev. Frederick C. Williams of St. Paul's Episcopal church. Letters were received from Mrs. John Newland and from Mrs. C. Harley Smith, widows of former pastors; from Rev. W. O. Nurse, pastor from 1912-1916 and Rev. W. C. Norris, local preacher. There was considerable disappointment because of the inability of Rev. L. G. Horton to be present. The chorus was under the direction of Edwin F. Cross with Mrs. Charles H. Beebe, accompanist. In addition to choral numbers selections were rendered by the church orchestra and vocal duets by Mrs. Ruth Shedd and Mrs. Cora Rice. The refreshment committee which acted during the celebration consisted of Mrs. Amos Bill, Mrs. E. P. Cross, Mrs. Eugene B. Lewis and Mrs. Fred J. Williams.

A charity ball that promises to be an outstanding social function of the season will be staged under the auspices of Willimantic lodge No. 1311, B. P. O. Elks at the state armory Thanksgiving eve. The ball will be formal and boxes will be rented on the main floor. The entire proceeds will be devoted to charity in continuing the community welfare work in which the lodge figures so prominently. The committee on boxes is made up of: William J. Grady, chairman; J. Francis Moriarty, secretary; Lyndon E. Little, treasurer; R. G. Remington, Roderick Gaudreau, Joseph H. Berard, Joseph R. Morrison, Alexander Gelinas, Thomas Donovan and Everett Beckwith.

SEVERAL IMPORTANT MATTERS BEFORE CITY MEETING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 21— A large and spirited audience representing the pros and cons of a project to purchase the former Lincoln & Boss lumber yards on Meadow and North streets for use as a comfort station and municipal parking space, is expected at the special city meeting to be held in the town hall Monday evening at 8 o'clock. The call for the meeting was issued by Mayor Charles A. Gates and includes appropriations totalling $34,800. The main appropriation is one of $12,500 for the purchase of the lumber yards. According to the plant only $10,000 is to be paid in cash, the balance of $2,500 being given by the deeding to M. E. Lincoln, owner of the yard, by warranty deed, the city-owned property known as the Hilltop Hose company house on Summit street. While many believe that a municipal parkin, space and comfort station at the location mentioned would be wholly desirable there are those who do not believe in free parking spaces and still others who do not think that a comfort station should be on any other street but Main street if one is established at all. Still another plan that has gained a following is the converting of the old town building on Church street as a comfort station, retaining the second floor as the second district voting place. Adherents to the lumber yard project, however, feel that the city can make no mistake in purchasing this centrally located property at the price mentioned and point to its relatively near position to Main street as an argument against location. It is figured that the lumber yards could be remodelled for the dual purposes of a comfort station and public parking space at a cost not to exceed $20,000. The remaining appropriations in the warning are: $900 additional for use of the police court; $200 additional for maintenance of the sewers; $1,700 to be used for the contingent fund; $3,000 additional for the construction of new sidewalks and $4,000 additional for city lighting purposes.

Francis Henry Raymond, 73, died suddenly at his home in Hebron Saturday morning. He was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., May 30, 1855, a son of Henry and Ida Vandervoort Raymond. Surviving him are two daughters: Mrs. Lula Lord of South Manchester and Mrs. Emil Johnsen of Farmington; a son, Sherwood Raymond of Hebron and two sisters: Mrs. George F. Kibbe of Somers and Mrs. J. T. Eslim of Washington, D. C.; one brother, Edward Raymond of Hebron and six grandchildren. The deceased was a former representative in the state legislature of the town of Hebron.

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. Kirk Wallen of Walnut street of the marriage of their daughter, Myra E. Wallen to Erwin R. Davenport of Rochester, N. Y. The ceremony took place in Washington, D. C., Friday afternoon with Rev. Dr. William R. Taylor of Rochester, officiating, and only immediate family members present. Mrs. Davenport, a graduate of the Eastman School of Music, made her home in Rochester for several years. The couple sailed Saturday from New York for Bermuda. After November 15 they will make their home at 255 Culver Road, Rochester.

Principal Frederick R. Noble of the Windham street school will deliver an address on Hard Spots in the Teaching of Arithmetic in Grades IV, V and VI, and Miss Mary A. Quinn, also of the local school, will be chairman of the rural school section at the New London and Hartford meetings of the fall sessions of the Connecticut State Teachers' association to be held at Bridgeport, New Haven, Hartford and New London next Friday.

Many local friends of Rev. William T. O'Brien of Baltic, were grief stricken upon hearing the news of his death in St. Joseph's hospital shortly after six o'clock Saturday night. Special prayers for the happy repose of his soul were offered in the Catholic churches here this morning following announcements of his death from the pulpit. Rev. Father O'Brien underwent an operation for appendicitis Thursday evening. He failed to recover and his condition continued critical to the last.

Jeremiah Hartigan, formerly of this city, died one week ago Saturday at the home of his daughter in Willow Grove, Pa. Besides his wife, Mrs. Annie Hartigan, he leaves one daughter, Mrs. R. H. Knowles of Willow Grove, and one son, Charles Hartigan of this city. Burial took place in Philadelphia last Tuesday.

An invitation has been extended by Mary Todd Lincoln Tent, No. 15, Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil war, Mrs. Mary E. Lovett, president, to members of Francis S. Long Post No. 30, G. A. R. and Clara Barton Tent No. 7, of Norwich, to be guests at the inspection to be held here November 16.

A hydrant connection was made to extinguish a fire early this morning on the roof of an unoccupied one-story building at the foot of Trappists Road owned by Mrs. Rose Duquette. Engine company No. 1 responded to the alarm.

Five of the six members of Francis S. Long Post No. 30, G. A. R. attended the regular meeting held in the town building Saturday afternoon. Present were: Commander James Haggarty, Adam Dunts, Charles Henry, Joseph Slater and George Herrick.

Joseph DeMarchi, formerly of this city, was promoted to be foreman of the foundry department of the Smith-Winchester Manufacturing company at South Windham, the past week. Mr. DeMarchi has been with the company for several years.

Local banks and the post office have received the warning of the United States Treasury department of the circulation of a new counterfeit $10 federal reserve note.

Miss Evelyn Mulcahy, daughter of Arthur J. Mulcahy of Windham and Kenneth Shane of Middletown, Ohio, made application for a marriage license at the town clerk's office here Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick R. Noble were week-end guests of her mother, Mrs. Young, in Boston, Mass.

Miss Margaret Allison of the normal school entertained for the week end her sister-in-law, Mrs. Allison of Framingham, Mass.

Mrs. N. L. Ladd of Windham was attended by Dr. C. A. Jenkins Saturday morning for a fracture of her right ankle sustained at her home as the result of a fall.

The speakers at the dinner sponsored by the Windham County Republican's Women's association at the Nathan Hale hotel Monday evening will include Dr. George H. Cohen, assistant United States district attorney of Hartford and Rev. John S. Bauchman of Rockville.

Mrs. Frank M. Smith, Miss Nettie Hall and Mrs. Clifford E. Williams have been elected delegates of the Trusting Circle of the King's Daughters to the convention to be held in Norwich, November 10.

Attorney and Mrs. John Yeomans of Andover and Hartford, are spending part of their honeymoon as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hutchins of Washington, D. C. Attorney Yeomans is the son of Judge Edward M. Yeomans of Andover.

As the result of an automobile accident a few days ago, in which Mr. and Mrs. Edgar W. Twining of Garden City, L. I., figured, Mrs. Twining, formerly Miss Helen Adams of this city, is suffering from injuries and a nervous collapse. They had been visiting her sister, Mrs. Howard C. Barlow of Hartford and were returning home at the time of the accident.

Mrs. George C. Lively and Mrs. Theodore Whittier were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Hoe in Warren, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Clough had for week end guests his brother, Frank J. Clough of Williston, Mass., and her mother, Mrs. Sarah Wolfe who has just returned from a motor trip to Niagara Falls and Canada with her niece, Miss Angie Elliott of Winsted. Mrs. Wolfe will leave soon for the south.

Rev. and Mrs. A. S. Muirhead have returned to their home in North Cohasset, Mass., after being guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. Byrd Freeman and attending the centennial of the Methodist church of which Mr. Muirhead is a former pastor.

Miss Helen M. Riese, teacher of the Model school had as week end guest Miss Ella G. Knowles, teacher in Middletown high school.

WESTERLY

FORMER NORWICH WOMAN COMMITTED TO STATE REFUGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Oct. 21—Judge Oliver H. Williams held a noon and evening special session of the Third session Marcella Robbins, 26, with forsession Marcell aRobbins, 26, with former residence near Norwich, was presented on complaint of Westerly Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown charged with street walking and being without visible means of support. She was taken into custody by a state trooper when she was found in knickers and soaking wet in the heavy downpour Friday night. On her plea of guilty she was sentenced to six months in the Rhode Island Infirmary for Women. When asked by Judge Williams if she thought she could straighten out in that time, replied: "Then I'll go and jump in the river, if I can't."

Patrick Higgins, alias "Sprig" previously before the court, was recommitted to the Rhode Island State Infirmary for Men for further observation and treatment, being taken there by Chief Brown.

NORWICH TOWN COUPLE LET OFF ON PAYING COSTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., October 21—At the evening court session Benjamin Briscoe, formerly of Norwich Town and his wife, Louise Briscoe, formerly of Kingston, R. I., were presented on charges of intoxication by Chief Brown. Briscoe was arrested Friday night on High street by Police Officer Frank Knight, while under the influence of liquor and his wife was taken in by Lieutenant Champlin, when, during the severe rainstorm she was literally down and out in the Green Stores doorway. When taken into custody she only asked for time to arrange her clothing. Both pleaded guilty and received suspended sentences and payment of $2.60 costs each. They were discharged to report to the probation officer.

FUNERAL

Isaac F. Partelo

Many relatives, friends and fraternal associates attended the funeral services Sunday afternoon for Isaac Frank Partelo, at his home, West tsereet, Ashaway, at 1:30 o'clock Prayer was offered by Rev. William M. Simpson and at the church by Rev. Clayton A. Burdick, D. D., pastor of the Pawcatuck Seventh day Baptist church, Westerly.

The funeral was at 2 o'clock at the First Hopkinton Seventh-day Baptist church, Ashaway, which was filled with mourners. Rev. William M. Simpson, the pastor, officiated. Beautiful Isle of Somewhere and Sometime We'll Understand, were sung by William Hair.

Interment was made at the First Hopkinton cemetery. Meeting House Bridge, with committal services by Pawcatuck lodge, No. 90, A. F. and A. M. of Pawcatuck, of which the deceased was one of the oldest members. The Masonic service was in charge of Russell Hemphill, master, and Thomas McKenzie, as chaplain. Bearers were Arthur N. Nash, Robert Hazard, Geo A. Stillman, Arthur E. Peckham, Walter F. Thorp and Frank L. Friend, all of Pawcatuck lodge.

William E. Maxsen, 8-year-old son of Edgar P. Maxson, secretary of the Westerly hospital, was taken on Saturday in the ambulance of the Westerly Sanitary Corps to Providence where at the Jane Brown Memorial hospital he will undergo observation and treatment for hip and elbow trouble.

About 11 a. m. Sunday on High street, on the slight down-grade in front of the Westerly branch of the Industrial Trust company, two automobiles were in a rear end collision, the front car being occupied by the candidate for the 23nd assembly district of the state of New York. No police investigation was made of the accident and the motorists proceeded.

In a special session of Stonington town court held in Pawcatuck Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock with Judge Wilcox presiding, Wahirdkeisky of 43 George street, Pawtucket, R. I., was fined $25 and costs on a reckless driving charge when on Sept. 20th last Anna Shaw of Solomonville received injuries which necessitated treatment at the private hospital. The defendant, represented by Judge Herbert W. Lathbun, demurred to the complaint, which was overruled. James Lord, witness, appeared for the state, represented by Prosecutor George R. McKenna. The court summons was issued by Connecticut State Trooper John H. Smith of Groton barracks who investigated the accident.

Angelo Cofone, of Pierce street, Westerly, charged with quarreling and reveling, when he made an attack upon his boss following an argument at the plant of the American Velvet company in Stonington, a week ago, was found guilty and fined $25 and costs of $13.02. The accused, arrested by Stonington Patrolman William Ostman, was represented by Attorney M. Walter Flynn, Jr., and the state by Prosecutor McKenna. The fine was paid and the defendant discharged.

Doherty and wife and northerly by Samuel Sharpe and wife.

Hannah E. Jones, widow, to Hannah E. Jones and Pearl F. Jones as joint tenants and not as tenants in common, land with buildings and improvements in Varietyville, bounded southerly by White Rock road and easterly and northerly by land of the estate of Olive N. Wood.

MOTORISTS HELD UP BY STATE AND LOCAL POLICE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Oct. 21—Beginning at midnight Saturday and continuing through the early morning hours of Sunday the Rhode Island state police, under Sergt. Daniel G. O'Brien of Hope Valley barracks and Westerly police under Chief Thomas E. Brown and Lieut. George H. Champlin cooperated in stopping all automobiles passing in or out of the states from Rhode Island to Connecticut. A thorough check-up was made, as has previously been conducted in other parts of Rhode Island, in the examination of registration papers and operators' licenses, headlights, brakes and contents of motor cars, front and rear, to discover any cases of law violations.

At times on the Pawcatuck river bridge, the Broad street section of the New York-Boston post road in Westerly, ten or a dozen autos were in line waiting their turn with Patrolman Leroy H. Norman, Rhode Island state troopers and the officers mentioned. As a general thing motorists, perhaps a little more numerous by reason of auto traffic to football games, took the slight delay cheerfully, especially where they were sure of a clean bill of health. This was not the rule in every case, for some autoists stated they had forgotten their operator's licenses. One woman driver calmly removed her hat and produced the necessary paper from her heavy tresses. As the result of the check-up two men were placed under arrest.

The men held are Francis J. Foley and Joseph Fallon of Salem, Mass., who were stopped in Dixon square when operating a Nash sedan. Chief Brown communicated with the Massachusetts state board of registration and found that the car belonged to Frank Harris of Peabody, Mass., and had been reported missing. Foley and Fallon were on the way to New York. A third party in the automobile made his escape.

Andrew McGee was arrested for operating a car while under the influence of liquor and having no operator's license. The man was examined by Dr. M. H. Scanlon and is being held for arraignment in the Third District court.

MISS MARY M. SCANLON TO BE BRIDE OF FRANK PAYON

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Oct. 21—The marriage of Miss Mary M. Scanlon, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. M. H. Scanlon of High street, and Frank Payan of Providence will take place Monday morning at 9 o'clock at the Church of the Immaculate Conception. Rev. J. F. Vincent, S. M., pastor of the church, will perform the ceremony and celebrate the nuptial mass. Miss Scanlon's father and mother are former residents of Norwich. For a term Dr. Scanlon was interne at Backus hospital, Norwich.

Appointment has been made by the Westerly town council of John Grinton Beattie of 22 John street, as a patrolman with pay, to be the wearer of Police Badge No. 7. The new officer is expected to resume duty at once. Mr. Beattie is 35 and served a year and a half in the navy during the World war.

Saturday afternoon Mrs. Eleanor Kenyon and Cyril J. Ashworth, both of this town, were married at 3 o'clock at the home of the bride, 17 Tower street. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Luther G. Coburn, pastor of Pawcatuck Congregational church.

MISS OBLETZ SEIZED WITH STROKE OF PARALYSIS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 21—Word has been received at Putnam that Miss Fannie Obletz, daughter of Mrs. Rosa Obletz of New York city, formerly of Putnam has been stricken with a form of paralysis that has afflicted the use of the muscles in her hand and has forced her to abandon her musical studies at the Julliard Foundation, a conservatory of music in New York.

Miss Obletz was one of the most promising musicians Putnam ever boasted of claiming and through her ability she succeeded in winning a scholarship at the famous institute of Music in New York. She completed the studies contained in the first scholarship and was on the verge of winning the second when the sudden shock forced her to leave school and her career.

Miss Obletz it is reported is receiving some of the best medical attention in New York, where an effort is being made for her to continue her work at the piano. She is a graduate of Putnam high school class of 1926.

Herbert Lepiere of Mechanics street and Harry Thayer of King street were among those from Putnam who were present at the Harvard-Army football classic in Cambridge Saturday.

DANIELSON

OVER 730 NEW VOTERS ADDED TO KILLINGLY LIST

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 21—D. Fred Kenworthy, registrar, said today that new voters to the number of 731 have been admitted in Killingly the past two Saturdays. With other voters made prior to the annual town meeting on the first Monday in October new electors entitled to vote in the November election in this town total 739, a record for any one year in Killingly's history. There are now 3481 voters on the registration lists of the town, and that also is a new and very much advanced high record.

Selectmen, the town clerk and registrars labored all day Saturday examining the qualifications of the new voters. Despite the large number that came, there is a considerable number of persons who filed applications to be made and then did not appear for examination.

The registrars will now proceed with the preparation of the voting lists for election day. Due to the fact that this town will vote by districts on November 6, it is not anticipated that there will be any difficulty in caring for the voters at the polling places. There is the prospect, however, that the vote will be unusually heavy, a fact that will delay more than ordinarily the compiling of the final results.

What is to be the name of the new street running west from Main at Hutchins street? That is one of the things the borough now has to think about, though not of a pressing nature. This brand new thoroughfare cut through the fields between Stearns and Reynolds street is bound to develop rapidly. It makes good house lots available in good locations. "Providence street" is one of the names that has been suggested in view of the fact that it is an outlet onto the Providence trunk line highway. In any event, some name will need be selected in order that it may be adequately designated and for the purpose of street addresses for those who in time will build homes along it.

The aftermath of the big special town meeting has to do largely with contemplating what fortune the special committee appointed will have in employing a certified accountant to audit the books of the town of Killingly within the limit of the appropriation of $2,000. The meeting has definitely instructed that the cost shall not be in excess of $2,000, and that the audit shall cover the last six years. Attorney E. L. Darbie, member of the special committee, pointed out to the meeting prior to his being appointed that the committee must not spend in excess of the appropriation. A certified accountant already has said that he would not do the work for $2,000, and that he feels that the job would be worth at least $4,000. However, the committee is to go ahead and seek for a certified accountant who is willing to do the work within the limit of the appropriation, if this cannot be done, the committee can report the fact to the town and await further instructions.

There can be no doubting the sentiment of the town that the audit is desired. That was made very clear at Friday evening's meeting. There is some doubt, however, as to how much the town may be willing to spend for the work if it finds that the audit cannot be done for the amount now available. It is pointed out that such an audit might develop a situation where it would be necessary to go back more than six years, and in that case no one can forecast what the final cost might be.

Announcement has been received by local stockholders of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, with one of its textile plants in this town, to establish a tire manufacturing unit in the south. The company some time ago established a big fabric plant at Cedartown, Ga., and from the company's announcement it is assumed that the tire plant may be in that vicinity also.

From the home in Moosup Saturday morning the funeral of Mrs. Ellen Kennedy was held with funeral services at All Hallows church at 9 o'clock. The officers of the solemn high mass of requiem, at which many relatives and friends were in attendance, were Rev. Philip Massicotte, Rev. J. H. Quinn, Wauregan, and Rev. Harry Chagnon. Burial was in All Hallows cemetery. The bearers were Clarence Conklin, Austin Conklin, Terrance Conklin, William Conklin, John Fanning and Clarence Read. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Saturday afternoon at 1.30 at the L. E. Kenney funeral home on Furnace street funeral services for Dwight Webster were conducted by Rev. Chester J. Armstrong of the Danielson Baptist church. Burial was at Abington. Rev. Mr. Armstrong conducted the committal service. The bearers were Andrew Taylor, William Taylor, Charles Geer, Dwight Lambert, Eugene Williams and Harry Webster.

Martin Quinn, of Providence, has gone to Brooklyn jail for 30 days. Quinn was arrested here during the early hours of Saturday morning while he was operating a light touring car and on charge of driving while he was under the influence of an intoxicant was placed against him by Night Officer Laird Winchell. In court Saturday morning Quinn was found guilty. At his own request, in view of the fact that he was without the necessary funds to pay the usual fine of $100 imposed in such cases he was given a sentence of 30 days, and was taken over to Brooklyn by Chief John McFarland. It developed that the car Quinn was operating when arrested was of the "hire and drive" classification and owned by a concern in Providence that makes a practice of renting cars. A representative of the concern took the car back to Providence.

Removal of the trolley overhead has left some poles standing in Danielson's business section that are now serving no useful purpose, and there is agitation for their removal. It was also suggested this morning that a traffic hazard could be eliminated by relocating a large pole that stands on the westerly side of Main street just south of the railroad crossing at the entrance to Railroad square. The contention is that this pole could be set back in a new location and leave the entrance to the square free of any such obstruction. A car operated by a woman driver was in collision with this pole Saturday afternoon.

Near Rood's flats, south of Bishop's crossing today, aeroplanes operating in that territory were so interesting to the motoring public as to cause many to halt and create difficult traffic conditions this afternoon. Alanson Colvin of Danielson was one of the flyers operating there.

Cider mills in this territory are now operating to full capacity, and turning out scores of barrels of product every week. This activity promises to continue until near Thanksgiving time, although the peak of production probably has now been reached. Thousands of bushels of apples are destined to go through the presses within the next few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Hutchins were visitors in Providence today.

Dr. Warren A. Tanner was reported today as considerably improved at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam where he underwent an operation for appendicitis last Sunday and was dangerously ill during the early part of last week.

Mrs. Mary Taylor of Webster spent Sunday with relatives in Danielson.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Leonard and daughter, Helen, and Mrs. Elizabeth Dragon and daughter, Viola, motored to Springfield for a visit with relatives.

Herbert J. Barnett was among those from Danielson at Cambridge Saturday for the Army-Harvard football game.

When members of the Ladies' Benevolent society of the Westfield Congregational church meet next Wednesday they will contribute secondhand, light-weight clothing to be packed and forwarded for the use of the Porto Rico sufferers.

George B. Williamson of Lawrence spent the week end visiting with friends in Danielson.

No road signs are yet in place for the new outlet onto the Providence highway from Main at Hutchins street. There was no great amount of traffic over the new route today, observers said, the majority of machines following the old route through Reynolds street.

The coming week some departments of the Killingly Worsted company will operate nights as well as days.

Rose bushes are in bloom in a number of places in the town of Killingly, a notable instance being at the Nazaire Pepin place on Mechanic street, where there are many blooms.

A considerable number of Danielson people hold tickets for the Yale-Army football game to be played at New Haven next Saturday.

Only those who reach their 21st birthdays between last Saturday and November 6 will be admitted as electors in time for the election two weeks from Tuesday. For the great majority the last chance to be made passed on Saturday.

The Tatapochon Camp Fire girls have a meeting scheduled for Monday evening at the Westfield Congregational church.

Motor vehicle registration plates for 1929 already have been received by some forehanded residents of Danielson. For pleasure vehicles the new plates have a maroon background with white figures. The color combination is reversed for commercial vehicles.

Business and residential sections of Danielson again are experiencing an invasion of skunks, these prowlers of the night making things unpleasant in some sections of the borough.

PUTNAM

SERVICES FOR THE DEAD HELD AT ST. MARY'S CEMETERY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 21—One of the largest public memorial services ever witnessed in Putnam was seen this afternoon when the various religious societies of St. Mary's church in procession formation paraded from the church to St. Mary's cemetery where solemn service for the dead was offered.

St. Mary's Boy Scout band, under the direction of Rev. Joseph D. Casey led the lengthy procession, followed by 1,000 school children enrolled in St. Mary's school. Also in the line of march were the Ladies' of St. Ann; Children of Mary; St. Mary's Rosary society and the Union of St. John Baptista.

Rev. Father U. O. Bellerose, pastor of the parish, accompanied by Rev. Ernest Bolleau and a number of the altar boys, constituted the rear guard of the procession. The groups marched into the cemetery and assembled in front of the Calvary group where the exercises were conducted. Father Bellerose delivered a brief eulogy on the memory and devotions accredited the departed by their living brethern and led in the recitation of the Rosary. The Dion funeral chant was sung by the members of the male choir of the church, and the sounding of double taps by two buglers of the band concluded the ceremony.

Each year the public manifestation takes place and is attended by nearly every member of the large parish. The day was ideal for the occasion and was largely instrumental in the record attendance.

A meeting of the Putnam town school committee was held Friday evening in the offices of Torrey and Geissler to determine whether or not the repair of the Putnam high school athletic field will be attempted this year. John H. Bulger, chairman of the building committee exhibited a plat of the field as drawn up by City Engineer George W. Perry showing the present condition of the field and the amount of work necessary for repairs.

It was voted that the work of levelling the lot be carried out this year, since I. K. McNally of School street has offered the committee the necessary gravel to fill the low spots contained in the acreage. The filling in will be continued this week and the work will be completed in the spring of the coming year.

A meeting of the general committee in charge of arrangements for the observance of the 10th anniversary of the signing of the armistice, to take place on Monday, Nov. 12th, was held Friday evening. The meeting was called to order by Commander Marth E. Robertson of the Andrew Mayotte post of the American Legion.

All sub-committees reported progress in their work. Indications are at present that the day will be one of the largest public observances seen in Putnam since the Armistice day celebration of 1926.

Prayers were offered for the happy repose of the soul of Rev. Father William T. O'Brien for a number of years pastor of the parish at Baltic and a well known member of the clergy in this city, at the masses at St. Mary's church in Putnam and Holy Trinity church in Pomfret.

Father O'Brien a boyhood friend of Rev. George D. Donahue, pastor of the Holy Trinity church in Pomfret, was highly characterized by Father Donahue as an able and lovable priest. Father Donahue in his eulogy of the Baltic rector, said that since his ordination he was subjected to some of the most difficult pastoral duties and all through his short life he braved them each time emerging victorious in his enterprises. In his sermon Father Donahue related the incident where Father O'Brien obtained his nickname, "Cyclone" that stuck with him since their schooldays. "In the death of Father O'Brien, the diocese has sustained the loss of one of its most valuable priests," Father Donahue said.

Frederick Holt of Providence, formerly of Putnam was a Sunday visitor with friends in this city.

The jinx of the 1927 squad made its first appearance among the 1928 members of Putnam high schools football team Saturday afternoon at Webster, during the Putnam and Webster encounter when Carolus Tourtellotte, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tourtellotte of Farrows street, sustained a fracture of a small bone in the ankle. Tourtellotte was taken to the Day Kimball hospital where an x-ray photo was taken of the injured limb and treatment was rendered. He was released from the hospital Saturday evening, but will be kept from the high school grid line-up for the remainder of the season it was said today. During a practice scrimmage Tourtellotte sustained a fracture of the forearm last year and was compelled to remain on the sidelines during the last half of the schedule. The loss of Tourtellotte will be a severe blow to the line of the team that has so well exhibited itself this year. Coach Noyes made no announcement today as to who will fulfill Tourtellotte's place in the Plainfield game that will take place Thursday at Putnam.

Emery Paquin of Sawyer district is a patient at the Day Kimball hospital suffering from severe body cuts as the result of an accident in which he figured Friday evening when he lost control of his car on North School street. Paquin became stricken with dizzy spells and let the wheel of his car go free, while the machine was being operated at a high rate of speed. The vehicle crashed into a telephone post, inflicting considerable damage upon the car and sending the owner into the highway. Miss Helen Dodge, a school teacher in the Sawyer district, was driving her car behind Paquin. When the car struck the post she picked up the victim and rushed him to the hospital. Officer Benoi Durand of the Putnam police made an investigation of the accident and ordered the damaged machine removed from the highway.

A public service vehicle operated by Arthur Lemoin of the Pepin Taxi Service collided with a Dodge truck operated by Leo Bousquet of Walnut street this morning at the corner of Barber and Walnut street. It is alleged that Lemoin was about to enter the intersection at Walnut street, when Bousquet came down the hill and crashed into the taxi cab, badly damaging the car, but resulting in no injuries to the driver. Captain Jarvis and Officer Durand of the local police made an investigation of the accident but made no arrests.

It was forecast today that the Victory theatre will be filled to capacity Monday evening when Senator Hiram Bingham appears to address the republican rally. The members of the party are to have a parade that will be led by St. Mary's Boy Scout band under the direction of Rev. Father J. D. Casey. Arrangements are being made by the members of the committee to have an amplifying system installed that will carry the voice of the speakers to a vacant lot outside the theatre, so as to afford those who are unable to gain admittance to the auditorium an opportunity to hear Mr. Bingham, who has been adjudged one of the most brilliant orators in the state.

HONOR TO EDISON

Recognition of the invaluable contributions which Thomas A. Edison has made to the humanity through his discoveries was given in the presentation of the congressional medal to the great wizard, and the tributes which were paid him by President Coolidge, Secretary Mellon, President Hibben of Princeton and others were fully deserved.

The widespread use of the incandescent lamp today might well give the impression that it had always been known, that its advantages had come down through the centuries, but there are plenty who through actual experience know better. It was not until 49 years ago Sunday that Mr. Edison perfected the incandescent lamp. Since that time it has undergone extensive improvements, but the real hard struggle came in working out the principle which Edison did.

Well could the president praise as he did the great service to humanity resulting from his inventions as well as his notable contributions to education, while the congressional medal was fittingly presented to him by Secretary Mellon for "illuminating the path of progress through the development and application of inventions that have revolutionized civilization in the last century."

The name and example of Thomas A. Edison are international. This country takes boundless pride in such a citizen and his achievements but others are certain to give their hearty endorsement of his work, and what was said to him on the anniversary of his incandescent light will be echoed and re-echoed throughout the world. Edison has made a name for himself not only during his lifetime, but will be certain to occupy a most prominent place in history.

AGAINST DRUNKEN DRIVING

For a number of years one of the attractions which has called many autos into the state and to New Haven has been the big football matches. Where the bulk of the attendance 25 years ago was handled by trains there is a tremendous crowd moved over the highways at the present time. This not only means a big increase in traffic but because of the inclination of many to speed the main thoroughfares on the occasion of big games are not the places of safety that they should be. Likewise there are conditions on those days which make the person who has been indulging in liquor and trying to guide a machine much more dangerous than ever.

In view of those facts the motor vehicle department has undertaken to remedy that situation through a more elaborate campaign against the drunken drivers. There are enough accidents and enough questionable driving without having the highway conditions made worse by drunken drivers.

Whether it will be possible for the commissioner, through the assistance which he will get from the state and local police, to keep persons from the wheel who have been imbibing too freely remains to be seen, but that is apparently his purpose. For that all highway users will have cause for satisfaction, for they must know through personal experience, or the example which exists in other cases, that the reduction in the number of drunken drivers means a reduction of trouble.

While the keeping of all such drivers from the wheel might not insure a day without accidents, there would be removed one of the apparent dangers. Those in full control of their faculties are needed to meet congested traffic conditions.

GRAFT IN QUEENS

Conditions in the borough of Queens in New York city have been getting an airing for months. Court action has finally resulted in the conviction of the borough president and he has been sentenced to the maximum penalty of a year in jail and fined $500 because he so prepared sewer specifications as to make it possible to award the contract to only one bidder. The contract in question totalled $14,000,000 and it was brought out in the trial that the contractor got $2,000,000 more than the work was worth.

This affair in Queens appears to have been only the concluding one in a series of grafting operations by the presidents of that borough. In a period of 25 years four of the five presidents have gone wrong.

The fifth one, or the first of the five, served but a very short time.

The second president elected went to Sing Sing or selling judgships for $10,000 each.

The third borough president got into trouble over the purchase of park lands and after he had been sought for grand jury questioning he fled to Europe.

The fourth of the presidents was charged with corruption in approving false claims against the city. That failed but he was removed by Governor Dix for incompetence.

For the past 17 years Maurice Connolly has been at the head of the borough, and now he has gotten into trouble along with the rest.

The situation is one which must make some of the people in Queens wonder whether it is possible to get an honest president of that borough. The impression might be easily gained that the borough presidency is simply a stepping stone to big graft just as long as it is possible for the operations to be kept under cover. It would seem to be time for the people of Queens to insist upon different conditions.

NOW GET OUT AND VOTE

In keeping with the effort which has been made in other places Norwich has witnessed the making of a large number of new voters. Unusually large was the list of to-be-made, and larger than usual was the percentage of those made, but the 1200 who might have been made but were not represent those who forgot, whose interest was lukewarm, whose application might have been entered for them or who were deterred by illness, absence or other causes from getting before the board.

With new voters added in such a large number it is to be expected that they will be impressed by the desirability of going to the polls two weeks from tomorrow and using their franchise. They have now joined that large army of voters upon whose shoulders rests the responsibility of expressing themselves at the polls. There are good and sufficient reasons why voters cannot cast their ballots on election day, including sickness and absence from town, but there is no excuse for those who are in good health. They should be found not only willing but anxious to do their duty. That is an important part of good citizenship.

Whether it is a town meeting or an election there should be an expression from as large a number of the voters as possible. It is unfortunate that general apathy too often prevails and the making of important decisions rests with a few instead of the many. There are always those who are complaining because they are not voters. There is also much criticism because those who are voters fail to appreciate that right sufficiently to use it. The electorate of Norwich, increased as it has been by a large number, should demonstrate that the right to vote is by no means an empty privilege.

NOISY AIRPLANES

Perhaps it will not interest as many people to know that efforts are being directed to the production of a muffler for airplanes as it would to learn that such a device was being perfected for automobiles, provided they both made the same amount of noise. Yet even with the smaller number of airplanes it has long since been desired that a silencer could be applied. What is deafening to those who are riding in a plane serves as a warning to those on the ground that a plane is in the vicinity.

To those who are not in the neighborhood of an aviation field and who are bothered by the noise only occasionally, the demand is not as emphatic, but there are large numbers who would be happy if a relief from the noise could be provided. That it would add greater to the pleasure of flying if the noise could be eliminated, or greatly reduced, is no secret.

Inasmuch as the demand exists for such an improvement it is to be expected that it will be accomplished. Inventors have accomplished great things. They have done wonders for the automobile and the motor boat in the reduction of noise and through study it is to be believed that the desired end will be attained with the airplane engine.

It is true that people can get used to such noises even as they do near railroad yards, in weavesheds, in boilershops and other noisy places, but if it is possible to overcome it there should be no stop until the goal is reached.

Aviation is increasing by leaps and bounds. The fact that noise is involved isn't holding it back in the least, but it is to be sincerely hoped that the time will not come when the sky is filled with flying machines without being able to provide some kind of an effective muffler for their racket.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The customary autumn struggle is now on to get tickets for the big football contests.

If it wasn't Indian summer last week, just because it was in October, perhaps it was squaw summer.

Boston is arranging a monster torchlight parade for early next month. Political enthusiasm is making use of old time formulas.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Green sweet pepers are delicious sliced, stewed and served with cream sauce.

Large ribs of the outside leaves of cauliflower may be cubed, boiled and creamed.

Fill tart shells with chopped dates, flavored with lemon, and top with whiped cream.

Potato balls, greased with butter, baked and sprinkled with salt and paprika are delicious.

When making biscuits mix all the dry ingredients together before adding the liquids.

Pastry will be lighter if rolled with a round glass bottle instead of a rolling pin.

Fried tomatoes are fine served on toast, with cheese sauce.

Cool the syrup before beating it and you will have fine-grained candy.

Instead of greasing the cake tin, place waxed paper on the bottom.

Add an equal quantity of milk to very heavy cream before whipping.

Cold roast veal or pork, with celery, makes a palatable and substantial salad.

Remember that a layer cake requires a hotter oven than a half cake.

Delicious gingerbread may be made by substituting honey for molasses.

A thin slice of Spanish onion, spread with cottage cheese, between slices of whole wheat bread makes a fine sandwich.

Thin sliced cucumbers and grated pineapple, combined in a clear jelly, make a delicious salad, served with mayonnaise.

A slice of raw potato in the boiling fat will keep doughnuts from burning.

If candles are given a coat of white varnish the wax will not run down the sides and they will burn twice as long.

HAVE YOU HEARD—

That lacquered brass should never be cleaned with metal polish of any description, or its luster by dissolving a tablespoonful of soft soap in a pint of boiling water, allowing it to cool, then mixing in half a pint of paraffin. This should be rubbed well into the brass and polished off with a soft leather.

SHABBY LEATHER

Shabby leather can be renovated by smearing white of egg, that has been beaten into a froth, over the surface with a piece of soft linen. Let dry and then rub well with another soft cloth.

PASTRY WILL KEEP

Pies mean work to many of us. So it is wise to mix an extra amount of pastry when we do make one. It can be rubbed over with lard and placed in the refrigerator for a couple of days before using.

COOKING POINTERS

Serve greens of some sort with pork.

Serve fresh lima beans with tomato sauce.

A cup of cold rice added to griddle cakes makes them light.

Always add a piece of butter to milk pudings, as it improves the flavor.

Boiled potatoes will be mealy if soaked in cold water for half an hour before cooking.

Cook strongly flavored vegetables in an uncovered vessel in a large quantity of water.

Fat for deep frying should wholly cover the food nad be kept constantly at the boiling point.

Odors of cooking may be eliminated by pouring a little oil of lavendar in a dish of boiling water.

MIRRORS VYING WITH PICTURES

Mirrors and pictures are vying for places on the walls of our homes today. Everywhere possible mirrors are being placed. One of the most interesting situations is between the second and third and the third and fourth of the series of three windows that most apartment living rooms possess.

The very narrow space between these windows accommodates a Venetian panel mirror very well. Because it is frameless, this mirror will seem to have more life and gleam to it than the mirror encased in a frame.

Perhaps directly above or below this decoration something will seem to be needed—perhaps a candle in a single brass sconce will do nicely.

DECORATIVE SCREEN

Screens made from the bright chintz or cretonne of the curtains make a decorative bedroom addition. One is especially useful to put behind a favorite rocking chair to keep all draughts off when chilly winter arrives.

EYEGLASSES IN WARM ROOM

Your eyeglasses will not cloud over when coming into a warm place from the cold if you rub the lenses once a day with your finger moistened with soap or vaseline. Polish lenses as usual after applying the preventive.

DISCS OF FELT ON FURNITURE

Furniture not provided with castors often scratch polished floors when it is moved about. This can be avoided if little discs of felt are glued to the bottom of the legs of the furniture. These little discs can often be cut from old felt hats.

SOFA PILLOWS

New sofa pillows should be as inevitably a fall occurrence as bonfires. There should be at least two modernistic covers this autumn, in the new metal-patterned silks or satins.

TUCK-IN SKIRT

A violet crepe de chine blouse with hand-stitched vestee, collars and cuffs is worn with a purply-gray diagonal worsted suit with a tuck-in skirt.

DICTATES OF FASHION.

Chenille dotted fabrics have a tremendous standing.

The minaret silhouet is among the several being sponsored.

Slip-on sweaters, with pleated skirts of silk, are a favorite costume for the morning walk.

One-piece, sleeveless frocks of cotton and rayons are smart for sports worn by the bather.

A hat of white bakou is trimmed with open-work hemstitching and ribbon band.

A small hat of light brown velour is trimmed with buttons of a darker shade.

White linen petals form an evening hat that fits the head like a wig.

Linen is an especial favorite in sports coats.

Washable satin is a smart medium for the sports frock.

Very sheer lightweight woolens are noted in one, two and three-piece golf costumes

White serge or flannel coats predominate at the club.

When traveling, Pullman slippers are a great convenience and they take up very little room.

Patou combines a black felt crown with stitched yellow linen brim.

Peasant linen develops a parasol in plaid design, whose handle has a knob and strap of matching leather.

The tuck-in-blouse is under discussion. Patou being among those who are showing it this season.

Among the alluring velveteen suits being displayed is an extremely clever model of wine red with a scarf collar and a slip-on of pink wool.

A junior frock of black georgette in the peasant style is strikingly smocked in red and yellow, with bands of embroidery on linen trimming the collar and sleeves.

Just the thing for all fall wear is a suit of silk and wool, which has the added advantage of a slip-over that can be worn tucked in the belt or worn on the outside. If one desires, a sweater can be had as well.

THAT VELVET GOWN.

No wardrobe is complete this season without at least one velvet frock, and if there are several, so much the better. A very useful and attractive model for day-time wear is of navy blue velvet with small white polka-dots over the surface. The frock is simply made, with a small bow of the material at the neck and a small silver buckle at the belt.

NEW TABLE DECORATIONS.

For the fall and winter table a particularly striking decoration consists of a tall bowl of black glass and two extremely tall candlesticks of the same. When the bowl is filled with silver flowers, the effect is truly lovely

LAUNDRY HINTS.

An ironing board is made twice as useful if a Turkish towel is pinned at one end to use when ironing over embroidery work and buttons.

Always brush a mud-stained garment from the top to the bottom. You will never free it entirely from dirt if you brush against the warp.

To remove creases from clothing, hang them in the bathroom and fill the tub with steaming water. Brush thoroughly before and after steaming.

White silk blouses should be rolled intowels until ironing, never hung out to dry. Use a little of the whitening in the rinse water—it is as effective as any of the colors.

PLENTY OF CLOTHES CLOSETS.

If a new house is being built, all care should be given the fundamentals that mean comfort and stability, such as heating, plumbing, solid structural construction, etc., but the housewife's demands for ample storage and closet space must not be overlooked.

Every bedroom should have a commodious clothes closet, and if more than one person is to use the room, a separate closet for each is a provision that will make much for peace and comfort. Closet equipment has had many additions and improvements in the last few years.

The main bedroom closets, however, should not be so small and dark as to make necessary any such arrangement mentioned above.

YOUR WINTER BOUQUET.

For winter bouquets nothing can be prettier than to dry various grasses and weeds to mix with everlasting flowers, says Nature Magazine. They should be hung upside down until well dried out. To make them more colorful they may be gilded or dipped in a weak solution of alum water to give them a frosty appearance.

THE HANDY HOOK.

A hook hammered into the end of the broom handle will be convenient as a hanger and also convenient for small uses, such as reaching elusive window shade cords and pulling boxes of unbreakable supplies down from high pantry shelves.

LABEL THE RUBBERS.

Print your child's name inside his rubbers when he goes to school. This will make it possible for his teacher to identify them, which is impossible where there are so many rubbers of about the same sizes.

GOOD FOR THE RUGS

Go over the rugs once every so often with a broom dipped in hot water to which a little turpentine has been added. This will freshen a faded carpet wonderfully and at the same time prevent moths.

INK ON FINGERS

When you get ink on your fingers, just wet the head of a match and rub it on the spot, then wash the hands in the usual manner.

TO CLEAN CELLULOID CURTAINS

You can clean the celluloid curtains of the touring car with a paste made of turpentine and vaseline.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Miss Madeline Kaye, pretty woman attorney of Brooklyn, N. Y., recently appeared in court attired in "knickers."

Girl Scouts of the United States are going to erect a monument to Mrs. Juliet Low, who founded the movement, in Savannah, Ga.

Twenty-year-old Vera Tomlinson recently set a new record in chimney climbing when she climbed to the top of Brookes chimney, 303 feet high, and the loftiest smokestack in all England.

Although only six years old, the Association of Bank Women represents virtually every state and more than 100 cities in a total membership of 190. The membership is restricted to women officers in banks.

Millicent Fawcett, who recently celebrated her 81st birthday, was in her twenties when she began to work for woman suffrage as a non-militant in opposition to the late Emmaline Pankhurst.

Forty-two years ago Mrs. William M. McCluer of Stillwater, Minn., organized a Woman's Reading club in her town and every year since she has been elected president of the club.

CAMPHORS IN PILLOWS

When refilling a feather pillow crush a small block of camphor and mix in with the feathers. This will help to preserve them.

HOME WEAVING

It is now possible to do weaving on a small scale in one's own home. A hand-loom practical and small enough to place upon a table, can be purchased for anominal sum.

RECIPES

Sweetbreads in Ramekins: After the sweetbreads have been cleaned well, cut them in cubes and parboil enough to make two cups. Melt two tablespoons of butter in a pan and add one-fourth cup of flour, rubbing until smooth. Add slowly one and one-half cupfils of meat stock. Add the sweetbreads, one teaspoon of salt, one teaspoon of lemon juice and a little paprika. Put into oiled ramekins, cover with one cup of bread crumbs and dot with butter. Bake for about 20 minutes.

Coddled Eggs: Many ways have been suggested for cooking eggs in such a way that the yolks will be cooked and the whites will not be overcooked. One of the most satisfactory ways is by coddling, and is done as follows: Allow a cupful of water to each egg, bring the water to the boiling point, remove it from the fire, put in the raw eggs, cover the dish closely and leave the eggs in the water for about seven minutes. There is some uncertainty about this method, for eggs differ in weight and also in temperature at the time the cooking begins, but this method can be depended upon more than others. Good results can be obtained by pouring hot water over egs if the same dish with the same amount of water is always used, but each cook must make her own rules. Convalescents and children can eat eggs prepared in this way.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

North Main Street's Condition

Mr. Editor: Today I was a visitor to your city and I desire to express the impression that the condition of North Main street made upon me. Entering on North Main street my rear tire struck one of the several holes ruining the tire and tube. Both of these were new and set the writer back just $9. Of course I realize that I will not be compensated but, at least the trolley company and the city should get together and remedy this condition because it does not leave a good impression for Norwich, The Rose of New England.

Mr. Pitcher Gives Answer

Mr. Editor: It has been with great interest that I have read the several letters relating to the electric rates as printed by the local press, and I noticed in several of said letters there were questions asked that should have been answered by some one in power. I have waited for the answers which have never come in anyway to the voters so with your permission I will attempt to answer one of those questions by the use of a small space of your paper.

I find on referring to the gas and electric bills of July 1928, they were approved by the court of common council, at a meeting held Aug. 6, 1928 as follows: Voucher No. 26306 to C. W. Taggart $41.66 and voucher No. 26466, C. W. Taggart $666.66, making a total paid to C. W. Taggart for July 1928 of $708.32 and I find that voucher No. 26312 to E. G. Taggert for $655.45. I assume the amount paid to E. G. Taggert to be his commission on the sales on gas and electric fixtures sold by the gas and electric department, as his salary must be taken care of in the pay roll.

So it will be seen by the above figures that the customers of the department paid C. W. Taggart and his son E. G. Taggert $1,363.77 for the month of July, beside E. G. Taggart's salary.

I find on referring to the figures in the Council Journal that C. W. Taggert's salary has been raised to the rate of $8,000 a year since June 1928 as the figure in last year's journal shows his salary $7,500 per year. So it must be seen by the users of electricity that they have got to raise the rates in order to pay the increased salaries and still show a profit.

Religion in Politics

Mr. Editor: Whatever the outcome of this presidential campaign, it is certain that "the religious issue," so-called, has brought forth many expressions on both sides that have been most unfortunate. It seems worth while to emphasize certain truths which it will be well for citizens of all creeds to reflect upon now, when approaching the ballot box, and also after the election is over, and citizens come back to a normal state of mind!

In the first place, the religious issue has no business in politics anyway. It is distinctly unconstitutional, unpatriotic, un-American, to allow one's vote to be cast, whether for or against any candidate, because of the religious creed of the candidate. No citizen is loyal to the elector's oath if determining a vote by creedal influence.

For concrete illustration, it is just as unconstitutional, just as unpatriotic, just as un-American, to vote for Gov. Smith for president because he is a Catholic, and "to prove that a Catholic can be elected president of the United States" as to vote against him "because No Catholic should be elected president of the United States."

On the other hand, it is just as unwarrantable to condemn Mabel Willebrandt for appealing to the Methodists to uphold the 18th amendment, which that church has endorsed at its general conference, as it would be to condemn Governor Smith of New York for giving official reception to the emissary of the pope at the state capitol at Albany—on the ground that either Mrs. Willebrandt or Governor Smith was thereby "dragging religion into politics." Perhaps the good taste of either act, at the particular time and place, might be questionable, because possibly disagreeable to other "denominations;" but under the federal constitution Mabel Willebrandt was exercising a citizen's free right to advocate a civic measure, while Governor Smith was exercising and emphasizing his own deep devotion to the "religious liberty" guaranteed him as an American citizen. And why should either of these acts invite criticism any more than the similar action of the Congregationalists when they invited President Coolidge, one of their own faith, to address their national council at Washington?

Precisely what are the constitutional guarantees as to "religion" over which such a "to-do" has been made in this peculiar campaign? Consider carefully the exact wording of that clause in article VI of the federal constitution—"but no religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States." That clause means explicitly, and can have no other meaning, that it is unconstitutional, unpatriotic, and un-American to vote for or against any candidate or nominee because, for example, he is a Catholic, or Protestant, or Hebrew, or of any other religious creed. But it is not in any sense a "religious test" when a Methodist or any other denominationalist upholds or opposes the 18th amendment or any other civic or governmental measure. Prohibition, for example, is not a "religion" but a policy of government.

As to the other reference to "religion" in the federal constitution, namely, in the first of the amendments, the language is "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof." These words have only one particular meaning, the "establishment" of some particular "creed" or religious formula by the authority of the government as the state or government church. As is well understood by the student of history, this clause grew out of the conditions in certain overseas governments at the time the U. S. Constitution was adopted.

Thousands of loyal American Catholics will not vote for "Al" Smith for president because they do not consider him of presidential calibre, or because of his unfortunate attitude in favor of restoring the traffic in alcoholic liquors in controversion of the federal constitution. They do not thereby disapprove his "religion" or falter in their own loyalty to the same faith.

To elect a president because of his religious faith would not only be a constitutional violation, but would emphasize creedal differences in the very way which it was the intention of the constitutional guarantees to avoid.

It may fairly be said, and ought to be said, that if Herbert Hoover is chosen president, no Catholic or adherent of any other religious faith will have the slightest reason to expect any adverse discrimination. Secretary Hoover and Governor Smith have both disclaimed support on religious grounds in no uncertain terms. But the life and experiences of Herbert Hoover have tended to make him broadly sympathetic with all religious faith. His early associations; his marriage by a Catholic priest, his contact with peoples of all creeds in world-wide experience, have developed in him that broad religious tolerance which the constitution itself defines and expects in all citizens of the United States. And it is not to be forgotten that among the dearest memories of Herbert Hoover's life is the remarkable tribute paid him by the king and people of Belgium, a nation "almost to a man Roman Catholic!"

Finally, what is "religion?" May it not be broadly defined as that sense of obligation which irresistibly impels the human spirit to follow the leadings of one's better nature, with faith in the higher destiny of mankind as implied by faith in God? By whatever "creed" we seek the right way, it has been well said that the spirit of man is "incurably religious." Is it not true that the essence of all religion is found in the faith and practice of "the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man?" Is not that indeed the substance of the two great cornerstones of this republic: First, devotion to the "general welfare" as the supreme purpose of citizenship, and secondly, "equality before the law" as the practical method of achieving that purpose? And under those standards of faith and practice, of what use is any "religion" which does not inspire a civic faith and practice to advocate and promote the highest standards of government? Certainly, more of that kind of "religion" is needed in "politics."

HOW TO GET RID OF DANDRUFF

By OSCAR L. LEVIN, M. D.
New York City

Dandruff is highly infectious and is spread by infected combs, brushes and towels. Hats are a common source of infection and reinfection. Millinery shops where customers try on hats, which have already been on many heads, are an excellent breeding place for dandruff; likewise barber shops and beauty parlors, where combs are often used indiscriminately by the operator. It is amazing how many people who are disgusted at the thought of using a friend's toothbrush think nothing of borrowing his comb or brush. The practice of not using individual combs among members of the same family helps one not only to acquire dandruff but to pass it on.

The absence of dandruff is usually an indication of a non-infected scalp, but it cannot be said that this is the rule. Many a scalp may show symptoms like falling hair, tenderness, itching, dryness or dullness of the hair, seemingly without dandruff. However, if the surface is scratched, the pest is revealed.

It is obvious, therefore, that proper hygiene of the scalp will go a long way toward warding off external infections. A clean scalp affords no food for germs.

Despite all time-honored notions, frequent washing does not hurt the hair. It neither dry up the scalp secretions nor destroys hair growth, nor does it increase dandruff. It simply removes the dirt, dust, scales, grease and germs, and improves the circulation and general tone of the scalp. The normal scalp should, as a rule, be washed thoroughly with a good soap at least twice a week. It should be thoroughly rinsed, and dried, preferably in the sun, and a little oil applied to the scalp at the roots of the hair.

When the scalp is infected, however, the cure depends upon treatment of the general constitution as well as the local condition, for promotion of the general health is one of the first steps toward ridding the scalpb of dandruff, just as it is true in curing more serious infections like grippe. Regulation of the diet becomes important, and excessive sweets, greasy and fried foods, spices and condiments should be avoided. The physician usually prescribes against constipation and advises plenty of fresh air and sunlight. He employs certain drugs to meet specific indications based upon scientific facts. Standard preparations should be avoided, for no two scalps are alike and the treatment of each necessarily differs. Drugs are usually prescribed that cause the dissolution of the abnormal cells or dandruff, and that have a direct effect upon the oil glands of the scalp. If the scalp is inflamed, soothing medications must be used before germicidal preparations are applied. Finally, drugs and other forms of therapy, are employed that have a stimulating effect upon the growth of hair cells and promote good circulation.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21—Woes of the movie stars who have fallen foul of the immigration law and come screaming to Washington for help would fill a very large book. They are many, and the technical cases involved are almost as numerous as the persons.

Rarely does an exact duplicate case put in an appearance. As a general rule, however, the explanation of the individual difficulty is the same: failure either willfully or thoughtlessly, to comply with some bit of redtape at a previous date.

The movie actor fraternity is frequently in immigration hot water owing to the fact that its members are within the preferred class of "artists" admitted to this country for temporary stay and employment without regard to quota limitations. Six months is the life of an original entry permit of this character, extendable indefinitely, however, six months at a crack. Failure to get those extensions in the slip-up that frequently spells subsequent disaster to plans or hopes. It takes a lot of argument to convince a hard boiled governmental board that the failure was innocent and inadvertant and not due to a determination to just squat in the United States permanently in defiance of law and regulations.

Comedian's "Tragedy"

One young English-born screen comedian of considerable note, who overstayed himself more than a year and then decided to take a trip home and come back, found the door ready to be slammed in his face when he tried to straighten things out. He came within an ace of being shipped home instantly as a violator of law and only a most persuasive tongue saved him and won him an additional six months' grace. By that time, however, he had built up an earning capacity of a thousand a month or more and grown so fond of the United States that he determined to seek American citizenship.

It was no go, for you can't apply for citizenship unless you enter under a quota visa.

The comedian was in a box. He knew it would take months if not years to get a quota visa if he went back to England and yet his younger brother, drawn over by the movie lad's glowing account of things American, had come by that route and was in process of becoming an American. The comedian barged across the Mexican border and wheedled American consulates all over Mexico for a quota entry status in vain.

Marking Time

Finally he gave it up as hopeless. He came back under his artist's entry permit extension, threw up his highly profitable movie job with two months of his legal stay under that extension still to run and set sail for dear old London. He was going over to file an application for a visa quota and wait for it in England. He could do nothing else, for his eligibility for an artist's entry permit terminated the moment he applied for quota immigration status.

Last heard of by his previous American employers, this prospective American citizen was picking up a living doing small skits in London's cheaper music halls. He was earning perhaps a hnudred or two hundred dollars a month as compared to his $250 a week or more in the United States and just waiting, that's all.

Stories That Recall Others

Had Shawls.

Betty, age three, was masking a visit to the country with her grandmother. On seeing some horses with blankets on she exclaimed "Oh, grandma, look! they've got their shawls on."

Resemblance.

The Sunday evening company was admiring a sparkling mould of jelly quivering in its dish, but the erudite 12 year old son of the house contributed the crowning comment, quite unconsciously: "Looks like the leaning tower of Pasy," said he.

Pimples

Pimples vanish like magic with the new remedy called Kitagran—a pleasant, harmless tablet easy to take. It clears up the impurities in the blood so quickly that pimples often disappear within 24 hours. Kitagran can be obtained at Lee & Osgood Co., who will return purchase price if you are not thoroughly satisfied.

It fits any Kitchen

There's no longer any need to say "I'd love to have an electric refrigerator but there's no place for it in my small kitchen."

One of the General Electric models will fit into the space you have available. These refrigerators, because of their simple compact mechanism, require less floor space than other refrigerators—yet have greater food storage area.

They are different from all other refrigerators, actually "years ahead" in design. They are entirely automatic, remarkably quiet and they never need to be oiled.

Each General Electric Refrigerator is guaranteed to supply perfect refrigeration, keeping food temperature always well below the danger point of 50 degrees.

Telephone now for our new illustrated booklet. Come in when you can and let us show you the various models. You may purchase on the deferred payment plan, if you like.

From the weekly calendar of the United Congregational church: The new carpet in use today for the first time in our church, has been given to the church by Mr. H. F. Dawley, whose generosity warms both the interior of this room for worship and the hearts of those who worship within it.

On its School and College page, the Boston Transcript of the 13th had a large cut of a man of Norwich ancestry, with the note—Josiah H. Penniman, Ph. D., LL. D., Litt. D., provost of the University of Pennsylvania coming to Boston Nov. 9-10, for the annual national convention of the Associated Pennsylvania Clubs.

SOMEBODY'S PET DOG TURNED OVER TO WARDEN

Some one in Norwich or vicinity has lost a high-bred, red Irish setter puppy, which several other local residents tried all day Saturday and Sunday to place. The dog attached herself to a local resident on Union square, then followed several boys, was taken to a dog fancier, finally was taxied by a humane person to the home of the dog warden, Chester J. Bushnell, 322 Laurel Hill avenue. Mr. Bushnell promised to retain the cute little animal for several days, with the hope of restoring it to the owner.

Duwells to Start Pinochle

The Duwell pinochle tournament is scheduled to start Tuesday evening at the club rooms. It is planned to have the present tourney run for eight weeks and then another tournament of eight more weeks to start right after New Years. This latter tourney will win up with a banquet in March.

PRIZE AWARDS FEATURE ELKS' CHARITY FAIR

To the closing night of the Elks' charity fair, on Saturday at the state armory, the big event was the awarding of the special prizes and a good sized crowd remained at the armory until midnight to be on hand when the award were made.

First Selectman William S. Murray, Stephen P. Coffey and Attorney Chas. W. Cassidy served as the judges on the awards and the announcements were made by William Fitzgerald. The largest proportion of the awards went to Norwich people, with one to Central Villaige and another to New London.

FUNERALS

Clarence A. Parker

The funeral of Clarence A. Parker was held Saturday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock at Trinity M. E. church and the service was conducted by Rev. Joseph Cooper, pastor of the church, and Rev. George A. Strouse. The burial was in West Plain cemetery and the committal service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Cooper. The bearers were Frank Lathrop, Albert Avery, Edward Bishop and David Avery. There was a very large attendance of relatives and friends from Troy, New York and New London and there were many beautiful floral tributes.

The musical part of the service at the church was in charge of two nieces, Miss Mildred Wightman at the organ and Mrs. Edward Calvert of Groton who sang a solo, My Father While I Stray.

C. A. Gager had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Mrs. William Freeman

With many relatives and friends present the funeral of Mrs. William Freeman was held at her late home, No. 38 Hickory street, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock and the service was conducted by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church. The burial was in Maplewood cemetery and the committal service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Abbott. The bearers were Albert Bourne, Raymond Bourne, Fred Freeman and William Buckley, nephews and John Murphy and Joseph Fontaine. There were a number of beautiful floral tributes. Undertaker C. A. Gager had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Mrs. John Hanson

There was a large attendance of relatives and friends at the funeral of Mrs. John Hanson held Saturday afternoon at one o'clock at the parlors of Undertaker C. A. Gager. Rev. Anders J. Anderson, pastor of the Swedish Lutheran church, conducted the service at which Rev. and Mrs. Anderson rendered two duets, In the Sweet By and By and My Faith Looks Up to Thee and burial was in Yantic cemetery. Rev. Mr. Anderson conducted the committal service and the bearers were William F. Harvey, John Anderson, Harold Lindburgh and Woodworth Sullivan. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful.

Mrs. Patrick Driscoll

At the Holy Family church in Springfield, Mass., the funeral of Mrs. Patrick Driscoll, formerly of this city, was held Saturday morning at 8 o'clock. Following the requiem mass the body was brought to this city by funeral cortege and burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, where Rt. Rev. Mgr. Michael H. May, pastor of St. Patrick's church, conducted the committal service.

The bearers were Michael Murphy, Maurice Hoar, Darrell Taylor, John Eckel, Thomas Lynch and William Powers. Undertakers Cummings and Riley had charge of the local funeral arrangements.

Henry Trushonsky

There was a large number of mourners from East Orange, N. J., Jamaica, L. I., and other places at the funeral of Henry Trushonsky held Sunday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock at the home of his father, Samuel Trushonsky, No. 66 Division street. The services were conducted by Rev. A. H. Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church. The floral tributes were beautiful and numerous. Burial was in Yantic cemetery, where a committal service was read by Rev. Mr. Abbott and the Masonic burial service carried out by Worshipful Master W. Manley Eastwood, Jr., and officers of St. James lodge, No. 23, F. and A. M. The bearers were Frederick Fogel, Walter Abendroth, Arthur Kruck and Harry W. Messler. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertaker C. A. Gager.

Mrs. Ellis M. Kennedy

With many relatives and friends present, the funeral of Mrs. Ellen A. Kennedy, wife of Ellis M. Kennedy, was held Saturday morning at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Coughlin, Moosup. At 9 o'clock there was a solemn high requiem mass at All Hallows' church, Moosup. Rev. Philip Massicott was celebrant of the mass, Rev. J. Quinn deacon, and Rev. Harry Chagnon, sub deacon. The wedding hymn, We'll Meet Again, was rendered by Miss Katherine Fanning. Burial was in the family plot at All Hallows' cemetery.

Clarence V. Reid, John W. Fanning, William Coughlin, Terrence J. Coughlin, Austin Coughlin and Terrence Coughlin, were bearers.

There were many beautiful flowers. Undertaker Louis E. Kennedy of Danielson had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Freeman To Speak In Bozrah.

Congressman Richard P. Freeman of New London, republican candidate for congress from the second district, will address the voters at a republican rally to be held in the Bozrah town hall on Tuesday, October 23 at 8 o'clock. Other speakers include Captain Albert M. Simons, United States army and Judge Carl S. Anderson of Middletown. There will be music and singing and a very enthusiastic rally is anticipated.

Attempting Theft of Tire

Early Sunday evening Officer Howard Coburn discovered two young men attempting to remove a spare tire from a machine parked on Willow street. He took them in charge and they were booked at police headquarters on attempted theft charges. They gave their names as Edwin Smith, 20, and Austin O'Neil, 20, both of Norwich. At an early hour this (Monday) morning neither had secured bonds. They will be presented in the city court this morning.

Some people seem to live in the air and every time they touch earth they get into trouble.

NAMES OF 2,259 NEW VOTERS GO ON REGISTRATION LISTS OF THE TOWN

The town board for making new voters, consisting of the selectmen and the town clerk, concluded this work for this year on Saturday, sitting until the closing hour of 8 o'clock in the evening in the common council chamber at the court house.

The day was much less busy for them than the three preceding sessions had been, and they were able to close promptly at 8 having made 256 new voters during the day. This brought the total made this year to 2,259.

OBITUARY

Miss Janet Louise Kimball

Miss Janet Louise Kimball died at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon at her home on Plain Hill following a brief illness with pneumonia. She was born in Preston, May 21, 1859, the daughter of Nathan Pride and Harriet Frink Kimball, who were also natives of the town. Miss Kimball had been a resident of Preston all her life and lived in the old Kimball homestead, being the last member of the family to make her home there in five generations. Two weeks ago she moved from the old Homestead, to Plain Hill. Miss Kimball is survived by a sister, Mrs. Ralph Maine of Franklin and six nieces. She was well and favorably known in Preston and this city and her many friends will learn of her death with sincere regret.

Mrs. Sylvester Fagan

Following an illness of six weeks Mrs. Mary T. Fagan, widow of Sylvester Fagan, died Sunday morning at her home, No. 139 Rockwell street, where she lived with her son, Frank J. Fagan. She was born in New York city, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William McCaffrey, and when a child came to this city with her parents, where she has since lived. Surviving her are a son, Frank J. Fagan of No. 139 Rockwell street and two sisters, Miss Annie A. McCaffrey and Mrs. Thomas McGuiness, both of No. 137 Rockwell street. During her long residence here Mrs. Fagan made numerous friends and acquaintances and was highly respected by all. She was a loving mother and sister and her passing is sincerely mourned by all who knew her.

Mrs. Jeremiah Shea

The death of Margaret Oakes, wife of Jeremiah Shea, occurred Saturday evening at her home in Washington, D. C., following a brief illness. She was born in Canada, the daughter of the late Charles and Catherine Enright Oakes, but lived in Norwich many years and of late years at Washington. Mrs. Shea is survived by her husband, two sons, William and Daniel, and a daughter, Margaret, all of Washington and a sister, Mrs. Charles Dudley of this city and two brothers, John Oakes of this city and Patrick Oakes of Jewett City. Her many friends in this city will learn of her death with profound sorrow and their sympathy is extended to the members of the family during their bereavement. The body is to arrive in New London this (Monday) morning at 6.17 o'clock and will be taken in charge by Undertakers Hourigan Bros. for burial here.

Rev. William T. O'Brien.

Rev. William T. O'Brien, pastor for the last ten years at Immaculate Conception church at Baltic, died Saturday night at 5.30 at St. Joseph's hospital, Willimantic, where he was operated upon last Thursday night for a ruptured appendix. His condition had not improved after the operation.

Father O'Brien was the son of William and Elizabeth Wall O'Brien and was born in Portland this state, Sept. 4, 1882. He attended the schools there and later attended St Thomas' seminary in Hartford, graduating in the first class from the seminary. After his seminary graduation he went to Paris for his studies in philosophy an dreligion at St. Sulpice and he was ordained June 29, 1907 by Archbishop Amette.

Upon returning to this country he was assigned as an assistant to St. Anne's church in Waterbury in August, 1907. Continuing there for 11 years, he was then appointed pastor of the church at Baltic in November, 1918, giving a devoted service which made his pastorate of a decade eminently successful.

Father O'Brien is survived by three sisters, Mary J., Delia G., and Anna T., all residing in Baltic.

MONTVILLE CENTER CHURCH HELD "OLD HOME" DAY

Montville Center Congregational church, sometimes known as the Old North church, had two services of special interest Sunday which was "old home day" and brought back to the church visitors from many points who continue to hold the church in loving interest.

At the morning service at 11 o'clock, the opening devotional exercises were conducted by the pastor, Rev. William D. Barnes, and the sermon was by Rev. William Douglas Mackenzie, president of Hartford Theological seminary, who spoke from the text, Matthew 5:48: Be ye therefore perfect, even as your father in heaven in perfect.

At the service a well rendered solo was given by Rev. Edward P. Ayer, the blind chaplain of the state senate who was pastor at this church from 1920 to 1923.

Dinner was served in the chapel at 12.30 by the Ladies' union, with over 100 seated at the tables, and the afternoon service was at 2.30.

The address was by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Congregational church at New London, and the special music was by the quartette from that church, consisting of Miss Gladys V. Pettigrew, soprano; Mrs. Helen M. T. Church, contralto; W. Everett Eagles, tenor; A. B. Lambdin, baritone; with Herbert D. Fengar, organist. They were heard in two beautiful anthems, O For a Closer Walk with God, which was sung with contralto and soprano solos, and Grant Us Thy Peace, which the quartette sang unaccompanied.

Rev. Mr. Danforth spoke in part as follows upon the theme, The Old Home:

"The old home is a very dear home. Time brings associations. And life is made up so much of associations and memories. It takes more than the surrounding scenery and the comfort of the house. People makes homes.

"As long as the father and mother are living the returning children find the one place where they are still boys and girls. Then the years slip away and the charm of childhood returns. And even after the dear faces have joined the faces we have loved long since and lost awhile memory brings back the sense of childhood in revisiting the dear place where that childhood was spent.

"A church lives longer than any of its members. The good this church has done in the many years of its history is past all power of human reckoning. The old First Church of New London is proud to be its mother. Before the Montville church was organized there were many from this region who joined the New London church. Some of them were settlers and some were Indians, for our fathers were true home missionaries.

"Your mother church brings you her greetings and wishes you countless blessings for the years to come. There is more room for us all in the future than in the past. We congratulate you on every forward step you take. And we also congratulate you on holding fast that which is good.

"It took some courage for fishermen by Galilee to follow him who made them follow. But they made no mistake when they left all and followed. It is just that which makes a church. We follow in a group and hearten one another in the following. Let this loved church be an inspiration to all who know it. From every side may courage come to it, as in all directions courage has flowed from it. Issuing from here power has gone forth to many a soul. It is well that power also comes back again, and that bread cast on the waters should return after many days. May God speed you on your way!"

The register of attendants at the services showed that there were visitors from Providence and Kingston, R. I., Worcester, Mass., this city, Willimantic, Franklin, New London, Willington, Bozrah, New Haven, Hartford, Colchester, Poquonoc Bridge and Yonkers, N. Y.

NORWICH G. A. R. SOCIETY MADE ANNUAL PILGRIMAGE

Gen. Ebenezer Huntington society, Children of the American Revolution, held its annual pilgrimage Saturday to New London. Former pilgrimages have been made to Lebanon, Brooklyn and Pomfret and Groton.

The part started by automobiles from Norwich Town Green, the early site of the courthouse, and followed as nearly as possible the old road, the original one to Dr. Ier J. Manwaring's where a stop was made to view the boulder and tablet dedicated last fall, to mark the site of the battle between the Narragansetts and the Mohegan Indians.

The route then led over Trading Cove, the original boundary between Norwich and New London, the next stop being at "Ye Antientest Burial Place" in New London. Here the oldest stone was examined, that of Capt. Richard Lord, who died in May, 1662; his epitaph calls him "The bright Starre of ou Cavalrie" and "To Hartford Towne a Silver Ornament." On the Brooks tomb, Arnold watched the burning of New London. On this burial lot, now stands the Nathan Hale schoolhouse, purchased by the Sons of the American Revolution and removed to its present site, where it serves as a museum in charge of Lucretia Shaw chapter, D. A. R. and is open to visitors in the summer months.

Nearby, is the fine bronze monument of John Winthrop, the founder of New London, and designed by Bela Pratt, a Norwich sculptor, who once lived in the stone house, on upper Warren street.

Proceeding past the so-called Mt. Vernon house so named from its resemblance to Washington's house at Mt. Vernon the party entered the old courthouse, built in 1784 to replace the one burned in September, 1781, where the beautiful stairway was much admired, it recalling the one in the old state house in Hartford.

ACADEMY LOSES TO WARREN HARDING BY SMALL MARGIN OF SINGLE POINT

(Special to The Bulletin)

BRIDGEPORT, Oct. 21—A missed goal for the extra point after a touchdown was the margin by which Norwich Free Academy lost to Warren Harding High here yesterday afternoon. The final score was 7 to 6. The Red and White visitors playing straight football for the first few minutes marched down the field and across the Harding goal line for their first and what ultimately proved their last score of the game. Jack Marks was the outstanding star in this march in the opening minutes of the game and it was he who carried the ball across. It was also Marks' toe that failed to function at the opportune time.

The second and third quarters were uneventful as play was almost wholly in midfield and straight football predominated. Neither team was able to make material gains either by the air or by end runs. The punting was practically even during these two quarters.

Harding, however, came to scoring life in the last period and staged a spirited march for a touchdown with the quarter not many minutes old. The point was converted, and the game stowed away in the bag.

Norwich played a good game, losing only because they lacked a player able to convert the extra point. In the four games played, or after five touchdowns now, N. F. A. has not been able to add the extra tally, sometimes so essential, as the Red and White team will now testify.

This was the Academy's first defeat of the year while it was Harding's third victory in four starts. Harding's only defeat was to Torrington, 3 to 0. A fairly large crowd of supporters came with the Academy.

STONINGTON LEADS IN HIGH SCHOOL CONFERENCE

Stonington High, with two victories and no defeats leads the Eastern Connecticut high school conference, according to games to date. A 21 to 0 victory over Bulkeley last week and one of 6 to 0 over Windham Saturday boosted the O'Brien machine to the top in the league race. Westerly and the Academy, by the way, meet this Friday, at Westerly, and are next on the list with one victory in as many starts while Windham, Chapman Tech and Bulkeley have yet to score victories.

This league is now in its first season, having been formed last winter when it became evident that the old four team league of Westerly, Stonington, Chapman Tech and the Academy was not a truly representative one.

Now that the season is truly out of the preliminary stage some exciting battles can be expected right up to the closing date, the last Saturday in November.

Friday's battle at Westerly promises to be one of the best of the league season when one team will probably lose its unbeaten status in the race. Right now, Stonington holds a commanding position, having shown more in its two league games than the Academy or Westerly runners-up.

Chapman Tech is stronger this year than for some season's past. Tech has given all her opponents a stiff struggle so far this year. The Whalers won by a decisive margin from Plainfield, lost 1 to 0 to the Academy, and 13 to 0 to strong Putnam High.

Windham, usually the producer of strong grid teams, is experiencing the inevitable off-year this time. A loss and a tie have been heriony contributions to date, but Captain Callaghan's boys do not by any means resemble the average low-place team. They will be dangerous right up to the end of their slate.

Bulkeley, which scored but a few points all last season and had a rather disastrous year, is finding the going rough against this campaign Bulkeley, however, always rises to the heights for one game, and that is, of course, with the Academy. Last year Bulkeley's one bright spot in the schedule was a 6-6 tie with the Academy.

Few outstanding players have been uncovered as yet although a number of boys are showing plenty of promise.

The following is the standing, an "unofficial" point standing carried out. (2 for win, 1 for tie):

	W	L	T	Pts	Pct
Stonington	2	0	0	4	1.000
N. F. A.	1	0	0	2	1.000
Westerly	1	0	0	2	1.000
Windham	0	1	1	1	.000

STRONG TAKES LEAD IN EASTERN SCORING

NEW YORK, Oct. 21—(AP)—Ken Strong's field day at Rutgers' expense has carried the star New York university halfback to the top of the eastern college individual scoring ladder. Strong scored four touchdowns and kicked five extra points against Rutgers yesterday and sent his season's total rolling to 68 points. Langmuir of Williams holds second place with 58 points, while Al Marsters, leader a week ago, is third with 48. Marsters, however, was unable to get into the Columbia game because of an injured leg.

Back of these leaders comes Bienstock of City College of New York, with 43 points; Gulick of Hobart, with 42; Harpster of Carnegie Tech, and Paul Scull of Pennsylvania, with 39, and Hank Kumpf of Columbia, with 37. Kumpf suffered a fractured ankle early in the Dartmouth battle and thus had little chance to add to his total. He will be out of the game for six weeks.

Steamrollers Beat Yankees

NEW YORK, Oct. 21—(AP)—George Wilson's Providence Steam Rollers of the National Professional Football league, defeated the New York Yankees, 12 to 6 in a hard-fought game at the Yankee stadium today.

The first half was scoreless but the Yankees forged to the front in the third quarter when Cyre grabbed a long forward pass and raced over the line.

After Wilson had plunged through the line for the tying points early in the last period, Harvey scored the winning touchdown shortly afterwards on another long forward pass.

Trojans Beat Duwells

The Trojans trimmed the Duwells Sunday afternoon at Lucas lot in a snappy football game, 18 to 6. The winners played smart football throughout, holding the upper hand most of the way. However, interest ran high throughout the tilt and a fairly large audience witnessed the clash.

PUTNAM DECISIVELY BEATS BARTLETT HIGH ELEVEN

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 20—Putnam high advanced their claim for eastern Connecticut football honors at Webster, Saturday afternoon by their 13 to 6 win over the Bartlett high school eleven of that town. The most thrilling incident of the game was Putnam's excellent offensive work in the second quarter when they held the Webster gridsters on the three inch line for three downs before the Bartlett team succeeded in pushing the ball over the line for their only touchdown of the game.

Capt. Ted Shann and former Captain Cody again continued their triumphant marches for long gains, Cody scoring the first towndown by a 40 yard run around left end. Again Cody came to the fore when he crashed through the center and with excellent interference tramped 20 yards for the third and last touchdown of the game. Shann was highly responsible for Putnam's gain when in the second half he tore down the field for 40 yards before he was brought to a stop

Buddy Franklin, Putnam's 125 pound end, was instrumental in Putnam's second dash across the goal line, completing a forward pass from Cody and running 15 yards when he was downed on the five yard line. Bove of Putnam a halfback, carried the ball over the line. Eddy Bastello, Bartlett's quarterback, gained freedom in the center of the field and threatened to score when he reached the 20 yard line in the second quarter, only to fumble and have Shann pick up the ball to bring it back to the center of the field.

Putnam has still to meet defeat, having won four straight victories to date. The locals play Plainfield at Putnam Thursday afternoon.

FAST BOYS ENTERED FOR AMATEUR SHOW

Jackie Burns, matchmaker for the Pastime A. C., has been fortunate in his entries for the amateur show at Olympic hall on Thursday evening. Some of the best amateur talent in the eastern part of the state has been entered fr this show and eight top notch bouts are slated for the evening. Norwich is represented by Baby Joe Gans, Eddie Sharkie and Clement Nagle. Baby Joe Gans will be remembered under the name of "Snooks" Lacey who has given many exhibitions in and about Norwich. He is a midget flyweight coming in at 110 pounds and is a whirlwind for action.

In Eddie Sharkie the fans will see one of the best two-fisted boxers that Norwich has produced in several years. Sharkie fought at Uncasville last week and his work in that bout was the sensation of the entire card. He is fast on his feet, quick at picking an opening and punches with both hands. Clem Nagle is another of the local entries who is said to be a fast youngster.

Montville is sending up Johnnie Leonard, Sheik Gudula and Johnny Arbyte, the last named a heavyweight. Young Luvis and Young Alberts are New London's contribution to the card. Luvis will probably be matched against Eddie Spellman of the U. S. S. Camden in the main go. Westerly and Danielson will also send teams.

Britton Ready For Eout

HOLYOKE, Mass., Oct. 21—(AP)—Jack Britton, former world's welterweight champion, arrived here tonight for his bout tomorrow with Meyer Cohen, of this city in the Valley Arena. Britton was scheduled for a public workout here this afternoon but delayed his arrival to appear in a four round church benefit bout last night at Canton. He and Cohen will weigh 150 and are to go ten rounds.

FUMBLE LOSES GAME FOR WINDHAM HIGH

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 21—Windham went down to defeat before Stonington here yesterday afternoon 6 to 0. A costly fumble with two minutes of play remaining in the final quarter was picked up by Adams, visiting right guard, on the local 39 yard line and he romped over the goal line for the only score of the game. Windham out-scored the visitors in the matter of first downs 6 to 2. Monast, Woodward, Whitford and Harlow Smith were absent from the Windham lineup. The summary:

NEW YORK, Oct. 21—(AP)—The Los Angeles fire department's football team crushed New York's smoke eaters, 57 to 0 before 35,000, at the Polo Grounds today. Dyer, fullback of the invaders, ran 70 and 90 yards for the first two touchdowns.

ONLY FEW TEAMS REMAIN IN RACE FOR MYTHICAL CHAMPIONSHIP

By F. G. VOSBURGH
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Oct. 21—(AP)—After a series of remarkable football battles featured by unusually widespread and effective uss of the forward pass as a scoring weapon, a handful of teams stood out today as likely contenders for the unofficial "championship" honors of the east.

Yale, Army, Dartmouth, Pennsylvania, New York university, Carnegie Tech and Georgetown were the major teams that emerged not only victorious on Saturday but undefeated and untied as yet this season.

Yale Army Is Big Game

Yale and the Army, which meet next Saturday at New Haven in a game that may go far to settle the question of eastern or even nationwide supremacy, buttressed their claims to recognition by clear-cut victories over teams which previously were undefeated. The Elis 32 to 14 triumph over Brown yesterday and the Cadets' 15 to 0 shutout of Harvard indicated that again there is little to choose between these old rivals and that their forthcoming battle in the Bowl will be as hard fought as last year when Yale won, by the narrow margin of 10 to 6.

Dartmouth Smothers Columbia

That Dartmouth cannot be counted out of the title race was shown when the Big Green rushed an unbeaten and promising Columbia team off its feet to win by 21 to without the services of its star back, Al Marsters. They say the bare-legged Marsters adds about 25 per cent in efficiency to the Indian attack, in which case Harvard will have its hands full if he is in shape to start against the Crimson Saturday at Cambridge.

Penn Wins

Pennsylvania lived up to expectations by beating off the challenge of a crippled but hard-fighting and dangerous Penn State eleven and winning by a 14 to 6 score, while N. Y. U., Carnegie and Georgetown sliced their way through less formidable opposition to keep their records clean. N. Y. U. and Carnegie, which meet on Nov. 4, won shutouts by 48 to 0 and 19 to 0 over Rutgers and Washington & Jefferson respectively. Georgetown's goal line was crossed for the first time in a 34 to 7 win over West Virginia Wesleyan.

Holy Cross Beaten

Holy Cross vanished from the unbeaten list in one of the most surprising games of the day. Fordham, trounced unmercifully by N. Y. U. a week before, and minus the services of its star back, walloped the fast-traveling Crusaders by 19 to 13 in a contest in which three out of the four touchdowns were scored on forward passes, one by Fordham and two by Holy Cross.

The Syracuse-Nebraska game at Lincoln, the big East vs. West conflict of the day, was marked by an unparalleled use of the forward pass which produced both of the touchdowns scored. But its great proficiency in the use of the pass as flung by Capt. Hal Baysinger, Syracuse, out-gained the home team but lost the chance for the tie it deserved when a luckless substitute, called into the game to boot for the extra point, kicked wide

Although in this game with its total of 37 passes by Baysinger alone, of which half were complete, the throwing game reached its high water mark, there was scarcely a single contest anywhere in which the aerial attack did not play a large part, usually scoring at least one touchdown.

An exception was the intersectional fray between Colgate and Michigan State at East Lansing in which the hard running of Tommy Dowler was the deciding factor. Colgate, winning by 17 to 0, meets N. Y. U. next and is expected to give Meehan's men a real test as it always managed to do when he was coaching at Syracuse.

Garvey Is Big Gun

In this latest crop of games new backfield heroes emerged and familiar figures flashed again in spectacular style. Johnny Garvey was the big noise for Yale in his brief period in the game, Cagle and Murrel came through for Army, Ken Strong scored 29 points single-handed for N. Y. U., the left-handed passer, Breithut, was a big factor in Dartmouth's win. Then there was Baysinger of Syracuse, Dowler of Colgate and Capt. Paul Schull of Penn, who ran 74 yards for a touchdown against State. It was Whitey Lloyd who gave Navy its first victory in four starts at Duke's expense, 6 to 6 and Swede Hansen alone scored four touchdowns, as Temple beat Albright, 32 to 0.

Bennett Stars

Trix Bennett, Princeton's sophomore halfback find, made three touchdowns, as Princeton walloped Lehigh, 47 to 0, to celebrate its return to big-time form after being tied by Virginia.

One of the hardest fought games of the entire day was that in which Bucknell and Lafayette, both unbeaten and previously untied, battled to a tenseless draw. Among the other results of note were Pittsburgh's 29 to 0 win over Allegheny, and the victories of Villanova over Gettysburg, 7 to 2, and Tufts over Bowdoin, 12 to 0. Both Villanova and Tufts are undefeated. New England's "Little Three" were uniformly victorious over New York state adversaries, Williams knocking off Rensselaer Poly, 26 to 7; Amherst blanking Hamilton, 19 to 0, and Wesleyan nosing out Rochester, 14 to 13.

KERR WINS DUWELL FIVE-MILE RACE AND HOPE A. C. WINS TEAM PRIZE

William Kerr, running for the Duwell A. A. won from a field of 11 starters in the five-mile road race held in this city Saturday afternoon. Kerr won in the remarkably fast time of 27 min., 56 secs. unaided under wraps of seconds ahead of Fusaro of the Hope A. C., who finished second. Had Kerr been pushed there is little doubt but what he could have made the course in less than 27 minutes. Running with a long easy stride, the winner of the race went out in front of the very start and kept the lead throughout the entire course. Murano, another Westerly runner, finished third, while Johnny Keeley, diminutive local runner, came in fourth.

The race which was staged as a dual meet between the Duwell A. A. and the Hope A. C. of Westerly, resulted in the Westerly club winning the team prize by three points, scoring 26 points to 29 for the Duwells. In figuring the team scoring only the first ten men to finish count, and the one scoring the lowest number of points wins. The Duwells besides taking first, finished fourth, sixth, eighth and tenth, while the Hope A. C. finished second, third, fifth, seventh and ninth. Of the 11 to start, Westerly furnished nine and the local organization eight. All but two completed the course, two of the Westerly runners being forced to drop out.

The order of those to finish with the times made is as follows:

Pos.	Name	Club	Time
1.	Kerr,	Duwell A. A.	27:56
2.	Fusaro,	Hope A. C.	28:17
3.	Murano	Hope A. C.	28:19
4.	J. Keeley,	Duwell A. A.	28:27
5.	Visgillo,	Hope A. C.	29:06
6.	Rollband	Duwell A. A.	29:08
7.	Stanton	Hope A. C.	29:28
8.	A. Keeley,	Duwell A. A.	29:38
9.	Vezina,	Hope A. C.	30:16
10.	Boldrigrine,	Duwell A. A.	30:37

14.	Brogno	Hope A. C.	32:36
15.	Zinavera,	Duwell A. A.	33:27

Peter A. Barber acted as official referee, Archie Spalding as timekeeper and Frank Green and Dominick Pedace as judges at the finish. Felix Labrie, Harold Gorton, Edwin Christensen, William Riley and John Williamson officiated as checkers.

MORTON AND FORD WIN WEEK END GOLF HONORS

Dave Morton topped a large field in the week end tournament at the Norwich Golf club to take low gross with an 86. Harry B. Ford turned in low net with a 70 having a 98 gross and a 28 handicap. Walt Turner had second low net with 91-17—74.

The season's prize of a set of golf clubs was awarded Sunday to Frank Lathrop.

WESTMINSTER

SECOND BLOSSOMING OF ROSES THIS SEASON

At the Davis homestead in Raymond district a Dorothy Perkins rose bush in full bloom is attracting much attention. It is the second time the bush has blossomed this year. It also blossomed twice in 1927.

Mrs. Jane Church, 85, was among the newly made voters and will cast her first vote in the presidential election in November.

The glorious weather of the last ten days has attracted many city dwellers to the country. The roadsides and hills with their wonderfully beautiful foliage, are a delight to all lovers of nature.

E. A. Gooding, who has been ill, is much improved.

Mrs. Will Davis of Raymond district gave a dinner Oct. 14 in celebration of her birthday. Her guests included Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Harmon and family, Mrs. E. H. Pendleton and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Snackhamer of Willimantic, Mrs. Charles Morton, Bridgeport, John Pendleton and Miss Jessie Johnston, Worcester, Mass. Mrs. Davis received many beautiful gifts.

A record breaking crowd attended the Sira auction Tuesday. The chief attraction was a herd of high grade dairy cows. There were prospective buyers from Massachusetts and Rhode Island to compete withthe local bidders. One cow sold for $155.

Benjamin Davis left Tuesday for Hadesstraw, N. Y., to become an electrician in a soldiers' hospital located there.

Miss Tori Ahola of Hartford spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Ahola.

Miss Martha Warren of Hartford was a caller at Elm Arch farm one day the past week.

THE NEW DATE

Somebody once said that in order to make a man fall in love with you, all you had to do was listen to him. I had a new date the other night, so I decided to put the experiment to the test.

Everything went fine. His car worked, the moving picture show was thrilling, the soda was good and the ride home wasn't half bad. That is everything went fine until we reached home, where we parked outside under the pale moonlight with at least six of my neighbors as chaperones. It was a heavenly night and I had decided that all in all, my new date wasn't so bad I was anxious to try out my new method on him, so I began at once.

"So you are a traveling salesman!" I remarked sweetly, as an opener. "How thrilling."

"Yes," he said. "I used to like it at first. I thought it was thrilling, too, but after the first couple of years it gets as boring as anything else."

"It couldn't be as boring as being a stenographer," I said

"Oh, yes it could. Just think of going from one hick town to another, always moving never being able to settle down and make friends—like you!" (I smothered a gigle and smiled enxagingly.)

"I was always a home man," he confided seriously, "and somehow I always liked to know my home was waiting for me, mother and father and all the kids——"

"What about girls" I encouraged, even though he didn't seem to need encouragement.

"Well—that's just it. I'm never in one place long enough to get acquainted. And I'm just a little bit particular. (This very condentially.) Guess that's why most of the girls I've met don't interest me. These country girls generally can't dance and I'd rather not dance at all if I don't have a good partner——"

As he kept on and on I began to wonder if the dashboard was made of oak or mahogany and how much the pretty dashlight cost.

"——best little dancer I ever saw, Grace personified. Why, we used to dance from 8 to 12 and want more ——." What a very pretty dashlight. I was thinking. Red on two sides and green on two sides and a couple of other sides that were white.

"I took her out a lot while I was there, to dances and the like. And then I was called away. It almost broke her heart. But when I went back the next time she had married an old boy friend. Guess it was for spite——" I began to wonder what make of car it was and if it had an easy shift. The clutch had an attractive marble knob that looked like a large sized toy marble. Suddenly I realized there was silence when before there had not been silence and I became aware that he had stopped talking. And he was waiting for me to say something! Heavens, what had he been talking about! Piteously I looked up into his manly eyes.

"I was brought up on a farm," he rushed on as soon as I gave signs of listening. "Plenty of hard work all the year round. I can remember when the snow was so high we couldn't see out of the windows."

In spite of myself, my mind wandered again and I began to resent the fact that he had treated me to a dime soda rather than to supper. And I was thoroughly satisfied that I didn't care whether my new method for capturing him worked or not. Imagine having to listen to his talking all through life! He had stopped for breath and I said, "Oh, yes, that's so," on general principles.

"I go up every fall for the shooting," he went on. "Rabbit and squirrel shooting—why, I shot thirteen squirrels and fifteen rabbits in one day. That was year before last——"

I think I must have dozed then; I know I was having difficulty keeping my eyes open, but when I came to he was still shooting rabbits—poor little fuzzy rabbits. Well, that went on for eons and eons, and somehow the conversation turned to ages and I asked him how old he was.

"How old are you" he asked playfully.

"Well," I said, "I'm at least five years younger than you." He laughed

"Oh, no-o-o, you aren't!" he said "I'll wager I am. I'm 20. Now, how old are you"

"You are!" he exploded. "Well, I'm 30. But I sure did think you were older than that." If I hadn't been so tired and bored I would have been insulted beyond words, but all I could get myself to say was, "What made you think that"

"Well," he answered, "I don't know—you sort of talked like it!"—Exchange.

MONTVILLE

COUNCIL OF CATHOLIC WOMEN GIVES CHICKEN-PIE SUPPER

At the afternoon service of the Montville Center Congregational church Sunday, Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ, New London, will be in charge. Old Home Day will be observed at the church. The choir of the First Church of Christ will assist at the afternoon service.

The Montville Council of Catholic Women gave a very successful chicken pie supper at the Community house, Uncasville, Thursday, from 6 to 8 p. m. The supper consisted of chicken pie, mashed potatoes, cranberry sauce, rolls, cake and coffee. The proceeds were about $153, and will be used for the benefit of the church. Many Norwich people were in attendance at the supper.

Mrs. LeRoy Robinson and three children of New Jersey, are the guests of Mrs. Robinson's mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. O. Favro of Oak avenue.

Jarvis Street of Wheeler avenue, is the guest of Capt. W. H. Rathburn of Noank for several days. Capt. Rathburn and Mr. Street went on a fishing trip Thursday, and were hoping for a large catch of bluefish.

Mrs. A. W. Avery of Hill Top, Uncasville, attended the monthly executive board meeting of the New London County League of Women Voters at New London Wednesday afternoon.

Alex Williamson of Quaker Hill was a business caller in the village Tuesday afternoon.

Miss Minnie Chapel of New London visited her mother, Mrs. Frank Chapel of Bridge street, Wednesday.

NO "HELLO GIRLS" OR POLICE NEED APPLY

HODGES S. C., Oct. 20 (AP)—Twelve stores, two hotels, a bank and three churches but not a single telephone or a policeman is the boast of this South Carolina town of several hundred population. Residents declare with satisfaction that the town has not been patrolled for lawbreakers for 12 years.

There are plenty of radios and automobiles in Hodges and a little more than 12 years ago, citizens say, there were about 30 telephones in the community. The exchange was discontinued, however, and since then the town has been without telephones.

"Strangers miss them worse than we do," citizens declare.

WEDDING

Cook-Harrington

Miss Faith Harrington, niece of Mrs. Effie Jencks, and daughter of Gilbert Harrington, and Henry T. Cook, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Darwin Cook, were married in St. Martin's Episcopal church, Providence, by the rector Rev. Arthur L. Washburn. Annunciation lilies, palms and cibotium ferns were grouped on the altar and in the chancel and sprays of lilies tied with white ribbon marked the pews where the families were seated. Attending the bride was her sister, Miss Ruth L. Harrington, as maid of honor. The other attendants were Miss Dorothy Arnold, Miss Dorothy B. Moulton, Miss Barbara Smith and Mrs. William G. Greene Jr., of Cambridge, Mass. Mr. Cook had for best man his brother, Peter P. Cook. The ushers were A. Howard Swanson, Harvey S. Reynolds, Roger F. Horton, Jake H. Field Jr., of Springfield, Brackett H. Clark of Rochester, N. Y., and Eben Luther. Miss Blanche N. Davis played the Bridal Chorus from "Lohengrin" as the bridal party entered and at their leaving the church she played Mendelssohn's Wedding March with the chimes

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a Vionnet model of imported ivory transparent velvet with peacock train and a veil of Venetian lace. She carried a spray of lilies tied with white ribbon. A vionnet model of Byzantina butterfly velvet with short train was worn by the maid of honor and her hat of imported soleil felt matched her costume. She carried an empire arm bouquet of Claudia and Pernet roses. Two of the attendants wore gowns of minuet butterfly velvet with soleil belt hats to match and they carried arm bouquets of butterfly roses. The other two wore gowns of thistlebloom butterfly velvet and their soleil hats corresponded with their costumes. They carried rapture roses.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Rhode Island Country club. Mr. and Mrs. Cook received their guests assisted by their parents and attendants. A trio under direction of Miss Louise Waterman, played during the reception. The fireplace in the lounge was banked with palms and ferns interspersed with bunches of white asters, forming a effective background for the receiving party. Mrs. Cook, mother of the bridegroom, was gowned in Imperial blue transparent velvet. She wore a black hat with trimmings matching her gown. Her shoulder corsage was of orchids

The bridal table had a central decoration of white roses and a large bridal cake flanked by lighted white tapers. After a wedding trip to Bermuda, Mr. and Mrs. Cook will take up their residence on Blackstone boulevard, Providence. The bride is well known in Plainfield.

MYSTIC

PROGRAM BY YOUNG PEOPLE AT BAPTIST CHURCH NIGHT

At the annual church night of the Union Baptist church Friday evening in the vestry 150 were present. The program was in charge of the young people, under direction of Russell Potter. After singing popular songs with Miss Betty Wheeler, pianist and the pastor, Rev. Mr. Shepler, leader the following program was given: Piano solo, Margaret Van Pelt; reading, Mrs. Artis L. Stoddard, with encore; cornet solo, William Thorp, with his sister Miss Frances Thorp, accompanist; clarinet solo, Elmer Newbury, Mrs. Russell Potter, accompanist; William Thorp gave another cornet solo, his playing showing great promise. Piano solo, Doris Wheeler; a sketch, An Animated Ford by Sandy Fish, Russell Potter, Gordon and Louis Shepler, Morris and Richard Bennett created much amusement. Rev. George P. Jones called Rev. and Mrs. Shepler to the platform and after a witty speech presented them a large bouquet of red roses in honor of their seventeenth wedding anniversary. All members who had united with the church during the year were asked to come to the platform and the pastor constituted them on their uniting with the church and in their activities since. Deacon L. P. Allyn, as a layman added a brief address in his usual humorous manner. Sandwiches, cake and coffee were served by the "Eldie" Adult society. The decorations were dahlias.

Mystic Garden club is to meet Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock with Mrs. Fannie P. Fish. Members have been asked to bring bouquets of autumn flowers or seed pods arrangement, also seedlings of seeds for exchange.

The first of the monthly whists of Mystic Academy Parent-Teacher association was held Friday evening. Only four tables were in play but enough tickets were sold to clear $11.20. The prizes were won by Fred Conant, Mrs. Otto Grossman, Mrs. Laura Tift and Otto Grossman.

Mrs. Felix Palmer is spending a few days in New York.

An addition is being built to the garage of Rollin Burrows to accommodate two cars.

Mrs. Peter Flynn has her sister Mrs. Edwin Ducker of Springfield, Mass., as her guest.

Miss Hazel Kuppers was taken to a New London hospital Friday for a surgical operation.

The Rossie Velvet mill had many orders and to fill them a night force has been at work for some time. Now the rush is over and many of the workers have been laid off.

Miss Elizabeth Foley spent the week end in Waterbury.

Mrs. Charles W. Foote went to Bridgeport Saturday to visit relatives.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Congregational church met with Miss Julia Foote at the week end. Mrs. A. E. Harrison presided at the business session. The Sunshine bags were brought in, adding a good sum to the treasury. Mrs. Newton Dickinson gave a report of the missionary conference recently held in Hartford.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Levine and daughter Phyllis Ann of Dorchester, Mass., visited Mr. and Mrs. William Harvey of Old Mystic, Friday.

Miss Dorothy Burdick of Norwich spent Saturday afternoon with her mother, Mrs. Fannie Burdick of Mystic.

The United Workers of Old Mystic Methodist church, will not meet this week on account of a supper to be held later in the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Burdick spent Saturday in Westerly.

Miss Adele Kohen is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Stox of Stonington.

Each day now finds many men and boys standing on the bridges or out in boats trying to coax the smelts to swallow the bait.

John, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Jes

SIGNS THAT THIS WILL BE BANNER YEAR FOR MANY LINES OF BUSINESS

NEW YORK, Oct. 21—(AP)—There was again a wealth of evidence last week that 1928 will be a banner year in many lines of business although the improvement since the first of the year has not been altogether uniform.

The warm weather retarded the flow of seasonable goods somewhat, but latest returns on car loadings indicated a freight traffic exceeding that of any corresponding previous period and disclosing that the general movement of merchandise is wholly satisfactory.

There appeared a strong probability that automobile and steel ingot production will set new records this year. For the first time in history every available open hearth steel furnace in the Mahoning valley was reported active, while the general output was at the remarkably high rate of 90 per cent of capacity. Further hardening was apparent in steel prices, and more advances in pig iron were announced.

Activity in the automotive industry continued near the peak established in September, with Detroit employment figures showing a slight upturn after four weeks of declines. Farm implement production was also at a high rate, and machine tool demand held strong.

Greater optimism prevailed in the textile industry with a broadening of demand for dry goods. Although there was slight change in prices, the tendency was upward. Sales of cotton goods in September exceeded production by 50 per cent although there are still heavy carry-overs of stocks at the mills. The furniture and jewels trades were still less active than a year ago.

The first financial statements for the third quarter disclosed a lack of uniformity but a number of extra dividends and stock "melons" gave impetus to the greatest security buying movement in the history of the New York Stock exchange. The movement was aided by some improvement in the credit situation as the peak of fall commercial demands was met without severe strain.

Bankers, however, held no hope for any marked improvement in the credit situation for some months to come, pointing to the new government financing for 11 months at the unusually high rate of a 3-4 per cent. It was pointed out that the high rates have already imposed some restraint on business expansion, as indicated by the sharp decline in building permits during the recent weeks, and the low totals of bond offerings.

With the abundant crops, the purchasing power of agriculture remained substantially improved as compared to last year, despite the low prices for cereal crops. Meat animals, however, showed further recessions from their high prices, and little hope was held for improvement in wheat prices, with the world visible supply about the largest on record.

Further improvement was indicated in the petroleum industry, with reports of plans to form an export association and to regulate production in Venezuela, now one of the world's foremost producers.

Commodity prices showe some recessions, particularly in hides and leathers. Commercial failures for the latest week were again at a high level, and well ahead of last year. Bank clearings were again higher than at any corresponding previous period.

The negligible effect upon business of the approaching presidential election remained a conspicuous feature.

Burgess Bedtime Story

Jimmy Skunk Is Lame

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Even the independent find
Trouble never far behind.

It isn't often that Jimmy Skunk finds himself in trouble. But trouble comes to everybody and once in a while Jimmy gets in trouble through his very independence. Jimmy was in trouble now. In his independence he had been careless and Hooty the Owl had all but caught him. Now Jimmy had burrowed into a corn-shock and he was nursing a sore leg. His coat had been torn just above his hip and Hooty's long, sharp claw had gone way through that coat into the flesh.

Jimmy was safe for the time being, however, and that was the main thing. "I'll stay here the rest of the night," said Jimmy to himself. "I don't dare try to go any farther while it is dark. I know Hooty will be watching until it is broad daylight. My goodness, he pretty nearly got me that time! I hope I am not going to be lame after this."

So the long night passed and by and by jolly, round, bright Mr. Sun began his daily climb up in the blue, blue sky. Jimmy poked his head out from his hiding place. There was nothing low to fear from Hooty the Owl. There was nothing to fear from anybody. Everybody but Hooty has too much respect for Jimmy's little scent-gun to bother him much.

"Who did it?" persisted Sammy Jay. "Who did it?"

"Ouch!" exclaimed Jimmy as he dragged himself out. "Ouch!"

"What's the matter with you, Jimmy Skunk?" inquired Sammy Jay, who happened along just then.

"I met with an accident," replied Jimmy, who was ashamed of having been so careless as to give Hooty the Owl a chance, and so didn't want anyone to know it.

Sammy Jay was interested right away. "What kind of an accident?" he demanded.

"Oh, just an accident," said Jimmy. "Ouch!"

Jimmy now was out in full view and Sammy Jay's bright eyes saw the tear in Jimmy's coat. Those eyes of Sammy's opened very wide at that. He just stared. He knew that that tear had been made by a claw and this was news. To think that somebody had dared to attack Jimmy Skunk! Right away Sammy's curiosity was aroused.

"Who did it, Jimmy Who did it?" cried Sammy.

Jimmy paid no attention. He started to move along. Then it was that he found he was very lame. As a matter of fact, he walked on three legs. It hurt too much to use that fourth one.

"Who did it?" persisted Sammy Jay. "Who did it?"

"It's no business of yours who did it," said Jimmy Skunk crossly. "I told you I met with an accident and that's enough. It WAS an accident."

Sammy Jay laughed. "I suppose it was," said he. "If was the same kind of an accident most of us experience when we get hurt by someone else. Somebody has been smart enough to attack you. Who was it, Jimmy?"

But Jimmy wouldn't tell. He shuffled along on three legs, grumbling and mumbling to himself, for Jimmy was very much out of sorts. Also, Jimmy felt very far from good. The place where that big claw of Hooty's had gone in hurt and Jimmy suspected that that leg was going to be lame for some time. So Jimmy was out of sorts.

Sammy soon discovered this, and that he could get nothing further from Jimmy. So Sammy flew away. You see, he wanted to spread the news. He wanted to tell the other people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows and the Old Orchard how someone had dared attack Jimmy Skunk. And all the time he was wondering who it could have been.

CANTERBURY GREEN

Canterbury grange hall was well filled Wednesday evening when Plainfield grange united with the local order in entertaining several state officers and other visitors. After a short program, speeches were made by the visiting patrons, including State Master Minor Ives and Mrs. Ives of Meriden, Asst. Steward C. M. Adams of Groton, chairman of home economics, Mrs. Carline Haines of Pomfret and Mrs. Ida Richardson of Norwich, a member of the same committee, and Deputy John Hallowell of Preston City. Fourteen granges were represented. After the meeting an oyster supper was served by members of Canterbury and Plainfield granges.

At a recent meeting of the school board Edward Lovell was chosen chairman; Miss Lucy Baldwin, secretary; Fred Kinne and Mr. Rix, committee on repairs; Mrs. Hiram Hawes and Laverne Kilpatrick on transportation.

TANENBAUM FIRE AT NEW LONDON STARTS BENEATH BANK ST. COUNTER

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 21—Fire caused damage to the store and stock of the New London Textile company, 291 Bank street, owned by Joseph Tanenbaum, early today. How the fire originated is not known, but is being investigated by Chief Thomas Shipman. Tanenbaum closed the store at 11.30 o'clock and at 12.25 pedestrians discovered a lively blaze there. An alarm was rung in from Box 42, corner of Bank and Howard streets and was responded to by Deputy Chief Calvin Edmunds and Niagara Engine company, Allen Hook and Ladder company and the Ockford, Pequot and Northwest Hose companies. When the firemen arrived at the burning building the entire rear of the store was in flames. The front entrance was forced and streams of water were poured into the building, resulting in the fire being subdued after a half hour's battle. It was found that the fire had started beneath one of the counters but from what cause remains to be determined. Tanenbaum carries insurance of $6,000 on his stock.

SNATCHED WOMAN'S PURSE—DUTCH MURPHY ARRESTED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 21—James "Dutch" Murphy, former railroad employe, with a long police record, was arrested Saturday night as a pocketbook snatcher and will be given a hearing in the police court Monday. Murphy, with his companion, George Sheehan, also with a police record was on Bank street about 8 o'clock when they met Mrs. Mary Smith of Waterford. The two young men accompanied the woman a short distance, when Murphy seized the pocketbook carried by Mrs. Smith which contained $6. Murphy fled through the street and disappeared. Mrs. Smith made complaint to Patrolman William Riordan and the officer reported the theft at police headquarters and at 9.30 Patrolman Clarence Wells found Murphy in the vicinity of State street and arrested him. Murphy's father, Michael Murphy, became surety on his son's bond of $250 and the prisoner was liberated. He will tell his story in court Monday.

Richard Beckman of Pawtucket, R. I., who has been serving a sentence in jail for being an imposter, was liberated Saturday. He saw the light of day but a few minutes for upon being released from custody, Beckman was rearrested on a charge of forgery and locked up pending his appearance in the police court Monday. Beckman last month was in New London and negotiated a fraudulent check. The check was made payable to Beckman and with Arthur J. Carrivean, Pawtucket merchant as the payee. The check was for $55 and was drawn on the National Bank of Providence. The negotiation of the check was made possible by Gedney MacDougal, assistant probation officer, endorsing it. A day or two afterwards it was found that the check was a forgery and when Beckman was observed on State street, he was arrested. At the time of his arrest, Beckman was displaying a Masonic emblem and upon being questioned it was revealed that he was not a member of th. Masonic fraternity. He was prosecuted on the charge of wearing a fraternal emblem when not affiliated with the order and sentenced to ten days in jail. This with costs made the time Beckman was incarcerated 13 days. In the meantime, the fraudulent check was returned to the police by the Providence bank and a warrant charging forgery was issued. When Beckman came out from the jail cell room Saturday he was taken into custody by Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Saturday ordered the suspension of the driver's license of John Lugal, 80 Smith street.

Several sections of brick of one of the stretches of cornice of the Harris building fell to the sidewalk on the State street side Saturday morning, but no pedestrians were in the way of the dropping brick. The police reported the dangerous condition of the cornice to Building Inspector William Gunn and arrangements were at once made for repairs.

WEDDING

Cohen-Hendel

Edward Cohen, of New Haven and Miss Frieda Hendel, niece of Mr. and Mrs. Philip J. Hendel of 364 Broad street were married at 3.30 o'clock this afternoon, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Hendel. The nuptial ceremony performed by Rabbi I. Traub, was witnessed by a large assemblage of guests, including many from New Haven. Mr. and Mrs. Hilbert Hendel were the attendants. At the conclusion of the ceremony, a reception was held at the Hendel residence, with dancing and feasting for several hours. Mr. and Mrs. Hendel left Sunday night for Washington where they will remain a month when they will go to New Haven and make their home. Prior to the marriage ceremony all of the guests from New Haven were entertained by William Hendel 33 Linden street.

A Ford sedan, reported dismantled by youths on the land, corner of Mair and Douglas streets, where the auto had been parked more than a week, was found Saturday to be the property of Nelson Whidbee, 4 Shermer court. The owner was advised to have the car removed to storage before the youths had rendered it absolutely useless.

Harold Sheehan, 30 Connecticut avenue, employed by the Connecticut Power company, made complaint to the police Saturday that while absent from one of the automobiles owned by the power company which he had left on Meridian street while he attended the graduating exercises of the Joseph Lawrence School for Nurses in the Plant building, a thief went to the auto and stole a spot-light. In order to free the light from the bracket on the left hand side of the auto, the bracket was smashed.

An automobile driven by Charles Favolini, 34 Shaw street, in passing through Huntington street Saturday night struck and killed a police dog. The owner of the dog was not learned.

John Green was arrested Saturday night on State street by Patrolman Dennis Murphy when found intoxicated and soliciting money from pedestrians. Green will be in court Monday.

John A. Ramistella, 42 Jefferson avenue, was arrested Saturday night charged with violation of the city's parking laws by Patrolman Clarence Wells and Dennis Murphy and will be in court Monday. Ramistella parked his automobile in restricted area on Pearl street.

Edward McLaughlin of Union street, arrested Saturday night by Patrolmen George Labous and Elwood Bailey on complaint of his brother Fred McLaughlin, same address, will be in the police court Monday on charges of intoxication and breach of the peace. McLaughlin went to his home and is alleged to have created a disturbance.

Edward Snoesky, 469 Main street, was arrested this afternoon charged with intoxication and breach of the peace and will be in court Monday. Snoesky went to his home shortly after noon and engaged in a row with his wife.

NOANK DRIVER IMBIBED TOO MUCH IN WHALING TOWN

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 21—Sigurd Ness of Noank, drove his automobile to New London Saturday night. During his stay here he partook of strong drink in a quantity that resulted in his becoming intoxicated. At 12.40 while he was driving through the streets on his way back to Noank, his operation of the car attracted the attention of State Police Officer John Smith, who halted the machine and observing Ness' condition arrested the latter on a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor. Ness furnished a cash bond of $150 and will be in court Monday.

WIFE WHO DRANK IODINE SENT TO NORWICH STATE HOSP.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 21.—Mrs. Annie Rucque, 10 Montauk avenue wife of a chief pettey officer stationed at the submarine base who attempted suicide several days ago by swallowing a quantity of iodine at her home, for some cause unknown and who has since been a patient at Home Memorial hospital was committed to Norwich state hospital Saturday night by Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman. The young woman had been in a violent state since she was admitted to Home hospital Saturday, when her condition did not improve. Medical Examiner Kaufman was informed and although she was in no immediate danger of dying, he obtained the facts in connection with the self-administered poisoning. He then ordered the woman taken to the state hospital. The ambulance was procured and accompanied by a nurse and Acting Lieutenant James Gaffney the afflicted woman was temporarily transferred to the asylum.

The police received information at 1.10 o'clock this morning that a man was calling for help in the rear of Kaplan's store, Main street. Patrolmen George Labous and Elwood Bailey found Jordan Manning, colored, of 25 Tilley street, lying in an excavation and apparently injured. The Negro was removed from the excavation and after being examined by a physician, was taken to Home Memorial hospital, where it was found that he had sustained an injury to his back, the exact nature of which was to be determined. Manning had evidently wandered to the rear of the store and had been on a veranda of one of the houses when he fell over a railing and landed on a rock in the yard.

John N. Guenther, submarine base, was arrested Saturday night by Patrolman Louis Wheeler charged with driving while under the influence of liquor and evasion of responsibility. He was locked up, but was released later upon furnishing a surety on his bond of $200 for appearance in the police court Monday. The automobile Guenther was driving attracted the attention of Patrolman Wheeler, especially after the car had collided with two or three parked cars. It was found that Guenther was intoxicated and his arrest resulted.

BOOBE NOT BURGLING THE MATTER WITH SAILOR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 21.—A. R. Devall, submarine base was arrested at 3.10 o'clock this morning charged with breaking and entering. It is believed that the complaint will be amended when he is in court Monday for it was undoubtedly Devall's intoxication that caused him to perpetrate the acts that he is guilty of more than Devall's intention to commit robbery. The police received a telephone call that some one had broken into the Palace restaurant, corner Green and Golden streets. Patrolmen George Labous and Albert Iverson were rushed to the restaurant, which had suspended business at midnight. The officers found the windows of the two doors of the front entrance smashed and peering inside, a man was observed standing in the center of the floor. Patrolman Iverson entered through one of the shattered windows and seized the man, who attempted resistance but who was quickly overpowered and arrested. Nothing was found stolen from the restaurant when the proprietor was notified and made a check-up of the equipment and furnishings.

Mrs. Frank Darling was admitted to Lawrence Memorial hospital this afternoon, where tomorrow she will be operated upon for appendicitis.

STRUCK BY GROTON BUS MYSTIC CHILD DIES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 21.—John India, 2½ year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse India, 6 Bank street, Mystic, was fatally injured Saturday afternoon. The child expired at Home Memorial hospital four hours after he had been struck by one of the buses of the Groton Traction company. The child's injuries consisted of a multiple fracture of the left thigh lacerations of the right leg and shock. The accident was investigated this afternoon by Joseph P. Wadhams and Arthur S. Gates, New Haven, members of the state utility commission, and it will depend on their finding whether the driver of the bus will be charged with manslaughter. The child had been standing in front of his father's place of business and started to run across the street. About the same time the bus, en route from Stonington to New London approached but was coming to a stop at a designated bus stopping place. The child ran in front of the bus and was knocked down the wheel of the bus passing over his left leg. Dr. A. H. Meyers gave the child first aid and then had him removed to the New London hospital, where he expired about 6.30 o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. India formerly resided in New London, where they kept a beauty shop for about two years.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Bread Theatre

At last the perfect type of New York show girl has been discovered and presented for our delectation upon the screen. This is Alice White, who dances into our midst last night at the Breed theatre in the First National picture "Show Girl," made from that clever serial of J. P. McEvoy's which most folk have read in a national weekly.

From the moment that Alice White as "Dixie Dugan" enters the scene in her humble home, to the triumphant moments when she queens it as a Broadway musical comedy favorite, she is to the manner born. The stage lost a real star when Alice elected to cast her lot with the movies.

Alfred Santell, who directed the picture, showed his technical and artistic knowledge to a wonderful degree. Because in the stage scenes, the big chorus rehearsals and the like, there was evidence of entire familiarity with the show business.

Charles Delaney was admirable as the sweetheart of Dixie while Donald Reed, James Finlayson, Kate Price, Gwen Lee, Lee Moran, Richard Tucker and others gave satisfactory performances of their various roles.

I cannot too highly praise the settings, especially those showing the night clubs and the girl show rehearsals. The stage effects were delightful and the number of prett girls really startling.

"Show Girl" is forty-cylinder entertainment—with a peppy star, a clever cast and a story that provides laughs and thrills.

Don't miss it!

Refrigeration is Big Health Factor

The proper preservation of foods today becomes an integral part of the job of preserving health. The scientific cold of electric refrigeration kills the bacteria that spoil the food. It keeps meats wholesome, milk sweet and salads crisp. And, in addition, it changes the marketing from an everyday drudgery to a twice-a-week adventure. Buying, too, becomes much more economical, and precious hours of leisure are granted the busy housewife, states Mr. E. G. Taggart, distributor of General Electric Refrigerators in Norwich.

Early in the twentieth century a French monk designed a refrigeration machine that was hermetically sealed and it is said that some of these machines are still running after twenty-five years of service without having been refilled.

The General Electric Company has developed a hermetically sealed machine and now manufacture it as the "General Electric" Refrigerator. It is refined and simplified and has all the beauty of design made possible by modern cabinet making.

Like the first machines, however the icing unit is hermetically sealed and requires no oiling. It works automatically and is extremely quiet. It has no pipes, drains, belts or fans and it can be installed in a few minutes without any plumbing or wiring. It merely has to be plugged into any convenience outlet—as one would an electric fan or a vacuum cleaner.

Palace Theatre

"Sadie Thompson," Gloria Swanson's second independent United Artists picture, which is the current attraction at the Palace theater, is adapted from one of the most dramatic and most widely discussed stories of modern literature—the short story "Miss Thompson," by W. Somerset Maugham. It was screened under the direction of Raoul Walsh.

This story of "Sadie Thompson's" domination by a tyrannical South Seas reformer, "Alfred Atkinson," who forces her to confess that she is an exile from the underworld of San Francisco and then determines to break her defiant spirit and gain her repentance, is one of the most vital themes in modern literature. "Sadie Thompson" is the sort of screen narrative that is of interest to men and women everywhere because its characters are everyday people, and their personalities are believable. The situation which develops from the reformer "Atkinson's" struggle to choose between his devotion to duty and the call of worldly desires forms a climax of dramatic power.

The picture marks the first screen appearance in eight years of Raoul Walsh who, in addition to directing, plays the role of "Sergeant O'Hara" of the Marines, opposite Miss Swanson. Members of the cast are Lionel Barrymore in the role of "Atkinson"; Blanche Friderici as "Mrs. Atkinson," the role in which she achieved a signal success on the dramatic stage; Charles Lane as "Dr. McPhail," Florence Midgley as "Mrs. McPhail," James A. Marcus as "Joe Horn", the Pago Pago trader, and Will Stanton as "Quartermaster Bates."

In a production season of unusual promise, "Sadie Thompson" was one of the most eagerly anticipated pictures. Within the industry, it has been persistently said that Gloria Swanson was making a picture that would attract unparalleled attention, in comparison, even, with her previous screen triumphs. This unusual advance attention is apparently being sustained by attendance at the presentation of "Sadie Thompson" at the Palace theater. It will continue as the feature offering at the Palace until Tuesday evening.

Another of Anne Nichols' plays has come to the screen!

The famous author of the equally famous "Abie's Irish Rose," which ran for more than five years in New York city, shattering all world records, has contributed another of her sparkling plays to the silversheet.

The new picture is "Just Married," adapted from Miss Nichols' stage farce of the same title. It is now showing at the Palace theatre.

"Just Married" is a rollicking farce with most of its action taking place on board a trans-Atlantic liner. Eight principals figure in the plot and they become enmeshed in a net of complications from which there seems to be no possibility of extricating them. It is without question one of the most amusing films to be shown in many months, and one which, in addition to its humor, has suspense that rivets one's attention on the screen throughout the length of the picture.

Ruth Taylor and James Hall are costarred in "Just Married." Miss Taylor will be remembered for her brilliant performance as Lorelei in "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," while Hall is one of Hollywood's most popular leading men. Others featured are Lila Lee, William Austin, Ivy Harris and Harrison Ford. The picture was directed for Paramount by Frank Strayer.

Broadway Theatre

All those who are interested in high courage, the bravery of unselfish and unheeding youth, the splendour of youthful sacrifice and beauty of human comradeship should go to see "Wings" at the Broadway theatre this week. It is a film setting forth the work of the young knights of the clouds in the war. But it is far more than a film. It is an epic of fearless young manhood, a paean of tribute to the airmen "whose wings are folded forever"—as a beautiful phrase of dedication says,—and it is also an amazing example of what can be achieved in the air. How this picture ever came to be made passes my understanding. It is no combination of trickery and models, but a realistic visualization of real people riding the clouds and triumphing over the dawn.

The story is one of genuine drama, rich with the finest qualities that lie at the basis of the friendships of youth and touched with infinite beauty of romance, which runs through it like a silver thread in a purple pall. For it is also essentially a picture of war, of sacrifice, of stern conflict, of the ultimate test of human endurance and human conquest over fear. Those who have no knowledge of aviation—and they constitute the very great majority of theatergoers as of the general public,—will marvel at the astounding scenes and sights presented upon the screen,—scenes which are amplified by mechanical methods until at times it almost seems as if you were part and parcel of the vivid drama you are beholding. Dramatic effects of sound are produced by means of an electrically operated board in the projection booth, which insures absolute synchronization of sound and scene.

This magnificent screen masterpiece is now being shown to packed houses at the Broadway theatre. You owe it to yourself to see it.

Sophie Braslau

The singing of Sophie Braslau who will appear at the New London state armory Tuesday evening, October 30, evoked the following measure of praise from Eugene Stinson in the Chicago Daily Journal after her concert in that city last winter:

"It is no secret that she possesses the outstanding contralto voice of the generation, that it is a voice of magnificent range, color and volume—an artist, a woman with a profound dramatic sense, a burning style, a sincerity that has been garmented with the many graces to be commanded by an opulent fancy and a quick discriminating appreciation of what exists identically in life and song. She sang superbly."

JEWETT CITY

CROWDS TRY FLYING DURING SATURDAY AND SUNDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Oct. 21—People from every direction came to Roode's plain Saturday and Sunday to see the circus air stunts and to take the passenger flights. Lieut. Robert Kamm, who was in town two years ago, was the aviator who performed thrilling stunts in the air, also who took the passengers on their flights. He, with A. B. Colvin of Danielson, have been at Charleston Beach, R. I., during the summer instructing in aviation and doing passenger service. That Lieut. Kamm is an A-1 aviator no one questioned, after seeing the exhibitions which he gave in the air. Between two and three thousand people visited the field. Automobiles lined the state road with a hundred parked in the field. The days were ideal especially on Sunday and the pilot was kept busy every minute of the afternoon, taking up passengers.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Delima Cartier

The funeral of Mrs. Delima Cartier was held Saturday from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Emma Beaudoin in Voluntown. Solemn requiem mass was sung at St. Thomas' church, with Rev. John D. Carey celebrant, Rev. Ludovic Paradis deacon and Rev. J. J. McCabe sub-deacon. Mrs. Aglae Sarazin was organist and sang Jesu, Salvator Mundi. At the offertory Wilfred Marshall sang Face to Face for the waiting hymn. Burial was in St. Thomas' cemetery, Rev. Fr. Carey reading the committal prayers. The bearers were Edmond, Fortuna, Arthur and Maglain Dayon, Joseph and John Hamel. Relatives and friends were present from Norwich, Moosup, Mystic, Pawtucket, Glasgo, East Douglass, North Oxford, Taftville, Baltic, Providence, Willimantic, Plainfield, Westerly, Woonsocket and Jewett City. Hourigan Bros. were in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Dr. G. H. Jennings gathered two dozen ears of green corn from his garden and they were served for dinner Friday.

The American Legion Post is to meet tonight (Monday) in the Red Cross room. Refreshments will be served and a talk will be given by Rev. J. W. Carter, a World war chaplain.

Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Finn, Mr. and Mrs. John Potter and Mr. and Mrs. John Welch attended the reception given Gov. Ritchie at the Wauregan Friday.

Priscilla Goodenough, fourteen years old daughter of Rev. and Mrs. G. F. Goodenough, is ill with infantile paralysis.

Bernice McNicol celebrated her sixth birthday by giving a party to twenty little friends Saturday afternoon at the camp of her aunt, Mrs. Alex McNicol. The children thoroughly enjoyed the games and the outdoor slide. They were served refreshments, the table being gay with Halloween favors and decorations, the birthday cake occupying a position of honor. The small hostess received many gifts.

VILLAGE LEADS SECTION WITH 1ST BROWN DERBY CLUB

A Brown Derby club has been formed in the village Friday evening. Ten members joined. The meeting was held in the Corn Cob club rooms, on East Main street. Officers elected are: President, Jack Lawler; vice-president, Sam Terry; treasurer, Eugene Malsitt, secretary, E. Cote; steward, George Devore. All members must wear the iron hat at every meeting, also on the streets. The club motto is "We are for Al Smith-in-the coming election." Instead of a button on the coat, it is a brown derby that means a Smith man, the brown iron hat men. One fellow, Billie Scott, saw the members of the club in their brown derbies, marching two by two on Pearl street to East main street and was wondering what it was all about. He soon found out. Being a strong Hoover man, he said, "We will have a new club for Happy Hoover next week." The rules of the club were told to the members by President Lawler, meeting nights will be twice a month. A plum duff supper was served, cooked by Miss D. Card of West View, ending with pumpkin pie with coffee. A social hour followed.

NUGGETS TEAM GROOMING TO CAPTURE CHAMPIONSHIP

The Nuggets basketball-tossers get out their orange and black suits to start the season of 1928, with Coach Roy Abate handling the team. He promised that the village will have a winning team and give the leading teams around this section a run for championship honors. "So look out, Shamrocks of Mystic!" were the words of Coach Abate to his squad at a blackboard talk, Friday afternoon. There is now a big hall to play in, 60x46, plenty of place to give the fans some snappy pass work and team work—Corona hall. Practice will be held twice a week. The season opens the last of November, after the pigskin is put away in moth balls from the gridiron. Ellsu Rathbun, a fast player on the Suffield school team, who was a star guard last year, will be manager, also will be seen at guard. Quick B. Bracci who can turn in many knots on any floor and is a good eye on the hoop, will be at right forward. His running mate, light as a feather on his feet, called Never Fall H. Erbetta, will be shooting them in at left forward. A big fellow, H. Bracci will be jumping center for his team. Battle Axe H. Robertson, who can cease the wind out of any forward and hold him to two baskets will be at right guard. Minute G. Deveau who has more wind than Gene Tunney, is to be at left guard, to stop any forward that has not an auto to get around the floor with. The Nuggets are looking for the best season in the history since the team was formed four years ago. A captain and treasurer will be elected next week.

Frank Brown of Stamford was home over the week-end.

HEN HAWK SWOOPS DOWN ON TRICK HEN DOLLY

Raymond Rathbun, who has a trained hen named Dolly, has the town talking about this pet of the chicken family which can do anything but talk. Dolly rides around in his automobile, comes in the house every morning to have coffee with her trainer and takes a walk around the yard after having breakfast. Friday morning, after Trainer Rathbun went to work, Doll, thought it was a good time to have a stroll around the grounds to get a smell of the good October air. It was 10 o'clock in the morning when a hen hawk was flying over and saw Dolly strolling about. The hawk thought it was a good chance to get his Friday dinner and swooped down on the trick hen, made a quick grab and had Dolly in his claws. The hen put up a hard fight to get free, but it was no use; for the huge bird, the hen thief of the air, was too strong. Coming home from work swinging his dinner box, Master Rathbun, whistling away, reaching the house wanted to see how Dolly was. When Miss Julia Cross told him the sad news, she almost had to get the smelling salts to bring him to. "After I spent almost a year to train that hen all those tricks and was offered $200 for her and turned it down, to have a mean bird come down from the sky and steal my trained pet! Now I will have to train another one in the long winter days coming!"

Daniel Robertson attended the Westerly-Bulkeley football game in New London Friday.

The heavy rain Friday night filled the cisterns. Many cellars were filled, four inches of water being in a cellar on Riverside avenue. Jake Dunn went down to get a pail of coal to bank the kitchen stove for the night, stepped in over his shoes and could not find where the coal was, so he had to let the fire out. It was one of the heaviest rains this season.

GREENEVILLE

A pretty miscellaneous shower was given Friday evening to Mrs. O. H. Berberick at her home, 22 Peck street, with forty guests present, in honor of Miss Zeena Cormier who is to be married to Fred Erlbeck this (Monday) morning. Games, singing and piano playing were enjoyed. The shower was of the rosebud type with rosebuds being very prominent throughout the home. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Berberick, assisted by Mrs. Arthur Berberick, Mrs. Joseph Goodreau and Mrs. William Hassler. At each place at the table were baskets of candy, nuts, assorted wafers and horn favors. Sandwiches, fancy cakes, assorted cookies, ice cream and fruit punch was also served. The dining room was very artistically decorated for the occasion with the color scheme of pink and white being used. The bride-to-be received many beautiful and useful gifts of linens, cut glass, silverware and household utensils. Among the guests present were Miss Laura Savage, Misses Leona and Dora Belanger, Mrs. Michael Kirby, Miss Mary Sullivan of Greeneville, Mrs. James Purdon, Miss Irene Duville, Mrs. William Hassler, Mrs. Lloyd Gelino, Miss Grace Phalen, Mrs. Wilfred Goderre, Miss Mndora Dubois, Miss Alice Phalen, Miss Emma Soielvogel, Miss Isola Blanchard, Miss Hilda Spielvogel, Misses Mary and Viola Sullivan of Taftville, Mrs. William Hassler, Mrs. Arthur Berberick, Mrs. Joseph Goodreau and Mrs. O. GIRLS OF 17 NORWICH CHURCHES MET FOR THEIR 3RD ANNUAL RALLY

Young people of 17 Protestant churches in the city and town participated in the third annual girls' rally held Sunday evening at the Central Baptist church. The rally, which was held under the auspices of the Norwich Council of Girl Workers, opened at 7.30 o'clock with the prelude, A Mighty Fortress, (Faulkes) given by the organist, Miss Louise Fuller. The theme of the rally was "Citizenship" and Miss Margaret Leith presided. The processional number, Lead On, O King Eternal, for which Gladys Kinder was standard bearer, was followed by the roll call by churches with scripture responses. The roll call showed the following churches represented: Central Baptist, Mr. Calvary Baptist, First Baptist, Trinity M. E., Church of the Good Shepherd, Universalist, Taftville Congregational, United Congregational, A. M. E. Zion, Park Congregational, Grace Memorial Baptist, Christ Episcopal, Greeneville Congregational, First Congregational, Norwich Town Methodist and Trinity Episcopal churches.

Following the singing of "Where Cross the Crowded Ways of Life," came the anthem, "Beautiful Land Called Home," by the girls of Christ Episcopal church. The scripture reading was led by Miss Esther Evans, after which prayer was offered by Mrs. Emory H. Davis. The offertory solo, Our Country's Voice Is Pleading, was rendered by Miss Viola Hill. Miss Edna Sandberg gave the report of the Connecticut Council of Religious Education's Summer Assembly at Storrs. Miss Emily Hill gave the report of the Y. P. B. house party at Sharon, Mass., and this was followed by an interesting and instructive paper on "Citizenship" by Miss Emily Bidwell. In her paper Miss Bidwell said, "I am a citizen of America and an heir of all her greatness and renown. The health and happiness of my own body depend upon each muscle and nerve and drop of blood doing its work and in its place. So the health and happiness of my country depend upon each citizen doing his work in his place."

Following Miss Bidwell's paper the congregation sang "O Lord, Our God, Thy Mighty Hand," and then came a pleasing pageant. The New Era, by the following cast of Taftville Congregational church girls:

America, Dorothy Aberg; Progress, Agnes Troeger; New Era, Mary Martin; National Honor, Melba Monty; Patriotism, Gladys Thoma; Education, Mildred Troeger; Community Spirit, Betty Martin; The Spirit of Happiness, Edna Krodel; accompanists, Edith Heap and Marjory McNally.

The salute to the flag and the salute to the Christian flag were followed by the denection by Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the church and the postlude by the organist, Miss Fuller.

MRS. WILLEBRANDT WILL NOT COME TO CONNECTICUT

Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant U. S. attorney general, will not be able to speak in Connecticut during the presidential campaign, according to word received Sunday by The Bulletin from the office of William M. Citron, Middletown, democratic candidate for United States congressman from this district. The following letter was given out Sunday by Mr. Citron's office for publication.

My Dear Mr. Citron:

Your telegram inviting me to speak in Connecticut came some days ago but answer has been delayed owing to my absence from the city. I appreciate your invitation but inasmuch as my speech schedule has already been arranged and the number of speeches I can make is very limited, owing to the large amount of time my official duties take it will not be possible for me to accept.

You refer in your telegram to several matters which you would like to have explained but as I have no information in regard to them I regret that I cannot give you the desired explanation.

I notice you first refer to certain charges which have been made by an attorney by the name of George H. Vraggon. This has not been brought to my attention before, but I can say if his charges relate to the departments refusal to appoint him as assistant U. S. attorney that it is a personal matter and not one within my jurisdiction.

In regard to your inquiry as to what this department has done about the Spiegel brewery in New Haven and its relation to Cong. Tilson, I wish to say we have done nothing because it has never been referred to us for any action. After receiving your telegram we had our files searched and also inquired of the prohibition bureau in regards to this brewery but could find nothing.

We accordingly know nothing about it other than Major Mills' statement in Collier's magazine last year that Congressman Tilson urged him to grant the Spiegel breweries a permit to manufacture cereal beverages and he refused. However it is not strange that this department has no record of the matter for permits are issued by the prohibition bureau of the treasury department and all records as to such requests as well as those of the permit hearings are kept by the field officers.

If you would like to have the record of this matter I suggest that you write to Jonathan S. Lewis, the federal prohibition administrator having charge of these matters in Connecticut.

As to your last inquiry you are advised that the national prohibition act makes all prohibition agents employes of the prohibition bureau of the treasury department, so if any federal prohibition agents have been indicted in Connecticut their suspension or the selection of their successors is a matter for that bureau, and not one which we have any authority to handle.

Very truly yours,

MABEL WALKER WILLEBRANDT

"PAY WHAT THOU OWEST" THEME OF FR. J. F. REILLY

The American habit of yielding to the taste for luxury, thereby incurring debts which one is unable to pay, was sharply rapped by Rev. John J. Reilly, preaching at the 9 o'clock mass Sunday morning in St. Patrick's church to a congregation which filled every seat in auditory and galleries. Justice is as much virtue as purity and charity, Father Reilly reminded his hearers as he developed the text which he had selected from the gospel Matthew 18:23-35, which he had read, the parable of the unjust steward. His thought was the obligation of each to square his accounts with his God, his neighbo and himself.

As an example of the habit which asks what cannot be afforded, he cited the Sunday afternoon parade of automobiles, moving any foreign visitor in this country to inquire in amazement, "Where are they going? From where are they coming?" and, the preacher added, it might be further queried "How can they do it?" This last question he considered from the ethical standpoint—it may be one which many a driver is asking himself. Self - indulgence, dissipation, may be injustice to one's creditors—God, one's neighbor, one's self. Bills must be paid now, or must be squared for in the future.

Father Reilly expressed the hope that no one among his listeners was neglecting to pay that greatest of earthly debts after the debt we owe Christ, the debt to mothers.

To mothers living or mothers dead, the debt of devotion and veneration and tribute should be paid.

The preacher summed up the conditions which would adequately meet the unrest of the present age which leads men into extravagant and unjustified expenditures, the restraint of impulses and appetites and weaknesses which their church admonishes them to control, that in the end they may be fitted to meet the greatest Creditor of all, Christ, on Judgment day.

During Sunday afternoon, from 2 to 6, the reading room at the Otis library was in charge of Miss Lillian M. Cross. The visitors numbered 34.

Nolled on $5 Payment

At the Saturday morning session of the city court the auto violation charge against George E. Turner, No. 223 Prospect street, was nolled, on payment of $5. The charge was failure to grant the right of way and was the result of an accident Friday evening at Washington and Williams streets. His machine figured in a collision with a machine driven by Timothy L. Crouch of R. F. D. No. 1.

TAFTVILLE

Omer Pepin and John Joubert of Fancy Corner have returned after spending a few days in Boston on a business trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Davignon and family of Plainfield have been recent guests of relatives in town. Mr. Davignon who for the past 12 years has been overseer of carding at the Lawton Mills in Plainfield has now left for Montreal where he has accepted a position as assistant superintendent of a large textile manufacturing plant. His family plans to reside in Taftville pending the location and establishment of a home in Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Heselton and children Kendall and Revela of North B street spent the week end in Attawaugan with Mr. Heselton's mother, Mrs. Joseph Heselton.

Basil Horoszko and Miss Stephania Horoszko of South Third avenue spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Patrylo and family of Voluntown.

A letter addressed to John Tomalones, unknown to the postmaster is being held at the local postoffice.

The annual meeting of the Taftville chapter, A. R. C. will be held in Ponemah hall at 8 o'clock, Thursday evening, October 25th.—Adv.

Two Ways to Avoid Sour Stomach

PAMPERING the stomach as you grow older is one way to keep out of trouble! But it's far more pleasant to eat what you choose, and let Pape's Diapepsin keep the stomach free from excess acid. Plenty of people past "three-score-and-ten" keep stomachs young because they know this one secret.

Because it is so quick, so safe and so sure in ending digestive troubles, millions rely on "Pape's Diapepsin." "Pape's Diapepsin" is unequalled as an indigestion remedy and dietary corrective, yet it costs only 60 cents a package at all druggists.

If your stomach ever torments you get "Pape's Diapepsin" at once and recapture the pleasure of care-free, painless digestion. You may have felt that nothing can help your particular difficulty, but so have others to whom this remedy proved a pleasant surprise. This experiment with diapepsin may do as much for you.

GREAT OVATION FOR HOOVER IN MADISON SQUARE GARDEN

Republican Presidential Nominee Was Given a Tumultuous Reception in the Home Town of His Democratic Opponent—Mr. Hoover Was Surprised at the Prolonged Demonstration—Band Broke Into "Over There" and the Voices of Thousands Sang the Words—Then a Yell of "We Want Hoover" Swept Over the Garden.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22—(AP)—In the face of the greatest demonstration he has received during the campaign, Herbert Hoover tonight delivered his final campaign speech in the west on the home soil of his opponent for the presidency.

A cheering, flag-waving demonstration broke out in Madison Square Garden when the republican presidential nominee appeared on the platform after a quick trip from his hotel. For minutes after minutes the cheers continued while the nominee stood waiting for the din to subside.

As it continued, he moved from one side of the platform to another and then stood while the thousands yelled and waved flags and bands played. Police whistles shrilled above the tumults but instead of quieting, it seemed to grow louder and then died of its own accord as the band broke into "Over There," a war song, and the voices of the thousands sang the words.

Just as quiet was settling over the hall, the band played the music again and the crowd sang a parody, "Hoover There".

More cheers broke out at the conclusion, and a yell, patterned after college demonstrations, "We Want Hoover" swept over the structure.

Again the hall quieted and a cheer leader on the platform suggested "three cheers for Herbert Hoover". They were given with vigor and others broke out at the conclusion, while the noise continued.

Then, as the tumult again died away, a band broke into "Dixie," turning from that into a medley of southern songs and again into music of the war period with "Tipperary". As the band continued playing, group cheering broke out in a section to the left of the speaker's platform.

Demonstration Lasted 20 Minutes

Twenty minutes after he had entered the garden, the demonstration still was going strong. As the band ceased playing, intermittent yells came from the galleries and then a second band struck up. As the demonstration continued, Hoover took his seat behind Vice-President Dawes and as it went beyond the quarter of the hour, the two began conversing.

The music again ended and there was a tinkle of cowbells from far up among the rafters. These were followed by cries of "Hoover, Hoover." Then the band began playing "There's a Long, Long Trail A-Winding," and the crowd sang the words, tingling their cowbells again as the tune ended. As Major General James G. Harbord, retired, who presided in the absence of Elihu Root, rapped for order another cheer swept over the hall, but the general broke through the applause to announce that the assemblage was to honor Vice President Charles G. Dawes and Herbert Hoover. Again the throng burst into cheers. As the applause died away, Harbord said:

"This is the last time that you will have an opportunity to see Herbert Hoover as a private citizen."

This brought another din of cheering and developed for the first time a horn blowing from the gallery to the right of the speaker's stand.

Harbord introduced James R. Sheffield, former ambassador to Mexico as the presiding officer.

"This is New York's greeting to the next president of the United States," Sheffield said.

"From his experience Herbert Hoover knows that the golden west also has a place on the sidewalks of New York."

There was another burst of applause from the crowd which was renewed when Sheffield referred to Mrs. Hoover, as the ovation for the wife of the republican nominee continued, Mrs. Hoover arose and bowed. The audience stood up with her and increased the vigor of its cheering.

Dawes the First Speaker

Sheffield presented Dawes as the first speaker and again the crowd was on its feet cheering while the band played "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight".

There were cries of louder as he began his speech, but they were silenced as he swung into his prepared text.

The maintenance of prosperity, the vice president argued, was the predominating issue of the campaign. He declared that the maintenance of prosperity depended upon the maintenance of confidence and that a change in administration would mean confusion and change in governmental programs and policies which would mean the passing of confidence and consequently prosperity.

Dawes brought a wave of applause when he asserted that the average voter would cast his ballot upon what was the real issue in his mind irrespective of "the collateral discussion upon prohibition."

"Again," he said, "the democratic party for decades has been the continuing and bitter opponent of the protective tariff which has been firmly established as a national policy by the republican party and under which we have achieved our unparalleled national prosperity."

This evoked more applause. As the vice president concluded with a reference to President Coolidge, the crowd broke into applause which proved, however, only a forerunner of a tumultuous ovation which Hoover received as he was introduced by Sheffield.

Greeting for Hoover

The nominee stood before the microphones fingering his manuscript as more than 12,000 spectators stood cheering and waving American flags. The applause echoed and re-echoed through the vast arena and there was a shower of paper from the upper galleries—the typical New York greeting to those it welcomes. As the demonstration passed the ten minute period, Mrs. Hoover, who had arisen at its start, took her seat. The candidate stood looking first to the right and then to the left. Then he held out his hands in an effort to stem the waves of applause. But his efforts seemed only to inspire the crowd to new enthusiasm.

Paper continued to flutter down from the galleries. Another band played a bar of music. A searchlight played down upon the speaker, who again and again tried to begin his speech as evidenced by the movements of his lips but his words were lost in the deafening cheers that swept alike from galleries, balconies and the floor.

Again Hoover's efforts to still the tumult with a wide sweep of his arms failed and Sheffield pounded vigorously for order. The noise died away and the candidate began his speech.

"No man could fail to be moved by the warmth of the welcome I have received in the home of my distinguished opponent," he said, amid a new burst of applause.

After the cheers this pronouncement had died away, the republican standard bearer laid before the neighbors of Governor Alfred E. Smith, a contention that the opposition party had brought into the campaign proposals on farm relief, prohibition and electrical power which constituted an abandonment of the tenets of the democrats in favor of "state socialism."

Striking out at the opposition more vigorously than at any other time during the campaign, Hoover said that it was proposed that the country change from prohibition to the state purchase and sale of liquor; that the government should directly or indirectly buy and sell and fix prices of agricultural products and go into the hydro-electrical power business.

Opposing what he described as a huge program of the government in business, Hoover declared that the working out of this program would destroy political equality and would increase rather than decrease abuse and corruption.

"It would stifle initiative and invention," he said amid a burst of applause. "It would undermine the development and leadership. It would cramp and cripple the spiritual energies of our people. It would extinguish equality in opportunity. It would dry up the spirit of liberty and progress."

(Text of Mr. Hoover's Speech Printed on Page Eight).

As the nominee brought his speech to an end the crowd arose and applauded vigorously with flags waving. After a few minutes, bands at either end of the hall played "The Star Spangled Banner" and Herbert Hoover's campaigning in the east was over.

From the garden the nominee drove to his hotel and later boarded his train for Washington where he was due tomorrow morning.

HOOVER WARNS REP. LEADERS AGAINST OVER-CONFIDENCE

NEW YORK, Oct. 22—(AP)—With repeated expressions of confidence in his election on Nov. 6, Herbert Hoover tonight unlimbered his guns in the camp of the opposition for the final blast of his campaign in the east in a speech at Madison Square Garden.

Twice during the strenuous day that preceded his appearance at the Garden, the republican nominee gave voice to his firm belief that over-confidence alone could bar a republican victory at the polls. The first came at a press conference where he departed from his customary procedure and permitted his remarks to be quoted.

Shortly afterward in a talk to national and New York state republican workers, the nominee made his second declaration of confidence, coupled with a reminder that the duty of these leaders was to see that every republican voter reached the polls and that the ballot was honestly conducted.

"We have not in a quarter of a century witnessed such unity within our own ranks as we see this day throughout the whole land," he said. "I have but one reservation upon the conclusion of this election—that is that we may in our over-confidence relax our efforts before every ballot is delivered into the box.

"To see that our people are instructed as to the vital issues of the campaign; to see that every republican voter reaches the polls, that the ballot is honestly conducted—that is your responsibility, and a great responsibility, it is party organization."

ONE YEAR IN JAIL AND $500 FINE FOR SEELEY

NEW YORK, Oct 22.—(AP)—Frederick B. Seeley, former Queens sewer design engineer who was convicted last week with former Queens borough president, Maurice E. Connolly, of conspiracy to defraud the city through sewer contracts, was sentenced today by Supreme Court Justice Tompkins to one year in prison and fined $500. It was the maximum penalty.

A similar sentence was imposed by Justice Tompkins on Connolly immediately after the jury returned its verdict, pending an appeal Connolly was admitted to bail last Saturday after he had started serving his sentence.

Emory R. Buckner the special prosecutor consented to bail for Seeley also pending appeal.

SEVERAL THOUSAND WOMEN GREETED MRS HOOVER

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Mrs. Herbert Hoover devoted a busy day here today to greeting several thousand women, prominent in political, social and scientific fields, and the women leaders of her husband's New York campaign declared her visit had inspired renewed enthusiasm and determination.

"Her visit has enthused us, and enthusiasm is vital in a campaign," said Mrs. Helen Varick Boswell, state vice chairman affectionately known here as the "grandmother of the women's republican club."

Six Convictions In Federal "Dry Case"

Guilty of Conspiracy to Violate the Prohibition Law—Woonsocket, R. I., Distillery Trial.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 22—(AP)—Six of eight defendants who have been on trial here in United States district court for alleged implication in the operation of the gigantic alcohol plant in Woonsocket, during the latter part of 1927, were found guilty late today of having conspired to violate the national prohibition act.

Those found guilty are: Former State Representative and former Dry Agent Joseph E. Kelly, and Frank C. Leary, a textile man, both of Woonsocket; Ralph H. Blakeslee, alias Borson, former chief of the Connecticut dry forces, former Prohibition Agent J. Edward Sabine, and George Sabine, all of North Haven, Conn., and Joe Soroka, alias John Smith, of Hamden, Conn.

Wilfred Daignault of Woonsocket, who drove the truck which carried the molasses later converted into alcohol to the distillery, and Dennis Walsh, also of Woonsocket, were found not guilty. The jury reported to Judge Ira Lloyd Letts after deliberations of three hours and 58 minutes.

The men convicted will be sentenced on Nov. 2.

The distillery which was the object of the conspiracy, was said to be one of the largest ever uncovered by dry agents and occupied the entire rear of a textile mill in Woonsocket. The defendant, Leary, maintained as his defense that he was preparing to set up a silk weaving plant in the front room of the mill.

TO REAP HIGH REWARD FOR HIS INVENTION

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 22.—(AP)—An old time "desert rat," George Campbell Carson, after years of litigation with copper companies over a patent used against the Anaconda Copper company a reward from his invention, his attorneys said today.

Refusal of the United States supreme court to review the decision of the ninth circuit court of appeals in Carson's patent infringement case infringements, however, as he was too means, his attorney said, the one-time prospector and inventor is in a position to collect approximately $20,000,000 from the Anaconda and various other companies.

The invention claimed by Carson is said to be used almost universally in the copper producing industry in this country.

Carson will not receive all the money expected to be recovered for the infringements, however, as he was too poor to finance the litigation and assigned his rights to the Carson Investment company in which a group of San Francisco capitalists are interested. However he is a stockholder with the result that he will have a good share of the potential millions.

Attorneys for the inventor declared that Carson, who is 60 years old, would very soon be a "multi-millionaire."

CHICAGO HONORED CREW OF THE GRAF ZEPPELIN

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Undismayed by a downpour of rain, Chicago honored the commander and the crew of the Graf Zeppelin today and in return was assured a view of the giant air-liner as it makes a trip through the midwest later this week.

Dr. Hugo Eckener commander of the trans-oceanic airship, said his plans for the flight from Lakehurst, N. J., though the west were not yet definite, depending somewhat upon weather conditions. While he had originally planned to leave Lakehurst Thursday morning, he said today he perhaps would start Wednesday night so that Cleveland could be reached early the next morning.

The commander said he believed the better route for him to take would be from Lakehurst to Cleveland, thence to Detroit and on to Chicago. St. Louis provided a southwest wind was blowing.

Commenting on the return trip to Germany, Dr. Eckener said he had been besieged with requests for passage. The fare will be $2,000, he indicated, but described that as a "fancy price." When regular service is started, he said, fares probably would be $1,000 or $1,200.

GOV. SMITH WILL BE IN HARTFORD TWO HOURS

HARTFORD, Oct. 22—(AP)—Gov. Alfred E. Smith, of New York, democratic candidate for president, will be accorded a reception seldom given to a guest of the city, on his arrival here Thursday afternoon, according to plans formulated today by the reception committee. A parade through the city and an ovation by thousands of school children on the grounds of the state armory will feature the demonstration.

Governor Smith will arrive here from Providence at 4 o'clock, National Committeeman Thomas J. Spellacy announced. He will remain in Hartford for two hours, following which he will leave for short stops in Waterbury, Ansonia and Derby, New Haven, Bridgeport and South Norwalk, thus bringing to an end his first and only visit to Connecticut during the campaign.

$600,000,000 RADIO-KEITH-ALBEE COMBINATION

NEW YORK, Oct. 22—(AP)—Negotiations for an association of interests of the Radio Corporation of America with the Keith-Albee-Orpheum circuit and Film Booking Office Productions, Inc., were consummated today, subject to approval of stockholders.

A new corporation, to be known as the Radio-Keith-Orpheum corporation, is to be organized and Keith-Albee-Orpheum and F. B. O. stockholders will be permitted to exchange their holdings for new Class A stock. Radio is to receive Class B stock in exchange for its rights to Phonofilm, the corporation's sound-film device.

The combination involves corporations with capital aggregating $600,000,000.

Dry Agent Shot In Chicago Court Room

Assailant Escaped—Mystery Surrounds Shooting—Court Room Thrown Into Uproar.

CHICAGO, Oct. 22—(AP)—Waiting to testify as a government witness in a liquor case, Thomas Ryan, federal prohibition agent, was shot and seriously wounded today in the courtroom of a United States commissioner in the federal building.

Authorities were baffled by the shooting, which took place in the presence of a courtroom crowded, while Ryan was standing to be sworn as the next witness. No one reported seeing the assailant, no smoke followed the pistol shot and no one was noticed leaving the courtroom after the shooting.

Ryan collapsed. The bullet pierced his abdomen and lodged in his back. He had no weapon of his own and pistols carried by three other federal agents standing near Ryan had not been fired.

From the nature of the wound, doctors said it appeared Ryan had been shot by someone standing on his left, but Ryan could recall no one in that position.

The federal agent was waiting to testify against Nick Beninstercoer, whose soft drink parlor was raided two weeks ago. In the raid, Sylvan Colombo was said to have been shot by a city policeman.

SMITH'S MASSACHUSETTS PROGRAM MAPPED OUT

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 22.—(AP)—A full program has been mapped out by Gov. Smith for a one-day invasion of Massachusetts in an attempt to capture for the democratic cause the 18 electoral votes which the Bay state usually chalks up in the republican column each four years.

The democratic nominee said here today he would leave here at 10 a. m. Wednesday morning for Boston where he is due at 3.30 at South station. He will step from his special train into waiting automobiles to be whisked away for an hour's parade through the streets of the city.

That night the nominee will speak at 9 p. m. in the Arena which he said has a seating capacity of 13000. He added he had been advised that loud speakers also would be installed in Mechanics hall and Symphony hall to enable an expected overflow audience to listen in. His headquarters while he is in that city will be at the Hotel Statler.

On his way to Boston the nominee will make ten-minute stops at Springfield and Worcester. He said his itinerary after leaving Boston had not been arranged definitely but it is possible he may stop off in Providence and a Connecticut city for parades.

The governor said he was not prepared to announce the subject of his Boston address but several days ago he indicated he might talk on the subject of labor.

EXTORTIONISTS AGAIN AT WORK IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Oct. 22—(AP)—Extortionists again became objects of a police search today when Romolo Pisani reported his wife, Elsie, 45, had been kidnaped and was being held for $5,000 ransom.

Mrs. Pisani telephoned her husband late today, saying:

"I have been kidnaped. Two men will call at the store at 5 o'clock for $5,000."

Before Pisani could answer, the connection was severed. He notified police and detectives were sent to Pisani's grocery store to await the kidnapers, who failed to appear.

Mrs. Pisani had left home to attend a woman's club meeting.

Pisani told police that last Thursday his wife had received a letter warning her that if she did not pay the extortionists $1,000, the marriage of her daughter would not take place. The Pisanis' daughter is soon to be married. Police surrounded the place where the $1,000 was to be left, but no one appeared.

The following day, Pisani said, two men stopped his wife on the street.

"You think you're smart, having two detectives over there, don't you?" one of the men said to Mrs. Pisani.

Maloney, chairman of the democratic town committee, has written to William Rettenmeyer, chairman of the local republican town committee, suggesting that a joint republican and democrat rally be held on that night, at which the two candidates might debate the issues of the campaign.

BRITAIN MAKES PUBLIC THE ANGLO-FRENCH NAVAL PACT

Lord Cushendon, Acting Foreign Minister, Explains That the Only Reason for Withholding Publication of the Papers Was the Fear of Embarrassing Other Governments—The Agreement Shows That Great Britain Gave Reluctant Recognition to the French Views of Army Reserves as the Price of Attaining a Naval Agreement.

LONDON, Oct. 22—(AP)—A full history of the inception and negotiation of the naval compromise between France and Great Britain, which has been the object of so much contention, suspicion and conjecture, has at last been published by the British foreign office.

The fact that the government has so long and persistently withheld the matter from public cognizance in the face of strong press demands for publication, led to all kinds of reports of secret clauses. These reports appear to have had little basis beyond the fact that the British government has given reluctant recognition of the French views with regard to army reserves as the price of attaining a naval agreement.

Lord Cushendun, acting foreign minister, in the absence of Sir Austen Chamberlain, explains that the only reason of withholding publication of the papers was the fear of embarrassing other governments by what might have seemed an attempt to force their hand.

The publication of the papers at this juncture is regarded by the press and the public as having historic rather than immediate importance, as the terms of the agreement are being opposed by the United States and Italy and the compromise is considered as already dead.

The text of the agreement follows:

"Limitations which the disarmament conference will have to determine will deal with four classes of warships:

"(1) Capital ships, that is, ships of over 10,000 tons or with guns of more than 8-inch calibre.

"(2) Aircraft carriers of over 10,000 tons.

"(3) Surface vessels of or below 10,000 tons armed with guns of more than 6-inch and up to 8-inch calibre.

"(4) Ocean-going submarines, that is, over 600 tons.

"The Washington treaty regulates limitations in classes one and two and the disarmament conference will only have to consider the method of extending these limitations to powers non-signatory to this treaty.

"As regards classes three and four the final disarmament conference will fix a maximum tonnage applicable to all powers, which no power will be allowed to exceed for the total of vessels in each of these respective categories during the period covered by the convention. Within this maximum limit each power will at the final conference indicate for each of these categories the tonnage they propose to reach, and which they undertake not to exceed during the period covered by the convention."

The compromise, or agreement itself, is quite a brief document, but the White Paper consists of 45 pages, starting with a large number of extracts of speeches delivered at the meetings of the preparatory commission on disarmament by the statesmen of different nationalities, leading up to the break between the British and French governments and the opening of new pourparlers last March in an effort to arrive at some sort of a compromise.

The different standpoints of the two governments on the question of land armaments come to the front in the record of a conversation between M. Briand and Sir Austen Chamberlain on March 9, 1928, in the course of a discussion about the coming meeting of the preparatory commission. Here Sir Austen expressed regret that on two crucial military and naval questions the French and British were diametrically opposed.

British public opinion, said Sir Austen, with its traditions, believed that voluntary armies were defensive and that conscript armies implied offensive war, whereas he was fully aware that to the French mind compulsory military service seemed a guarantee of pacific policy, and a voluntary army appeared in the dangerous light of a Praetorian guard.

The British foreign secretary then acquainted M. Briand with the modified proposals for naval limitation drafted by the British admiralty, and added that public opinion realized that concessions were necessary from all parties in order to arrive at a general settlement.

"If we could point to a concession by the French in naval matters," he said, "it would probably acquiesce in my yielding a point on the military side. On the other hand, we could not abandon the British standpoint on the question of army reserves unless we could justify this concession by pointing to a similar concession made to us in the naval sphere."

M. Briand undertook to submit the matter thus suggested to his government. After an exchange of further talks and dispatches, the British Admiral Kelly early in June at Geneva received the French proposals suggestin classification of four classes, namely, capital ships, aircraft carriers, surface vessels of 10,000 tons, mounting bigger than 6-inch guns, and submarines. This was the first appearance of the proposals which eventually formed the basis of the Anglo-French agreement.

ARREST MAY LEAD TO SOLUTION OF MURDER

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 22—(AP)—The arrest in Atlanta, Ga., today of Harvey Smith, erstwhile private detective, roving evangelist and carnival worker, authorities here said, may bring a solution of the mysterious slaying of Mrs. Genevieve Stultz, whose bones were found in a shallow grave near Elkhart last Monday.

Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reyher of South Bend are charged with the murder of the woman. The Reyhers are being held without bond in the Elkhart county jail at Goshen.

Mrs. Reyher, who was arrested shortly after the finding of the body, told police she had paid Smith $50 to "get Mrs. Stultz out of town." Smith had been employed by Mrs. Reyher, she said, to shadow her husband.

"I'm glad Smith is caught," said Reyher, a real estate man, when informed of the arrest of the private detective. "Now the police will be able to solve the murder and clear me. I know Smith only by sight. He shadowed me for a while in South Bend on my wife's orders."

Mrs. Reyher, in another cell at the jail, declined to comment on Smith's arrest.

300 DIAMONDS RECOVERED FROM RUINS OF PLANE

FRANKLIN, Pa., Oct. 22.—(AP)—More than 300 diamonds worth about $50,000, have been recovered from the charred ruins of the plane in which Air Mail Pilot William Hopson crashed to his death near Polk last week, William Tafel, a post office inspector said today.

Many of the gems were dug from the debris by souvenir hunters who flocked to the scene after the wrecked plane had been abandoned.

When Tafel learned the situation he hurried to Polk, compiled a list of names of persons who found the stones and arranged for their return.

The diamonds were part of Hopson's mail cargo.

TO PATROL MINE WHERE UNION PICKET WAS SLAIN

SCRANTON, Pa., Oct 22.—(AP)—Superintendent of Police James Henshaw announced tonight that 12 patrolmen will be placed on patrol duty tomorrow morning at the Diamond mine of the Glen Alden Coal company, where Steve Papinchak, 23, of Aswell court, a union picket, was slain this morning by John Parker, 44 Negro. There has been a strike at the colliery since last Friday.

Parker was arrested at the home of another Negro this afternoon by Superintendent Henshaw. He admitted that he shot Papinchak when the latter and several companions attacked him while on his way to work.

"From my point of view," he said, "there is no other position for progressives to take."

REPORTS CHRISTIAN HEALING EFFICACIOUS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22—(AP)—The general convention of the Protestant Episcopal church today heard a report from a joint commission of bishops and deputies which declared that "Christian healing has passed beyond the stage of experiment and its value cannot be questioned." It was placed on the calendar for early consideration.

The report, signed by the Right Rev. Theodore I. Reese, bishop of southern Ohio, and chairman of the committee, was read by H. O. Wyckhoff, lay deputy of Watsonville, Calif. Other signers included three physicians, Dr. Howard Johnson, of San Francisco; Dr. Charles H. Mayo, Rochester, Minn., and Dr. W. Sinclair Bowen, of Washington, D. C.

Three conclusions were drawn by the commission after six years of study, and the report asked the general convention to "thankfully recognize the deepening of the spiritual life of the church which has come through the growing recognition of the healing power of God."

The conclusions were "that throughout the world spiritual healing no longer is the hope of a few but the belief and practice of a large and rapidly increasing number of persons.

"That such healing is an experience of mankind that can no longer be questioned.

"That while faith in any supposed remedy produces some effect, vital faith in God, as revealed in Christ, is followed by results which are more sure, more lasting and of a more evidently spiritual character."

The conviction was stated that all faith healing should be carried on in close co-operation with medical science and practice.

BANK ACCOUNTS DISCLOSE BOOTLEGGING PROFITABLE

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Fifteen bank accounts, believed by District Attorney Monaghan to have been opened by bootleggers in which deposits aggregating more than $10,000,000 were made within a year, have been uncovered by the prosecutor.

In making this announcement tonight Mr. Monaghan who is directing the grand jury investigation of rum runners and police bribery, said that all the accounts had been in the Union Bank and Trust company and that all but one had been closed on prior to 1928.

"We are endeavoring to learn," the district attorney said, "whether there is any police connection with any of these bank accounts which we believe were opened by bootleggers and other law violators."

SIXTEEN CASES BEFORE LOCAL POLICE COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 23—In the disposal of 16 cases, all of minor nature, at the session of police court this morning near $200 in fines and costs was added to the court coffers. Some of this money is to be received on the "installment plan", there being an apparent shortage of ready cash in the court room this morning. The case of Peter Nault, 40, and single, of this city, charged with intoxication and attempt to rape on Irene Desaulniers, 14, daughter of Mrs. Hector Gelinas of 86 Ives street by a previous marriage, was heard behind closed doors. For lack of evidence, the accused was found not guilty of the attempted crime but was fined $10 and costs for intoxication. Nault had pleaded guilty to intoxication but not to attempt to rape. Mrs. Josephine Gelinas, the mother, Irene Desaulniers and Hector Gelinas, the step-father of the girl testified for the state. A Taftville girl and a Westerly young man were each fined $20 and costs on charges of breach of the peace to which they pleaded guilty through their guardian ad litem, Probation Officer William V. Palmer. Nolles without costs were entered in two other cases of breach of the peace involving young men, and disposal was made of ten cases of intoxication. In the case of Andrew Spellman of Danielson, charged with driving a car without a tail light and with swinging registration markers, the first count was nolled and a fine of $2 and costs imposed on the second. Another continuance, this time to Tuesday morning, was granted in the case of Nathan Rubin charged with a motor vehicle violation in connection with the recent state police campaign.

WEDDING
Lynch-Hinds

Miss Mary Louise Hinds, daughter of Peter J. Hinds of Westfield, N. J., former superintendent of the American Thread company plant here became the bride of Frank E. Lynch, son of Mrs. J. Mara Lynch of South Coventry at a quiet wedding at the Holy Trinity church in Westfield Saturday morning. The single ring service was used and the bride was given in marriage by her father. Miss Mildred Lynch, of Holyoke, Mass., was maid of honor and Frank McQuillan of this city was best man. The wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Lynch, who are now on a wedding tour, will make their home with the groom's mother in South Coventry for the present and will later take a residence in this city. The groom is proprietor of the New York Lunch and a popular local young man. The bride was a well known member of the young set during her residence here.

Anson J. Olds, veteran carrier, who has been with the local postoffice for 26 years and for six years previously was postmaster in Waveland, Fla., was presented with a purse of gold at a testimonial dinner given in his honor at the Liberty Hill Congregational church Saturday night by the service relations council of the local post office. Some 20 members of the council, including Postmaster Frank M. Smith, Assistant Postmaster Daniel A. Sullivan and carriers and clerks, were in attendance. Each paid tribute to Mr. Olds' enviable service record. Carrier Clarence C. Palmer recited Jim Bludsoe. Mr. Olds was elected as an honorary member of the council. He became connected with the postal service in 1892 when he was appointed fourth class postmaster at Waveland, Fla. In 1898 he came to this city and entered the employ of the Windham Silk company, being appointed as a substitute carrier at the post office on January 1, 1902 and a regular carrier in 1905. Upon his retirement on October 31 he will carry with him the well wishes of hosts of friends whom he has served so faithfully during the past quarter of a century. The executive committee of the service relations committee is composed of Daniel A. Sullivan, chairman; Dennis F. Hagerty, vice chairman; Maurice M. King, secretary-treasurer; Harry N. Moseley, Edward A. Eagan, William M. Cummings and George K. Allen.

Harrison F. Topliff, formerly of this city and Fall River, Mass., and now of Pottersville, Mass., has been named superintendent of the dyeing, mercerising and bleaching departments of the Kerr Mills, a sub-division of the American Thread company in Fall River. Mr. Topliff succeeds to Frank L. Noble who has retired after 37 years of service.

The funeral of Francis H. Raymond was held at 2 o'clock this afternoon with services in the late home in Hebron, conducted by Rev. J. W. Deeter of Gilead. Burial was in St. Peter's cemetery, Hebron. The bearers were: William Raymond, Loren M. Lord, Everett G. Lord, Clifford Robinson, Dr. C. E. Pendleton and Charles Worswick. Arrangements were in charge of Avery and VanZandt.

Word comes in from towns surrounding Windham that substantial increases have been made in the voting lists for the coming national and state elections. Industrious workers have been "rounding-up" new voters. Mansfield reports making 254 new voters for the campaign making the total list at present, 1,287. There were new voters made in Columbia during the past two months while in Scotland 28 were made, making the present voting list of that town 175. The Chaplin list has been increased to 207, although last Saturday all of the 12 persons scheduled to be made failed to appear before the board.

The Strand theatre property on Broad street has been sold by Peter Fedorko of East Hartford to Myron W. Sperry of Hartford, it was announced today. Mr. Fedorko and Michael Piskor, also of East Hartford, purchased the property from Alfred Oden and Herbert R. Gillette on September 3, 1926. The management of the theatre was later taken over by Mr. Fedorko Herbert L. Tifft who has ben active manager of the playhouse for some years will continue in that capacity.

Daniel A. LARGE NUMBER ATTEND REPUBLICAN DINNER

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 22—A dinner to about 150 Windham county republicans was tendered at the Nathan Hale hotel tonight under arrangement of the Windham County Republican Women's association, the dinner being the second of a series held by the association the first of which was successfully staged at Putnam two weeks ago. Nearly every town in the county was represented and the guests were given cover favors of small spools of silk thread presented by the Holland Manufacturing company of this city attractively fastened to Hoover pins. The welcoming remarks were made by Mrs. May Gallup Noyes, president of the association who also told of the origin and purpose of the organization. Mrs. Noyes introduced as the first speaker George H. Cohen of Hartford, assistant United States district attorney. Mr. Cohen in attacking the democratic party said that the issues of that party were changed so rapidly and frequently that it was difficult to determine just what their stand was. He said in part "To the citizens of Connecticut the real issue of the campaign is the protective tariff, which is as important to every Connecticut home as it is to every manufacturer." He explained the necessity of keeping the republican tariff in operation and advanced the belief that the high standard of wages will permit the continuance of the American standard of living enjoyed by the people of the United States today. In conclusion he said "If there is any doubt about this country enjoying prosperity, compare the standard of living of this nation with that of any other country in the world."

The second speaker of the evening was Rev. John S. Bauchman of Rockville, who extolled the great human and business qualities of Herbert Hoover. Referring to the presidential candidate as the great humanitarian of the world he said that Hoover's many experiences, ability and world wide vision make him the logical candidate for president. The reception committee for the dinner was headed by Mrs. Otto B. Robinson, chairman, and Mrs. Arthur L. Clark, vice chairman. Mrs. Grace M. Bliss was chairman of the ticket committee.

CITY MEETING CUTS DOWN APPROPRIATIONS BY $36,700

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 22—Over 600 people in a special city meeting held tonight cut down a total of $46,900 requested appropriations to $8,200 in a wholesale negative vote made verbally. The appropriations granted were $200 additional for maintenance of sewers, $4,000 additional for sidewalk construction and $4,000 for street lighting in a decisive vote the meeting turned down a series of resolutions involving appropriations amounting to $20,000 for the purchase of the former Lincoln and Boss lumber yard to be used as a comfort station and parking place. The purchase price of the yard was $12,500 and the remainder of the appropriations being for the remodification of the yard. The meeting voted down an appropriation of $900 for police court and when a request was made by Corporation Counsel William A. King, that the vote be reconsidered inasmuch as the money was necessary no action was taken. Another defeated appropriation was one of $1,700 for the contingent fund. It was explained in this case that there was just enough money in the contingent fund to pay off special auditors who had been going over the city books. This appropriation was lost by a count of 73 to 175. The appropriation for sidewalk construction for the remainder of the year as originally presented was for $8,000 on motion of M. E. Lincoln was amended to $4,000, which was granted. Without any hesitancy the meeting voted down the $4,000 appropriation for city lighting, but when Mayor Charles A. Gates and the corporation counsel stated that unless the money was received the street lights would have to be turned out and the city left in darkness a motion was made to reconsider and the appropriation was then granted by a subsequent vote. In regard to the police court appropriation city officials stated after the meeting that the amount necessary for business during the ensuing quarter would have to be taken from the treasury. Mayor Charles A. Gates presided at the meeting and the warning was read by Arthur L. Clark.

Council Holds Session

Following the city meeting a special session of the common council was held to ratify the appropriations made. The hearing was also granted during the session to property owners along that section of Oak street from Summit to Ashland avenue, which has been proposed as a city street.

About 200 local and out-of-town people attended a democratic rally and banquet at the Jaffee hotel on North Main street, Saturday evening. Speakers during the evening were: Ames W. Sisson, Hebron, Wm. Citron, of Middletown, Professor Snow of Wesleyan university and Frank P. Fenton of Willimantic, the democratic candidate for lieutenant-governor.

F. O. Brown and men unloaded several car-loads of dairy cows at the station, Monday.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

BRESSAN-CAMPO WEDDING AT ST. EDWARD'S RECTORY

(Special to The Bulletin)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, Oct. 22—Miss Laura Campo, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Campo of West Main street, and Joseph Bressan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Bressan of Gold street, were united in marriage Monday morning at 8:30 at the rectory of St. Edward's church, by Rev. Felix J. O'Neill. Miss Lola Fontanella, a cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid and Orlando Bressan, brother of the groom, was best man. The bride's gown was of brown georgette. She wore a velvet hat of the same color. The bridesmaid's dress was of blue georgette and she wore a hat to match. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents on West Main street and later in the day Mr. and Mrs. Bressan left on a wedding trip to New York and Rhode Island. Upon their return they will make their home on Gold street.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Taylor of Springfield were recent visitors with local relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Cox of Hartford spent the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Hayes.

Miss Maude Cummiskey of Springfield has been at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Cummiskey, in Forestville.

Miss Mary Arnold of Storrs college spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin R. Arnold.

Mrs. CharlesIlligan of Springfield was a week-end visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Mulline.

Mrs. M. D. O'Connell and daughter, Pauline, are spending several days with relatives in Willimantic.

Frank H. Plumb has completed the enumeration of school children in the town of Stafford. According to his return, made to the town school committee, there were 1,481 children between 4 and 16 years residing in Stafford on the first Monday of September, 1928. This is a gain of 16 over the enumeration of last year.

Miss Anna M. Palshaw and Georgia Hamilton spent the week-end with Hartford friends.

John Hopkins of Palmer, Mass., visited relatives in town over the week-end.

Harrison B. Mosley of Northeastern university, Boston, was at his home in Stafford recently.

COLUMBIA

KILLED PROTECTING GIRL—HUTCHINS DIED A HERO

(Special to The Bulletin)

COLUMBIA, Conn., Oct. 21—The local postmaster, has received a letter from R. F. Gibbs, formerly of Hartford, now an insurance agent in Flint, Mich., in which he expresses a desire to assure the people of Columbia that Lawrence Hutchins, who was killed in Flint last week, had proven himself "a real Christian fellow, and he died asserting his God-given manhood—a hero." Mr. Gibbs enclosed a clipping in regard to the funeral service held in Flint, from which the following is an excerpt:

"On a flower banked bier nearby lay the cold form of a 20 year old boy whose eyes filmed in death, had marked in life, no stain on the lily-white robe of womanhood.

There lay Lawrence Hutchins, gentleman, who had gallantly offered his most precious possession upon the altar of his ideals.

Ann Loviska, 13 year old waitress, mourned for the tall fair-haired stranger who gave his life Tuesday night to protect her from the unwelcome advances of Sammy Raskin, a Durant hotel bell-hop.

Friends filled the chapel and bared their heads respectfully in the streets outside, as the notes of the chimes died and the voice of Rev. James W Hallwood of the First Congregational church, was lifted in prayer.

The prayer ended. From a room upstairs drifted a sad, sweet refrain. Miss Jean Medlyn, former director of Kearsley M. E. church was singing "On a Faraway Strand."

Then the singer's voice was hushed and Rev. Otto J. Lyon, pastor of the same church was speaking. The dead youth lived a year at his home before moving to the Y. M. C. A.

His was the brief yet eloquent tribute to "a boy whom we took into our hearts, a boy who lived clean, a boy who on the night of his death left on the little table in his room, a Bible.

The service ended. The friends drifted into the night. The casket was carried out. It reposed in a baggage coach on the 9 o'clock train leaving Flint. Lawrence Hutchins was going home—home to a bereaved mother and father, waiting on a modest little farm near Columbia, Conn for the still form of the beloved son, who fared forth so gayly but little more than a year ago to meet and conquer life.

And over at the city prison, Melvin Raskin, who struck the fatal blow when his brother Sammy was repulsed, gazed stolidly from behind steel bars, facing the charge of murder on which he was arraigned today."

Mr. Gibbs, though a total stranger to Lawrence Hutchins, stated that he wished to convey to the people of Columbia the sentiment which prevailed in Flint.

STATE GRANGE PREPARING FOR WASHINGTON MEETING

Two social meetings of the Connecticut state grange have been planned to confer the sixth degree, preparatory to the annual meeting of the national grange next month in Washington, D. C., when many Connecticut patrons desire to receive the seventh degree, the highest in the order. The first session was held in the city hall in Torrington Friday evening and the second session will be held Saturday, October 27, at 7.30 o'clock in Abington (Pomfret), Mountain County Pomona grange, met at the city hall, Torrington, Friday afternoon and conferred the fifth degree on candidates for the evening session. At Abington, on the afternoon of the 27th, Quinebaug Pomona grange will meet and confer the fifth degree on candidates for the evening session.

Miss Godfrey of Boston is the guest of Mrs. Ruth Jacobs.

Mrs. Katherine Ink went to Boston Thursday morning, motoring back with Miss Anne Dix who had been spending a few days in that city.

Mrs. Ruth Jacobs has been at her cottage at Groton Long Point for a few days.

At the Columbia Grange Wednesday evening a competitive program was to have been presented between the brothers and sisters. The sisters presented their program, consisting of a short play introducing radio specialties. The men were not ready to present theirs, but probably will do so at the second meeting in November. The sisters' program was in charge of Mrs. Ruby Wolff, chairman. The judges are Miss Lindholm, Mrs. Bouton and Mr Covell of Andover Grange.

Two Lancaster (Pa.) men are hiking to Hollywood and, oddly enough, do not intend to get jobs in the movies. "Somebody has to do the real work out there," said George Brown, bricklayer, and George Witmer, plumber, who expect to continue at their trades.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

"OVER THE COUNTER"

DEAR DOT:

The old saying, "Clothes Make the Man" is rather a broad statement, but really there is a lot of sense in it after all, don't you think so? I am a firm believer that a man's appearance has a lot to do with his success in life and perhaps that is why I take such a keen interest in what Jack wears. Of course I know that you, too, like to see your husband well dressed, especially now that his new position casts him so much before the public's scrutinizing gaze. So that is why my message to you today is going to be about Men's Clothes. The reason why I am so well versed on the subject is because Jack and I were in the store of THE J. F. CARR & CO., Clothiers, at 744 Main street, yesterday and we saw such a wonderful assortment of styles and colors in What Is Newest For Men.

In making his selection of a suit Jack was shown very natty tans, with two-button rope shouldered coats with the very trim double-breasted vests. To harmonize with these pretty tan suits he was shown the tan shirts with long-pointed stiff collars attached that are quite the popular thing now. This "outfit" was completed with blending colors in neckwear and socks and tan soft hat. In the same model suits for young men they were also showing a green cheviot which is very attractive. The accessories for this color suit consisted of the green shirts, green soft hat and neckwear with a touch of green. These suits consist of two pair of trousers and sell at $29.50. The topcoats are in tans or overplaid styles with raglan shoulders and box-back, very modernly patterned.

The elderly or more conservative man will find the three-button model coats in suits of dark worsted or in fancy mixtures. With this type of suit the grey camel's hair topcoat, selling at $40 were recommended, giving a becoming effect to the moderate dresser.

Jack is in the market for a new overcoat and he was shown some fine looking ones. They had them in tan, plain blue and fancy overplaids in double and single-breasted models. CARR'S have a full line of Manhattan shirts with the stiff collars attached, a style of shirt now in vogue and one apparently here to stay for some time. The colors are in tans, greens and fine stripes. In the Downstairs Department Jack was shown some fine leather jackets of horsehide in tans and black colors. These jackets are great for outdoor wear and it occurred to me that they would make an ideal as well as practical Christmas gift.

I am sure you and Dick will find a visit to CARR'S STORE very interesting for they have such a wonderful stock in every line of Men's Wearing Apparel. I'll be interested to know what you purchase 'cause I know you and Dick will buy. It would be hard for any man to resist once he has seen what CARR'S have to offer.

JANE.

INCONSISTENCY

When the statement was made by Alfred E. Smith that he was confident he would win in every state he had visited it must have been with regret that his tours could not have included every state in the country.

It is questioned very much whether such speeches as he has made on his trips will be responsible for any such result as he anticipates. He has been on the defensive, making attacks upon others and failing to clarify his attitude upon various important questions. He has been disposed to dwell upon the inconsistency of others while totally ignoring the fact that it is just such an attitude which he has been taking.

In his last address he brought to the attention of the people of Chicago the fact that Senator Borah was inconsistent and he based it upon the fact that he criticized Mr. Hoover when he was food administrator some nine years ago but is now ardently supporting him.

If Mr. Smith were proof against inconsistency that might have been a telling point, but it doesn't appear that he is. He is quite as much open to criticism as the senator from Idaho. Of course he is fighting for office now and perhaps ought not to be expected to be consistent but it is a well known story as to how he has faced both ways in regard to the tariff.

Back in 1922, not quite six years ago, he was campaigning in New York state and he was banging away at the tariff. It was the same thing it is today but he didn't think so. He had not then been converted by the manner in which it has been brought to bear for the welfare of the country through the insistence of republicans. Six years ago he termed the tariff "a cold blooded and deliberate holdup of the whole American people." Today he is declaring that the country need have no fear of what the democrats would do with tariff. What he would have done to the tariff in 1922 and what he would do now are decidedly different. He was criticising then what he claims to be praising today, and yet his latest utterances are quite at variance with the principles as set forth in the Underwood tariff which he praised in his acceptance speech.

Mr. Smith has been doing exactly what he finds cause to complain of in Senator Borah. He completely effaces his criticism by his own conduct. He ought to have let some one else deal with the question of inconsistency.

REPARATIONS DISCUSSIONS

At the last session of the league of nations decision was made to create a committee of international experts for the purpose of examining the problems involved in having the amount of reparations to be paid by Germany fixed and in so doing set up a substitute for the Dawes plan.

What this will result in is uncertain. The makeup of the committee will have an important bearing on the results, but the agent general for reparations, S. Parker Gilbert has been holding conferences with the British officials at London apparently for the purpose of finding how the land lies and perhaps paving the way for some kind of an agreement. The idea prevails that Mr. Parker's visit was for the purpose of setting forth the problem of fixing the total reparations due and in place of the external control required under the Dawes plan to create volunteer payments by Germany similar to the payment of debts by other countries.

Germany it is believed would like such an arrangement. As for the other countries no definite decision has been reached. The reception that was given to the Parker advocacy seems to have been favorable. At least it was not given a cold shoulder, although it may not have been anticipated at this time. Sounding out the British at this time was conceivably for the purpose of setting in motion a train of thought that would be helpful later on.

That France would be agreeable to coming to definite terms of settlement seems probable. Possibly it would be willing to offer certain concessions in order to get the reparations problem out of the way, and it is argued that if there is to be a substitution for the Dawes plan it should come at a time when that plan is the most popular. There is as yet no certainty that any change will be made.

OVER THE OCEAN SERVICE

For a long time the success that has been attained in long distance and ocean flying has stimulated the belief that it is a matter of only a few years before there will be an established transatlantic service through the air. It was the opinion of Colonel Lindbergh after his successful flight that it would be accomplished within a period of ten years.

Such a service was contemplated by large airplanes, equipped with sufficient motors and large fuel tanks so that passengers might be carried as well as mail. Something in the way of a beginning has been made by the speeding up of the mails through carrying the mails to the ships after they have gotten to sea and starting for the shore when the ships are several hundred miles from land.

Additional thought has been given to this problem of ocean crossing by the coming to this country of the Graf Zeppelin. It isn't the first passenger carrier, for certain of the planes have carried passengers, but the German airship has brought the largest number and, while not making the speed attained by the airplanes, has shown what such a craft could do in that kind of service.

It is thus inevitable that there should be talk concerning the possibilities of an airline serviced by Zeppelins. It has even given encouragement to the belief that such a line will be in operation within five years, and it is pointed out that it could be done on a capitalization of $10,000,000. That would provide four big Zeppelins which could operate between Germany and the United States for the transportation of mail and as a side issue book as many passengers as conditions would permit.

We are gradually getting nearer to the time when some kind of an air line is going to be established, whether it is the Zeppelin or the airplane that is the first to inaugurate such a service.

CRAZY FLIGHTS

Aviators have been given up for lost only to be found later after having landed safely in an isolated spot or been picked up on the broad Atlantic by a tramp steamer carrying no wireless.

There is a faint possibility that such has happened to Lieutenant Commander MacDonald. It is natural that his wife should cling to such a hope, that she should seek to have the British autorities send vessels or an airplane to a small island known as Rockall, a few hundred miles off the British coast, in the belief that he has landed there and should be rescued.

There is nothing to really support such a feeling. He may have been forced down soon after he was last seen. The explosion that was reported in the air may have been his airplane. He may have experienced trouble and been able to drop close to a vessel. It would be like seeking a needle in a haystack to try to search for him. There is nothing to serve as a guide any more than there was in the case of Coli and Nungesser, or any of the other fliers who have lost their lives in attempts to cross the ocean.

MacDonald was well impressed by his ability. He believed that he could make the flight as long as Lindbergh did. He recognized the risk in such a small machine, but he banked heavily on luck and took the chance. Efforts to dissuade him were futile and unless better fortune favors him than prevailed in the case of others he has doubtless experienced their fate.

The MacDonald flight will have to be classed as one of the crazy attempts to do the unusual. There was the distinction and publicity which would have gone with a successful flight and yet for most people that would hardly have been sufficient reason for throwing their lives away in case of a failure. And yet experience doesn't teach all others the folly of such a reckless undertaking.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: There doesn't seem to be any detour from the leaves.

Even though it travels at the rate of 186,000 miles a second some would like to travel by light.

Every little bit of summer from now on is going to have a pleasing reduction in the coal consumption.

The more we study the efforts of others to fly across the Atlantic the more we can appreciate the real accomplishments of Lindbergh.

The way in which Candidate Smith muddles up the treasury figures shows what a mess he would make of trying to direct the government.

Isn't it about time for a first report on the progress being made by the gangs providing the material for the Thanksgiving night fires?

If you are going to drive into Massachusetts better make sure you have your license and registration ready to show. Everybody is encountering such a demand.

Candidate Smith seems to think the federal government should have spent right and left even though it meant increased taxation, or in other words boosted expenditures and debt as New York did.

Scotch anthracite is brought to this side of the Atlantic and sold for less than Pennsylvania anthracite. Now Russian coal is on the way across perhaps Pennsylvania will add another dollar or so to the state tax on coal.

MOTHER STEPS ON IT

Mother finished pouring father's second cup of coffee and motioned to the maid to replenish Fred's dessert plate.

"I wonder if you could drive me down to the market this afternoon, son?" she inquired. "I like to make sure the vegetables are fresh that we buy for over Sunday."

"Today? Why, mo-ther!" Fred jerked his lanky body erect and opened his mouth wide in a series of aggrieved explosives. "Gosh, why can't you order things over the phone?" he protested. "I've got a heavy date with Polly Prentiss for the movies and she's way out on the south side."

"Will you take me, father?"

"Er—what's that?" Father was engrossed in his paper and now he lowered it impatiently. Mother repeated her question:

"Will you drive me down to the market in your car, father? Fred has an engagement and can't take me in his Stver."

"It's too bad about Fred and his engagement," snapped father. "He plays around at the university all week and then flitters away every Saturday. Why, when I was his age—"

"But will you take me, father?"

"Humph, yes, of course. But I've got an important golf date at the club this afternoon. Due there at 2. You'll have to hurry, mother. Step on it!"

Mother sighed as she rushed from the table and hurried into her coat and hat. It seamed, she reflected, as she crowded her modest black toque down on her white hair, that all she did was "step on it" for these two men folks of hers.

Father dropped her at the market. He couldn't wait until she finished shopping; she would have to take a bus.

"Of course," he explained, "if you weren't so nervous and could drive I'd let you keen the car and I'd take the trolley."

Half an hour later mother, walking the four blocks to the bus line, halted before a plate-glass window and gazed longingly into an atmosphere of shaded lights, soft rugs and comfortable chairs. A sign above the doorway read: "Superior motor exhibit. Come in."

The salesman, busily exhibiting automobiles to groups of people, didn't notice her as she dropped wearily into a chair in the corner and rested her brown paper shopping bag on her knees. Once, ten years ago, father talked of buying her a car, but he never mentioned it now, nor did he realize that all her friends had their own automobiles. It wasn't that father couldn't afford it; he just didn't think.

"May I show you this car, madam?" A nice young man with kindly brown eyes stood at her side. "Looks like a dream; runs like the wind and easy to operate as a baby's perambulator," he rhapsodized. "Get inside and try it, madam."

It was love at first sight with mother and that dark blue coupe with the cream-colored wheels. Hesitatingly she stepped inside and grasped the mahogany steering wheel with both hands. Ecstasy! How her tired body reveled in its comfort. Oh, if only—she could afford a car like this. Well, why not? There was the $700 that she had laboriously saved from her household fund; the precious sum for which she had denied herself many a little luxury in order that father and Fred might have the sleeping porch they wanted. Breathlessly, she extracted a check book from her handbag and decided that this once she was going to think of mother!

When she completed her secret driving lessons a week later mother drove her car up in front of the house and dashed excitedly inside, only to find Fred, tousled and grimy, rummaging in the kitchen.

"My old fliv's punctured a tire," he wailed, "and dads back there in the garage taying because his old bus won't budge, either. Isn't that lack, mother, just when we both have important engagements?"

Mother's eyes were twinkling as she hurried into her room, set a jaunty violet toque on her white head and slipped unseen out of the front door. A few minutes later two astonished and disheveled men stood open-mouthed as a rakish, little blue coupe swung up into the driveway back of the house and halted in front of the garage entrance.

"Father," said a familiar voice, "perhaps I can drop you and Fred where you want to go in my car? But I've an important engagement, boy's you'll have to hurry—so step on it!"—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22—A great local hubbub was created in Washington over the status of the "career" members of the American diplomatic service in connection with the approaching change in administrations.

President Coolidge has made a remarkable number of appointments as ambassadors or ministers from the foreign service or "career" personnel, and the question raised is whether these men might not find themselves heaved out into the street by his successor in office. By custom, at least, they will be required to make their resignations available to the incoming president, as will their colleagues who are strictly political appointees.

Should any of these career resignations be accepted, the particular ministers or ambassadors involved would be out of a job altogether. There is no way of passing them back into the foreign service, their places as counsellors of legation or embassy having been filled by service promotions.

The purpose of the foreign service legislation fostered by Secretary Hughes was to build up for the government a trained staff of consular and diplomatic permanent personnel. The highest rank in that service, however, is counsellor of embassy. Promotion for merit to minister or ambassador means that the appointee becomes in effect a political job holder, no longer sheltered by the law, but subject to the whim or political exigencies of the president.

Drastic Changes Unlikely

What would be the result if the new president decided to make a clean aweep of career as well as political ambassadors and ministers and fill the jobs all around with men of his own selection? That would put men like Ambassadors Grew in Turkey, Gibson in Belgium, ever Fletcher in Rome, and ministers like Wilson in Switzerland, Phillips in Canada, Jack-MacMurray in China, Wright in Hungary, Summerlin in Honduras, Harrison in Sweden and a number of others out of the government service entirely.

It is hardly to be supposed that the new president, whether Hoover or Smith, would take any such drastic action. The same reasons that prompted some of these career appointments no doubt would operate to keep them at their present posts, regardless of even a transfer of the business of government from republican to democratic hands. MacMurray, for instance, is a highly specialized expert on oriental affairs and quite apt to stay in China as long as he desires.

If Hoover's Elected

But if Hoover is elected, it is quite possible he might desire to make use of the diplomatic appointments to foster schemes for commercial expansion which were a part of his planning as commerce secretary. In that office he made vigorous use of the commercial attache corps to that end and might, particularly in Latin America, see the advisability of reinforcing that service by appointment of business men to the diplomatic posts as well.

The commerce and state departments have not always seen eye to eye with each other in some of the activities of the commercial attaches. There have been indications of jealousy at times of the supposed encroachment by the commercial diplomats upon the field of the regular diplomats.

No doubt Hoover as president would see to it that points of possible friction on this score were eliminated.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Seventy-Two Years Ago, And Now.

Mr. Editor: On an ancestral diary, which I peruse with pleasure and profit at times, I note the following entry:

October 23, 1856. "Great Fremont Meeting at Colchester. 32 wagons went from Hebron escorted by the Talcott band of Rockville. It was a great time."

To my certain knowledge it was, though I was pronounced by the family authorities as too young to stand the excitement of the day. I took exception to this decision, but there was no appeal from the authority. It was the highest court of jurisdiction in my case. I was allowed to go to the village, however, and see the procession start out and perhaps that was glory enough for one day and for a small boy who was pronounced as too young to stand the excitement of going to Colchester with the 32 wagon loads of Fremont republicans. The chief marshal of the Hebron crowd was Elihu P. Buell a veteran politician, and he was vociferously aided by George Gray, who I well remember seeing ride into the village on horseback, shouting "Hurrah for the Niggers." It must be remembered that coming events had begun to "cast their shadows before" and the republicans were even then stigmatized by their opponents as "Black Republicans." Our marshal's aid simply acknowledged the appelation and went one better.

I well remember the description of the affair. Congressman Burlingame was the chief orator of the day, and some of the placards carried bore the inscriptions, "Fremont and Jessie." "Free Speech, Free Press, Free Men and Fremont." "Noisy Brooks Are Always Shallow," referring to the Brooks and Sumner episode that had just occurred in congress. I have now a beautiful curled maple staff upon which the Hebron placard was carried. It was a most enthusiastic affair and it almost broke my childish heart to find that a candidate that provoked so much enthusiasm among my elders could not be elected. But I was partially consoled by thinking how my father and his neighbor stretched a flag across the street with the inscription "Fremont and Dayton," the day that the Hebron democrats went to their mass meeting in Colchester and thus made their procession drive under it. Hebron gave 34 majority for Fremont, a town that had been democratic off and on for years.

How will this popular enthusiasm work out in the present campaign? Will those that holler the loudest get the most votes, or will plain New England common sense win out?

Hartford, Oct. 22, 1928.

Butchery by Highway Dept.

Mr. Editor: I was greatly interested in Thursday's editorial entitled "A Plea for Beautification." Living abroad, where the country side is so immaculately cared for Lady Astor could not fail to notice a marked difference from our careless and unartistic way of doing things.

But, far worse, is the horrible butchery engaged in by our highway department when they demolish for no reason whatsoever ever decreasingly few beautiful trees. Witness operations at Brooklyn going on since last April, the Pitchville affair reported in Wednesday's paper and many others which might be mentioned.

Nothing seems sacred in the hands of the department. Is a democracy no better than an autocracy that one may not save one's own colonial home with its country fine old trees, when a few feet in the broad open would spare this whole beauty spot.

We can remove the rubbish, but we can never restore these fine old colonial homes, with their beautiful trees and lovely gardens.

What are we coming to when the state holds us in such a vise that we cannot protect these fine old relics of other days?

There are places in this world where nothing would be too great a sacrifice to save even one tree or any beauty spot.

Are we Americans altogether sacrilegious concerning God given gifts?

PENDLETON HILL.

North Stonington, Oct. 20, 1928.

Right Voting

Mr. Editor: I do think that now is the time for every one to stand loyally for the right and for the best good of our country. This country was founded by men who were striving for the right. Let us not come back on our country in the time of great need, we are sorry to see that some, who might mean so much, are not for some reason standing where right and loyalty to the country demands.

We read in the Bible these words, "Am I my brother's keeper?" Gen. 4:9. If we vote, we are our brother's keepers. If we vote for officials that favor liquor selling in any form we are putting the bottle to our neighbor's lips as truly as if we stood behind the bar.

It is woe unto us if we put the bottle to our neighbor's lips directly or indirectly.

There are wholesale man-slayers. They would not class themselves with Cain who killed his brother or think of themselves as murderers, and the public does not think of them as such, that does not alter facts. Those who manufacture and those who deal out intoxicants and those who vote for it cause the death of multitudes.

The result of the trade is to kill thousands yearly in this one land alone. And they cannot escape the moral responsibility for the killing.

That anyone possessing anything worthy the name of a soul, should try to keep on creating such misery seems incredible. The fact that men, who do not count themselves bad, do so, shows how blind men can become when they do not wish to see, and how hard the heart grows when a man persists in refusing to do the right and consider the suffering of others.

The killing of the body is a serious matter and the traffic in intoxicants is responsible for a great deal of that; but what shall be said of the killing of the soul for which it is responsible? If it is an awful thing to be a murderer, it is no less awful to be the means of turning men from righteousness to every careless, heartless, vile, dishonorable way of life; and if Cain was made an outcast by God for the killing of Abel, surely there will be dire punishment for all who directly or indirectly help on such an evil that ruins both soul and body. Vote right, that is for the one that has the best interest of the country at heart and will strive to make the country better, and a fit place to live in.

Arm Chair Journeys To Other Lands

By ANDRUE BERDING
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Marriage in Irish Free State.

VALENTIA, Irish Free State, Oct. 22—(AP)—Marriages for love are extremely rare in this westernmost part of Europe. Most weddings are purely business arrangements. The lawyer rather than the priest is the potent factor. The bridegroom and the bride are seldom consulted.

Negotiations start for the most part at the village fairs, when the respective parents let fall hints that a union between the families might be desirable. After that a marriage broker, known as a stoice, conducts the negotiations. For a certain fee, or percentage of the dowry, the go-between arranges with the parents how many cattle shall be paid for the brid's dowry.

The dowry rather than the beauty, disposition and talents of the bride is the important consideration to the bridegroom. Cases are more frequent than rare in which the bridegroom sees his bride only once before marriage. A dowry of a dozen fine head of cattle or a large field of rich grazing land means more to him than a pretty face, clever fingers or an amiable disposition.

By a curious custom, however, the dowry of the bride more often than not does not go to the bridgroom, at all, but to the bridegroom's parents, to be held by them in trust for the Bridegroom's sisters as their dowry when marriages are arranged for them.

One of the most outstanding incidents in the history of this community occurred when an Irish girl who had lived for a number of years in the United States and had saved a fair sum of money returned and married a Kerry county man. She stipulated in the marriage contract that the dowry should remain her own property and descend to her children, thereby creating more discussion here than an earthquake.

The result of this business trend of marriage is that courtice is rather in the discard. Of what use to court when to marry is forbidden without the consent of the parents? Another result is that there is very little "blessed singleness" in Kerry county.

Marriages here culminate with a "glorious" party the night of the wedding, when all the relatives and friends who can do so flock to the bridegroom's house. The party lasts by convention until about four o'clock in the morning.

YOUR HEALTH

MANY ILLS ERRONEOUSLY DIAGNOSED AS "TEETHING"

By J. Epstein, M. D., New York

In the course of the examination of a large number of infants and young children, I saw cases of stomatitis (sore mouth), tonsillitis, reto-pharyngeal abscess (abscess of the throat) otitis media (middle ear disease), gastro-intestinal diseases and convulsions diagnosed as teething.

It is wrong to make a diagnosis of teething because the infant or young child happens to be fretful and irritable and has red and swollen gums with dribbling of saliva from the mouth, or because it has a diarrhea or a convulsion or an obscure fever. While detention may cause redness and swelling of the gums, in many cases the swollen gums have no relation to dentition, or eruption of the teeth. A careful history and physical examination of every sick infant and young child will always lead to a proper diagnosis, and the teeth will not be blamed for so many ills. Neglect to find the real cause of the trouble may lead to irreparable injury to many little patients.

Teething is a transitional period between infancy and childhood, preparing the infant for the change from a milk diet to one of semi-solid and solid food. It is normal physiologic process in the life and development of the infant and usually gives rise to no pain or ill health. When a child is ill during the period of dentition, it may be due to any one of the acute diseases, or to some ailment that changes the physiologic function of dentition to a pathologic process. It is in the child and not in the teething that the cause of the trouble is usually found. A normal child is not made sick by teething.

The treatment of difficult dentition is that of the underlying disease. Mouth infection should be treated with a mild alkaline antiseptic solution. Rickets, which is a common cause of disturbed teething as well as malnutrition and stomach and bowel disturbances, requires proper feeding. Convulsions during dentition may be the result of various diseases or they may be due to tetany (spasm), which is usually associated with rickets. Teething rings, pieces of arrow-root and other articles which mothers give their infants to bite on, in the belief that they cause easy teething, are responsible for many infections.

As soon as the teeth have cut thru the gums, they must receive proper care. Once or twice a day they should be cleaned with a soft cloth wet with warm water or a mild alkaline solution. Later a soft tooth brush may be used. It is very important to the health and nutrition of every child that the temporary teeth should be maintained in as perfect a condition as possible and not allowed to decay. Decay of the teeth may cause inflammation around the roots, gum boils, inflammation of the mouth, and through the absorption of toxins elaborated around teeth, anemia, heart disease and other constitutional diseases. The temporary as well as the permanent teeth should be periodically examined and treated by a dentist.

CHILD TRAINING

INTERRUPTED

Jeannette Stevenson Murray

The baby had been edging along the floor trying to reach the red ball. Finally he clasped it in his chubby hands and was attempting to stuff it into his mouth when Mother decided it was time for his ride. She thoughtlessly took the ball from him. He stiffened with anger, crying long and lustily.

Mother had interrupted his investigation. His was learning about the ball. Babies differ; some will spend quite a time handling, mouthing and looking at an object. This attention should not be diverted. It is the beginning of the child's ability to concentrate.

Jack had all the blocks out, the ten-pins and dominoes, too. He was absorbed in building a wonderful castle, just putting the tower on, when Big Brother, coming in from school, thought it smart to kick out the blocks under one corner. It all came down with a crash.

Of course Jack flew into a rage. He had missed the thrill of the finished structure. "The spirit of the boy was marred."

Margie had come with her parents to call. Five-year-old Dorothy must have a tea party. They spread the little table and set out the dishes. Dorothy with sparkling eyes kept tiptoeing to her mother for whispered conferences about getting the sandwiches, cake and milk.

It took a long time. Just when everything was ready the callers had to go—there was another appointment. The sparkle went out of Dorothy's brown eyes and, after Margie left, she cried as if her heart would break.

The grown people could have prevented this disappointment had they seen to it that the little girls planned only such a tea-party as could be carried through.

It was Tom's turn at the bat. His mother appeared at the back door. "Oh, Tommy, I forgot to order eggs this morning. Run to the store for them. Don't wait!" The thrill of the game was lost. It would not be his turn again before the boys had to go home.

That was the way with Mother, always interrupting him at the critical moment. She never took the trouble to see what he was doing. Yesterday she had called him away from the last chapter of "Treasure Island." He missed the climax too, when he read it later on, he had lost the setting and thus the keen interest he had in the story.

Of course our children have to be helpful and conform to the household rules—eating, sleeping and dressing at proper times—but still, by looking ahead, we could often wait a few minutes until "Tom" has made his home run or finished his book.

Let us try to give the children time to complete their ideas, so that they may have the exhilaration that comes with the finish and the power that is gained from carrying things through to the end.

Irrigation

"Tommy is going to school for the first time. He is well pleased with everything connected with it.

"In our school," he related proudly, "teacher opens all the windows twice every day to irrigate it!"

One of the Ten

School had begun and the first problems of adjusting the effects of the summer's vacation were in order on the school playground.

Miss X. thought she had heard a forbidden word used twice by one little boy so she said tactfully: "What was that you said, Jimmy?"

That she had not been mistaken was evident from the earnest reply: "No, Miss X. I wasn't cussing. I never cuss. I always follow the Ten Commandments and one of them says, 'Thou shalt not cuss'."

L. G. Treadway, of the Williams Inn, Williamstown, Mass., was elected president of the New England Hotel Owners' association convention.

No More Piles

Pile sufferers can only get quick, safe and lasting relief by removing the cause—bad blood circulation in the lower bowel. Cutting and salves can't do this—an internal remedy must be used. Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid, a harmless tablet, succeeds, because it relieves this blood congestion and strengthens the affected parts. Hem-Roid has a wonderful record for quick, safe and lasting relief to Pile sufferers. It will do the same for you or money back. Lee & Osgood Co., and druggists anywhere sell Hem-Roid with this guarantee.

WEDDINGS

Marquardt-Wragg

Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock at Chasanba lodge, Fort Hill, Groton, Miss Ruth Wragg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Wragg of 366 Jefferson avenue, New London, and Ira Marquardt, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Marquardt of Groton, were married by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ, New London. The bridesmaid was Miss Dorothy Williams of Worcester. George Wragg, brother of the bride, was Mr. Marquardt's best man. Mr. and Mrs. Marquardt left on a honeymoon trip by automobile through the Adirondacks. They will reside in their new home on Spicer avenue, Groton.

Mezzina-Malerba

At 8 o'clock Monday morning Miss Frances Malerba, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Malerba of No. 20 Oak street, and Joseph Mezzina, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Mezzina of Staten Island, N. Y., were united in marriage at St. Patrick's church, Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael H. May, pastor of the church, officiated at the ceremony.

The bride's gown was of white satin, trimmed with Spanish lace and she carried a shower bouquet of roses and lillies of the valley. The matron of honor, Mrs. Rose Sforza of Harrison, N. Y., wore a gown of pink beaded georgette and carried an arm bouquet of pink roses. The bridesmaids were the Misses Teresa Del Re, Nicholetta Denicola, Antoinette Malerba and Eleanor Fegina. Miss Del Re and Miss Denicola wore gowns of gren taffeta, trimmed with maline, Miss Malerba's gown was of pink georgette and Miss Regina was gowned in yellow georgette. All wore Spanish shawls and carried pink roses and white chrysanthemums.

The Misses Mary Allegretti and Victoria Malerba were the flower girls. Miss Allegretti wore blue georgette with hat to match and Miss Malbera wore an orchid gown. The best man was Ferdinand Fiore of Staten Island and the ushers were Frank DeBartelo, Gregory Longo, Jack Malerba and Dominick Grieco, the latter of Bath Beach, N. Y.

Following the wedding ceremony there was a breakfast at the home of the bride's parents and later there was a reception at Germania hall. Later in the day the bride and groom left for a wedding trip to Washington, D. C., New York city and other cities. They will be gone about three weeks and on their return will reside at Staten Island where Mr. Mezzina is engaged in the coal business. Guests were present from Philadelphia, Washington, Harrison, N. Y., Staten Island, Bridgeport, Putnam, New Jersey and New London.

Wilcox-Crouch

A pretty outdoor autumn wedding took place Saturday afternoon at 4.30 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Montgomery of Ledyard when their granddaughter, Miss Ida M. Crouch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy L. Crouch, of Shewville, became the bride of Jesse R. Wilcox of Shewville. The ceremony was performed by Rev. George H. Strouse of Bozrah under a natural bower of wisteria in its autumn foliage and in the presence of a large gathering of relatives from local and surrounding towns.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was becomingly dressed in a gown of white crepe. Her veil was caught with a coronet of orange blossoms and she carried a bridal bouquet of white roses. Her sister Miss Esther A. Crouch, who was maid of honor, wore a pink organdy dress, with large hat to match, and carried pink carnations. The two bridesmaids, Miss Anna D. Crouch, sister of the bride, wore yellow organdy and carried yellow chrysanthemums, and Miss Ruth A. Merritt, cousin of the bride, wore blue organdy and carried white chrysanthemums. The best man was Robert Gest of Jewett City. Miss Gertrude Watrous played the wedding march.

A buffet luncheon was served after the ceremony. On their return from a wedding trip to New York, Mr. and Mrs. Wilcox are to reside in Shewville.

The bride presented her maid of honor a necklace of pearls and to the bridesmaids she gave pretty bracelets. The bride received many beautiful and useful gifts.

ELECT JOSEPH C. WORTH PRESIDENT OF NORWICH CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

JOSEPH C. WORTH

Joseph C. Worth, well known banker and manufacturer, was elected president of the Norwich chamber of commerce Monday afternoon at a meeting of the directors of the chamber held at the Wauregan hotel. It was the organization meeting of the directors, six of whom were elected last Tuesday evening, the remaining six holding over for another year. Mr. Worth succeeds Harold D. Larrabee as chamber president.

F. Russell Smith was elected first vice president, Henry F. Powers second vice president and Henry D. Johnson treasurer. With the exception of the treasurer the officers elected were nominated by the nominating committee, Arthur M. Brown, Walter F. Lester and Abner W. Schwartz. The treasurer is a non-member of the board of directors, this being in line with the policy adopted last year. During the meeting announcement was made that the board meeting to be held November 6th Calvin Brown of the U. S. chamber of commerce will be the speaker.

The new president of the chamber, Joseph C. Worth, is a native of Norwich. He is the son of Mrs. Joseph C. Worth and the late Joseph C. Worth, for years a well known wholesale merchant in Norwich.

Mr. Worth is a graduate of the Norwich Free academy. Following his graduation from the academy he entered the employ of the Dime Savings bank and for about a year was located in New York city with the Charles F. Noyes Real Estate Corp. For some time Mr. Worth was president of the Jewett City Textile Novelty Co. and at present is vice president of the Bankers Trust Co. and treasurer and manager of the Uncas Fishing Corp. He is an honorary member of the Rotary club, a member of the Norwich Golf club, of Norwich Lodge No. 430, B. P. O. E. and of Shennecosett Golf club. Mr. Worth is affiliated with the local Masonic bodies. He is married and resides at No. 154 Washington street.

The Putnam son is also named an executor with Grace S. Woodward.

MISSING PUPPY CLAIMED BY SCHOOL STREET OWNER

The little red Irish setter puppy is restored to her owner. The stray dog, which has been a source of care to a group of disinterested persons, turned out to be the property of Michael J. Froscello, a painter, living at 93 School street.

The owner and children had supposed the dog was lost for good and all and have mourned for their pet. On reading in The Bulletin Monday that the animal had been put in the care of Dog Warden Chester J. Bushnell, on Laurel Hill, Mr. Froscello was delighted, going at once to identify and claim the little dog which was as joyous at the reunion as was her master. Mr. Froscello paid $35 for the puppy some time ago and had grown greatly attached to the little animal. He insisted on Warden Bushnell taking a new dollar bill for the dog's care over night, before hurrying home where a warm welcome awaited the restored puppy.

COLORED PEOPLE NAMED IN MRS. BLACKSTONE'S WILL

A Chicago paper published in the interest of the colored people has the following:

Charity, education and religion are beneficiaries in the will of Mrs. Isabella F. Blackstone, widow of Timothy B. Blackstone, pioneer citizen and financier of Chicago.

Mrs. Blackstone died Sept. 20, having been identified with social, civic and philanthropic movements for the greater part of her 90 years.

In the generous bequest which demonstrated the altruism and broad-mindedness which characterized her life, Mrs. Blackstone remembered many institutions and organizations of our race, which had gained her interest during her lifetime.

Among the hospitals to which she gave amounts of $25,000 each is Provident hospital and Training school located at 36th and Dearborn streets, one of the oldest in the city operated by our people, and Chicago Half Orphan asylum, which admits all races.

Other bequests made to our people are the Phyllis Wheatley Home for Working Girls, 5168 S. Michican avenue, Hampton Normal and Industrial Institute, Hampton, Va.; Snow Hill Normal and Industrial Institute, Snow Hill, Ala., and Berea college, Berea, Ky.

Remembers Employes

Among the private gifts distributed among employes and friends was a gift of $5,000 to George Garner, father of the internationally famous tenor, who is at present creating a sensation in the musical circles of London and Paris. For more than 40 years the elder Garner has served in the Blackstone family and is personally known to all the older members of Chicagoans who made up the social register in the days when the Blackstone family residence occupied the present site of the Blackstone hotel. Thomas Davies and John Bond, two other servants, each received $1,000.

Mrs. Blackstone was born in Norwich, Conn. In all, the will provided for the distribution of more than $1,105,000, representing nearly half of her estate.

GIRLS FRIENDLY SOCIETY SUPPER AND GUEST NIGHT

The Christ church branch of the Girls Friendly society held its annual supper and guest night Monday evening in the parish rooms. The delicious supper was served to about 35 members and their guests under the direction of Mrs. Fred Leffingwell and Mrs. Fred Magnusson. Miss Arleng Cobleigh had charge of the tables, which were decorated with halloween colors and pumpkin moonshines. After the singing of the G. F. S. songs and the cheers, Mrs. James Southouse, the branch president, announced that a fashion show would be given by the entertainment committee, showing what the well dressed people will wear during the coming season. The clever burlesques caused riotous laughter. The parts were taken as follows: Miss Gossip, Miss Mary Southouse; Mrs. Rose Rambler, Mrs. J. Goodreau; Miss Ce-er Vamp, Mrs. Otto Berberick; Mr. Hanson, Miss Obeline Lambert; Mr. I. M. Tuff, Mrs. J. Goodreau. The last display was a wedding party, in which the actors appeared as flower girl, maid of honor, bridegroom and best man. Music was furnished by the Misses Lambert and the evening closed with dancing, concluding what was voted the best social ever given by the branch.

WEST WILLINGTON HENS BREAK ALL RECORDS

STORRS, Conn., Oct. 22—(AP)—All existing records were broken in egg-laying, when the 17th annual egg-laying contest, sponsored by the Connecticut Agricultural college finished today. Two pens of ten hens each, owned by George Lowry, of West Willington, Conn., captured the first and second international prizes, when after a 51 week trial, turned in a total of 2,969 eggs. The birds were all white leghorns.

Thirty two states, Canada and England, were represented in the contest, which was under the supervision of David E. Warner, associate professor of poultry husbandry at the agricultural college.

First honors in single bird egg-laying went to George Treadwell, of Spencer, Mass., with a record of 324 eggs.

During the contest, there were 1400 hens entered, with a grand total of 262,916 eggs for the 51 week period, or an average of 188 to each hen.

Surprise Miscellaneous Shower

A surprise miscellaneous shower was held Friday evening by Mrs. W. F. Bogue, at her home, No. 106 Broad stret, in honor of Mrs. Henry C. Griswold of New London. Mrs. Griswold received numerous gifts. Cards were enjoyed and refreshments served. Members of Fletcher Auxiliary of the America legion were present.

Attended Hartford Acolyte Service

The members of St. Vincent's Guild of Christ church attended an acolyte service at the Church of the Good Shepherd at Hartford Sunday after the service supper was served by the Hartford guild to the visiting guilds.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Peter J. Donnelly

The life of Mary L. Nolan, wife of the late Peter J. Donnelly, came to a peaceful end on Saturday morning at 6:45 o'clock at her home at 14 Railroad street, Baltic. Mrs. Donnelly had been ill about three years with valvular disease of the heart. She was born in New York city, March 22, 1857, the daughter of John and Anne Meehan Nolan. At the age of one year she came to Baltic with her parents, where she spent practically all of her life. In St. Mary's church in Baltic, she was united in marriage, on October 27, 1878 with Peter J. Donnelly by Rev. John F. Van der Nort.

From the early years of her life she was an ardent and active worker for St. Mary's parish of which she was a devoted member. She was a member of the rosary society of St. Mary's. Mrs. Donnelly was a friend to all in the dark hours of trouble. Here was a pleasing personality and she readily made many friends during her residence in Baltic. A loving and devoted mother, a kind friend and neighbor, she will be greatly missed in Baltic where she spent 70 years of her life. She is survived by two sons, Charles H. Donnelly of Baltic and William J. Donnelly of Norwich and one daughter, Miss Mary B. Donnelly of Baltic and one granddaughter, Miss Rita Donnelly of Norwich.

Mrs. M. V. Murphy

After a two weeks' illness, Mrs. Abbie Elizabeth O'Neil Murphy, wife of M. V. Murphy, of 335 Main street, died early Monday morning in Hartford. Mrs. Murphy was a life long resident of this city and was born in Norwich, the daughter of the late Timothy and Abbie Reardon O'Neil. At St. Patrick's church, December 23, 1887, she was united in marriage with M. V. Murphy.

For a number of years Mrs. Murphy was a member of St. Patrick's parish but of late years she has been a member of St. Mary's church. She is survived by her husband, two daughters, Margaret and Helen and two sisters, Miss Mary O'Neil of this city and Mrs. E. A. Anketell of New Haven. Mrs. Murphy's death came as a shock to her many friends and acquaintance who extend heartfelt sympathy to the surviving members of the family.

Mrs. John Morrison

Mrs. Agnes McMullin Morrison, wife of John Morrison, well known local florist, died Monday morning at her home, No. 465 West Main street. Mrs. Morrison had been a sufferer from heart trouble for some time but her death was entirely unexpected.

Mrs. Morrison was the daughter of William and Margaret McMullin and was born in Ireland, December 25, 1860. She came to the United States in her early life and in New York, April 8, 1890, was united in marriage with John Morrison.

Mrs. Morrison was a member of the United Congregational church and was also connected with Home chapter, King's Daughters. Surviving are her husband, one daughter, Mrs. Lester H. Corey, and two grandchildren. During her long residence in this city Mrs. Morrison had made many warm friendships and her many friends and acquaintances extend sincere sympathy to the bereaved family.

Mrs. Leonard D. Perkins

Following a long period of ill health Mrs. Lydia M. Miner Perkins, 82, widow of Leonard D. Perkins, died Monday morning about 5:15 o'clock at her home in Uncasville. Mrs. Perkins was born in Ledyard Center and was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Miner. About 60 years ago she was united in marriage with Henry D. Maynard and following his death, she was united in marriage with Leonard D. Perkins, about 30 years ago.

Surving Mrs. Perkins are three daughters, Mrs. Minnie Fowler and Mrs. John I. Reynolds of New London and Mrs. E. B. Perkins of Uncasville and three sons, George Maynard and Joseph Maynard of Gales Ferry and Wilton Maynard of Ledyard.

Mrs. Perkins was well and favorably known to many Ledyard, Preston, Norwich and Uncasville people. She was highly respected and her death is deply mourned by all who knew her.

Mrs. Andrew Pizzo

After a long illness Josephine Pizzo, wife of Andrew Pizzo, died Monday morning about 10:30 o'clock at her home in Trading Cove. Mrs. Pizzo who was about 60 years old, was the daughter of Michael and Mary Conon and was born in Poland. For a number of years she resided in Jewett City, removing to Trading Cove recently. Surviving are her husband, a daughter, Mrs. Carrine Pessy, and three sons, Edward Pizzo of Jewett City, Michael Pizzo of Hartford and John Pizzo of Chicopee, Mass.

FUNERALS

Mrs. John Donovan

With many relatives and friends present the funeral of Mrs. John Donovan was held Monday morning at 9.15 o'clock at her home, Pautipaug Hill, Baltic, and at 10 o'clock there was a requiem mass at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, in Baltic. Rev. A. A. Jalbert was the celebrant of the mass and Miss Milner presided at the organ. Burial was in the family plot at St. Mary's cemetery, Baltic, and Rev. Father Jalbert conducted the committal service. The bearers were Charles Charon, John Donovan, Terrence Coughlin, Edward Byron, Herbert Smith and Daniel McCarthy. There were many beautiful floral tributes. Undertaker George G. Grant had charge of the funeral arrangements.

MANY EASTERN ELEVENS FACED BY INJURIES TO STAR PLAYERS

NEW YORK, Oct. 22—(AP)—Injuries, capable wreckers of championship football hopes, rose up to confront a number of eastern college coaches today.

His team more or less wrecked by Dartmouth, Charley Crowley, at Columbia, suffered a heavy blow when it was announced that Hank Kumpf had suffered a fracture of a small bone in his leg in the fray at Hanover and would play no more football for his alma mater. Another backfield ace, Stanczyk, did an injured shoulder no good by playing against the Indians and will not be able to get into the game with undefeated Williams this Saturday.

West Virginia, just reaching top form, probably will battle Lafyaette at Easton, Pa., without the services of the brilliant sophomore halfback, Eddie Stumpp, who dislocated his knee in the Washington and Lee game.

Eight regulars are on Harvard's injured list but all are expected to get int othe game with Dartmouth. Arnold Hoween will need to thow his full strength into that game or the Crimson will have another defeat on its record.

Dartmouth was heartened by the return of Al Marsters to the backfield but Ed Jeremiah, Marsters' substitute in the Columbia game, was so badly hurt he may be out of the game for the rest of the yeag.

Aarmy and ale, conquerors of Marvard and Brown respectively, came out of Saturday's battles in good shane. Mal Stevens devoted the Elis' practice period today to developing an aerial attack while Armx, with several regulars including Captain Mort Sprague on the sidelines because of injuries, had only a light drill. The Cadets and Bull Dogs are undefeated and their battle at New Haven may settle the question of sectional supremacy.

Onl vlicht work was on the program for Cornell and Princeton who meet in Tiverland in one of the coming week end's outstanding games. Pitt and Carnegie Tech went through signal drills but postponed heavy preparations for their city championship battle until tomorrow.

Frankly fearing Colgate, Chick Meehan lectured his New York University squad for the mistakes it made against Rutgers and warned them that a repetition will be fatal against a strong, alert eleven like Colgate.

With Washington and Jefferson next on the list, Fordham was given a well-earned rest after Saturday's gruelling victory over Holy Cross, which tackles Marquette on Saturday in one of the last's two intersectional games. The other pits Duke against Georgetown's heavy-scoring machine.

Pennsylvania, apparently almost certain of victory over Navy, took it easy today. Penn State, beaten by two touchdowns by Penn, began preparations for Syracuse.

TORRINGTON HIGH HAS BEST RECORD TO DATE

The race for the mythical state high school football championship is now in quite a muddled condition as the result of Saturday's games. A9t present there is hardly a team in the state that boasts an unbeaten record and if there are any, they have not played a stiff enough schedule to be seriously considered.

The Academy and Bridgeport Central were the two leading teams to taste defeat for the first time on the week end. The locals dropped a 7 to 6 verdict to Warren Harding in Bridgeport while in another equally as closely contested struggle, Naugatuck shaded Bridgeport Central high, 8 to 6.

Torrington is probably the leading team at the present moment. Composed of a group of juniors, who showed much promise last season this team is hurtling all opposition, beating Wilby, 31 to 6 Saturday, greatly aided by long spectacular runs. Torrington holds the only verdict over Warren Harding and at present may be said to hold the commanding position in the state title hunt.

Hartford high, which was looked upon as a strong possibility for the bunting in pre-season predictions jumped back onto the winning side again at the expense of Bulkeley high, also of Hartford, 25 to 0, after being upset the previous week by Bridgeport Central. Stamford, a team that usually ahies at a schedule with many Connecticut opponents, however, showed they have power in plastering New Britain 26 to 6 in what might be termed the major upset of the day. However, neither New Britain nor Hartford will let these games effect their classic that closes the season for them.

New Haven Hillhouse is showing class, although not having passed through a stiff slate as yet. Hillhouse blanked the fair Crosby team Saturday 20 to 0. Commercial high took a bad beating from Warren Harding last week and lost a great deal of footing for any titular claim.

Putnam, which has been cutting quite a caper up in the northeastern part of the state, had it easy with Bartlett high of Webster but did not add anything to its Connecticut rating.

Although the season still has five weeks to run, the strong clubs are beginning to assert themselves and probably in another week things may be such that a line can be gotten on the direction in which this year's championship is to run.

HAWLEY DRILLS TEAM ON HARVARD PLAYS

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 22.—(AP)—New plays for the Harvard game next Saturday were executed during the Dartmouth football practice today. Coach Jess Hawley announced that in the future all Dartmouth practice sessions would be secret.

Al Marsters returned to the team today but Jeremiah, his substitute, appeared doomed to remain on the sidelines for the remainder of the year as a result of an injury received while replacing Marsters Saturday against Columbia. Ed Sutton, third team fullback, who played so well Saturday, was moved up to the second team. Booma, regular end, returned to the team after being out with injuries.

Several former Dartmouth stars, including "Wife" Jennings, Jim Donnelly, Frank Dorsey and Jim Robertson, were here aiding in preparing the team for Harvard.

YALE TO DEVOTE MORE TIME TO PASSING ATTACK

NE WHAVEN, Oct. 22.—(AP)—The usual light workout for Monday was the order today to Yale gridders and most of the time was given over to a blackboard talk in which the coaches pointed out the weak spots that appeared in the Brown game last Saturday.

Yale has not developed a very strong aerial game so far this season and were decidedly outclassed in the clashes with Maine and Georgia in this division of attack. Special stress was laid on this side of offensive by Mal Stevens.

Following the blackboard talk, the Havens were sent out kicking and passing and a short session of signal drills.

Oldt will probably be out of the lineup against the Army squad this week as he is still laid up with a badly bruised shoulder, received in scrimmage last week. Norman Hall, who was limping Saturday after being taken out of the clash with Brown, was on the field this afternoon as were Decker and Loeser. Decker has been troubled with a bruised shoulder and Loeser with a ninjured leg. Bob Wilson, who broke a bone in his hand Saturday will probably be out for another week.

With the Army game only a few days away, Coach Mal Stevens has plenty of work mapped out for his first string eleven. The West Pointers are coming here with the reputation of having the strongest aggregation of football players in years.

VELVETMEN LOSE CLOSE GAME TO GOODYEAR

A fair sized crowd turned out Sunday afternoon to watch the soccer football game on the J. B. Martin ground between the Velvetmen and Goodyear which the latter won by the score of 1-0.

It was a fast and exciting game throughout and kept the fans on their toes all the time during the two 45-minute halves. The teams were evenly matched, the J. B's doing most of the attacking in the first half with Goodyear having the better of the second half in which they scored their goal. E. Childs gave a remarkable exhibition of goal tending for Goodyear, stopping shots from all angles. Referee Day performed his task very efficiently having the game in hand at all times.

BOSTON COLLEGE REVAMPS ITS SECOND VARSITY

BOSTON, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Coach Joe McKenny made several changes in his Boston college second team, which has seen almost as much varsity action as the regulars here today, when the Eagles resumed work in preparation for the Brown game.

The second team line which contained seven sophomores which shifted about and the revamped formation consisted of Rafferty, Young, J. Kilroy, Anderson, Brosnan, Coccarochio and Divenuti. The second team backfeld also presented a new appearance with Eddie Bond, Chessy Antos, Joe Mirley and Jack Kennedy in the lineup.

Jack Marr, regular varsity halfback returned to the squad today, but Captain McGuick who became ill last week was not able to don his uniform.

RELATIONS BETWEEN YOST AND WIEMAN ONLY FRIENDLY

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 22—(AP)—Relations between Fielding H. Yost and E. E. Weiman, athletic director and football coach, respectively, at the University of Michigan, have been too long and too intimate to be jeopardized by any "minor misunderstanding," the two men declared in a joint statement issued here tonight.

Although the minor misunderstanding was not explained, the reference was generally interpreted as involving the matter of authority in handling the football team, and consequent responsibility for its poor showing this year.

Yost and Weiman have been associated since 1916, when Weiman came from California to Michigan as a student and began his football career under the veteran coach.

All Stars Win

Mahoney's All Stars defeated the Community House Boy Scout troop at Chelsea Parade Monday afternoon by a score of 18 to 0. The lineup for the All Stars was as follows: Mahoney and Hastings, end, Baker and "Chink" Mahoney, tackles, Lamparelli and Coonahan, guards, Duvell center, Hamill qb, Bamber and Whelden halfbacks, Mackenna fb.

Gains were made on end runs by Whelden and Mackenna and forward passes from Bamber to Hamill resulted in the touchdowns. The All Stars would like to challenge any team averaging from 120 to 130 pounds per man, especially the Elizabeth grammar school.

Bill Ray Nearly Recovered

AMHERST, Mass., Oct. 22—(AP)—Bill Ray, who was relied on for one of the regular end positions on the Amherst college football eleven this fall, but who suffered a broken ankle bone in teh first week of practice, may be in the lineup for the game with Wesleyan this week. This news today enchanced Amherst's hopes of a victory in its opening "little three" contest. Today's practice was only a short session in which plays for the Wesleyan tilt were discussed.

MALONEY OUTPOINTS RENAULT IN VERY SLOW BOUT

BOSTON, Oct. 22—(AP)—Jim Maloney, Boston heavyweight, outpointed Jack Renault, of Canada, here tonight in a slow, ten round bout. Neither was able to score many clean blows and both were fatigued before the bout was half over. Maloney weighed 196 and Renault 199.

Maloney was aggressive during the first round when he caught the Canadian with a right hook to the jaw and followed with a left to the head. He then pounded Renault's body and forced him to clinch. Renault failed to land one solid punch during the round.

During the remainder of the bout, both men swung wildly and were often guilty of slapping. Renault flashed for a few seconds in the fourth when he landed a hard right hook which staggered Maloney. The "Boston Fat Boy," however, was able to left jab out of trouble and earn the honors for the round.

Maloney wilted in the sixth and during the next round Renault cut his lip with a right jab. The Canadian failed to press his advantage and Maloney coasted through the remaining rounds for the decision.

Bob Mills of Hill N. H., won on a foul from Tony Fuente of California in the second round of what was to have been an eight round semi-final. In the other bouts Tommy Coyne of Boston, defeated Carl Roach of Everett, in four rounds. Al Walker of New York knocked out Lee Anderson of Boton, in the first round of a four rounder. Harry Foley, Boston, knocked out Sam Filipo, New York, in the first round of a six rounder and Al Delgaldo, New York, scored a technical knockout over Tom Smoot, Boston, halfway through a six round bout.

JOE BARRY SERIOUSLY INJURED IN AUTO CRASH

It was with extreme regret that Norwich baseball fans learned of the injury to Walter (Joe) Barry early Monday morning as he was on his way to New York university where he is a student. Barry, in company with John E. Sullivan and Joseph Cowhey, also of New London were in Barry's car which turned over several times. Sullivan was killed instantly and Barry received a serious gash on his skull which opened the scalp from ear to ear. Cowhey received only minor bruises and cuts. The accident happened near Madison and Barry and Cowhey were taken to Guilford sanatorium where they are patients.

At the sanatorium late last night it was said that Barry was resting comfortably and that recovery was expected if no internal injuries developed. He is conscious but in considerable pain.

Barry was a star athlete of Bulkeley baseball and football teams and had played semi-pro ball in Norwich and New London many times. He was a member of the baseball squad at N. Y. U. playing second base part of the time. During the summer he has been a sports writer for the New York Times and spent almost all of his vacation covering the yacht races. During his high schol years he was connected with The Bulletin covering New London and Bulkeley sports.

BOSTON COLLEGE IS DROPPED FROM NAVY SLATE

BOSTON, Oct. 22—(AP)—Boston college, which has defeated the Navy, 6 to 0, at football, has been dropped from the Annapolis football schedule for 1929, according to advices received by Boston college athletic authorities from Annapolis today.

The telegram from Annapolis revealed no reason for the decision except that it was necessary to drop one of the early season games on the 1929 schedule. Later information received from Annapolis that no other opponent had been chosen to fill the place of Boston college on the schedule, and it was generally believed that the Annapolis athletic authorities regarded Boston college as too stiff an opponent for the Navy to tackle early in the season.

The local college and the Navy played this season under a one-year agreement.

Peck Out for Practice

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Oct. 22—(AP)—Mott Peck, varsity quarterback at Wesleyan university, was in uniform today and went through a light workout. Peck was knocked unconscious in Saturday's game against Rochester nad it was feared he would be unable to start against Amherst this week. All the other Wesleyan regulars reported in first class condition today for a week of intensive drill before the first "little three" contest.

Muller Back in Game

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Oct. 22—(AP)—Ken Muller, regular center of the Williams college football team, was back in uniform today after being out with an injury and missing the Rensselear game last Saturday. Williams has a record of four straight victories and faces Columbia at New York this week. The Williams backfield, including Howe and Langmaid, second highest scorer in the east, is one of the best here in years.

JACK DUNN, OWNER OF BALTIMORE CLUB DROPS DEAD AT FIELD TRIAL

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 22—(AP)—Jack Dunn, owner and manager of the Baltimore Orioles and an outstanding figure in minor league baseball circles for many years, dropped dead from a heart attack today while riding his horse at Field dog trials at Loch Raven, near here. He was 55.

His death occurred a few minutes after he remounted after chasing one of his dogs which had scared up a bird. While astride his horse watching another of his dogs in action, Dunn slumped in his saddle and fell to the ground. Doctors, after examination said that he had died instantly.

Rev. J. T. Coolahan, a Catholic priest who was acting as one of the judges at the trials, administered the last rites for the dying. As the priest murmured the prayer, for the moribund, a group of men and women who had participated in the trials stood about with saddened mien.

Dunn had ben under doctor's care for some time with a heart ailment, which, friends declared, dated from the death five years ago of his son, Jack Dunn, Jr., who was his father's idol.

Surviving the noted sportsman are his widow, a sister, Mrs. P. J. Spain, a brother, James Dunn, of Chicago and a grandson, Jack Dunn, 3rd.

Born in Meadville, Jr., October 5, 1874, Jack Dunn started his baseball career on the sandlots, he rapidly climbed the ladder in his chosen sport until he became sole owner of the Orioles. Under his leadership the Baltimore team won seven consecutive International league pennants from 1919 to 1925, a record unequalled by any other club.

Dunn first played baseball with the Binghamton club in the late nineties. He was known as a great pitcher. Later he went to the Philadelphia National league team.

A number of stars in the major league ball clubs were developed in the game under Dunn's guidance. "Babe" Ruth found his start in organized baseball with Dunn's team. "Lefty" Grove, Joe Boley, Jack Bentley and George Earnshaw are among many others of the big circuit who once played on the Orioles under Dunn.

TOOLE PAYS TRIBUTE TO DUNN'S MEMORY

NEW YORK, Oct. 22—(AP)—The death of Jack Dunn, president of the Baltimore Orioles has cost baseball "one of its most practical and effective members," John Conway Toole, president of the International league declared in a statement today.

"My acquaintance with Dunn extended back to the years before he attained his big position as baseball manager. He was always a skillful and brainy player and concededly could get more out of a club than almost any other manager in the business.

"Mr. Dunn should be classed with the really great managers of the game.

"The International league owes a great debt to Dunn. He was for many years one of the strongest pillars of the organization."

Mr. Toole said the league would be represented at the funeral services and that suitable memorial resolutions would be adopted by the club owners.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN J. GOULD

NEW YORK, Oct. 22—(AP)—The south has a flock of fleet ball carriers, versatile as well in the arts of punting and passing, to be considered when the All-American frenzy breaks out later on.

Dixie broke into the All-American backfield last season with Bill Spears of Vanderbilt qualifying among the country's best. Whether or not this has inspired this year's crop of southern backs, it is a fact that the class of talent throughout the conference is unusually high.

Notre Dame's adherents thought that they had at least two horsemen well equipped for the fray with Georgia Tech in Niemic and Chevigny but most of the rough-riding last Saturday afternoon on Grant field was done by Warner Mixell, triple threat ace of the Tech array, and a raw boned, powerful sophomore, who is known on the Atlanta campus as "Father" Lumpkin.

Lumpkin with two years more ahead of him, looks like one of the most sensational backfield products the south has yet had. A power on defense, Lumpkin hits the line with pile driving force, scattering tacklers in all directions or going on with two or three of the more persistent still attached to him.

Tennessee also has a sophomore star in Jimmy McEver, whose 98 yard run from kickoff for a touchdown against Alabama, is as sensational an individual stunt as the season has witnessed.

"Ole Miss" boasts another sophomore ball toter of unusual talent in Gerald Walker. Georgia has McCrary, a great fullback who was on the second All-American combination last year and a candidate for promotion this year. At Vanderbilt Captain Jimmy Armistead ism doing his best to keep up the good work he shared with Spears last season.

Tulane has a hard hitting back in Bill Banker. So has Virginia Military in Captain "Ab" Barnes while the Pony Express backfield of V. P. I. featuring the versatile Frank Peake, is a familiar threat.

It may be time to count West Virginia back into the eastern picture. The mountaineers were counted out when they stumbled up against Davis and Elkins in their first game and lost. Since then the squad coached by Ira Rodgers, former All-American has staged a big comeback, scoring four successive victories over West Virginia Wesleyan, the Haskell Indians, Pittsburgh and Washington and Lee.

Notre Dame may be able to ease a few aching limbs this week, when the Hoosiers meet Drake before starting their annual eastern campaign, but there is no balm on next Saturday's field for those other battered big fellows, Navy and Michigan. The Middies run plump into Pennsylvania and trouble this week. Michigan, after three straight setbacks will require heroic measures to prevent being given another downward shove by Wisconsin.

It isn't often such a startling table as this record of performances can be put together.

	W.	L.	P.	Op.
Notre Dame	2	2	25	41
Navy	1	3	6	18

EIGHT HARVARD REGULARS ON SLIGHTLY INJURED LIST

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 22—(AP)—Though the football game with the powerful Dartmouth team is but five days away, Head Coach Arnold Horween today decided to refrain from scrimmaging the Harvard varsity this week. He planned to devote all of his time in perfecting the Crimson's forward pass defense, which was woefully weak against the Army on Saturday and polishing up its aerial attack.

Horween excused most of his regulars this afternoon after he pointed out their mistakes against the Cadets. He then put his team B through a scrimmage with an eleven composed of coaches, graduates and ineligibles. When the B players scored five touchdowns, Horween hurled them against a freshman team which used the forward pass to great advantage.

The Harvard injured list contained the names of eight regulars but all of them were expected to be in shape to play aganst Dartmouth. Jack Parkinson and Bill Technon guards; Barrett, a tackle; Wally Harper and Batchelder, backs; were slightly injured in the Army game and they were expected to be able to practice on Wednesday. Jim Douglas, an end, injured last week, also was expected to be able to return to the game this week. The other two players on the list were suffering from slight bruises. The most serious case was that of Joe Cunningham, a guard, who has an injured shoulder which may keep him on the sidelines for the next two weeks.

Springfield to Play Brown

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 22—(AP)—Springfield college will renew football relations next fall with Holy Cross and Brown, it was announced today. The Holy Cross game will be played at Worcester on November 23 and the Brown game at Providence, on October 12. Springfield last played Holy Cross in 1923 and Brown in 1921. The remainder of Springfield's schedule is pending.

Singer Outpoints Tripoli

NEW YORK, Oct. 22—(AP)—Al Singer, New York featherweight outpointed his fellow-townsman, Al Tripoli, in the six round feature bout at the St. Nicholas arena tonight.

Joe Barlow, of Boston, knocked out Leo Williams, Rhode Island negro high heavyweight, in the fifth round of an other six rounder.

Dundee Beats Langford

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 22—(AP)—Joe Dundee, of Baltimore, welter weight champion, won the decision over Walcott Langford, Chicago Negro, in a slashing 10 round bout at the Arena tonight. Both fighters were overweight and Dundee's title was not at stake.

CAR STRIKES ROADSIDE TREE WOMAN GETS SPLIT SKULL

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Oct. 23—Mrs. Eva Golov, wife of Philip Golov, proprietor of two dry goods stores in Roxbury, Mass., and residing at 30 Castle Gate road, Roxbury, is a patient at Westerly hospital with a split skull, as the result of an automobile accident near the King Tom farm, on the Boston post road, about 9 a. m. today. Her mother, Mrs. Rachel Berns is also at the hospital, being treated for possible injuries to her spine. They were attended by Dr. John Champlin, Jr., when taken to the hospital, about 10 o'clock.

State troopers under direction of Sergt. Daniel G. O'Brien of the Hope Valley barracks found that the Massachusetts car had struck a tree by the roadside and literally wrapped itself about it. The car was being driven by Philip Golov who claimed to know nothing of how the accident occurred until he became conscious and found his party nearly hanging in the tree. Neither himself nor infant received serious injuries.

JAIL PENALTY FOR DRIVER OPERATING CAR WHILE DRUNK

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Oct. 23—Andrew McGee, chef at the Elm Tree inn, Pawcatuck, pleaded guilty Monday morning to operation of an automobile while under the influence of liquor, on Broad street, early last Sunday morning, when there was a check-up of automobiles made by the state and town police. Judge Oliver H. Williams in the third district court sentenced him to five days in Providence county jail. On the second count, charged by Chief Brown, operation of an automobile without a license, a suspended sentence was given. McGee was arrested by Lieutenant George H. Champlin, who had sent the man to secure his license and only realized his condition when he discovered the man so far under the influence of liquor as to be almost unable to walk.

NEW SEXTON BAMBOOZLES VILLAGE FIRE FIGHTERS

Sunday morning at 9 o'clock the Baptist church bell rings, to let everyone know that church services will start in one hour. It has been that way for 70 years. A new sexton, taking the place of the late Charles Palmer, did not know how many times to ring the bell. All over five strokes it is a fire. The bell rang ten to 12 times Sunday and the Smoke Eaters came on the run to the fire house looking for the fire. Earl Fost, who has run many times when the fire bell rang and found it was only calling the members to church, running up Palmer hill, lost his wind and had to sit down for a few minutes. At the fire house there were 20 firemen ready to go—doors all opening, engine going, when the smallest fireman, Charles Ellis, came and said, "That is only for church!" He was laughing. One fireman, B. Burns, was in his bare feet and had no shirt on. Secretary John Ellis had the book all ready for the roll call. No matter what time the fire bell rings, the Smoke Eaters are always ready to go. Finally Foreman Walter Palmer told his men to go home and finish their coffee and toast and take the day off and not to look for fires. The sexton of the church will soon get used to the bell schedule and not send the Smoke Eaters on any more useless runs.

AFTER ALL IT WAS FOG TO BLAME FOR MYSTERY CASE

A mystery case had the fishermen guessing for the last two weeks and a real Sherlock Holmes was on the case from Massachusetts to find out what fisherman owned the oilers and sweater, also rubber boots, left on the packing house one dark morning at 3 o'clock. The fishermen who leave their boats tied up at that dock were worried over the missing man. They checked up and found that everything was all right. So Policeman Moran of Massachusetts was sent for to find out whom the boots and oilers fitted. After working hard on the mystery case he was standing on the corner of Pearl and Main streets where several fellows were talking loud. As Pete Moran was puffing away on a good ten cent cigar one fellow said, "Where are my new boots you took fishing a few weeks ago?" Stopping to think, he said, "I left them on some dock—but cannot tell which one!" Detective Moran went over and took the fisherman down to the dock and asked him, "Are those the things that belong to you?" "Yes," John Bracci said. So he told the story. "It was dark that morning. I could not see a hand in front of me. Going down to the wrong dock and waiting for my captain to come, I laid down my fisherman's stuff. Soon, over at Rogers dock, a foghorn was blowing for me to go on a two weeks' fishing trip. Leaving a long speed to make the boat before I lost out, I forgot my oilers." "Well," Detective Moran said, "you had the village worried—and the fishermen thought it meant foul play or that someone fell overboard. So be careful—for it cost money to get me here to clear up the mystery case!"

CAPT. MAIN INJURED DURING BLOCK ISLAND TRIP

The fishing fleet, nine boats, was off to the shores of Block Island Saturday night after flatfish. They got caught in a blow and rough water, so that several of the fishermen were seasick. Capt. Durwood Main of boat Doris C. was hauling in the net when a big wave came and knocked him against the cabin and hurt his ribs. At first Mate Muse thought he had several ribs broken and had a hard job getting to his captain, as the wind was blowing 62 miles an hour. He found him in bad shape; helping him up, Captain Main said: "I will steer the boat home!" So homeward bound, they started with seven barrels of fish for a night's work. It will be a day before Captain Main will be able to return to his duties. In all, 100 barrels of fish were forwarded by the fleet to New York. The boat Cannonball lost some rope and part of a sail, which the wind took away. It was the worst storm the fishing men had seen this year. There is plenty of flatfish if the wind would stop blowing—a chance for the sea captain to get their houses painted while the fish is bringing good money. They've got to make good at fishing now for when cold weather comes and the river is frozen the fleet will have to tie up. Now the fishermen are fishing seven nights a week.

Elwood Zuccardy, head bookkeeper with the Texas Oil Co. in Boston for eight years, was working away and had 75 to look out for, when Supt. Jerry Carr came in and asked young Zuccardy, "How would you like to have charge of an office in Newport, R. I., for the Texas Oil Co. and have 100 office help? I know it is hard for you to leave us—but it is a good chance to get higher up!" Zuccardy said, "All right!" The office force heard about losing their head bookkeeper and he was given a wrist watch, Miss Jessie Longman making the presentation speech and wishing him luck and success in his new duties at Newport.

No Other Car Like This

A New and Larger Victory Six by Dodge Brothers

Until you have seen, experienced and passed upon Victory smartness and performance, you can't possibly realize what a great car the new Victory Six is—and why the world is so emphatically sold on its amazing value.

NEW AND EXCLUSIVE Victory Six construction sets the highest standard yet known for riding ease and roadability.

BODY AND CHASSIS are mutually designed for each other. The body is bolted directly to the chassis frame, replacing the usual body sills and eliminating body overhang.

RECENT AND VITAL improvements have been announced including still greater roominess and luxury, wider doors and windows, greater vision areas, more generous leg room and still richer interior appointments.

BRILLIANT Victory Six performance is unparalleled for quick pick-up, instant acceleration, speed and flexibility.

Three Great Driving Advantages of Exclusive Victory Construction

Lowering the center of gravity brings the weight of body and passengers nearer the ground. You feel that you are riding IN the car and not ON it. The Victory grips the road more firmly, and is safer and easier to handle on sharp curves.

Victory riding ease on all kinds of roads is nothing less than marvelous. The strength and rigidity of Victory coachwork contributes to the enjoyment of passengers by eliminating squeaks and rattles.

The perfection of Victory balance benefits all phases of performance. Steering is amazingly easy, acceleration is faster and smoother, and hydraulic four-wheel braking is extraordinarily efficient.

HOOVER WOULD PROTECT BUSINESS FROM GOVERNMENT ENCROACHMENT

NEW YORK, Oct. 22—(AP)—The text of Herbert Hoover's address in Madison Square Garden here tonight follows:

"This campaign now draws near a close. The platforms of the two parties defining principles and offering solutions of various national problems have been presented and are being earnestly considered by our people.

"After four months' debate it is not the republican party which finds reason for abandonment of any of the principles it has laid down, or of the views it has expressed for solution of the problems before the country. The principles to which it adheres are rooted deeply in the foundations of our national life. The solutions which it proposes are based on experience with government and on a consciousness that it may have the responsibility for placing those solutions in action.

"In my acceptance speech I endeavored to outline the spirit and ideals by which I would be guided in carrying that platform into administration. Tonight I will not deal with the multitude of issues which have been already well canvassed. I intend rather to discuss some of those more fundamental principles and ideals upon which I believe the government of the United States should be conducted.

"The republican party has ever been a party of progress. I do not need to review its 70 years of constructive history. It has always reflected the spirit of the American people. Never has it done more for the advancement of fundamental progress than during the past seven and a half years since we took over the government amidst the ruin left by war.

Republican Achievements

"It detracts nothing from the character and energy of the American people, it minimizes in no degree the quality of their accomplishments to say that the policies of the republican party have played a large part in recuperation from the war and the building of the magnificent progress which shows upon every hand today. I say with emphasis that without the wise policies which the republican party has brought into action during this period no such progress would have been possible.

"The first responsibility of the republican administration was to renew the march of progress from its collapse by the war. That task involved the restoration of confidence in the future and the liberation and stimulation of the constructive energies of our people. It discharged that task. There is not a person within the sound of my voice that does not know the profound progress which our country has made in this period. Every man and woman knows that American comfort, hope and confidence for the future are immeasureably higher this day than they were seven and one-half years ago.

"It is not my purpose to enter upon a detailed recital of the great constructive measures of the past seven and a half years by which this has been brought about. It is sufficient to remind you of the restoration of employment to the millions who walked your streets in idleness; to remind you of the creation of the budget system; the reduction of six billions of national debt which gave the powerful impulse of that vast sum returned to industry and commerce; the four sequent reductions of taxes and thereby the lift to the living of every family; the enactment of adequate protective tariff and immigration laws which have safeguarded our workers and farmers from floods of goods and labor from foreign countries; the creation of credit facilities and many other aids to agriculture; the building up of foreign trade; the care of veterans; the development of aviation, of radio, of our inland waterways, of our highways; the expansion of scientific research, of welfare activities, the making of safer highways, safer mines, better homes; the spread of outdoor recreation; the improvement in public health and the care of children; and a score of other progressive actions.

Economic and Social System

"Nor do I need to remind you that government today deals with an economic and social system vastly more intricate and delicately adjusted than ever before. That system now must be kept in perfect tune if we would maintain uninterrupted employment and the high standards of living of our people. The government has come to touch this delicate web at a thousand points. Yearly the relations of government to national prosperity become more and more intimate. Only through keen vision and helpful cooperation has stability in business and stability in employment been maintained this past seven and a half years. There are always some localities, some industries and some individuals who do not share the prevailing prosperity. The task of government is to lessen these inequalities.

"Never has there been a period when the federal government has given such aid and impulse to the progress of our people, not alone to economic progress but to the development of those agencies which make for moral and spiritual progress.

"But in addition to this great record of contributions of the republican party to progress there has been a further fundamental contribution—a contribution underlying and sustaining all the others—and that is the resistance of the republican party to every attempt to inject the government into business in competition with its citizens.

"After the war, when the republican party assumed administration of the country, we were faced with the problem of determination of the very nature of our national life. During 150 years we have builded up a form of self-government and a social system which is peculiarly our own. It differs essentially from all others in the world. It is the American system. It is just as definite and positive a political and social system as has ever been developed on earth. It is founded upon a particular conception of self-government, in which decentralized local responsibility is the very base. Further than this, it is founded upon the conception that only through ordered liberty, freedom and equal opportunity to the individual will his initiation and enterprise spur on the march of progress, and in our insistence upon equality of opportunity has our system advanced beyond all the world.

During the war we necessarily turned to the government to solve every difficult economic problem. The government having absorbed every energy of our people for war, there was no other solution. For the preservation of the state the federal government became a centralized despotism which undertook unprecedented responsibilities, assumed autocratic powers, and took over the business of citizens. To a large degree we regimented our whole people temporarily into a socialistic state. However justified in time of war, if continued in peace time it would destroy not only our American system but with it our progress and freedom as well.

Reconstruction Period

When the war closed the most vital of all issues both in our own country and throughout the world was whether governments should continue their wartime ownership and operation of many instrumentalities of production and distribution. We were challenged with a peace-time choice between the American system of rugged individualism and a European philosophy of diametrically opposed doctrines—doctrines of paternalism and state socialism. The acceptance of these ideas would have meant the destruction of self-government through centralization of government. It would have meant the undermining of the individual initiative and enterprise through which our people have grown to unparalleled greatness.

"The republican party from the beginning resolutely turned its face away from these ideas and these war practices. A republican congress cooperated with the democratic administration to demobilize many of our war activities. At that time the two parties were in accord upon that point. When the republican party came into full power it went at once resolutely back to our fundamental conception of the state and the rights and responsibilities of the individual. Thereby it restored confidence and hope in the American people, it freed and stimulated enterprise, it restored the government to its position as an umpire instead of a player in the economic game. For these reasons the American people have gone forward in progress while the rest of the world has halted, and some countries have even gone backwards. If anyone will study the causes of retarded recuperation in Europe, he will find much of it due to the stifling of private initiative on one hand and overloading of the government with business on the other.

"There has been revived in this campaign, however, a series of proposals which, if adopted, would be a long step toward the abandonment of our American system and a surrender to the destructive operation of governmental conduct of commercial business. Because the country is faced with difficulty and doubt over certain national problems—that is, prohibition, farm relief and electrical power—our opponents propose that we must thrust government a long way into the businesses which give rise to these problems. In effect, they abandon the tenets of their own party and turn to state socialism as a solution for the difficulties presented by all three. It is proposed that we shall change from prohibition to the state purchase and sale of liquor. If their agricultural relief program means anything, it means that the government shall directly or indirectly buy and sell and fix prices of agricultural products. And we are to go into the hydro-electric power business. In other words, we are confronted with a huge program of government in business.

"There is, therefore, submitted to the American people a question of fundamental principle. That is:

Protects Private Business

"Shall we depart from the principles of our American political and economic system, upon which we have advanced beyond all the rest of the world, in order to adopt methods based on principles destructive of its very foundations? And I wish to emphasize the seriousness of these proposals. I wish to make my position clear, for this goes to the very roots of American life and progress.

"I should like to state to you the effect that this projection of government in business would have upon our system of self-government and our economic system. That effect would reach to the daily life of every man and woman. It would impair the very basis of liberty and freedom not only for those left outside the fold of expanded bureaucracy but for those embraced within it.

"Let us first see the effect upon self-government. When the federal government undertakes to go into commercial business it must at once set up the organization and administration of that business, and it immediately finds itself in a labyrinth, every alley of which leads to the destruction of self-government.

"Commercial business requires a concentration of responsibility. Self-government requires decentralization and many checks and balances to safeguard liberty. Our government to succeed in business would need become in effect a despotism. There at once begins the destruction of self-government.

"The first problem of the government about to adventure in commercial business is to determine a method of administration. It must secure leadership and direction. Shall this leadership be chosen by political agencies or shall we make it elective? The hard practical fact is that leadership in business must come through the sheer rise in ability and character. That rise can only take place in the free atmosphere of competition. Competition is closed by bureaucracy. Political agencies are feeble channels through which to select able leaders to conduct commercial business.

"Government, in order to avoid the possible incompetence, corruption and tyranny of too great authority in individuals entrusted with commercial business, inevitably turns to boards and commissions. To make sure that there are checks and balances, each member of such boards and commissions must have equal authority. Each has his separate responsibility to the public, and at once we have the conflict of ideas and the lack of decision which would ruin any commercial enterprise. It has contributed greatly to the demoralization of our shipping business. Moreover, these commissions must be representative of different sections and different political parties, so that at once we have an entire blight upon co-ordinated action within their ranks which destroys any possibility of effective administration.

"Moreover our legislative bodies cannot in fact delegate their full authority to commissions or to individuals for the conduct of matters vital to the American people; for if we would preserve government by the people we must preserve the authority of our legislators in the activities of our government.

Solons Not Business Men

"Thus every time the federal government goes into a commercial business 531 senators and congressmen become the actual board of directors of that business. Every time a state government goes into business one or two hundred state senators and legislators become the actual directors of that business. Even if they were supermen, if there were no politics in the United States, no body of such numbers could competently direct commercial activities; for that requires initiative instant decision and action. It took congress six years of constant discussion to even decide what the method of administration of Muscle Shoals should be.

"When the federal government undertakes to go into business the state governments are at once deprived of control and taxation of that business; when a state government undertakes to go into business it at once deprives the municipalities of taxation and control of that business. Municipalities, being local and close to the people, can, at times, succeed in business where federal and state governments must fail.

"We have trouble enough with logrolling in legislative bodies today. It originates naturally from desires of citizens to advance their particular section or to secure some necessary service. It would be multiplied a thousand-fold were the federal and state governments in these businesses.

Business Dependent on Competition

"The effect upon our economic progress would be even worse. Business progressiveness is dependent on competition. New methods and new ideas are the outgrowth of the spirit of adventure, of individual initiative and of individual enterprise. Without adventure there is no progress. No government administration can rightly take chances with taxpayers' money.

"There is no better example of the practical incompetence of government to conduct business than the history of our railways. During the war the government found it necessary to operate the railways. That operation continued until after the war. In the years before being freed from government operation they were not able to meet the demands for transportation. Eight years later we find them under private enterprise transporting 15 per cent more goods and meeting every demand for service. Rates have been reduced by 15 per cent, and net earnings increased from less than 1 per cent of their valuation to about 5 per cent. Wages of employes have improved by 13 per cent. The wages of railway employes are today 121 per cent above pre-war, while the wages of government employes are today only 65 per cent above pre-war. That should be a sufficient commentary upon the efficiency of government operation.

"Let us now examine this question from the point of view of the person who may get a government job and is admitted into the new bureaucracy. Upon that subject let me quote from a speech of that great leader of labor, Samuel Gompers delivered in Montreal in 1920, a few years before his death. He said:

"'I believe there is no man to whom I would take second position in my loyalty to the republic of the United States, and yet I would not give it more power over the individual citizenship of our country. * * *

"'It is a question of whether it shall be government ownership or private ownership under control. * * * If I were in the minority of one in this convention I would want to cast my vote so that the men of labor shall not willingly enslave themselves to government authority in their industrial effort for freedom. * * *

"'Let the future tell the story of who is right or who is wrong; who has stood for freedom and who has been willing to submit their fate industrially to the government.'

"I would amplify Mr. Gompers' statement. The great body of government employes which would be created by the proposals of our opponents would either comprise a political machine at the disposal of the party in power, or, alternatively, to prevent this the government by stringent civil service rules must debar its employes from their full political rights as free men.

"It must limit them in the liberty to bargain for their own wages, for no government employe can strike against his government and thus against the whole people. It makes a legislative body with all its political currents the final employer and master. Their bargaining does not rest upon economic need or economic strength but on political potence.

"But what of those who are outside the bureaucracy? What is the effect upon their lives?

"The area of enterprise and opportunity for them to serve and rise is at once limited.

"The government in commercial business does not tolerate amongst its customers the freedom of competitive reprisals to which private business is subject. Bureaucracy does not tolerate the spirit of independence. It spreads the spirit of submission into our daily life and penetrates the temper our our people not with the habit of powerful resistance to wrong but with the habit of timid acceptance of irresistible might.

Bureaucracy and Business

"Bureaucracy is ever desirous of spreading its influence and its power. You cannot extend the mastery of the government over the daily working life of a people without at the same time making it the master of the people's souls and thoughts. Every expansion of government in business means that government in order to protect itself from the political consequences of its errors and wrongs is driven irredatibly without peace to greater and greater control of the nation's press and platform. Free speech does not live many hours after free industry and free commerce die.

"It is a false liberalism that interprets itself into the government operation of commercial business. Every step of bureaucratizing of the business of our country poisons the very roots of liberalism—that is, political equality, free speech, free assembly, free press and equality of opportunity. It is the road not to more liberty but to less liberty. Liberalism should be found not striving to spread bureaucracy but striving to set bounds to it. True liberalism seeks all legitimate freedom first in the confident belief that without such freedom the pursuit of all other blessings and benefits is vain. That belief is the foundation of all American progress, political as well as economic.

"Liberalism is a force truly of the spirit, a force proceeding from the deep realization that economic freedom cannot be sacrificed if political freedom is to be preserved. Even if government conduct of business could give no more efficiency instead of less efficiency, the fundamental objection to it would remain unaltered and unabated. It would destroy political equality. It would increase rather than decrease abuse and corruption. It would stifle initiative and invention. It would undermine the development of leadership. It would cramp and cripple the mental and spiritual energies of our people. It would extinguish equality and opportunity. It would dry up the spirit of liberty and progress. For these reasons primarily it must be resisted. For 150 years liberalism has found its true spirit in the American system, not in the European systems.

"I do no wish to be misunderstood in this statement. I am defining a general policy. It does not mean that our government is to part with one iota of its national resources without complete protection to the public interest. I have already stated that where the government is engaged in public works for purposes of flood control, of navigation, of irrigation, of scientific research of national defense, or in pioneering a new art, it will at times necessarily produce power or commodities as a by-product, but they must be a by-product of the major purpose, not the major purpose itself.

"Nor do I wish to be misinterpreted as believing that the United States is free for-all and devil-take-the-hindmost. The very essence of equality of opportunity and of American individualism is that there shall be no domination by any group or combination in this republic, whether it be business or political. On the contrary, it demands economic justice as well as political and social justice. It is no system of laissez faire.

Failures of Government in Business

"I feel deeply on this subject because during the war I had some practical experience with governmental operation and control. I have witnessed not only at home but abroad the many failures of government in business. I have seen its tyrannies, its injustices, its destructions of self-government, its undermining of the very instincts which carry our people forward to progress. I have witnessed the lack of advance, the lowered standards of living, the depressed spirits of people working under such a system. My objection is based not upon theory or upon a failure to recognize wrong or abuse, but I know the adoption of such methods would strike at the very roots of American life and would destroy the very basis of America progress.

"Our people have the right to know whether we can continue to solve our great problems without abandonment of our American system. I know we can. We have demonstrated that our system is responsive enough to meet any new and intricate development in our economic and business life. We have demonstrated that we can meet any economic problem and still maintain our democracy as master in its own house and that we can at the same time preserve equality of opportunity and individual freedom.

"In the last 50 years we have discovered that mass production will produce articles for us at half the cost they required previously. We have seen the resultant growth of large units of production and distribution. This is big business. Many businesses must be bigger, for our tools are bigger, our country is bigger. We now build a single dynamo of 100,000 horse power. Even 15 years ago that would have been a big business all by itself. Yet today advance in production requires that we set 10 of these units together in a row.

"The American people from bitter experience have a rightful fear that great business units might be used to dominate our industrial life and by illegal and unethical practices destroy equality of opportunity.

"Years ago the republican administration established the principle that such evils could be corrected by regulation. It developed methods by which abuses could be retained for the public. It insisted upon the principle that when great public utilities were clothed with the security of partial monopoly, whether it be railways, power plants, telephones, or what not then there must be the fullest and most complete control of rates, services and finances by government or local agencies. It declared that these businesses must be conducted with glass pockets.

"As to our great manufacturing and distributive industries, the republican party insisted upon the enactment of laws that not only would maintain competition, but would destroy conspiracies to destroy the smaller units or dominate and limit the equality of opportunity amongst our people.

"One of the great problems of government is to determine to what extent the government shall regulate and control commerce and industry and how much it shall leave it alone. No system is perfect. We have had many abuses in the private conduct of business. That every good citizen resents. It is just as important that business keep out of government as that government keep out of business.

"Nor am I setting up the contention that our institutions are perfect. No human ideal is ever perfectly attained, since humanity itself is not perfect.

"The wisdom of our forefathers in their conception that progress can only be attained as the sum of the accomplishment of free individuals has been reinforced by all of the great leaders of the country since that day. Jackson, Lincoln, Cleveland, McKinley, Roosevelt, Wilson and Coolidge have stood inalterably for these principles.

Results of American System

"And what have been the results of our American system? Our country has become the land of opportunity to those born without inheritance, not merely because of the wealth of its resources and industry but because of this freedom of initiative and enterprise. Russia has natural resources equal to ours. Her people are equally industrious, but she had not had the blessings of 150 years of our form of government and of our social system.

"By adherence to the principles of decentralized self-government, ordered liberty, equal opportunity and freedom to the individual, our American experiment in human welfare has yielded a degree of well-being unparalleled in all the world. It has come near to the abolition of poverty, to the abolition of fear of want, than humanity has ever reached before. Progress of the past seven years is proof of it. This alone furnishes the answer to our opponents who ask us to introduce destructive elements into the system by which this has been accomplished.

"Let us see what this system has done for us in our recent years of difficult and trying reconstruction and let us then solemnly ask ourselves if we now wish to abandon it.

"As a nation we came out of the war with great losses. We made no profits from it. The apparent increases in wages were at that time fictitious. We were poorer as a nation when we emerged from the war. Yet during these last eight years we have recovered from these losses and increased our national income by over one-third, even if we discount the inflation of the dollar. That there has been a wide diffusion of our gain in wealth and income is marked by a hundred proofs. I know of no better test of the improved conditions of the average family than the combined increase in assets of life and industrial insurance, building and loan associations and savings deposits. These are the savings banks of the average man. These agencies alone have in seven years increased by nearly 100 per cent, to the gigantic sum of over 50 billions of dollars, or nearly one-sixth of our whole national wealth. We have increased in home ownership, we have expanded the investments of the average man.

"In addition to these evidences of large savings, our people are steadily increasing their spending for higher standards of living. Today there are almost 9 automobiles for each 10 families where seven and one-half years ago only enough automobiles were running to average less than 4 for each 10 families. The slogan of progress is changing from the full dinner pail to the full garage. Our people have more to eat, better things to wear, and better homes. We have even gained in elbow room, for the increase of residential floor space is over 25 per cent with less than 10 per cent increase in our number of people. Wages have increased. The job to every man and woman has been made more secure. We have in this short period decreased the fear of poverty, the fear of unemployment, the fear of old age, and these are fears that are the greatest calamities of human kind.

All this progress means far more than greater creature comforts. It finds a thousand interpretations into a greater and fuller life. A score of new helps save the drudgery of the home. In seven years we have added 70 per cent to the electric power at the elbow of our workers and further promoted them from carriers of burdens to directors of machines. We have steadily reduced the sweat in human labor. Our hours of labor are lessened, our leisure has increased. We have expanded our parks and playgrounds. We have nearly doubled our attendance at games. We poured into outdoor recreation in every direction. The visitors at our national parks have trebled and we have so increased the number of sportsmen fishing in our streams and lakes that the longer time between bites is becoming a political issue. In these seven and one-half years the radio has brought music and laughter, education and political discussion to almost every fireside.

Springing from our prosperity with its freedom, its vast endowment of scientific research and the greater resources with which to care for public health, we have according to our insurance actuaries during this short period since the war lengthened the average span of life by nearly eight years.

Decreased Days of Illness

We have reduced infant mortality. We have vastly decreased the days of illness and suffering in the life of every man and woman. We have improved the facilities for the care of the crippled and helpless and deranged.

From our increasing resources we have expanded our educational system in eight years from an outlay of 1,200 millions to 2,700 millions of dollars. The education of our youth has become almost our largest and certainly our most important activity. From our greater income and thus our ability to free youth from toil we have increased the attendance in our grade schools by 14 per cent, in our high schools by 80 per cent, and in our institutions of higher learning by 96 per cent. Today we have more youth in these institutions of higher learning twice over than all the rest of the world put together. We have made notable progress in literature, in art and in public taste.

We have made progress in the leadership of every branch of American life. Never in our history was the leadership in our economic life more distinguished in its abilities than today, and it has grown greatly in its consciousness of public responsibility. Leadership in our professions and in moral and spiritual affairs of our country was never of a higher order. And our magnificent educational system is bringing forward a host of recruits for the succession in this leadership.

I do not need to recite more figures and more evidence. I cannot believe that the American people wish to abandon or in any way to weaken the principles of economic freedom and self government which have been maintained by this republican party and which have produced results so amazing and so stimulating to the spiritual as well as the material side of life of this nation.

Your city has been an outstanding beneficiary of this great progress and of these safeguarded principles. With its suburbs it has during the last seven and a half years, grown by over a million and a half people until it has become the largest metropolitan district of all the world. Here you have made abundant opportunity not only for the youth of the land but for the immigrant from foreign shores. This city is the commercial center of the United States. It is the commercial agent of the American people. It is a great organism of specialized skill and leadership in finance, industry and commerce, which reaches every spot in our country. Its progress and its beauty are the pride of the whole American people. It leads our nation in its benevolences of charity to education and science research. It is the center of art, music, literature and drama. It has come to have a more potent voice than any other city in the United States.

Prosperity Depends on All

But when all is said and done the very life, progress and prosperity of this city is wholly dependent on the prosperity of the 115,000,000 people who dwell in our mountains and valleys across the 3,000 miles to the Pacific ocean. Every activity of this city is sensitive to every evil and every favorable tide that sweeps this great nation of ours. Be there a slackening of industry in any place it affects New York far more than any other part of the country. In a time of depression one-quarter of all the unemployed in the United States can be numbered in this city. In a time of prosperity the citizens of the great interior of our country buy into your city for business and entertainment at the rate of [illegible] a day. In fact so much is the city the relief of the varied interests of our country that the security of every one of your citizens for national stability, from personal prosperity to national security, for national progress, for preservation of our American system, is far greater that that of any other single part of this country.

We still have great problems if we would achieve the full economic advancement of our country. In the past few years some groups in our country have lagged behind others in the march of progress. I refer more particularly to those engaged in the textile, coal and in the agricultural industry. We shall need to advance initial capital to assist them to stabilize their industry. But this pro-

Are You Run Down, Weak, Nervous?

To have plenty of firm flesh and the ability to do a big day's work and feel "like a two-year old" at night, you must eat three good meals a day, relish your food and properly digest it. If you can't eat, can't sleep, can't work, just take a teaspoonful of Tanlac before meals.

Mr. Stephen Vitale, of 127 Springdale Ave., Meriden, Conn., says: "I was a weak, thin, puny boy and grew up to manhood in that condition. But Tanlac fixed me up. It increased my appetite and made my stomach all over so I could digest everything. I gained 25 lbs."

Tanlac is wonderful for indigestion and constipation—gas, pains, nausea, dizziness and headaches. It brings back lost appetite, helps you digest your food, and gain strength and weight. It contains no mineral drugs; it is made of roots, barks and herbs, nature's own medicines for the sick. The cost is less than 2 cents a dose. Get a bottle from your druggist. Your money back if it doesn't help.

HOOVER WOULD PROTECT BUSINESS

posal implies that they shall conduct it themselves, and not by the government. It is in the interest of our cities that we shall bring agriculture and all industries into full stability and prosperity. I know you will gladly cooperate in the faith that in the common prosperity of our country lies its future.

In bringing this address to a conclusion I should like to restate to you some of the fundamental things I have endeavored to bring out.

The foundations of progress and prosperity are dependent as never before upon the wise policies of government, for government now touches at a thousand points the intricate web of economic and social life.

Unparalleled Progress

Under administration by the republican party in the last 7 1-2 years our country as a whole has made unparralleled progress and this has been in generous part reflected to this great city. Prosperity is no idle expression. It is a job for every worker; it is the safety and the safeguard of every business and every home. A continuation of the policies of the republican party is fundamentally necessary to the further advancement of this progress and to the further building up of this prosperity.

I have dwelt at some length on the principles of relationship between the government and business. I make no apologies for dealing with this subject. The first necessity of any nation is the smooth functioning of the vast machinery for employment, feeding, clothing, housing and providing luxuries and comforts to a people. Unless these basic elements are properly organized and function, there can be no progress in business, in education, literature, music or art. There can be no advance in the fundamental ideals of a people. A people cannot make progress in poverty.

I have endeavored to present to you that the greatness of America has grown out of a political and social system and a method of control of economic forces distinctly its own—our American system—which has carried this great experiment in human welfare farther than ever before in all history. We are nearer today to the ideal of the abolition of poverty and fear from the life of men and women than ever before in any land. And I can again repeat that the departure from our American system by injecting principles contrary to it which our opponents propose will jeopardize the very liberty and freedom of our people, will destroy equality of oppotunity not alone to ourselves but to our children.

To me the foundation of American life rests upon the home and the family. I read into these great economic forces, these intricate and delicate relations of the government with business and with our political and social life, but one supreme end—that we reinforce the ties that bind together the millions of our families, that we strengthen the security, the happiness and the independence of every home.

Land of Freedom

My conception of America is a land where men and women may walk in ordered freedom in the independent conduct of their occupations; where they may enjoy the advantages of wealth, not concentrated in the hands of the few but spread through the lives of all, where they shall build and safeguard their homes, and give to their children the fullest advantages and opportunities of American life; where every man shall be respected in the faith that his conscience and his heart direct him to follow; where a contented and happy people, secure in their liberties, free from poverty and fear, shall have the leisure and impulse to seek a fuller life.

Some may ask where all this may lead beyond mere material progress. It leads to a release of the energies of men and women from the dull drudgery of life to a wider vision and a higher hope. It leads to the opportunity for greater and greater service, not alone from man to man in our own land, but from our country to the whole world. It leads to an America, healthy in body, healthy in spirit, unfettered, youthful, eager—with a vision searching beyond the farthest horizons, with an open mind sympathetic and generous. It is to these higher ideals and for these purposes that I pledge myself and the republican party.

Burgess Bedtime Story

Peter Rabbit Begins to Wonder

Look long and hard, for if you do,
You're pretty sure to find a clew.
—Peter Rabbit

The first one Sammy Jay saw after leaving Jimmy Skunk was Peter Rabbit. You see, Sammy had flown directly over to the dear Old Briar-Patch. As soon as he saw Sammy Peter knew that Sammy had news.

"What are you carrying on your mind this time, Sammy Jay?" asked Peter.

"How do you know I am carrying anything on my mind at all?" snapped Sammy Jay.

"I can tell by the looks of you, Sammy," said Peter. "You can't fool me. You've got some news. I can see it in your eyes. What is it, Sammy?"

"What would you say," replied Sammy, "if I should tell you that Jimmy Skunk met with an accident?"

"I would say it is too bad," replied Peter. "I hope it isn't serious."

"What would you say," continued Sammy, "if I should say that that accident is the result of an attack on Jimmy?"

"I should say that somebody had been very foolish," replied Peter promptly.

"I should say that somebody had been very foolish," replied Peter promptly. "Who was it?"

"That I don't know," replied Sammy, "but Jimmy Skunk has a tear in his coat and he is walking on three legs, because one leg is lame. That is the best news I made up a story. Now, who do you suppose would dare attack Jimmy Skunk?"

"No one with any sense at all," replied Peter. "A silly dog who had never seen him before and didn't know anything about him might do it, but I cannot imagine anyone who knows anything about Jimmy Skunk trying such a thing."

"Neither can I," said Sammy, "and I certainly would like to know who it was."

Sammy flew off to spread the news through the Green Forest and the Old Orchard. Peter sat for a long time in the dear old Briar-Patch, wondering who it could be that had dared to attack Jimmy Skunk. First he would scratch one ear with a long hindfoot, then he would scratch the other long ear with the other long hindfoot. Peter seems to think it helps him to think when he does this. Of course, it doesn't really.

"There are Old Man Coyote," said Peter to himself, "and Mrs. Coyote and Reddy Fox and Mrs. Reddy and Yowler the Bobcat and Buster Bear—any one of whom would be glad of a dinner of Jimmy Skunk; yet not one of them but knows all about Jimmy's little scent gun and is wise enough to keep a respectful distance from Jimmy. In fact, I can't imagine anyone who would care take a chance, even if he had surprised Jimmy. I wonder who it could have been."

Now Peter never can sit still very long when he is curious about something. So after a while, when little Mrs. Peter had her head turned, Peter slipped out of the dear Old Briar-Patch and started lippety-lippety-lip across the Green Meadows for the Green Forest. He wanted to find out who had dared to attack Jimmy Skunk and there was no chance of finding out anything of that kind if he remained in the dear Old Briar-Patch.

"I wonder who it could have been," he kept saying with each hop he made. "I wonder who it could have been"

CURTIS CONFIDENT THAT STATE IS FOR HOOVER

Full of confidence in the outcome of the campaign, both in the east and west, Senator Charles Curtis, republican vice president nominee, left Hartford in his private car at 5:50 Monday morning bound for Utica, N. Y.

Not only is the republican vice-presidential candidate confident that Connecticut will return a "good substantial republican majority," but, after a tour that has taken hi mto virtually all sections of the country, he feels sure that the section of the nation in which agricultural discontent has reached its highest point and which has sometimes been represented as in revolt against the dominant group in the republican party, will also go strongly for Hoover and Curtis. The northwestern tier of states, embracing Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Montana and Dakotas are headed for the republican column, in the opinion of Senator Curtis, who spoke in that section of the country a few weeks ago. Senator Curtis thinks New Jersey is to be counted a republican state. He said that talks with some fifteen prominent Connecticut republicans over the week end had convinced him that this state was safe.

A new means of locating sunken submarines is being developed at the Stockholm navy yard. The method consists in discharging signal bombs from the sunken craft to the surface of the water. The bombs, which explode with fire and smoke, thereby giving the location of the disabled vessel, will be placed in groups on the deck of the submarine tower, and released from the engine room by means of air pressure. If discharged from a depth of 93 feet, the bomb will light the flame that will stay lighted for three minutes and can be seen widely around. The distance between the bombs will tell the rescue ships whether the submarine remains stationary or is carried along by the undertow.

In pre-automobile days, the town council of Fredericksburg, Va., passed a speed law to fine people who let their horses gallop on busy streets.

Make Him a Happy Baby

Many a child's disposition has been permanently spoiled because of diaper irritation in infancy, causing rashes and even more serious disorders. 1. Here are automobiles in a few parking spaces at Connecticut factories.
2. Republican protection, stopping foreign competition of manufactured articles made by cheaply paid labor, keeps these factories running.
3. For 70 years past, the Republican party has been for high protective tariffs; for 70 years past the Democratic party has been for low tariff.
4. Candidate Smith has declared for a "competitive" tariff. This means "competition" with cheaply paid foreign labor.
5. Vice-Presidential Candidate Robinson said at Charlotte, N. C., only a month ago, "The necessity is not for higher tariff duties, but rather for the reduction of these duties on manufactured articles."
6. The official Democratic platform on tariff pledges "duties that will permit effective competition."

LARGE VOLUME OF SELLING CAUSED WIDE FLUCTUATION IN THE MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 23—(AP)—Extremely wide fluctuations again marked today's trading in stock market, which was called upon to absorb an unusually large volume of selling. Spectacular advances of 10 to 40 points in a handful of high-priced specialties were offset by a few drastic breaks and a long list of net net declines of 1 to 5 points. Total sales exceeded the 4,000,000 share mark for the sixth consecutive full session, but the ticker managed to keep fairly well abreast of the market.

Much of the day's selling is believed to have been inspired by bearish commission house comment. Week end news developments were generally favorable in character, including the announcement of record-breaking September motor output, stiffening of copper metal prices and reports of progress on pending industrial merger negotiations.

The credit outlook also improved. Call loans renewed at 6 1-2 per cent, but the supply of funds became so plentiful that the rate was dropped to 6 per cent. After midday an easier undertone also was apparent in the time money market.

Coppers forged ahead as a group on buying influenced by predictions of an early increase to 15 3-4 cents a pound in copper export prices. New high levels for the year or longer were registered by Anaconda, Kennecott, Granby, Miami and Cerro de Pasco. Revival of activity and strength in Seneca which established a new high at 6 1-2 as contrasted with the year's low at 2, reflected the recent decision of the directors to reopen the mines which are able to operate at a profit after protracted inactivity due to low copper prices.

National Tea furnished the fireworks of the session with a spurt of 40 points to a new high record at 350 1-4 in a small turnover. Expectations of large earnings from the new Ashton process furnished the background for a rise of 18 1-2 points in A. M. Byers to a new top at 165 1-2. Atlantic Refining responded to the publication of a report showing net earnings for the first nine months of the year equal to $21.71 a share as against a small deficit in the same period last year, by soaring 14 points to a new peak at 205.

American and Adams Express shares followed sharply divergent trends, the former soaring 34 1-2 points to 260 1-2 while the latter broke 25 points to 375. Keith-Albee issues moved into new high territory on reports that negotiations for an association with Radio Corporation had been concluded. Western Union, ordinarily inactive, climbed 17 points to 175, but lost 3 points of its gain on realizing.

Motor shares were under selling pressure during the greater part of the session. Hudson, Hupp, Graham-Paige, Studebaker and Packard were depressed 1 to 2 1-2 points. General Motors and Chrysler showed better resistance closing only fractionally lower. Chandler-Cleveland issues moved counter to the general trend, touching new peak prices accompanied by unconfirmed reports that the Van Sweringen interests were buying into the company.

A number of recent favorites carried lower by the wave of selling were U. S. Steel common, American Can, Sears Roebuck, General Electric, Johns-Manville, Gold Dust, American Tobacco, International Paper and Victor Talking Machine, all off 1 to 6 points. Motor Products, broke 35 points to 147, then rebounded to 161. American Smelting, which touched the best price in its history last week, fell back more than 4 points on profit taking. DuPont dropped 6 points and Murray Corp. 4 3-8.

Time money was quoted at 6 7-8 to 7 per cent for the shorter maturities and 6 3-4 to 6 7-8 for the longer dates, as against a flat 7 per cent rate last week. The only important development in foreign exchanges was a jump of 33 points in Japanese yen to 46.45 cents. Sterling cables were practically unchanged at $4.84 15-16.

Cotton rallied about 75 cents a bale on reports of frost damage, but the other leading commodities showed little change.

DANIELSON

EVENING SCHOOL OPENS WITH 40 IN ATTENDANCE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 22—Approximately 40 having registered for the courses, an evening school held its first session of the season at the high school building this evening. The school is to hold sessions Monday, Tuesday and Thursday through the fall and winter season and during the early spring. Sessions must be held on 75 nights to make the town eligible to receive the state aid that is allowed in such cases.

There are to be three classes this year—beginners, an intermediate group and the advanced students. The teachers are to be Mrs. Rena B. Morse, Mrs. Cora M. Logee and Miss Rebecca M. Hallowell.

A considerable percentage of those who are to attend this school will be getting their first rudiments of the English language. Others who have become quite proficient in the use of English will take up reading and writing. It was anticipated today that now that the school has been organized that there will be further registrations.

Killingly democrats were today getting a big kick out of the prospect of seeing Alfred E. Smith, their party's candidate for president next Thursday. This eager anticipation followed this morning's announcement that Governor Smith is to travel from Providence to Hartford Thursday afternoon. As he will be traveling on a special train he will be routed either through Putnam or Moosup, with the chances favoring the Moosup-Willimantic route out of Providence, it was said here this afternoon. In any event, the train will run through Willimantic, and it is for that city that the local democracy will head if it learns that a sight of the candidate will not be available at Moosup or Plainfield. Of course, some local democrats will be in Providence hoping to see and hear the governor, but the real outpouring from this section will await his coming through some nearby community.

WEDDING

Kelley—Potter

A pretty wedding at Trinity church in Brooklyn Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock was that of Miss Amy Wills Potter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood B. Potter of Willimantic, formerly of Brooklyn and Danielson, and Stanley Judd Kelley of Rocky Hill. The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. J. Rees Jones, pastor of St. Alban's church at Danielson in the presence of numbers of relatives and friends.

The bridal couple were attended by Miss Edith Simpson of Rocky Hill as bridesmaid and by Stowe Kelley, brother of the groom as best man. The ushers were Sherwood P. Potter, Jr., brother of the bride, and Ellsworth Kelley, brother of the groom.

The bride's gown was of white satin and her bouquet of bride's roses. The bridesmaid wore orchid georgette and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Following the wedding there was an informal reception for about 75 friends of the bridal couple at Grange hall in Brooklyn. In the early evening the bridal couple left by automobile for their bridal trip after which they are to make their home in Rocky Hill, where the groom is engaged as an interior decorator.

The bride is a graduate of Killingly High school in the class of 1923 and has many friends in this territory.

A death at Plainfield on Sunday was that of Mrs. Emma Hebert, 62, a native of Canada and widow of Joseph Hebert. Mrs. Hebert had been a resident in Plainfield for the past six years. She leaves the following children: Mrs. Angelina Couttis, Napoleon, Henry, Arlene and Irene Hebert, all of Plainfield and Antonion Hebert of Sherbrooke, P. Q.

Mrs. Martha Service MacConnell, who died at Putnam Sunday was for years a resident of the town of Killingly, living at Ballouville, where her husband, Hector MacConnell, who died a number of years ago, was superintendent of a mill of the Attawaugan company. Mrs. MacConnell leaves two daughters, Misses Mary and Margaret MacConnell, both of whom are teachers in this town, at the school in Attawaugan.

At Killingly High school the sophomore girls of the sewing class have elected their officers for the Home Economics club. These officers are Miss Nord Creighton, president; Miss Ruth King, vice president; Miss Jacqueline Gardner, secretary; Miss Eunice Brown, treasurer; Helen Schroll and Eunice Brown initiation committee. The club, only recently organized, held its first meeting of an evening in the sewing and cooking rooms at the school and all of the members were initiated. Plans for the future were discussed and refreshments were served.

Figures that have been made available relative to the cost of schools in the town of Killingly during the school year of 1927-28, show that the per pupil cost was $73.89 for the school year. This cost is below the median of cost in various towns of Connecticut in the goup which Killingly is classified—towns with from 5,000 to 10,000 population. And the cost, too, is well below that for all of the towns of the state, this average being $89.21. It is pointed out that while the cost of schools has increased during the past few years that this is equally true throughout the state. Killingly's school committee and superintendent have watched costs with exceeding care, and they have been kept at the lowest possible minimum consistent with school work.

Mr. and Mrs. William Bergmann of Boston were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. George O. Thomas of Maple street.

W. H. G. Herklots will leave Friday to attend the New England Newspaper association's convention in Montreal.

This week Tuesday the Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the Norwich district is to meet at the Methodist Episcopal church. There are to be morning and afternoon sessions and a lunch period at noon.

Members of the Ladies' Aid society of the Baptist church have a meeting scheduled to be held in the vestry Wednesday afternoon.

Nathan Blumenthal has been confined by illness to his home on Winter street for the past few days.

As has been the custom for many years, an All Saints day service is to be held at Old Trinity church on Church street, Brooklyn, this year.

A delegation of members from Killingly grange will be in Abington next Saturday attending a special meeting of Quinebaug Pomona grange.

County Investigator W. E. Jackson of Willimantic, recently returned from Cuba, was a visitor in Danielson today.

Hopkins Mills, a village in Foster ten miles east of here, is taking up the matter of purchasing fire-fighting apparatus and forming a volunteer fire company.

An effort was being made here today to ascertain who, if any still remain hereabouts, or in neighboring towns, were members of an organization known as Cadets of Honor and Temperance, 30 or more years ago. Some funds of this organization have been accumulating for years, with no claimants.

Schools of the town of Killingly are to be closed this week Friday to permit the teaching staff to attend teachers' conventions. Such conventions will be held that day in New London, Bridgeport, New Haven and Hartford.

There appears to be uncertainty just now as to whether further boxing contests are to be held at the state armory during the fall and winter season.

Harold J. Derry, Jr., was fined $25 and costs, $15 of the fine being remitted by Judge W. Fenner Woodward in the town court this morning after Derry had pleaded guilty to a charge of reckless driving. Derry was taken into custody after the machine he was operating was in collision with another, his excuse for the accident being that he turned out to avoid striking some childen.

The women of St. Alban's church are to have a party Thursday afternoon at the parish house.

The Freshman Class at Killingly High school has elected these officers: President, Maurice Gareau; vice president, Jeabette Grenon; secretary, Charlotte Bacon; treasurer, Burton Hallowell.

By unanimous vote, members of the church at Ekonk have voted to retain the services of Rev. Lydia Hartig.

William A. Graves continues to recover from the effects of the injuries received then struck by an automobile three weeks ago.

The Friendly Circle will hold a food and fancy-work sale in Wm. Shippee's he received when struck by an automobile three weeks ago.

PUTNAM

APPROXIMATELY 700 NEW VOTERS MADE IN PUTNAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, October 22—The selectmen of the town of Putnam, together with Town Clerk Henry N. Benoit, met at the town hall Saturday afternoon for the last session of making voters who will be eligible to cast their ballots in the election on Nov. 6. On Saturday 87 new citizens appeared before the board of registrars and took the oath of a voter, while 57 men and women who had registered forgot themselves and sacrificed their opportunity to vote this year when they failed to appear.

Town Clerk Henry N. Benoit stated today that approximately 700 will vote this year for the first time. There are no indications as to what percentage registered in either of the major political parties as some did not declare themselves by entering their names on the caucus lists.

The new vote this year by a large majority exceeds the number of new voters ever before made in the town, and is due principally to the intense interest in the polical campaign now drawing to a close, the town officials said.

DEMOCRATS WANT SMITH TO GO THROUGH PUTNAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, October 22—An effort was being made this afternoon by a few of the members of the democratic town committee to have the special train of Governor Alfred E. Smith, which is scheduled to pass through the town of Plainfield, over the Providence division of the New Haven railroad on Thursday afternoon, re-routed so it will run over the New Haven division, through Putnam to Hartford.

The subject was referred to Edward J. Keegan of Thompson, a member of the democratic state central committee who will attend a meeting of the committee in the capitol city on Tuesday, and who promised to discuss the matter before the members of the committee.

If the plans at present are not changed, Gov. Smith's special train will make its trip into Connecticut through a number of small villages to Hartford. There was no definite word given out as to whether the route could possibly be rearranged so the nominee would be given a glimpse of Putnam.

Pilot Felix "Breezy" Brisbois, who with his companion Joseph C. Bazinet, both of Webster, were killed Sunday afternoon when a wing dropped off their plane and crashed 500 feet to earth, was well known in Putnam and previous to his tragic death had hovered in his plane above the city several times, his stunts amazing the crowds who looked upon him.

Exactly five months ago yesterday, Brisbois in his plane landed at the Oxford airport after completing a 2,000 mile trip from Kansas City, and received from the residents of Webster one of the greatest ovations ever tendered any individual and received the name of "Webster's Lindy."

Shortly after the crash in which the pilot lost his life several Putnam residents driving by the airport came upon the twisted wreckage and watched the two victims extricated from the mass of damaged fuselage.

At the airport this afternoon, government officials of Worcester and Boston conferred and conducted an investigation, endeavoring to determine the cause of the accident. Lt. McWilliams, manager of the Whittal Airport of Worcester, an investigator of the tragedy issued the following statement after an examination of the wreckage. "In a previous landing, the plane struck a rock, which tore away its landing gear, causing it to land on its wing and fuselage. This wing was severely damaged and was never properly repaired and at the point where the break was mended it was badly 'crystallized'".

OBITUARY

Mrs. Hector MacConnell

Mrs. Martha S. MacConnell for the past four years a resident of this city, died at her home on Grove street shortly before midnight Sunday evening, following a period of illness. Mrs. MacConnell was 71 years of age. She was born in Norwich and received her preliminary education in the schools of that city.

Her husband, Hector MacConnell was for a number of years superintendent of the Ballouville Worsted mills. He died following an attack of heart disease about three years ago. Following her husband's death, Mrs. MacConnell removed to Putnam, where she has since lived. She is survived by two sisters, a brother and a nephew, who resides in Putnam.

SEN. BINGHAM ADDRESSES PUTNAM REPUBLICANS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 22—The largest local republican rally of the 1928 campaign was staged here tonight when United States Senator Hiram Bingham addressed an audience that filled the Victory theatre to its capacity. The republicans preceded their rally by a street parade in which St. Mary's Boy Scout band took part together with a score of automobiles.

Thomas H. DeCoudres, former president of the chamber of commerce, was appointed to preside by A. MacDonald, Jr., head of the republican town committee. Mr. Bingham was the first speaker of the evening. In his speech he informed his listeners, both in the auditorium and the street, of his Windham county ancestry and that he was overjoyed for an opportunity to address a Windham county gathering. "I am a root in the soil of Windham county as my great great grandfather, Thomas Bingham with a small group of followers was an original settler in Windham and spent the remaining days of his life in the little village of Windham," Senator Bingham said.

The senator touched the interests of Putnam in state affairs and stated that the town has contributed some most valuable officials to the state in John A. Macdonald, state highway commissioner, Miss Katherine Byrne, vice chairman of the republican state central committee and John B. Byrne, former state bank commissioner. In characterizing Putnam's contribution of efficient officials to state offices Senator Bingham said "Connecticut owes the town of Putnam a debt."

The tariff was the highlight of Mr. Bingham's address and the advantages of high tariff under republican administration were clearly brought to the fore. He offered the republican party's first great leader, Abraham Lincoln as an example of setting the ideals of a high protective tariff and emphasized the fct that his principles and the prosperity of the party have been carried out by every republican administration.

A brief sketch of the life of Herbert Hoover was given by Mr. Bingham and his records as a public official in Washington were highly exemplified. He continued by a review of the life of Vice Presidential Nominee Charles Curtis and enlightened the minds of his audience on the quality of the nominees running for office on the republican ticket, closing with the forecast of a complete republican victory on November 6.

As Mr. Bingham left the theatre the large hall rung out with cheers of his listeners. Other speakers on the programme were Attorney Harry Gaucher of Willimantic, who spoke in French, and Edward Donnelly, secretary to former Senator Calder of New York. Each of the speakers were highly received by the gathering. During the evening Mr. DeCoudres introduced the republican town and district ticket, among them being Walter C. Brown, of Ashford, candidate for State Senator from the 28th district, William Peckie and William Davison, candidates for representatives and Judge of Probate Henry M. Benoit, candidate for re-election. The committee arranged with a Worcester electrical company, who installed an amplifying system that brought the voices of the speakers to those who stood in the street.

The question of traffic signs in Putnam is now being investigated by a member of the state motor vehicle department, who was in Putnam Friday and conferred with Captain of Police William Jarvis relative to the installation of direction indicators at more strategic points than are the present located.

Captain Jarvis said today that the state employe will be in Putnam again this week to continue to the survey of the situation and will report his findings to the department in Hartford. It is believed that immediate action will follow the report since the city is badly in need of sign posts to guide traffic. Putnam is a trunk point and contains passageways leading to the largest cities in Connecticut, Rhode Island and Massachusetts and is at present without the proper indicators.

The employes of the Grosvenordale company will not receive the five per cent wage scale reduction until November 1, and not this week as was recently announced. The large cotton mills in the village have been running for the past years on the full wage scale, but will be subjected to the reduction as was agreed to by the textile employes of New Bedford and Fall River, Mass., where strikes have recently been settled.

When the announcement of the reduction was made last week there was no comment from those employed in the large manufacturing plant, and indications are that the cut will be accepted without any interference on the part of the union help. The Grosvenordale mills are the only cotton manufacturing plants in northern Windham county in operation. The Morse-Nightingale plant formerly located in Putnam suspended business operations a few years ago when the great business slump came, leaving the city minus one of its greatest industries.

David Touchette, son of Mr. and Mrs. Origene Touchette of Powhatton street, has returned from China where he was for four years stationed with the United States marines foreign service. Young Touchette arrived in Boston last week from the Orient following the completion of his enlistment. He plans to return for another term of service with the devil dogs.

Sidney A. King, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. King employed in New Britain was at his home in Putnam over the week end.

Martin B. Roberston, supervising agent of the state board of education said today that a representative gathering of Putnam teachers will attend the Teachers college club luncheon to be held at the Mohican hotel in New London on Friday, Oct. 26. The committee in charge of the work and arrangements have secured the services of Clyde Miller, director of the bureau of educational service of Columbia university to address the meeting.

The bountiful apple crop has resulted in the operation of several cider plants in the rural sections of the city and barrels of cider are being turned out daily. In every orchard in northern Windham county pickers have been engaged in the work of gathering the crops and in many farm regions are still gathering the fall fruit, part of which will be rushed through the cider presses within the next month.

Political lieutenants of both parties are now in the field touring the city for supporters of their causes. The local candidates for state office are all confident of victory.

In the camps today it was expressed that Putnam will see one of its most spirited elections in many years, since every office is highly contested by the nominees and last ditch fights will be waged until the last ballot is cast.

About four hundred football fans gathered at Adams field Sunday afternoon and watched the first home game of the Belding Blues, a gridiron team composed of ex-Putnam high school stars, encounter the Fitton A. C. of Worcester.

The game was a close battle throughout and there was every indication that the play would result in a scoreless tie until the final three minutes of the last quarter, "Lou" Phaneuf, Putnam tackle blocked a punt and fell on the ball after it had bounded over the goal line, scoring the only touchdown of the game.

The tussle was featured by the famous end run demon of Putnam high school's 1926 championship team Gordon Winslow, who made many of his runs girdling the ends of the line.

Murphy, a former Putnam high school player also did well at right tackle, several times preventing the visitors from scoring, by his timely acts.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hathaway who have been spending some time with their daughter, Miss Clarence Turner have returned to Newton.

Rev. and Mrs. Charles H. Puffer have been moving to Glastonbury to their recently completed bungalow. Mr. Puffer has been pastor of the Universalist church for fourteen years. Many friends regret his departure.

PENDLETON HILL

Captain Byron Dawley has left for his home in Pensacola, Florida, after a month's visit to his summer home in this place. Captain Dawley has made himself very useful to his neighbors and friends, and to the Sewing society during his stay abd he will be greatly missed. Mrs. Dawley will remain several weeks longer with her mother, at Rose cottage.

The men dined with the women members the last society dinner and spent the afternoon shingling the parsonage garage. Several went the following day to complete the work.

The beautiful flower gardens of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cottrell and sisters remains wholly untouched by frost. Miss Palmer's gardens at the Palmer homestead felt a slight touch of Jack Frost's fingers recently, hardly however so much as to be noticeable.

Mrs. Henry D. Johnson and Mrs. Willis E. Almy have some fine specialties in the way of dahlias, which are still in full bloom and full of buds.

Miss Pearl Tennant a student nurse at Yale university, spent the week end recently with her brother and sister-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Tennant.

Mrs. C. Dwight Thompson, who has been a guest at the Palmer homestead is now at her home with Mr. George A. Wheeler, of Stonington.

Mrs. Birdsey G. Palmer has beautiful sprays of white chrysanthemums in full bloom.

Green lawns, flower beds in full bloom, yet bare trees is an unusual sight.

On one occasion, Goldsmith, Boswell and Dr. Johnson were making merry in a hay field.

Boswell—Sir, how does a horse take his hay?

Goldsmith—Sir, a la cart. You might know that.

Dr. Johnson.—Why, Sir, I don't know as to that. Some horses like it a la mowed.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

When Food Sours

Lots of people may have "indigestion" have only an acid condition which could be corrected in five or ten minutes. An effective anti-acid like Phillips Milk of Magnesia soon restores digestion to normal.

Phillips does away with all that sourness and gas right after meals. It prevents the distress so apt to occur two hours after eating. What a pleasant preparation to take! And how good it is for the system! Unlike a burning dose of soda—which is but temporary relief at best—Phillips Milk of Magnesia neutralizes many times its volume in acid.

Next time a hearty meal, or too rich a diet has brought on the least discomfort, try—

BAKANOWSKY-SULLIVAN WEDDING AT ST. MARY'S CHURCH

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Oct. 22—At St. Mary's church Monday morning Miss Alice Mae Sullivan, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis J. Sullivan, of Tracy avenue, was united in marriage with Louis Joseph Bakanowsky, eldest son of Mrs. Caroline Bakanowsky, of North Main street extension. Rev. J. J. McCabe solemnized the marriage. The bride was attired in a gown of white Duchesse satin with silk Spanish lace in period style. Her veil was of tulle cap-shaped and caught with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums.

Her bridesmaid, Miss Helen Bakanowsky, sister of the groom, wore nile green georgette, and had a picture hat of maline and silver bow. Her bouquet was pink tea roses. The groom was attended by Dennis C. Sullivan, a brother of the bride. The bride's gift from the groom was a white pyralin toilet set. The bridesmaid was presented a cameo brooch and the best man received a Parker pen and pencil set.

The wedding breakfast was held at Lawton Inn, Plainfield. Those who attended were Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bakanowsky, Mrs. Caroline Bakanowsky, Witaldo, William and Helen Bakanowsky, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel J. Sullivan and family, Claire Sullivan, John Sullivan of New York, Mr. and Mrs. William Symington and daughter of Norwich, Rose Crumb, Herbert Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dudkowski, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Dudkowski, Richard, Elizabeth and Edmond Dudkowski Mr. and Mrs. Henry Vegiard, Mr. and Mrs. John Oakes, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Dubolek, Miss Moe Driscoll, Miss Alice Driscoll, Mrs. Margaret Driscoll, Mrs. Katherine McCoy, Mr. Jerry Sullivan, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Morey and sons.

Mr. and Mrs. Bakanowsky will tour New York and visit Washington, D. C. On their return they will live at 91 Prospect street, Norwich, where a newly furnished home awaits them. Mr. Bakanowsky is in the employ of the Southern New England Telephone Co.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Downie, John Parker, Elmer Babcock and James Smith of Westerly were guests at James McCluggage's home on Palmer avenue Sunday.

And still the green corn grows! Victor Campbell picked thirty ears Monday.

The district deputy will be the guest of Mt. Vernon lodge No. 75 F. & A. M. tonight (Tuesday) making his official visitation.

Assessors in session, town hall. Give in list before Nov. 1. Those failing will be charged 10 per cent.—Adv.

METHODIST MINISTER HEADS DEMOCRATIC RALLY SPEAKERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Oct. 22—Wednesday evening, in Finn's theatre, a big democratic rally will be held. The speakers will be the Rev. George Gilbert of the Methodist church, Middletown; Frank P. Fenton of Willimantic, candidate for lieutenant-governor; William M. Citron, candidate for congress, and Professor Snow of Wesleyan university. Before the rally there will be a street parade headed by the Danielson band. Aided by plenty of red fire, this parade should bring to the minds of most people memories of the good old political rallies of years ago. The exercises at the theatre will be held after the parade.

HOPKINTON, R. I.

Rev. E. P. Mathewson who attended the sessions of the Connecticut Baptist state convention at Stamford Tuesday and Wednesday of last week gave a report of its proceedings to his church First North Stonington (Pendleton Hill) Sunday morning.

Daniel A. Crandall has returned from Westerly hospital much improved in health.

At a special financial town meeting Thursday afternoon, at the town hall, called to consider plans for constructing a school house of four rooms, or enlarging the present school house at Hope Valley, the sale of unused school property and of the town farm were presented to the taxpayers. The hall was well filled and all matters were continued to the annual financial town meeting in April.

Grace Gibbons, 13, a ward of the state and boarded out from the state home and school at the home of Charles Ross Kenyon, started as usual in the bus for the Ashaway school Friday morning but did not arrive. It later developed that she had stolen a dress, head gear and pair of colored glasses also a pair of scissors. When the bus arrived at Ashaway, she retired into a nearby swamp, cut off her red hair, attired herself in a change of raiment and started to walk by a back road to Westerly. A passing automobile, the driver of which knew the girl but did not recognize her as disguised, picked her up and carried her to Westerly. The police of this town and Westerly were notified, it was ascertained that she had visited the home of her grandfather in Pawcatuck and after she was found and sent to the Exeter State school for the feeble minded.

The funeral of Isaac Franklin Partelo was held Sunday afternoon with Masonic burial in the First Hopkinton cemetery.

STONINGTON

NEW LONDON ASS'N MEETING TO BE HELD WITH LOCAL CHURCH

Rev. J. Beveridge Lee D. D.; 11:15, discussion; 11:45, devotion service; 12:15, adjournment for luncheon and fellowship; after dinner speech by Roscoe W. Vining of New Haven, superintendent of the Connecticut Temperance and Anti-Saloon league; 2:00, service of song and prayer; 2:15, address, "The Present Outlook in China," Rev. Cornelius H. Patton, D. D., home department secretary of the A. B. C. F. M., representing the board of missions; 3:00, unfinished business, adjournment.

Mrs. Joseph F. Joseph, Mrs. Mary L. Sliney and Miss Margaret McGrath spent Monday in Providence.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Dougherty have closed their summer home here and returned Monday to Brooklyn, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Darrell of New York spent the week end here.

Mrs. Franklin R. Hoadley, of New Haven spent the week end as the guest of Mrs. Frank F. Dodge.

Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds Gray and children of Providence were week end guests of Mrs. William Ryon.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Vennart and daughters Gladys and Dorothy attended the wedding of a relative in South Manchester Saturday.

P. Jeffery Norton of Edgartown, Mass., is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Fort.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22—(AP)—Thirty-five stock exchanges, curb and commodity markets, on which transactions are of sufficient size to warrant quoting prices to investors all over the United States are now listed in the United States and Canada.

Beacon Oil company of Everett, Mass., reports for the first 9 months of the year profit of $1,086,874 against $432,338 in the same period in 1927.

Profit of the Mullins Manufacturing company of Boston totaled $742,596 against $523,712 in the same 1927 period.

The American Brass company of Boston has advanced prices on all Brass Products 1-4c a pound.

Maturities in November, both corporate and government securities, are expected to total $47,000,000. Of these corporate, notes and bonds falling due will amount to $35,094,000. This compares with $40,000,000 in October and about $35,000,000 in November 1927. The largest item in railroad maturities is $2,500,000 Alabama Midland 4 per cent. bonds due Nov. 1. Public utility maturities total $13,578,400, including $10,000,000 Edison Electric Illuminating company of Boston 1-year 4 per cent. notes, due Nov. 2.

Tells Dyspeptics What To Eat

Strict diets are often unnecessary in stomach trouble. While acid foods do produce excessive acidity and many stomachs do generate "too much acid" causing gas, sourness, bloating and after-eating pains, the trouble may be safely and quickly corrected by the use of a good alkaline. Bisurated Magnesia—powder or tablets—is ideal for this purpose. Just a little after meals neutralizes all the excess acid, prevents souring, breaks up gas and ends indigestion. Favorite foods no longer upset stomach and digestion is easy and painless. It will do all this for you or money back. Reliable druggists everywhere sell Bisurated Magnesia with this guarantee.

Those failing to make a list will be charged a penalty of ten per cent additional, according to law. Blanks can be obtained at the Assessors' office in City Hall, or will be sent by mail upon application.

Office hour 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. Lists will be received beginning Monday, Oct. 1, 1928.

Dated at Norwich, Conn., Sept. 25, 1928.

ARAD R. MANNING,
JOHN B. OAT,
FRED G. PROTHERO,
Assessors.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE United States for the District of Connecticut.

In the matter of John W. Flynn, a Bankrupt. In Bankruptcy No. 9753.

To the Creditors of the above-named Bankrupt, of East Lyme, in the County of New London, District aforesaid: Bankrupt.

Notice is hereby given that on the 19th day of October, A. D. 1928, the above-named was duly adjudicated a bankrupt, and that the first meeting of his creditors will be held before the undersigned, at his office, 58 Church St., Norwich, in said District, on the 3rd day of November, A. D. 1928, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at which time said creditors may attend, prove their claims, appoint trustee, examine the bankrupt, and transact such other business as may properly come before said meeting.

THOMAS M. SHIELDS,
Referee in Bankruptcy.
Norwich, Conn., Oct. 22, 1928. oc23d

AT A COURT OF PROBATE HELD at Norwich, within and for the District of Norwich, on the 22nd day of October, A. D. 1928.

Present, NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.

Estate of Delima Cartier, late of Voluntown, in said District, deceased.

Annie Cyr, of Norwich, Conn., appeared in Court and filed a petition praying, for the reasons therein set forth, that an instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of said decedent, be admitted to probate.

Whereupon, it is Ordered, That said petition be heard and determined at the Probate Court Room in the City of Norwich, in said District, on the 26th day of October, A. D. 1928, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, and that notice of the pendency of said petition, and of said hearing thereon, be given by the publication of this order one time in some newspaper having a circulation in said District at least three days prior to the date of said hearing, and that return be made to this Court.

NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.

The above and foregoing is a true copy of record.
Attest, HELEN M. DRESCHER, Clerk. oc23d

INTENTIONAL SECOND EXPOSURE

NEW LONDON YOUNG MAN KILLED-- TWO OTHERS INJURED AS CAR UPSETS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 22—One New London young man was killed and two others were injured, one of them seriously, early today when the automobile in which they were riding overturned in Madison, while they were on their way to New York, after having spent the week end with their parents here. The dead man is John F. Sullivan, son of Mrs. Nellie Sullivan, 95 Hempstead street. The injured are Joseph Barry of Bayonet street and Joseph Cowhey, son of Mrs. Ellen Cowhey, 22 South Ledyard street. Sullivan was killed instantly as a result of a fractured vertebra. Barry is in Guilford sanitarium suffering from possible internal injuries, lacerations of the face and head and numerous contusions. Cowhey escaped with minor bruises and contusions. Sullivan is survived by his mother, two brothers, Matthew and James Sullivan and three sisters, Mrs. Mary Corcoran, and Misses Helen and Jane Sullivan, all of this city.

The young men left for New York, where they were employed about 10 o'clock. In passing through Madison, their car being driven at a high rate of speed a curve, which is one of the most dangerous on the New Haven post road was reached. As the car was making a sudden turn it started to skid and before the driver could bring it under control it overturned, all of the passengers being thrown to the highway. Sullivan landed in such a manner as to fracture his neck and he was dead before passing autoists could go to the assistance of the injured men. Barry's injuries were found to be serious and he was taken to the sanitarium. Cowhey's injuries proved slight when he was examined by physicians at the sanitarium.

JERSEY CITY TOURISTS RUN INTO BY LOCAL AUTO

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 22—Mr. and Mrs. Harry Drake, Jersey City, N. J. were painfully injured this morning when the automobile in which they were riding on their way home after a tour of New England, was struck by a car driven by Jacob Lubchansky 235 Howard street. Both cars were damaged and Mr. and Mrs. Drake sustained lacerations of the face and head, and sprains of the arms and back. After their injuries had been dressed by a physician the injured couple continued on their trip home. The accident occurred when the Drake automobile was headed westerly on State street on its way to the Hartford turnpike. At the corner of Meridian street, Lubchansky's car emerged and before he could bring it to a stop it crashed against Drake's machine.

Two hundred and forty-six new voters were made Saturday in the town of Groton, thus setting a new record—a total for the year of 884.

James Falurioco and Santi Devanellis, both of Groton, were tried this morning in the court of that town on charges of keeping liquor with the intent to sell. Both cases were continued for one week.

Arayne Hamel of Waterford was fined $10 and costs on a charge of failure to grant the right of way in traffic. He pleaded not guilty but the evidence was such that he was convicted.

John F. Regan, a sailor stationed at the submarine base, was fined $25 and costs for running a disorderly house. He was in court two weeks ago but the case was continued. He admitted that drinking accompanied by a lot of loud talking was prevalent at the time of his arrest, but stated that no other misdemeanors occurred.

Patients dismissed at Home Memorial hospital today were Mrs. George Shepard, 16 Parkway; Mrs. John Mondelci, 220 Coleman street; Mrs. Harry Chotpiany, Uncasville; Mrs. Paul Vincent and son, Groton; Joseph Perrone, 12 Methodist street; Ernest Post, Blinman street; Frank Smith, of Franklin street.

Angelo D'Ella of this city was today ordered to serve a sentence in the Franklin street jail by Tax Collector Hibbard N. Alexander for failure to pay back taxes in the amount of $15.89.

At a meeting of Ohev Sholem synagogue last night, Aaron Agrin was elected president for the year. Other officers elected were: Vice-president, Attorney Jacob Sherb; secretary, Samuel Shiffreen; treasurer, Morris Mazur; first trustee, D. Goldstein; second trustee, Benjamin Smitkins.

Needs of the Y. W. C. A. for the coming year are such that a drive is to be staged on Nov. 1 to raise $12,000 to care for the 1928-29 budget. The leader of the drive will be Miss Edith Newcomb, who has been president of the Y for the past four years.

Mrs. Anna Finn of 62 Montauk avenue entertained at a miscellaneous shower the other evening in honor of Miss Nina Roche, who will shortly become the bride of Gerald Thomas Oldworth.

A costume dance is to be held tomorrow night by members of Lady Aberdeen lodge, Daughters of Scotia, following the regular business meeting. Members of Clan Cameron, Order of Scottish Clans, have been invited to attend.

The Alumnae association of Lawrence-Memorial hospital entertained graduates of the Joseph Lawrence School of Nursing at a banquet Saturday night. The affair was held in the Hotel Mohican and more than 125 nurses and graduates were present. Later there was dancing to music by Russo's orchestra.

Miss Julia Zielinski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanislaw Zielinski of Waterford, entertained a number of friends yesterday, on her tenth birthday.

Thomas Occhialini of this city was fined $10 and costs in the Groton town court this morning for failure to grant right of way at an intersecting street. He was arrested Oct. 14.

Friends here have learned of the marriage in Berne, Switzerland, Oct. 12, of Miss Naomi DeGroot, daughter of Mrs. DeGroot and the late Henry Burton DeGroot of Washington, D. C. and Kenneth Miller Hill, son of Dr. and Mrs William M. Hill of Noank. The ceremony was performed in the English church in Berne in the presence of a small gathering. Following a wedding trip in the region of the Italian lakes, Mr. and Mrs. Hill will reside in Berne, where the former is assistant trade commissioner from the United States to Switzerland. Dr. and Mrs. Hill, who attended their son's wedding, are expected to arrive from Europe the latter part of this week.

CHAS. STEBBINS, WATERFORD, MAY DIE FROM INJURIES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 22—Charles Stebbins, 64, of Waterford, was seriously injured last night when struck by an automobile driven by John Coates, Ivoryton. Stebbins sustained lacerations of the face, head and scalp, besides bruises, and is suffering from shock. He is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, where his condition is said to be critical. Stebbins was walking along the highway near the Oswegatchie road when he was run down. An examination revealed that he was seriously injured, so the hospital ambulance was summoned. Since being taken to the hospital, Stebbins' condition has not improved. State Officer Peter Busch, who conducted an investigation, arrested Coates on a charge of reckless driving. He was given a hearing in Waterford town court today and held in bail of $1,000, pending the outcome of Stebbins' injuries.

THEFT OF WOMAN'S BAG LEADS TO LIQUOR RAID

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 22—James "Dutch" Murphy, former Central Vermont railroad brakeman, was in the police court this morning, charged with theft. The prosecution was not prepared to go through with the case, so a continuance was ordered until tomorrow. Murphy, it is claimed, while walking along Bank street Saturday evening with Mrs. Mary Smith, Waterford, and George "Cowboy" Sheehan, seized a handbag carried by Mrs. Smith which contained $6. Murphy then ran through a side street and disappeared. Mrs. Smith made complaint to Patrolman William Riordan and Murphy was arrested an hour and a half after the robbery by Patrolman Clarence Wells. Today and before the convening of the police court, Murphy was questioned and it was revealed by him that he and Sheehan and the Smith woman had been at the residence of Mrs. Lillian Pozzella, 73 Woodbridge street, where they purchased numerous drinks, and it was after the drinking party that the three went to the street and the theft is alleged to have occurred. When Murphy made the admission of Mrs. Pozzella, who is the wife of Frank Pozzella, having sold the two men and woman drinks, the information was lodged with Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin and Judge S. Victor Prince issued a search warrant. Detective Sergt. Nelson Smith and Patrolmen Dennis Murphy, Clarence Wells and George Cockell went to the Woodbridge street house and there instituted a search which revealed several cases of beer of the home-brew type, a gallon of alcohol and a bottle of hooch. These were seized as evidence against Mrs. Pozzello, who was arrested on a charge of violation of the liquor law. When in court her case also, was continued until tomorrow and she furnished a surety on her bond of $1,000.

Richard Beckman, arrested Saturday when he was liberated from the county jail, having served a sentence of two weeks for wearing a Masonic emblem when he was not a member of a Masonic order, was presented on a charge of forgery. Probable cause was found and he was bound over to the January term of the superior court. In default of a surety on his bond of $500, Beckman was remanded to jail.

John M. Guenther, submarine base, was charged with driving while under the influence of liquor. He was adjudged guilty and was fined $100 and costs. Guenther was driving an automobile on Green street Saturday night and when the car collided with three others, Patrolman Louis Wheeler held Guenther up and found that the driver was intoxicated. An additional charge of evasion of responsibility was levied against Guenther, but today the second charge was nolled.

Sigmund Ness, Noank, was also charged with driving while under the influence of liquor, but his case was continued until later in the week.

Arthur Devall, submarine base, was charged with breach of the peace, the charge having been amended from that of breaking and entering. He was fined $25 and costs. Devall was arrested shortly after 3 o'clock Sunday morning by Patrolmen George Laboue and Albert Iverson in the Palace restaurant. He explained his conduct by stating that he had been drinking during the late hours of the night and did not remember what occurred. He even told where he purchased his liquor.

Edward Shocsky, 459 Main street, was charged with breach of the peace, but the accused was discharged.

Edward McLaughlin, Union street was charged with intoxication and breach of the peace and his case was disposed of in the same manner.

John Ramistella, 42 Jefferson avenue, was charged with violation of the city's parking ordinances and as he failed to appear in court his bond of $2 was declared forfeited.

STANDING TROLLEY CAR RULE WAS VIOLATED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 22—John Stone was charged with reckless driving and was fined $25 and costs, but the court ordered the fine remitted, so that the accused paid into the city treasury only the costs of the court. Stone was arrested several days ago by State Police Officer William Visokay when it was alleged that the driver passed a standing trolley car that was discharging passengers on Bank street. Today Stone pleaded not guilty, but the evidence introduced was such that he was adjudged guilty.

The continued case of Pete Aguinaldo, United States coast guard, charged with breach of the peace, was nolled. Aguinaldo was arrested a week ago for fighting with Christy Dixon, Tilley street, on Bank street. At the time of the arrest, Dixon was discharged.

The case of Andres Bernardo, charged with breach of the peace, was continued a month.

John Green, charged with begging and intoxication, was sentenced to jail for ten days.

GROTON BARRACKS AWAITS REPORT IN TUDISCO CASE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 22—The state police, Groton barracks, are awaiting the reception of a report from the state laboratory, Hartford, of the analysis of the stomach of Guiseppe Tudisco, of 19 Downer street, Pawcatuck, whose body was found floating in Mystic river last Friday afternoon. The body had been in the water but a short time when found and an autopsy showed that the body was lifeless when it entered the water and an autopsy performed by Dr. E. P. Douglass, Jr., medical examiner, showed that a foreign substance and which probably caused death, was in the stomach. What that irritant was the medical examiner was unable to determine and for that reason the contents of the stomach, were sent to the state laboratory. The state police are still working on the case, for they believe that Tudisco, a former resident of New London, was the victim of the Mafia; Columbus day, members of the Mafia and Fascist engaged in a mob fight in New London. Several of the members of the Mafia band have since been arrested and their cases will come up in the police court Thursday next. The gang, six of them, are charged with breach of the peace and inciting to riot. It is expected that the report of the analysis will have been received by the state police tomorrow or Wednesday and what is contained in the report may result in solving the mystery of Tudisco's death.

George Wesley, colored and with a police court record, was arrested this evening by State Police Officer Donald Brown charged with evasion of responsibility. Wesley was driving an automobile which collided with another machine and he attempted to drive away without stopping to determine the extent of the damage occasioned, when he was detected by Officer Brown and arrested.

An automobile owned by Albert Searles, 256 Montauk avenue, struck and killed a dog owned by Patrolman Edward Riordan this evening. Patrolman Riordan, who was off duty, and Mrs. Riordan were going for a walk. On Colt street, near Jay the dog ran into the street at the time the automobile was about to pass. The animal was struck and knocked down, the wheels of the car passing over the dog's body, killing it almost instantly.

A Hudson sedan, painted black, and carrying Connecticut markers, E-729, was stolen from Old Lyme tonight. The theft was reported to the state police, Centerbrook barracks and the officer in charge of the barracks requested the police of this city to be on the lookout for the stolen machine.

Connecticut College Concert

After an appearance with the Los Angeles Philharmonic orchestra, the Times of that city said in its review of the concert, "there is something at once primitive and exotic about Sophie Braslau, and the richness and opulence of her voice, and its giving has the primeval quality of the soil. Consummate skill on her part has created an interpretative ability that makes each song a living entity for the moment in which she wrests it out of silence and forcefully energizes it, dominating both the song and her audience."

Public sale of tickets for Miss Braslau's New London concert will begin tomorrow morning at Starr Brothers.

Breed Theatre

The screen has acquired a new featured actress in its cinematic firmament.

She is Alice White, tiny, blond, vivacious actress who has won such deserved popularity in the past two years of her screen career that First National Pictures is making a series of four Alice White pictures during the year.

"Show Girl," the first of the series, is a special and now playing at the Breed theatre. It is the fastest moving farce comedy the screen has welcomed in many a month.

Charles Delaney and Donald Reed have the leading masculine roles in the picture, with Gwen Lee, Kate Price, Lee Moran, James Finlayson, Richard Tucker and others supporting.

Miss White, since her debut as an actress two years ago, has given brilliant performances in "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," "The Big Noise," "Lingerie," "The Private Life of Helen of Troy" and pictures of similar note.

Palace Theatre

"Sadie Thompson," Gloria Swanson's latest screen offering, now showing as the feature attraction at the Palace theatre was adapted from W. Somerset Maugham's internationally famous short story, "Miss Thompson." "Sadie Thompson," is Miss Swanson's second contribution to the screen as an independent producer under the banner of United Artists, of which she is an owner-member.

With Miss Swanson as the colorful "Sadie Thompson," the most dramatic role she has interpreted, Walsh, the director makes his first screen appearance in years as "Sergeant Timothy O'Hara," the Marine lover; and Lionel Barrymore has the role of "Alfred Atkinson," the reformer, one of the most discussed characters in modern literature. Other members of the cast are Blanche Friderici, Charles Lane, Florence Midgley, James A. Marcus, Sophia Artega and Will Stanton. In addition a group of Samoan natives and large company of Marines supply atmosphere in the tropical exteriors of the picture, which has its setting at Pago Pago.

June brides bear the brunt of jokes and smiles, according to James Hall who co-stars with Ruth Taylor in "Just Married," the farce comedy now showing at the Palace theatre. The film was adapted from the stage play of the same name which ran for a year and a half. Ann Nichols, author of "Abie's Irish Rose," wrote the play.

"Newlyweds always get a big laugh," said James Hall recently during the filming of the picture. "In fact, I've given them many a one myself. Having been fortunate—or unlucky, depending on how you look at it, I have never married, myself. I haven't been able to appreciate the discomfiture that this universal giggling brings when the young June bride and bridegroom step out, until just recently.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

Some facts connected with the making of this screen epic, which is now being shown for the entire week at the "Broadway."

The director of "Wings," who with this production made a lasting name for himself, was William A. Wellman. He, himself, was a bold "knight of the air," serving in the Lafayette Escadrille of France during the World war.

The author of "Wings," John Monk Saunders, conceived the idea for his story from his personal experiences as an aviator during the World war. Here is a flyingman who can handle a pen as well as he can handle a joy-stick and he writes the story of "the men who go up in the air in ships."

The producer of "Wings," was Lucien Hubbard who brought to this picture that flair for thrillful finesse that characterized his work in all of the Zane Grey pictures. He is a producer with an uncanily accurate sense of box office values and he has seen to it that just the desired elements of thrills, romance, spectacle, whimsy, humor and originality have been woven into "Wings."

The cameramen of "Wings," the courageous crankers who risked their lives that this epic might be captured for all time, Harry Perry led the score of daring crankers. In some instances they were strapped over the engine hood, a few inches from the death-dealing propellor; at other times they were strapped out on the wings of a machine while the pilot executed rolls, loops and flip-flops.

The players in "Wings" compose a group unexcelled for excellence. Charles Rogers and Richard Arlen head the list as the daring young fliers who rake the air in their search for the biggest things in life. Clara Bow Paramount's one hundred per cent girl, is delightfully cast as "the little girl next door." Jobyna Ralston is "the other girl." El Brendel and "Gunboat" Smith supply the humor and Gary Cooper, Julia Swayne Gordon, Henry B. Walthall, Arlette Marchal and many others are also in the cast.

The screen play of "Wings," was prepared by the veterans of the Paramount studio, Hope Loring and Louis D. Lighton.

Bauer, Eminent Pianist, Coming

Much interest and pleasure are being felt and expressed with the announcement by the Slater hall concert committee of the coming of Harold Bauer, one of the most distinguished and loved pianists in the world today. Mr. Bauer comes Friday evening, Nov. 2d, in place of Frances Nash, pianist, who was engaged for that evening to give the second concert of the 1928-1929 course, but who is now cancelling all American dates to be in the foreign concert field this season.

The name of Bauer adds still another artist of first rank in the music world to this outstandingly fine course which opened with its first concert May 28th—that never-to-be-forgotten concert by Rosa Ponselle. The Bauer concert, grouped with those to follow by Andries Segovia, world-famous guitarist, who comes in January, and Merle Alcock, foremost contralto of the Metropolitan Opera company, whose recital will be in March, places this entire series on an unusually high plane of artistic worth in musical art.

The committee feels very happy indeed that in this series by Ponselle, Segovia and Alcock, circumstances have made it possible for them to include Harold Bauer. He was one of the artists enjoyed most among those appearing last season in the Hartford music course, and throughout our own country and in Europe is most sought after. In his recent tour of France the French government again honored him, decorating him with a membership in the Legion of Honor, after previously making him an officer of public instruction and an officer of the French academy.

Pledges for those who have not already subscribed to the series are being received now by Mr. Archibald Mitchell, 4th.

Jefferson county, Florida, chief watermelon seed producing section of the world, also is the home of the first known watermelons. They were cultivated by north Florida Indians when discovered by white settlers.

POETRY

Southbound Train

Your throats let fall the message
Penned by Old Boreas at the Pole.
Through shine or dark, through clear or fog,
For trace above the world's flat scroll,
I view you in the dazzle spread
Across the spaces from the sun;
At night upon my bed I know
Your airy trail's end is not was.

What wonder in that gentle law
That lures you from the icy shore,
And crowns you with the arrow's gift
To cheat the blizzard's sullen roar!
I stand and gaze as in a dream—
You are a living dream to me.
When I behold your splendid arch
Sail down the matchless, aerial sea.

So be it I might choose and dare
Whatever goal the fates decree
Should in the unknown future stand,
Awaiting patiently for me.
So be it mine, or storm or calm,
Or zephyr kiss, or tempest throb,
To meet the Captain of my cruise,
And hear the "well done" of my God.

Thus from the peaks of crystal where
You journey, sailors of the sky,
There comes to man the magic call
To reach his soul's mark ere he die.
No cloud, no thunder blast nor lull
Can ever quell such valor given,
For faith and time to it belong,
And all the chivalries of heaven.

—Will Chamberlain, in Reno Gazette.

Auction Window

What am I bid? A forest
Scarlet and bronze and green.
You do not care to take it?
Then it is no more seen.

Next, a dissolving mountain,
Ravined, with purple view,
Repaneled fresh by autumn.
You say it will not do?

Here glides a waiting pasture
With seeds of beauty sown,
And brook, complete for dreaming,
Right on the road to town!

Or here, a choice of rivers
For every circumstance,
Or something fine in sunsets?
You will not bid a glance?

Just look once from your paper
At this rare set of stars.
The price is only watching
For those who ride in cars.

Ah, going—going—gone, sir.
A pity not to take
At the low cost of wonder
Something for memory's sake.

Hi—And what's a natatorium?

Si—A natatorium is the old swimmin' hole after it enters college.—Boston Transcript.

Willie—Are you going to have detectives to watch your daughter's wedding presents?

Gillis—No, the instalment men will see to that.—Life.

Uncle—I proposed to Arabella by mail.

Sam—Did she accept?

Uncle—Yes, but she was so dumb that she married the postman.—Punch Bowl.

Insurance Agent—Of course your husband would have to be examined before we could issue a policy.

Mrs. Youngbride—Jack hates trouble. Wouldn't it do if I had a palmist read his lifeline?—Montreal Star.

Mrs. Brewer—John, that couple in the next flat have had a quarrel every day for over a week.

Mr. Brewer—Well, I suppose now they think we owe them a quarrel.—New Bedford Standard.

"Now Willie, I want you to behave yourself at Mrs. Jones's party. And don't take any liberties."

"Even if Mrs. Jones passes them, mother?"—Christian Science Monitor.

Penley (writing)—I want a modern locution for: One man's meat is another man's poison.

Parks—Easy! One man's telephone call is another man's wrong number.—Boston Transcript.

Eloise is a dear girl who has decided to go in for welfare work. The other evening she came home and said to her mother that she had made forty calls on poor people.

"Do you mean to say you saw forty people in one afternoon?"

"I didn't see them all, mother. At some places I left cards."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The use of Roman characters in Japanese writing has been criticised and defended for a sufficient number of years to be now recognized as a standard method of writing, according to A. Tanakadate, member of the Imperial Academy of Japan and member of the international committee on intellectual co-operation. Important official documents more than 100,000 schoolbooks, and all the textbooks in technical schools and colleges are not using this type of letter. Typewriters with key boards arranged for writing Japanese with these characters are on sale and about 200 are now in use. The National School of Oriental languages in Paris is now teaching Japanese with this system.

The discovery of some interesting cliff dweller ruins in the Grand Canyon National park has been reported by a park naturalist, who recently made a trip up Clear creek canyon, a tributary to Bright Angel canyon, high up on the north wall of the Grand canyon. These ruins are probably some of the best preserved in the park. The outlines of at least eight dwellings and possibly one or two kivas distinctly show walls and in some places the walls are nearly four feet high. The rooms in the ruin vary in size from six to eight feet up to sixteen by forty feet according to the depth of the overhang of the cliff. Stone steps lead up to the largest of the rooms. According to the naturalist this is probably the only place in the park where stone steps are found around an Indian ruin. The large room had a commanding view of a fine meadow below which was probably cultivated by the prehistoric residents of the cliff dwellings.

Mary, an Indian bride who had lost her husband and couldn't remember his name, provided a problem for the Sacramento, Cal., Travelers' Aid society. "It's such a long funny name," explained the redskin bride, "that I could never pronounce or remember it."

The bride was most attractive in a white satin gown trimmed with Spanish lace and veil of tulle. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor wore green satin and carried pink rosebuds.

A reception and wedding breakfast followed the church ceremony and during the day the happy couple left on a tour to New York and Washington. They will reside in a newly furnished apartment upon their return to town, where the bridegroom is employed by the J. B. Martin Co., Ltd. The bride, who received many valuable and useful gifts, wore blue brocaded georgette as a traveling costume.

The annual meeting of the Taftville chapter, A. R. C., will be held in Ponemah hall at 8 o'clock, Thursday evening, Oct. 25.—adv.

WOMEN LED MEN IN LIST OF NEW VOTERS MADE IN TOWN OF NORWICH

In every one of the six districts of the town the number of women exceeded the men on applications of to-be-mades so that the figures show there were 445 more women's applications than men's and there were 551 more new women voters made than men.

The women also did somewhat better proportionately in following up their applications and becoming voters, as 71 per cent of the women who applied were made voters, but only 68 per cent of the men. There was a total of 3,235 applications of to-be-mades, from which there were 2,261 new voters made, a general average of 70 per cent. From the 1,395 men's applications, 955 new voters were made and from the 1,840 women's applications 1,306 new voters were made.

The following shows the applications by districts as tabulated by the registrars, Tyler D. Guy and Cornelius J. Downes:

To-Be-Mades

Dist.	Men	Women	Total
1	518	695	1,213
2	314	354	668
3	212	295	507
4	126	181	307
5	159	210	369
6	66	105	171
Totals	1,395	1,840	3,235

The fifth, or Taftville district, and the fourth, or Norwich Town district, were the two leaders in percentage of voters made from the list of to-be-mades. In Taftville it was 84 per cent and in Norwich Town it was 82.7 per cent.

The sixth, or East Side district, was another section where a good proportion of those from the to-be-made list became voters. It was 76.6 per cent in this district.

The three other districts of the town showed smaller percentages. In the first, or central district, it was 66.1 per cent, in the third, or Greeneville district 65.6 per cent, and the second, or West Side district, showed the smallest percentage, which was 63.6.

Voters Made

The large central district naturally had the largest number of applicants and consequently has the largest number of new voters, which is 808. The second district comes along with 425 new voters made and the third district has 333. Not far behind this is the fifth district with 310, the fourth had 254, and the sixth 131.

The following shows the number of men and women made voters in the six districts:

Dist.	Men	Women	Total
1	342	466	808
2	193	232	425
3	141	192	333
4	98	156	254
5	132	178	310

BLAZE IN MATTRESS STARTED UNDER STAIRWAY

A call was received at 11:54 o'clock Monday morning by the fire department for a fire in the building at 202-204 Franklin street owned by Michael Levin. The blaze was in an old mattress under the stairway in the cellar and was going in good shape on the arrival of Engine 1 and Squad A, which responded. The cellar was not in use, but was cluttered with all sorts of rubbish left by one of the tenants who had moved away. The blaze, which is believed to have been started by children who had gained entrance to the cellar through the open windows and doors, was extinguished in short order by the firemen with 12 gallons of chemical, little damage resulting. The building on the first floor is occupied by the Economy Grocery store, while the tenements on the second and third floors are vacant.

NORWICH TOWN

M. E. CHURCH INTERESTS—RALLY WEEK PLANNED

The World Mission of Christianity was the subject of Rev. George Warren Potter at the Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church Sunday morning. Rev. Mr. Potter gave a review of the recent missionary conference held in New London when missionaries from nine of the foreign fields were the speakers. Under the direction of Mrs. Lewis Aldrich the choir rendered an anthem. Mrs. Helen Haviland Potter told the children a story entitled "Silver and Gold." There was an attendance of about 80.

Hanover C. E. had charge of the Christian Endeavor meeting in the evening. The pastor, Rev. Dwight C. Stone, and 17 members of the society came by automobiles. The meeting was most interesting, the subject being, "How Does Law Increase Freedom." There was an attendance of 65.

The work of the New England Deaconess' association in their homes and hospitals was the substance of the lecture given by the pastor in the evening under the title, "Applied Christianity." There were 70 stereopticon slides with the lecture. The machine was loaned by the Norwich Young Men's Christian association and was operated by Ralph Smith. The Junior choir sang "What Will You Do for Jesus?" There was an attendance of about 100 at the lecture.

This will be Rally week in the Methodist church. Wednesday night the Junior Epworth league will hold a social beginning at 7 in the vestry, in charge of Miss Florence M. Bennett, the superintendent, assisted by Mrs. George W. Potter. The Boy Scouts connected with the church will meet Thursday night at 7:15 instead of Friday. Saturday afternoon the Cub Scouts will meet.

Next Sunday will be Rally day, with special rally services, day and evening.

Guests Sunday at the Methodist parsonage were Mr. and Mrs. John Churchill of Niantic, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Robinson, Buffalo, N. Y., Kirk Shivell, Melrose, Mass., and Elmer Olsen, of Cleveland, Ohio.

The Boy Scouts of Methodist church held a meeting Friday night in the new Scout quarters. The opening ceremony was in charge of Patrol Leader Donald Waterman and consisted of the salute to the flag, repeating the Scout oath and laws. Assistant Scoutmaster Lewis Aldrich led in a song period and in a period of feelings. The Scoutmaster, Rev. George Warren Potter, gave a talk and had charge of an instruction game. There was an attendance of 13. The efficiency contest began at this meeting. Arthur Bennett scored the highest number of points, which was 50.

The Norwich Town Wolf Cub pack held a meeting with their Cubmaster, Rev. Mr. Potter, Saturday afternoon, at the Scout room. There was an attendance of 14. Following the opening ritual the cubmaster gave the Cubs a talk on the value of the birds and how Cubs can protect them and their nests. A new game played was greatly enjoyed. At the close of the meeting Cubs Leslie Morse, Charles Browning and John Browning successfully took the Tenderpad test. In the efficiency contest the six in charge of Frederick Ross scored 195 points and the six in charge of Clarence Smith scored 185 points.

A raffle is bound to be a success if people only take the chances.

MOTION LIST HEARD BEFORE JUDGE WALLER

In the motion list session of the common pleas court at New London Monday morning Judge C. B. Waller ordered disclosure of defense within one week or judgment in the case of George Boucher against Fred Herman.

A motion for bond for costs in the case of Truman Clark against Moses Thalhimer and others went off, while a motion of argument of demurrer by the defendant was denied by Judge Waller.

The following motions were continued:

Humphrey-Cornell Co., against Ferrissa M. Jenkins; disclosure of defense or judgment.

Robert Goldstein against Isadore Fishbone, disclosure of defense or judgment.

John Wilkins, Jr., against Garde Theatre Corp., judgment for failure to plead.

First Division Pictures against Capitol theatre; motion for judgment.

Margaret S. Reynolds, administratrix, against Jennie E. Smith, motion to join Bess Filbert as party plaintiff.

William Chenette against The Connecticut Co.; disclosure of defense or judgment.

The following motions went off:

Alex Ship against Frank Pnatiuk; disclosure of defense or judgment.

Bunting Publishers, Inc., against Preston Bros., Inc.; default for failure to plead.

Ida Kalmanowitz against Max Lahr; judgment by default for failure to plead.

SIX JUDGMENTS GIVEN IN COMMON PLEAS

Judgments in six cases were returned by Judge C. B. Waller in the common pleas court at New London when the motion list was held there Monday morning.

Judgment for $345.26 was entered for The New London Fruit & Produce company of New London against Nicholas Stadnick, in accordance with a sworn bill of particulars. The judgment followed a default for failure to plead.

Nellie Rae Spare of Fair Haven, Mass., was given judgment against Charles Dadzic, of Westerly, for $300 and cost for damages to her automobile and expenses in connection with an automobile accident between the Spare car and the Dadzic machine.

Judgment for $723.17 was entered in favor of Alex Plonetti against E. M. Sweeney and others of New London.

M. Itzkowitz was given judgment in the sum of $517 against J. E. Brooks, of Branford. The judgment was in accordance with a sworn bill of particulars.

Judgment for $134.75 was entered in accordance with a sworn bill of particulars, in favor of Samuel Feldman, of New London, against John Buchetto of Stamford.

Following a hearing in damages on default entered on Oct. 8, 1928, judgment for $301.21 was entered in favor of The Vacuum Oil company, against the Bendett Tire & Supply company, of this city. Attorney Edward McKay appeared for the plaintiff.

LICENSES RETURNED FOR TEN AUTOMOBILE DRIVERS

Ten automobile drivers had their licenses returned, one was taken under consideration, one was not returned at Monday's series of auto hearings conducted in New London at the court house by Inspector Philip E. Devnew of the state motor vehicle department.

The results of the hearings were as follows:

Peter E. Olsen, New City street, Essex, operating under influence; returned.

Joseph Brocato, 83 Pierce street, Westerly, R. I., operating under influence, returned.

George A. Holmes, R. F. D., Oakdale, operating under influence, returned.

William M. Hyslop, 69 Hempstead street, New London, operating under influence, returned.

Bertelle Taylor, Noank, operating under influence, not returned.

Jerry Bonney, P. O. Box 56, Jewett City, operating under influence, returned.

Arthur Hivon, 25 Gay street, New London, operating under influence, returned.

Frank LaGrua, 4 Cliff street, Stonington, fatal accident; taken under consideration.

Louis Kounas, 389 Bank street, New London, overloading, returned.

Emil Brenek, Box 1354, Jewett City, improper markers, returned.

Ernest Brousseau, Niantic, improper markers, returned.

George Letender, Jr., The Elms, Crescent Beach, fatal accident, returned.

SETTLEMENT REACHED IN MECHANICS' LIEN CASE

Settlement out of court was effected Monday in the foreclosure of a mechanic's lien case, brought by John A. Branch and Elmer H. Branch, of Groton, doing business as John A. Branch & Son, against Joseph R. Dorney of 219 Central avenue, New Rochelle, N. Y. The case was scheduled to be heard before Judge Charles B. Waller in the court of common pleas in New London.

The plaintiffs sued to recover on a mechanic's lien for $100 with interest due from January 1, 1928.

McCOOK PROPERTY FIGHT APPROACHING COURT TRIAL

All attempts at a friendly settlement having apparently failed, the state and the heirs to the Eliza McCook estate, adjoining the property of the Seaside tuberculosis sanitarium at Niantic, will resume on next Friday in superior court their legal battle which began in 1923 with Connecticut's attempt to condemn some of the estate for the sanitarium. Proceedings will be resumed before Judge John Richard Booth of Danbury at 10 a. m., in New London.

It is the state's claim that overcrowded conditions exist at the sanitarium, which is now running at maximum capacity of 58 boys and girls, that the present building is unfit and a dangerous firetrap, that a capacity for at least 100 patients is needed and that for the new building necessary and a sewage plant a parcel of the McCook land to the east is necessary. In 1923 Attorney-General Frank R. Healy started condemnation proceedings. The legislature by special act in 1925 took the matter out of the hands of the attorney-general and provided for the appointment by the governor of a special attorney to handle the case for the state.

The state claims that the full amount of land as set forth in the special act (No. 374) of 1925 is needed from the McCook estate for the sanitarium. No land, the state declares, can be secured to the west or north of the present state tract that would be suitable. The state desires to erect a one-story building which will have two wings facing water and the administration part running inland toward the north. In one wing would be accommodations for 50 boys, in the other accommodations for 50 girls. It also has planned to locate this building so that the maximum amount of sunlight can be secured the year around and to permit the construction of an adequate sewage disposal plant. The present building, according to Commissioner Hall, would be used for the nurses, storage and other purposes once the new building is erected.

The six children of Eliza S. McCook—Anson T., Judge Philip J., of New York; Dr. John B. of Hartford, Miss Frances A. and Miss Lucia E. McCook and Mrs. Eliza L. Roots—are opposing the taking of the property by the state on various grounds. Primarily the legal battle is based on a question of the constitutional right of the state to proceed as it has to secure the land. It is further claimed that the state will not pay a fair price for the property, which is considered of great value, being situated as it is on a point of land on the sound. The personal reasons of the family also enter in. The special act of 1925 appropriated the sum of $35,000 for acquiring the land "by condemnation proceedings or otherwise."

If Judge Booth overrules the state's demurrer next Friday, then the defendants' answer stands and the state can either appeal or the case will go to trial.

HOOVER-CURTIS LEGION CHAIRMEN IN THE 20TH

Appointed by Col. Charles Allen of Rockville, state chairman, as chairman of the Hoover-Curtis Legion in the 20th senatorial district, Representative Thomas R. Ball of Old Lyme has completed his organization by naming the following sub-chairmen to conduct the drive for membership in the legion in their respective towns:

Bozrah, Oliver C. Gardiner; Colchester, Samuel N. Morgan; East Lyme, Frederic A. Beckwith; Franklin, James H. Hyde; Griswold, Robert J. Guy; Lebanon, Charles J. Abell; Lisbon, James Graham; Lyme, Ray L. Harding; Montville, Dan D. Home; North Stonington, Horace G. Lewis; Salem, Charles Malona; Sprague, Henry A. Adams; Voluntown, George R. Edmond; Stonington, James H. Weeks; Waterford, Thomas B. Woodworth.

The Hoover-Curtis Legion has been organized to enroll throughout the nation one million contributors to the republican campaign fund. Each member enrolled is asked to contribute $1, but larger donations will of course be accepted.

"We are out to get a record number of individual subscriptions in the 20th district," Mr. Ball said, "and we expect to go over the top in record time."

BED COMFORTABLE PATENT FOR LATE RALPH H. MELCER

The late Ralph H. Melcer, who at the time of his death was president of the Palmer Bros. Co., in New London, has been granted a patent for his invention of a bed comfortable, consisting of a quilted or padded body portion with a gathered flounce, according to information received there.

Mr. Melcer applied for a patent on July 2, 1926, and one claim for a new feature was recognized by the patent office. The patent has been assigned to the Palmer Brothers Co.

Fred S. English and Thomas L. Perry of New London have been awarded a patent jointly for their invention of a gripper tensioning mechanism for printing presses which they have assigned to the Babcock Printing Press Manufacturing Co.

MRS. R. F. SULLIVAN WAS ELECTED COUNTY CHAIRMAN

Miss Marguerite T. Boylan of Hartford was re-elected state chairman of the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women at the eighth annual meeting held Saturday at Hartford. New county chairmen for the coming year are: Fairfield county, Mrs. Daniel Toomey of Norwalk; Hartford county, Mrs. George B. Newton of West Hartford; Litchfield county, Mrs. Warner Maine of Torrington; Middlesex county, Mrs. Edwin J. Reilly of Middletown; New Haven county, Mrs. Richard Tobin of Derby; New London county, Mrs. Roderick F. Sullivan of Norwich; Tolland county, Mrs. Joseph Shanlon of Rockville.

Mayflower Descendants to Meet

The annual meeting of the society of Mayflower Descendants in the State of Connecticut will be held in the lecture room of the Morgan Memorial, Hartford, Tuesday, at 11 o'clock. At 12:30 an informal reception will be held in the assembly hall of the Hartford club, where luncheon will be served at 1 o'clock.

Following the luncheon, an address will be delivered by Hon. John Lenord Merrill, governor-general of the order of the Founders and Patriots of America, whose subject will be American Patriotic and Ancestral Societies.

Withdrawal in Divorce Petition

According to notice filed with Clerk John H. Walker of the superior court, the divorce suit of Aldo John Santin of Stonington against Mary Perry Santin of Groton, which was assigned for trial this week in the superior court, has been withdrawn from the docket. The couple was married May 25, 1925. The husband alleged that he was deserted on his wedding day.

TWO YOUTHS ARE FINED FOR ATTEMPTED THEFT

Edward Fiedowitz, 20, who gave his name as Smith when he was arrested Sunday night with Austin O'Neill, 20, while they were in the act of attempting to steal a tire from a parked machine on Chestnut street, was found guilty of attempted theft and was fined $25 and costs in the city court Monday morning. He was unable to pay so that he went to jail, his whole bill being $35.87.

O'Neil also was fined $25 and costs.

Hon. Richard P. Freeman

Congressman from the Second District

CAPTAIN ALBERT M. SIMONS, United States Army

Judge Carl S. Anderson of Middletown

MUSIC SINGING

He obtained his liberty upon payment of $34.75.

A dilapidated Ford sedan, which is said to belong to the Fiedowitz family on Wauwecus hill was held at police headquarters over Monday until it was taken back to Wauwecus hill late in the afternoon. It was to equip this car with tires that the two young fellows started out on their stealing expedition, it is understood.

EXPECT EARLY CHOICE OF VETERANS' HOSPITAL SITE

Some definite action in the selection of a site for the new veterans' hospital in southern New England will be taken early in November, it is said at the Washington office of Gen. Frank T. Hines, chief of the veterans' bureau.

The next step will probably be an inspection trip by the sub-committee of the federal hospitalization committee. The sub-committee, named to consider the choice of a site, consists of General Hines, Hugh S. Cumming, director of the United States public health service, and Dr. William White, superintendent of St. Elizabeth's hospital.

General Hines stated that he hoped for definite action regarding the site in October but he was delayed by attending the Legion convention. With Director Cumming and Superintendent White he will probably make an inspection of various sites offered in Connecticut and Massachusetts, and possibly Rhode Island, before the sub-committee recommends the purchase of any tract as a location for the new hospital.

CITRON OF MIDDLETOWN SPOKE AT YANTIC

William M. Citron of Middletown, democratic candidate for congress in this distrit, spoke at noon Monday at Yantic before a large group of employes of the American Woolen company at the Yantic mill.

Mr. Citron voiced his agreement with Governor Smith upon the tariff question and upon prohibition, as well as upon his agreement with the democratic presidential candidate upon limiting the use of injunctions in labor disputes. He said he stood for prohibiting injunctions altogether except in a few cases such as unlawful intimidation.

Mr. Citron criticised his republican opponent, Congressman Richard P. Freeman of New London, on the ground that he had been absent or not voting in 38 per cent of the time, while in congress, stating that out of 1,776 bills and roll calls Mr. Freeman was absent or not voting 676 times.

Among the bills on which Mr. Citron charged Congressman Freeman was absent or not voting were a banking bill, a bill to increase the shipping board appropriation, twice on the Mc Nary-Haugen bill and on a bill to prohibit the use of poisonous denaturants in industrial alcohol. He also claimed that Mr. Freeman had voted against various adjusted compensation bills and on the soldier bonus bill.

PARIS LIKELY TO BE PLACE OF DAWES PLAN REVISION

PARIS, Oct. 22—(AP)—Paris is likely to be the meeting place of the committee of experts which will meet shortly to consider revision of the Dawes plan in accordance with the resolution at Geneva, last September.

The initiative in sending invitations to the various countries represented will be taken by the German government and it is understood that the Germans have no objection to the choosing of Paris as the scene for the deliberations. Geneva has been mentioned. But there is a feeling that the American representatives might frown upon the Swiss city, which is the seat of the League of Nations.

The date of the conference has not yet been fixed and the invitations will not be sent out until each country has announced the names of its representatives. It is expected in Paris that the examination of the committee will be completed early in November and that Berlin, after conferring with the other countries, will then fix the date of the meeting, which is likely to be in the latter part of November or the early days of December.

Winner!

The artist friend who advised lovely Dorothy Cray, 254 West 12th St., New York City, to enter two recent beauty contests, is probably saying, "I told you so." She won both of them and a movie engagement into the bargain! Too bad, pictures can't show the loveliness of her skin and the gleaming beauty of her dark brown hair, points which, the judges say, swayed their decisions.

"When I consider how people admire my hair now and how different it was not long ago," says Miss Cray, "I can't help telling about it. Dandruff had nearly ruined my hair. It had gotten stringy, dull, and was falling out. My scalp was terribly uncomfortable. Then a friend got me started on this method of caring for the hair which is all the rage among New York girls. Now, I just put a little Danderine on my brush, each time I use it. Since I have been doing this regularly, all dandruff has disappeared; my scalp has become perfectly comfortable and healthy; my hair has stopped falling out and has become soft, gleamy and pretty."

Danderine quickly removes that oily film from your hair, restores its natural color, gives it more lustre than brilliantine. It makes the hair easy to dress and keeps it in place. It stops dandruff. It isn't oily and doesn't show. At all drug stores, 35c. A delicately fragranced toilet necessity for the well-groomed girl

What will You do when Your— Children Cry for Castoria

THERE is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of this soothing preparation. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and Baby is comfortable. A few moments, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhea checked. Yet this is a vegetable product; a remedy meant for youngsters. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that Baby becomes fretful, or restless.

SUDDEN DEATH OF AUTHOR GEORGE BARR M'CUTCHEON

Novelist Had Been Attending Weekly Luncheon of the Dutch Treat Club in the Hotel Martinique, New York—Made His Way to a Washroom, Where He Dropped Dead—Had Wide Following of Admirers.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23—(AP)—George Barr McCutcheon, author of the Graustark books and many other novels and short stories, dropped dead today just after lunching with a group of friends.

He had been seated at a table at the weekly luncheon of the Dutch Treat club in the Hotel Martinique with Loren Palmer, Arthur Train, Thomas L. Masson and Robert Dickey. When dessert was served he rose and made his way to a washroom where he collapsed. The hotel doctor pronounced him dead.

Beginning his publication of novels with the turn of the century the author steadfastly maintained the highly romantic manner of writing with which he started his career with "Graustark," the realistic school of literature having no effect on him.

He had a wide following of admirers and his pen was as prolific as ever when death called a halt, his last book having been published only a few weeks ago and another one being already under way.

McCutcheon was born in Tippecanoe county, Indiana, in 1866, and was graduated from Purdue university. He seems to have had some doubt in his youth as to what profession he would choose, for he was an actor for a little time and again he ran away with a circus.

But in 1889 he became a reporter on the Lafayette (Ind.) Morning Journal, and from that moment writing became his career. From the Journal he went to the Lafayette Daily Courier, becoming that paper's city editor in 1893.

He remained in that position for several years, finding time to write his first novel, which he called "Pootoo's Gods," but which was published in 1905 under the title "Nedra."

His first published novel was Graustark in 1901 and in what he then believed to be a burst of business acumen he sold that outright for $500. Just how much the publisher made by that arrangement has never been made public.

After that McCutcheon wrote steadily and for the next quarter of a century no year passed without a new book from his pen, and in many years there were two. There was a whole group of Graustark books, all of which had a wide vogue, and among the others "Brewster's Millions" was perhaps as popular as any.

McCutcheon had recently returned from a vacation in the south and had seemed well to his publishers and the many friends with whom he came in contact. He is survived by his widow, whom he married in 1904, and his brother John, cartoonist.

ITINIRARY OF SMITH'S TRIP IN NEW ENGLAND

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 23—(AP)—Refreshed by a few days' rest at home, Alfred E. Smith, will start out in the morning on what, to use his own words, will be the "battle of the Atlantic seaboard."

Except by the press and radio, his appeal to the south and west is over. From now until election day the smile and waving brown derby of the democratic nominee will be seen only in the thickly populated industrial sections of the east.

He planned to leave Albany at 10 o'clock in the morning for Boston where tomorrow night he will deliver the first of a half a dozen speeches between now and November 6. On the way to the Massachusetts city, the governor will make ten minute stops at both Worcester and Springfield.

After speaking in Boston the governor will remain there overnight. He has arranged to leave for New York city over the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad at 10:30 a. m., Thursday. The first stop will be at Blackstone an hour later. Here the nominee will leave his special train and motor to Providence.

He will re-board his train at Providence at 1:20 p. m. The schedule from there into New York follows:

Arrive Hartford 4:05 p. m., (Church street yards). Will remain there two hours, one of which will be used for a parade. Leave from Armory siding at 6:05 p. m.

Arrive at Waterbury at 6:55 p. m.; leave 7:05 p. m.

Arrive Derby-Shelton at 7:45 p. m.; leave 7:50 p. m.

Arrive New Haven at 8:21 p. m.; leave at 8:31 p. m.

Arrive Bridgeport at 8:56 p. m.; leave 9:06 p. m.

Arrive South Norwalk at 9:26 p. m.; leave 9:36 p. m.

Arrive New York city at 10:30 p. m.

The governor will remain in New York city Thursday night and probably Friday night. He will speak in Philadelphia Saturday night but the details of his departure for that city have not been announced.

DEHAVILAND AIR MAIL PLANE WAS BURNED ON TAKE-OFF

CALGARY, Alta. Oct. 23.—(AP)—In an attempt to take-off from a subbefield east of Calgary today a Dehavilland air mail plane of the Western Canada Airways crashed into a bank at the side of the road, burst into flames and was destroyed. The crew and passengers escaped with minor injuries.

A faulty feed line from the auxiliary gasoline tank caused the plane to make a forced landing in field damaging the fabric of one wing. When repairs were completed the ship was started down the field. It struck a bump, swerved to the right and crashed through two fences before nosing into the bank.

William Buchanan, the pilot, leaped from his seat the moment the plane struck and opened the door to the cabin, permitting others in the plane to escape. Those on board included T. N. Clayton, manager of the North Star Oil company; A. D. McNeil, manager of the Western Oil company; S. Leonard, Marconi company operator; P. Down, or James Richardson and Son, Winnipeg, and a mechanic.

CURTIS CAMPAIGNING IN SMITH'S HOME TOWN

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 23—(AP)—Republicans had their day in Governor Smith's official home city here today with Senator Curtis, the republican vice presidential nominee, as the attraction at a party rally and luncheon.

The senator spoke briefly at both occasions, but explained that it was a rule of his not to wage a campaign in an opponent's home town and therefore he refrained from a discussion of issues. His prediction of an "overwhelming" republican victory in November brought noisy cheers from the crowd which filled the Odd Fellow hall to overflowing.

PRESIDENT ANGELL'S TRIBUTE TO HOOVER

HARTFORD, Oct. 23—(AP)—Asserting that Herbert Hoover was a true liberal and fitted "beyond any man of his generation", for the presidency, James Rowland Angell, president of Yale university, today characterized his choice for the republican nominee. The republican state central committee has made public a letter, written by Dr. Angell, setting forth his candidate

WITNESS THREATENED DURING COURT RECESS

CHICAGO, Oct. 23—(AP)—Willie Brown, one of the "floating voters" of the Twentieth ward, was threatened today by Abe Kiass a defendant as he stepped from the witness stand at the noon recess in criminal court, he told the jury today.

Brown had been on the stand all morning in the trial of 16 "America first" politicians and hoodlums for election conspiracy. His testimony had involved Judge Emanuel Eller as the employer of the gang of "repeating" voters of which he said he was a member. Brown declared he had voted nine times at 20th ward polls during the April primary.

His story unshaken by defense questions, Brown resumed the stand this afternoon for redirect examination by Chief Prosecutor David D. Stansbury.

"Did you hear anything when you left the courtroom at the noon recess?" Brown was asked. Over the vigorous objections of defense counsel, the Negro said he had recognized the voice of Abe Kiass one of the defendants as he stepped from the stand.

"What did you hear him say?"

"I heard him say: 'He'll need plenty of guards from now on.'"

The testimony caused a sensation in the courtroom. Michael Ahern, chief defense attorney, sprang to his feet and demanded a mistrial on grounds of prejudicial evidence. He was overruled.

Edward Reinz, prosecution witness, who disappeared mysteriously a week ago, walked into grand jury headquarters today and announced he had been away on business.

STEAMER ASHORE ON ST. LAWRENCE RIVER

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 23.—(AP)—An S. O. S. message from the steamer Cairntorr tonight said the vessel was ashore on the north bank of the St. Lawrence river between Harrington bay and Wolfe Island and that the crew was taking to the lifeboats.

The distress message was received from C. H. Hardy, local agent of marine and fisheries and said that the S. S. Sagerund, 56 miles away was proceeding to the assistance of the Cairntorr.

The Cairntorr sailed from Montreal for Newcastle, October 21. The vessel went ashore opposite Outer Island Rock in Coacho bay the message said.

She is a vessel of 5,337 gross tons, 425 feet long with beam of 55 feet. Her owners are the Cairn Line of Steamships, Ltd. She sails under British registry, her home port being Newcastle, England.

CHINESE CHARGED WITH MURDER OF HIS BRIDE

CARLISLE, England, Oct. 23—(AP)—A young Chinese law student from New York was on trial here today charged with the murder of his bride, Wai Sheung Miao, said to be the daughter of a wealthy Chinese merchant. The murder was committed when the couple were on their honeymoon. Chung Yi Miao denied his guilt and all knowledge of the killing.

The bride was found strangled in a wood near Keswick last June shortly after the arrival of the couple in England after their marriage in New York.

The defendant said that they had lived with his wife's relatives at Buffalo for a short time, proceeding then to England. On the afternoon of the tragedy, he declared, his wife had set out alone for Keswick. He himself retired to bed on account of a bad cold. His wife was a much traveled woman, he explained, and often toured alone. She was fond of wearing jewelry. He told of suspicious looking Orientals he had seen watching them in Glasgow and Edinburg and also at Grange, a watering place.

The hearing was adjourned until tomorrow.

ATHEIST TO CONTINUE HIS HUNGER STRIKE

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 23—(AP)—Eleven pounds less in weight than when he started, a disheveled figure with a week's growth of beard, Charles Smith, president of the American Association for the Advancement of Atheism, said tonight he planned to continue his hunger strike, as a protest against Arkansas anti-atheist laws, until the day after the general election, two weeks hence.

He finished his sixth day without food tonight in his cell in the city jail where he is serving out a fine of $25 for breach of the peace, resulting from his activities against a proposed anti-evolution initiative act to be voted on next month.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 23—(AP)—Many of the younger Swedish nobility as well as members of the royal family will attend the wedding in Pleasantville, New York, of Miss Estelle Manville to Count Folke Bernadotte of Wisborg, nephew of the king of Sweden on December 1.

PARIS, Oct. 23 — (AP) — Herbert Hoover's failure to mention questions of foreign policy is emphasized in all the Paris evening papers commenting on the republican candidate's Madison Square Garden speech.

CHINGFORD, Essex, England, Oct. 23—(AP)—The object of the renewed negotiations on German reparations is "to restore to Germany power to manage her own financial affairs without foreign control," said Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer, in a speech here tonight.

MOSCOW, Oct. 23—(AP)—Great destruction of shipping has been reported as the result of a hurricane which swept the straits connecting the Sea of Azov with the Black Sea. Many fishing smacks were wrecked and at least sixteen of their occupants were drowned.

HONOLULU, Oct. 23—(AP)—Myles Tutaka Fukunaga, who was sentenced to be hanged tomorrow for the murder of Gill Jamieson, was reprieved today until Nov. 19 by Governor Wallace R. Farrington. The territorial supreme court is expected to rule next Friday upon a writ of error which was asked by attorneys for Fukunaga on the ground that he was insane when he kidnaped and killed the ten year old son of Frederick W. Jamieson, banker, of this city.

HOOVER PLANNING FOR LONG TRIP WESTWARD

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—(AP)—Back in Washington today after closing his eastern campaign with a vigorous speech that brought him an ovation in the home town of his democratic opponent, Herbert Hoover began to lay his plans for this long trip westward to vote.

Except for a luncheon conference at the white house with President Coolidge, the republican presidential candidate spent virtually the entire day at his personal headquarters mapping out his course of action for the remainder of the campaign.

His visit with the president lasted for an hour and a half and when the nominee emerged from the white house, he said that he had had a very pleasant chat with the chief executive but declined to reveal what had been the nature of their conversations.

A smile on Hoover's face brought the remark from a correspondent that he "seemed happy."

"I have no reason to be otherwise," the candidate replied. He said that he had not yet determined what would be the subject of the speech he will make on his westward trip but that it probably would be delivered in St. Louis.

LAW ENFORCEMENT URGED BY P. E. CONVENTION

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—(AP)—Renewed efforts of the government "to enforce strictly and impartially the prohibition and anti-narcotic laws," were "welcomed" today by the house of bishops of the Episcopal church in convention here, who called on the people of the church "to set a good example of that obedience to law without which no democracy can endure."

The action is a confirmation of the 1925 convention and was taken after a report was read from the committee on social service which held that no reiteration was necessary as both houses had spoken on lawlessness at that time.

ROBINSON CALLS FOR AID OF PROGRESSIVES

SIOUX CITY, Iowa, Oct. 23 —(AP)—Senator Joe T. Robinson called upon the adherents to the progressive party in an address tonight to vote the democratic national ticket this year, because, he said, ultra-conservatism and reactionary influences dominate the republican party and its standard bearers.

Speaking over a radio hookup that was calculated to reach citizens in four states—Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota and Minnesota—where Senator Lafollette polled a heavy vote four years ago, Senator Robinson arraigned Herbert Hoover as an obstructor of progressive legislation and Senator Curtis as "the king of the standpatters."

SHIPPING BOARD MAKES LOAN FOR CONSTRUCTION

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—(AP)—The shipping board today authorized a loan of three fourths of the cost of construction of four combination passenger-cargo vessels for operation between New York and Mediterranean ports to the Export Steamship corporation of New York.

This is the first loan to be made from the shipping board $250,000,000 construction loan fund as provided by the Jones-White act.

The Export Steamship corporation has invited bids for the construction of these vessels to be opened November 5.

FOUND HER HUSBAND HANGING FROM RAFTER

CHESHIRE, Oct. 23—(AP)—On returning home from a dentist's appointment today, Mrs. Burton C. Woodbridge found the body of her husband hanging from a rafter in the barn. The man was sixty years old and had been in ill health for a long time. Before her departure to the dentist, Woodbridge told his wife that he was feeling fine and would be all right until she returned. He was a retired farmer and well known in this part of Connecticut, coming here originally from Ansonia.

TESTIMONY THAT CICCO FIRED DIRECT AT AUTO

ELYRIA, Ohio, Oct. 23—(AP)—Testimony that Louis Cicco, Lorain dry officer, fired directly at the automobile in which Miss Betty Heywood of Elyria was riding the night of Sept. 26 was introduced by the state today in its efforts to substantiate the charge of shooting with intent to wound placed against Cicco.

Mrs. Charles Edwards, whose husband was driving the automobile; Police Prosecutor Milton Friedman of Lorain and Russell C. Brooks were called by the prosecution in an attempt to offset Cicco's unexpected defense that he fired at the pavement and that the girl was wounded by a glancing bullet.

Former Office Boy At 41 Philanthropist

Fred W. Ramsey of Cleveland to Head Y. M. C. A. in 32 Nations.

CHICAGO, Oct. 23—(AP)—At 41 years of age Fred W. Ramsey, spending a year advancing from clockboy, to office boy of the Cleveland Metal Products company, at 49 he was retiring as president of the ten million dollar concern to become a philanthropist. Today at 44 he accepted the leadership of the Young Men's Christian association work in 32 nations.

Next January Mr. Ramsey will step into the place filled since 1915 by Dr. John R. Mott as general secretary of the National council of the Y. M. C. A. After 40 years' service to the association, Dr. Mott gave up his post last night to address his entire attention to the chairmanship of the international missionary council.

Years ago the lure of Y. M. C. A. work had all but drawn Ramsey away from the Cleveland manufactory of which he had become purchasing agent. He was on the point of resigning to be a "Y" secretary when the factory manager died and he stayed to direct the expansion program of the metal products plant. In 1917 he was made president. Then, five years later, with millions flowing his way, he found the compensations of church and charity work too great to decline, and stepped out from business to enter philanthropy.

He founded the city mission in Cleveland. He directed the campaign that built the Cleveland community fund into the millions. He was the financial strategist of the Y. M. C. A. world campaign for $3,000,000 in 1924, and his past leadership as treasurer and president of the national council made of him the logical follower of Dr. Mott.

Ramsey announced his acceptance to the fifth annual session of the national council today, and, after a tribute to the retiring secretary, said: "I believe that more than any other institution of the world, the Y. M. C. A. stands in a position to help the world's youth in its struggle for fineness and cleanness and beauty of life."

BODY OF MISSING MESSENGER BOY FOUND

TUCSON, Ariz., Oct. 23—(AP)—The body of William Hyatt, messenger boy who was the object of an airplane search which today ended fatally for four persons, was found near here tonight.

George Peck of Detroit, pilot; Bruce McIntyre, freshman at the University of Arizona; Clifford Nelson, deputy sheriff, and Harold Whitman of Tucson, a passenger, died in the crash and fire which followed it when the plane fell in the Santa Catalina mountains. McIntyre, 19, was the son of George McIntyre of Omaha, Nebraska, and a nephew of Senator Hitchcock of that state.

The wreckage of the airplane, badly charred, was found by Sheriff Jim McDonald and deputies who went out in search of it when news was received that a plane was seen to fall. The bodies of the four were found in the cabin burned almost beyond recognition.

The plane was one of two that went out to look for Hyatt, who disappeared Sunday.

FIRE THREATENS VAST STORED CROPS IN OHIO

WILLARD, Ohio, Oct. 23—(AP)—The Farmers' Farm company in Huron county has appealed to state and county authorities for assistance in controlling a fire which originated in Crawford county and is threatening 5,000 acres of the best muck land in Ohio. The fire has been burning since last week.

The blaze is now approaching the storage barns of the Farmers' Farm company, in which the major portion of the year's crops of onions, celery, cabbage, potatoes and turnips have been stored. Unless the smoldering devastation is stopped great damage is feared as the land is valued in some cases as high as $350 an acre.

ANOTHER "MYSTERY" BANK ACCOUNT IN PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 23— (AP) — County detectives have uncovered records of another "mystery" bank account, believed to have belonged to a bootleggers' or gangsters' ring. District Attorney Monaghan announced tonight. Deposits in this account totalled about $2,000,000.

Unlike 15 others aggregating nearly $10,000,000, revealed last night, the latest account was not deposited in the Union Bank & Trust company, the prosecutor said. He preferred not to reveal the details or even to name the bank in which the money had been deposited.

LINDBERGH CROSSES THE MEXICAN BORDER

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 23—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh crossed the Mexican border at Eagle Pass on his way to La Babia ranch, said a special to El Universal from Monterrey today. The dispatch said that the word concerning Colonel Lindbergh was received by wireless on the train on which President Calles and Senor Portes Gil, president-elect, were traveling from Aguascalliente to Monterrey. The two executives are on a trip of inspection. Colonel Lindbergh is to take part in a bear hunt in the north of Mexico.

SLAYER OF BENEFACTOR SENTENCED FOR LIFE

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 23—(AP)—Rex Meade, 15-year-old slayer of E. D. Dewey, his aged benefactor, was sentenced to life imprisonment today when he pleaded guilty to murder. The boy slew Dewey while the old man sat at breakfast in his cabin several weeks ago.

Young Meade had been in reform school and said after the shooting that he feared Dewey, his employer, would send him back.

SAYS SENATOR NORRIS WILL COME OUT FOR SMITH

OMAHA, Oct. 23— (AP) —Joseph Koutsky, chairman of the Agricultural League of Nebraska, announced tonight that United Stat Senator George W. Norris would come out "fatly and unqualifiedly" for Gov Alfred E. Smith for president in an address the senator will make in Omaha Saturday night.

Four Men Killed In Crash Of Airplane

Were Searching Hills Near Tucson, Ariz., For Missing Newspaper Carrier.

TUCSON, Ariz., Oct. 23—(AP)—Four men were killed today in the crash of an airplane sent out above the rugged hills of the Oracle district, near here, in search of William Hyatt, 18, missing newspaper carrier.

The men died either in the fall of the plane on the northern slope of Santa Catalina mountains, or in the flames that immediately enveloped the wreckage.

The dead: George Peck of Tucson, pilot; Clifford Nelson, deputy sheriff; Harold Whitman of Tucson, passenger, and Bruce McIntyre, 19, of Omaha, sophomore at the University of Arizona.

The charred wreckage of the plane was found by Sheriff Jim McDonald and a party of deputies who took to the hills on horseback when reports were received that the plane was seen to fall. All four bodies, burned almost beyond recognition, were found in the cabin.

The craft, a monoplane, was one of two planes sent out to search for Hyatt, who disappeared Sunday.

NORTHCOTTS TO BE TRIED FOR MURDER IN LOS ANGELES

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 23—(AP)—Gordon Stewart Northcott and his mother, Mrs. Sarah Louisa Northcott, will be tried for murder in Los Angeles county before they are taken to Riverside county to face murder indictments in connection with the operation of an alleged murder farm.

This decision was reached today after a conference between law enforcement officers of the two counties.

Northcott, awaiting an extradition hearing in British Columbia, is charged by Los Angeles officers with the murder of an unidentified Mexican youth, whose headless body was found near Puente, east of here, several months ago.

Sanford Clark, nephew of Northcott, listed a Mexican youth among four boys he declared Northcott and his mother had killed on the little chicken ranch near Riverside. Mrs. Northcott, also arrested in Canada, already has been ordered extradited to California.

MANY MANEUVERS ALONG 36-MILE BATTLE FRONT

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Oct. 23—(AP)—The first blow in the battle to keep the Red hordes from capturing San Antonio has been struck by the Blue army under the command of Brig. Gen. Albert J. Bowley and a war-strength cavalry division of the enemy has been routed, with hundreds killed and wounded and other hundreds captured—theoretically.

General Bowley, commanding the First army, which has been concentrated in the vicinity of San Antonio in one of the biggest peace time problems ever attempted by the army, is seeking to defend a battle front approximately 36 miles in length. The army consists of eight divisions of 160,000 men; two corps of 50,000 men and army headquarters troops of 75,000 men or a total of 280,000 men. This is only the paper strength of the army and the actual troops involved are only sufficient for communications and the working out of the problem.

More than 100 airplanes from Kelly field assisted the first action of the Blue army, which was an offensive against the left wing of the enemy, held by a cavalry division. The First cavalry corps of the Blue army carried out the operations and won a theoretical advance of about three miles on a front of approximately three miles.

MRS. FRANCES B. SAYRE WILL INTRODUCE SMITH

BOSTON, Oct. 23—(AP)—Mrs. Frances B. Sayre, daughter of former President Woodrow Wilson and wife of a Harvard professor, will introduce Gov. Alfred E. Smith, democratic presidential nominee, at the rally here tomorrow night at which the New York governor will make his first New England speech.

It was said to be the first time that a woman had been so signally honored in a major political campaign. Mrs. Sayre has been active in promoting Governor Smith's candidacy among the women.

BABY COLUMBIA LANDED ON STRATFORD MEADOWS

BRIDGEPORT, Oct. 23—(AP)—Roger Q. Williams, famous endurance flyer who was compelled to make a forced landing in the heavily-weighed "Columbia" just after taking off on what was to have been a non-stop flight from New York to Rome, Italy, dropped down at Bridgeport airport, on the Stratford meadows, this afternoon in a baby Columbia all-wood monoplane.

Williams was en route to Curtis Field, L. I., from Springfield, Mass., in the specially constructed baby Columbia.

GRAF ZEPPELIN READY FOR FLIGHT TO MID-WEST

LAKEHURST, N. J., Oct. 23—(AP)—The great air liner Graf Zeppelin was ready tonight for its proposed flight to mid-west America, its lifting cells inflated to capacity with hydrogen and fuel tanks filled with gaseous fuel and gasoline, the ship awaited the order of its commander, Dr. Hugo Eckener, who is on his way from Chicago.

Navy and Goodyear Zeppelin corporation mechanics spent a week repairing the damage Atlantic storms caused the port stabilizing fin of the great ship.

WHY CHAS. EVANS HUGHES SUPPORTS HERBERT HOOVER

Because as Between Hoover and Smith He Believes the Former Better Fitted for the Presidency—Does Not Disparage the Personal Qualities of Smith to Prefer Hoover, But Regards Hoover Better Qualified in Knowledge, Training, Leadership, Executive Ability, Talent For Cooperation, Resourcefulness, Humane and Liberal Spirit and Capacity For Attainment, Every One of Which He Says is Important.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., October 23—(AP)—The question in the coming election is whether Herbert Hoover or Alfred E. Smith is the better equipped man to hold the presidential office, said Charles E. Hughes in an address tonight. It was the first of five speeches which the former secretary of state is to make on behalf of the republican ticket.

"We have a choice between two men," Mr. Hughes said. "It is not merely a question as between two parties. It is not merely a question as to what qualifications one or the other of these two men has, considered alone, or as compared with someone else. The primary question is—which one, for this highest office, is the better of these two men?

"The question is between Smith and Hoover, and I decidedly prefer Hoover."

The voters, he declared, were called on to determine what were the policies that would make for the prosperity and the security of the country.

"We need economy in administration. We have had it in an extraordinary degree. No derision or blustering misstatements can alter that fact. We cannot afford to commit the policy of protection to a party that has always opposed it.

"The way to buttress our prosperity, to give everyone, employer and employed, producer and consumer, a feeling of greater security as he looks forward to the next four years with all their uncertainties, to secure the most earnest effort under competent leadership to deal with all the economic difficulties that confront us, is to continue the policies of the republican administration under the presidency of Herbert Hoover."

No Patience With Bigotry

The question of choosing between the two major candidates, Mr. Hughes said, should be dealt with "in the American spirit."

"I have no patience with bigotry," he affirmed. "I confess that I am intolerant of intolerance. I denounce every effort to bring any question of religion into this campaign. We have enough troubles in this country without introducing into our political discussions differences of religious faith. In this republic, everyone has the right to worship God according to his own conscience and we subject no candidate for office to any religious test. This American spirit is the hope of our country, the essential safeguard of religion itself as well as of the state.

"Let us also have the sportsman's spirit and be fair to both candidates. I do not regard it as any disparagement of the personal qualities of Smith to prefer Hoover. Both men have much to their credit. Both represent the American tradition of rising from poor and humble circumstances to great place. x x x Each should have the credit of his achievements.

"But, in my mind, considering the office of president of the United States, there is a wide difference and a clear room for preference. I say this with respect to the qualifications of knowledge, training, leadership, executive

SIX LIVES LOST IN LODGING HOUSE FIRE

CHICAGO, Oct. 23—(AP)—Fire swept through a cheap lodging house on South State street today, killing six men and severely burning a half-dozen others, one seriously. About 80 other occupants of the old four-story building known as the Eagle hotel fled or were rescued by firemen.

The flames started suddenly from an undetermined origin and spread rapidly through the structure. The body of one of the victims was found in a kneeling position beside a bed, as though he had been praying when overcome.

Charles Cook, night clerk, was taken into custody pending an investigation, but late today authorities released him. Firemen said he had been drinking. Fire department authorities described the building as a "death trap."

The identified dead were Daniel Celestine, 70, a cook; John Henry, registered from New York; W. Price, registered from St. Louis, and S. T. Roberts and Hugh Roberts, whose address was unknown.

COMMITTED SUICIDE ON EVE OF TRIAL FOR MURDER

OSBORNE, Kansas, Oct. 23—(AP)—Fred Kaser, who was to have faced trial here tomorrow for the murder of his brother's family of eight, shot and killed himself today at his farm home near Covert.

Before firing a shotgun charge into his body, Kaser wrote a note declaring he was innocent of the crime but he could not bear the ordeal of a trial for murder.

Kaser was charged with killing his brother, Albert Kaser. Mrs. Albert Kaser and their six children and burning their farm home the night of last May 31. He had declared repeatedly he was innocent of the crime and his wife and five children, and the other Kaser families of Osborne county had remained loyal to him. His bond of $60,000 was signed by his father and his brother-in-law, both prosperous farmers.

INFORMATION REFUSED AT UTILITIES INVESTIGATION

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—(AP)—An indefinite delay of the investigation of power utilities by the federal trade commission was threatened today by the refusals of officers of the Electric Bond & Share company of New York to give information about company expenditures as called for by the Walsh senate resolution.

Ralph B. Feagin, a vice-president, and A. E. Smith, comptroller and assistant secretary, again declined to produce the operating expense ledgers of the company or to testify concerning any payments made "to influence or control public opinion on account of municipal or public ownership of the means by which power is developed and electrical energy is generated and distributed." Robert E. Healy, commission counsel, phrased some of his questions to seven witnesses in this language of the Walsh resolution, to be told without exception that answers were refused "on advice of counsel."

55,729 FED. "DRY" CASES DURING FISCAL YEAR

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—(AP)—There were 55,729 federal criminal prohibition cases prosecuted by the department of justice for the fiscal year ending June 30 and jail sentences imposed a total of more than 7,700 cases.

The department of justice in a summary of the year's activities issued today said the number of cases prosecuted marked an increase of 15,020 over the preceding year. The number of cases terminated during the year was 55,429, leaving 18,259 cases still to be dealt with.

The record in regard to osmuggling liquor into the United States by water-craft disclosed that during the past year 370 domestic ship seizures were made and of foreign vessels seized there were 22.

NEARLY $10,000,000 DEPOSITED UNDER FICTITIOUS NAMES

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 23—(AP)—District Attorney Monaghan today said that he intended to exhaust every effort to find out the identity of those who deposited nearly $10,000,000 in local banks under fictitious names. The mysterious accounts were uncovered in the course of special grand jury's investigation of bootlegging and police corruption.

The bulk of $8,105,989 was found deposited in fifteen accounts in the Union Bank and Trust company between April 2, 1925, and May 18, 1927 and withdrawn between January 8, 1926, and Jan. 25, 1928. Monaghan said there are other banking institutions where accounts under fictitious names have been located which also will be investigated.

The accounts in the Union Bank & Trust company were bared yesterday after Joseph S. McCullogh, president of the bank had been questioned by the grand jury.

Federal agents of the U. S. income tax division, who have been assisting the district attorney's staff, have supplied much valuable information concerning methods used in shifting the bank balances. Handwriting experts are also to be called to look over the various signatures.

Most of the depositors gave their occupations as brokers and real estate dealers. Signature cards, filled out when the accounts were opened, gave meagre clues to addresses. Some gave office buildings and some did not list the room number.

MRS. DOUGLASS ROBINSON WILL SUPPORT HOOVER

NEW YORK, Oct. 23—(AP)—Mrs. Douglas Robinson, sister of President Theodore Roosevelt, feels that in phrasing an interview given at the New York republican convention at Syracuse, on September 28, the Associated Press turned a statement intended to benefit the candidacy of Herbert Hoover into an expression of admiration for Governor Alfred E. Smith. The statement attributed to Mrs. Robinson a clear cut declaration in favor of Mr. Hoover but expressed her opposition to religious intolerance and said she could not bear to think of anyone voting against the New York governor on the ground that he was a Catholic. It would have been plainer had this expression been "solely" on religious grounds, the interview also said:

"Expressing personal admiration for the governor, Mrs. Robinson declared that her preference for Herbert Hoover, beyond the fact that he is the republican candidate, was based on what she termed "his extraordinary fitness for the job."

BLASTED TREE CRASHED THROUGT ROOF, KILLED GIRL

MARIETTA, Ga., Oct. 23—(AP)—Hurtling 600 feet through the air after being blasted out of a vacant lot, a gigantic tree stump crashed through the roof of an apartment house here today, crushing Georgia Chapman, 14, to death as she was taking a music lesson.

Her teacher, George Hardeman, escaped serious injury.

Gunpowder was used in blasting the stump which weighed approximately 500 pounds, investigators said. The force of the explosion was felt throughout the entire town.

Office 824 Main Street. Telephone 1121-2.

SMITH TRAIN TO STOP HERE FOR FIVE MINUTES

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 23—Frank P. Fenton of this city, candidate for lieut. governor on the democratic ticket and member of the arrangements committee for the reception of Gov. Alfred E. Smith, democratic presidential nominee at Hartford Thursday afternoon received official notice tonight that the New York governor's special train will make a five minute stop at Willimantic on that afternoon on its way from Providence to Hartford. The train will arrive here at 3:15 and leave at 3:20.

It is expected that thousands will throng in the vicinity of the local station to greet the nominee. The only other stop on the Providence-Hartford trip will be at Manchester.

EQUIPPING LOCAL PLANT FOR NEW SILK COMPANY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 23—Boilers for heating purposes are being made ready and the electrical equipment for machine operation and lighting is being installed in the former No. 2 mill of the Quidnick-Windham plant in preparation for the arrival of the new silk industry. Representatives of the concern will be in this city the latter part of the week and will take up the applications of prospective employes who are registering daily at the chamber of commerce offices. With everything running smoothly in putting the mill in order and acquiring a substantial list of applicants for work the only present concern of the chamber of commerce officials at present rests in the matter of securing desirable rents for the few who will come here with the new company. An effort is being made to have owners of available rents give notice to that effect. It is stated that instructors in the high school and the new trade school as well as business men have not taken their families here because of the lack of suitable rents. The demand for rents as interpreted by the chamber of commerce is for good rents running from $30 to $35 and even $50, located not too far from the business center, with sidewalks, street lighting and favorable environment. It is understood that a few officials of the new concern will make their homes here and high class rents are being sought by them.

OUT OF JAIL ONE NIGHT RETURNS NEXT MORNING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 23—Released from the Tolland county jail Monday night after serving a sentence for a motor vehicle law violation, Raymond Knotka, 19, of Storrs, was returned to the jail to serve a sentence of 30 days this morning when he pleaded guilty to a charge of theft in the Mansfield town court. The charge was that the youth had stolen a camera from Ralph Kennerson of Storrs last June. Justice of the Peace A. M. Gilman imposed a fine of $10 and costs, remitting the fine, and imposing the jail sentence. Knotka will also be required to pay or work out the costs of $15.70.

At a session of the Mansfield court held Monday night, Nathan Pollack of Gurleyville pleaded not guilty to a charge of issuing a fraudulent check to Ben Kirschner of Mansfield in June of last year. Testimony was to the effect that Pollack issued a check for $140 at a time when he lacked sufficient funds in the bank to cover the amount. Kirschner said that after some trouble he secured $70 but got only promises on the balance. Pollack was fined $25 and costs, amounting to $44.25, which was paid, and a ten-day jail sentence suspended for one year. The case was heard by Justice of the Peace Gilman, with Grand Juror Carleton P. King prosecuting and Attorney H. S. Gaucher representing the defendant.

An interesting array of portraits of every president of the chamber of commerce since its organization as the old Willimantic board of trade in 1887 is to be seen in the secretary's conference room. The local chamber was the second in the state, New Haven boasting of the first commercial organization of its character in Connecticut. The framed portraits bear brass plates listing the name of the past president and his years of service. With Ansel Arnold as the first president in 1887 the list of presidents and terms are: George E. Stiles, 1888-1903; Frank Larrabee, 1904-1907; Justice George E. Hinman, 1908; Henry T. Burr, 1909-10; Walter B. Knight, 1912; Judge William A. Arnold, 1913-14; John C. Tracy, 1915; Fred D. Jordan, 1916; George F. Taylor, 1916-17; Judge Frank H. Foss, 1918-19; James B. Fullerton, 1920-21; Charles W. Hill, 1922; Valentine L. Murphy, 1923-24; James P. Bath, 1925; A. Linn Weatherhead, 1926-27; and Frank P. Fenton, 1927-28.

An instructive motion picture film entitled Vanishing Fortunes accompanied by a talk on Life Insurance Trusts by C. T. Steven, representative of the Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance company of Hartford made up an excellent program at the weekly meeting of the Willimantic Rotary club held in the Nathan Hale hotel this noon. The operating of the picture machines was in charge of Charles Brooks and Samuel Lavitt, also of Hartford. Walter S. Barnes, chairman of the program, stated that the film was furnished through the courtesy of the Windham National bank in introducing the speaker and his associates. Guests introduced by President Raymond A. Parker were: Rotarian, Albert Murdock of Providence, R. I., Herbert D. Pollard and H. Clinton Lathrop of the Windham bank. The regular meeting for next week will be held at noon Monday, instead of Tuesday, when a speaker on immigration will be heard. John F. Ahern, Roland B. Jordan and John Reilly were appointed a committee in charge of the ticket sale for a charity whist to be staged next week by the Catholic Welfare Council and the St. Vincent de Paul society.

Dominick Buomone of Waterbury pleaded not guilty to a charge of reckless driving at the session of police court this morning. In view of extenuating circumstances, the charge was amended to one of failure to give the right of way and the accused changed his plea to one of guilty. He was fined $5 and costs. Buomone was arrested after his machine had collided with a silent policeman on Main street on October 16. Two intoxicants were taken to the county jail when they were unable to pay the fines and costs imposed.

Cecero Demosthenes Chapman, former postmaster of Westford Village, town of Ashford, for several years, died at his home in Westford early this morning. JEWETT CITY

WHEEL FROM A. & P. TRUCK BANGS INTO ANDERSON HOME

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Oct. 23—Mrs. Harry Anderson and her baby in a crib near her bed, were almost literally jarred out of bed, about six o'clock this morning, when a wheel detached itself from the front of an A. & P. truck and catapulted against the house. A great dent was made in the side of the house, laths and plaster being knocked down. A new sewing machine was broken and a bureau knocked over. Mrs. Anderson and the child were not injured. Mr. Anderson was starting a fire and his wife thought the stove had exploded. The house, one of the oldest in town, always called by older residents the "gambrel roof house," is set close to the sidewalk and made a good target for the wheel. The building is owned by the Ninigret Co., and is occupied by Harry Anderson and Adelard LaPorte.

The driver of the truck was not injured and stopped the machine a short distance from the house. He considered himself fortunate that the wheel did not come off while crossing Lisbon bridge, only a few yards away.

Miss Ellen Mehegan, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor and Francis McGurk was best man. The ushers were Edward Driscoll, brother of the bride and Nicholas Mehegan, brother of the bridegroom. The bride wore a period gown of white satin with a veil of tulle and lace caught with orange blossoms, she carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies-of-the-valley. The maid of honor wore shell pink taffeta with a picture hat to match and carried an arm bouquet of sweetheart roses. A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents, which about 30 guests attended. Upon their return from a honeymoon trip to Niagara Falls and Canada, Mr. and Mrs. Mehegan will reside in Hartford.

John W. Riper and family of Hartford spent Sunday at their cottage at Lake Oxoboxo.

NO PATIENCE WITH CHILDREN

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Steadied Her Nerves

Dalton, Pa.—"I was weak, nervous and run-down before my last baby was born. My other children tired me. I had no patience with them and they just wore me out. My mother told me about someone who took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it helped her. I took it myself and got fine results. I am getting along fine now, thanks to your Vegetable Compound. My husband and I both feel sure that it helped me."—Mrs. Raymond Stage, R. F. D. 2, Dalton, Pa.

M. P. CAN'T RESIGN BUT FINDS WAY OUT

ASHTON-UNDERLYNE, England (AP)—Sometimes it is easier to get into Parliament than to get out. Mr. C. W. J. Homan, member of parliament for this district found that out when he tried to resign. Under an old principle of English law this is forbidden. But there is a way out.

Mr. Homan has applied for membership in the Chiltern Hundreds. This is an office under the Crown with an annual salary of $5. As a member of parliament can accept a salaried crown office without his parliamentary seat automatically becoming vacated, application for the Chiltern Hundreds is tantamount to resigning from parliament.

A "hundred" was the name given in ancient times to a division of an English county in which 100 Anglo-Saxon warriors lived. The Chiltern Hundreds are situated in the Chiltern Hills, near Stoke.

There were originally eight such hundreds but only two have survived. Those of Chiltern and Northstead.

Patient—Doctor, your advice is superfluous. I have lived in boarding houses for 25 years.—The Pathfinder.

Check Us Up On Quality—Service—Price

The next time you need a tire, drop in and talk it over.

We won't strong-arm you or slip a tire on your car when you're not looking.

We won't sing you to sleep with a lot of smooth-sounding talk about "big bargains" and "Special Deals."

You won't have to wade through a lot of "applesauce." But here's the point—We think from a standpoint of location, equipment, the tires we sell, the prices we charge and the service we render, that we deserve the patronage of every car owner in Norwich and vicinity who is looking for a dependable place to buy a good tire at the right price. So—the next time you're faced with the sad necessity of buying a tire—drop in and talk it over. You ought to know exactly what we have to offer, before you make your final decision.

We sell The World's Greatest Tire and our prices are Right—so's our service.

DANIELSON

WILDA AGAIN ARRESTED FOR AUTO LAW VIOLATION

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 23—Nestor Wilda of Canterbury is in difficulties again. He was arrested today while driving a truck loaded with newly pressed out cider from a cider mill in Brooklyn, and presumably headed for his home. Wilda lost his operator's license about two months ago after he had been presented in court in the town of Plainfield and found guilty of operating a motor vehicle while he was under the influence of an intoxicant. His license has since remained under suspension, and for that reason he was again taken into custody by a state officer today when found operating with no authority to do so.

Today the body of Mrs. Jane Elizabeth Matteson, 84, widow of James B. Matteson, was brought here in charge of Undertaker A. F. Wood from Auburn, R. I., where Mrs. Matteson died last night. Mrs. Matteson was a native of Tolland, a daughter of George and Mary Wilbur Parkhurst. She had been a resident of Tolland for a long term of years. She is survived by a step-son, Horace Matteson of Washington, R. I., by a niece, Miss Nellie Parkhurst, and a nephew, Pardon Parkhurst, of Danielson.

At this time it may be mentioned that owners of motor vehicles in the town of Killingly, especially those owners who are in possession of no other taxable property, will do well to file a valuation of them with the assessors. It has been found in the past that some automobile owners, having nothing else taxable, do not report ownership of a car to the assessors. Such a practice will avail them little, for the assessors are now supplied by the state motor vehicle department with a list of every motor vehicle owned in this town. If an owner does not report his car for taxation, the assessors will list it at a reasonable valuation, and then add 10 per cent, as they must do under the law on all taxable properties on which lists are not filed before November 1.

Miss Marion D. Chollar and Miss Emma F. Pilling, representing the Killingly Woman's club, were at Hartford Monday as guests of the Hartford Woman's club. The occasion was Federation day and the principal address was delivered by Miss Emily Louise Plumley, president of the General Federation of Woman's club. Tea was served in the music room of the clubhouse.

State officers located here continue to check up motorists as to having proper brakes on the machines they are operating. The latest summonses to court were issued to operators found traveling in the town of Brooklyn. Five such cases were disposed of last evening in Brooklyn before Miss Laura Pike, justice of the peace. Fines of $1.00 and costs were imposed where brakes were found deficient, and in another instance a driver paid a similar fine for operating while being without his registration.

At her home in Elmville last evening Miss Elsie Ray entertained a dozen of her girl friends at a whist, Miss Flora Keech winning first honors, while consolation honors went to Miss Helen Keech. Refreshments were served. Miss Ray's guests were: Miss Lucile Caron, Miss Mary Walsh, Miss Julia O'Neill, Miss Gladys Cook, Miss Flora Keech, Miss Dorothy Burton, Mrs. Irma Keech, Miss Alice Jordan, Miss Helen Keech, Miss Ruth Cunneen, Miss Marjorie I. Gaffney and Miss Doris Shipman.

In response to recommendations received from the missionary representative of the church in Porto Rico, the Baptist church of Danielson has collected and forwarded to the stricken island two large boxes of clothing and 60 pounds of baby food. The response of the members of the Baptist church to the request was prompt and generous. Other churches of the borough are to forward similar relief supplies within the next few days.

The weather prophets are still with us! This morning The Bulletin received through the mails a written forecast of a happy and encouraging nature. The writer of it says that no really cold weather is to be expected until after November 20, and that Indian summer weather is yet three weeks ahead. The writer calls attention to the fact that even though October has brought superbly beautiful days November is just as apt as not to equal that record, and seems destined to do so this fall.

A cleverly devised and effective form of an advance notice to those who are subject to paying personal taxes in Connecticut, devised by Personal Tax Collector Arthur A. Dean of this town, has made such an impression in the tax commissioner's office at Hartford that samples are to be furnished to personal tax collectors in many towns of Connecticut. The form that Mr. Dean has prepared gets away from the staid and more or less inadequate notices that have been in use for years throughout this state. It includes information as to the groups of people on which personal taxes are assessed, contains facts that answer the stock questions that such taxpayers usually ask of a collector, the amount of the tax, when and where to pay it, etc. Mr. Dean has done the state a service in preparing this form, originally intended for use exclusively in Killingly.

On the Hawkins street extension work has been advanced in such degree as to forecast the completion of what it is planned to do there before the winter season sets in. This work involves caring for drainage requirements and grading with gravel. The town authorized this improvement and made an appropriation for it at a town meeting several months ago. When the work is completed Hawkins street will extend from Broad street eastward to the foot of Orient Heights. Some houses already have ben constructed through the section where the street improvement is being made. Others are to be built, and a prospect of the not distant future is the opening up of a proposed street that will run across the easterly end of Hawkins street from Reynolds to L'Homme street.

Up at Estevan, Sask., where winter is not so far away, Rev. F. X. Richards, M. S., has planned for this week a three-nights bazaar that is expected to produce a large amount of revenue for the parish of which he is the pastor. Fr. Richards is rounding out two years of service in the Canadian Northwest since leaving Danielson, where he was a curate for several years in St. James' parish. That section has been exceptionally prosperous this year, due to an exceptionally fine wheat crop.

A very enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Miss Blanche Reeves of Riverview last Friday, when 25 of her friends from the Paco and Woolworth Co. gave a surprise party in her honor. Music, dancing and games were features of the good time, and later, dainty refreshments of sandwiches, coffee, cake, ice cream and fruit were served. Miss Reeves was presented with a pair of handsome budoir lamps.

Friends were present from Danielson, Dayville and Attawaugan.

Mrs. Frank J. Gorman left today to spend a few days with friends in Marlboro.

A Halloween party is planned by the Tri-Y and Hi-Y members when they meet jointly next Tuesday evening at the Westfield Congregational church.

Andrew L. Spellman was fined $10 and costs in the town court by Judge W. Fenner Woodward this morning for failure to grant the right of way when his car was in an accident near Dayville on the night of October 12. Yesterday Mr. Spellman was fined in the Willimantic police court for another minor violation of the motor vehicle laws.

On November 24, Rev. Joseph A. Demers, M. S., will be in Canada to attend the 100th anniversary of a relative a grand aunt who still is active and in good health.

Members of the Danielson Girls' club have a Halloween party planned for the coming week.

Hiram W. Burton, who is a patient at Wangum Health lodge at Wethersfield, was reported today as being considerably improved.

Though another fortnight may elapse before he is able to return to his home here after undergoing a surgical operation at the hospital in Putnam, Dr. Warren A. Tanner is showing steady progress toward recovery.

At Ledge hill, about midway between Danielson and Brooklyn, the grade is being cut down several feet at one point as a feature of the reconstruction of the highway, blasting being necessary to remove the rock of the ledge at this particular point.

John Nolan returned today from Boston, where he attended on Monday a gathering of representatives of Rexall dealers from various sections of southern New England.

Frederick E. Bitgood was in Boston today on a business trip.

The Friendly circle will hold a food and fancy work sale in Wm. Shippee's hall, in E. Killingly, afternoon and evening. Oct. 26th—adv.

Ellsworth C. Babson of the West Side makes known that he was a member of the Cadets of Honor and Temperance that flourished here more than 40 years ago. An effort has been made this week to locate members of this group. Mr. Babson said today that he was one of the last members to be received, and that as he recalls he joined in either 1880 or 1881.

Motorists who were out late last night told today of the difficulties they experienced in getting their cars safely home through one of the most dense fogs prevailing here in a long time. In some instances parties were two to three hours late in getting home.

Residents along trunk line highways in Danielson have been forbidden to burn fallen leaves on these highways, so have been gathering them from their lawns and taking them elsewhere for disposal.

November 7 promises to be a day when many persons will spend at least a part of their time removing presidential markers from their automobiles, for all who are carrying such devices on machines cannot possibly be right.

NORTH LYME

Reginald Stark of this place and Miss Hazel Purinton of Hartford were married Saturday in Hartford. Miss Purinton taught the school on Bill Hill last year and both are favorites among a large circle of friends. They will make their home in Mrs. Mary Comstock's house at Old Hamburg.

Mrs. Mary Sisson and W. M. Sisson were in Norwich Wednesday.

Mrs. Marion Champlin of East Lyme and Mrs. Cora Rogers of Old Lyme are spending the week at G. H. Strong's.

H. Maynard and N. S. Strong were in Waterford Friday.

W. M. Sisson and family were in New London Saturday.

PUTNAM

POMFRET FARM HOUSE BURNED; LOSS $20,000

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 23—The large house known to hundreds in this section of the country as the "Fayette Wright" house in Pomfret, now owned by Burt Bosworth, former Woodstock mail carrier, burned completely to the ground shortly after noon today, together with the household furnishings of Mr. Bosworth and his tenant, Matthew Murray, an employe of the Kimball estates in Pomfret.

The origin of the blaze was thought to be from a defective chimney, as the flames were discovered creeping across the roof of the structure from the chimney by Frank Weeks of this city, who was driving by the house a few minutes before noon.

Mr. Weeks gave the alarm and summoned help, but fanned by winds, the blaze spread across the roof and within a few moments the whole house was enveloped in the flames. A number of men from the surrounding districts carried water in buckets from a nearby brook, but the small quantities proved to be of little avail in the way of extinguishing the flames and saving the property from complete destruction. A few chairs were taken from the house by onlookers, who were forced to give up their task because of the fury of the flames.

The house was built a few years ago by Mr. Wright, who later sold the large farm to Mr. Bosworth. It was of colonial architecture and contained about 25 rooms. In the rear of the house was a large barn, housing hay and cattle, which was saved only because the wind was blowing in the opposite direction.

Volumes of dense black smoke trailed high into the skies and attracted the attention of nearly a hundred people, who could but stand by and watch the property crumble under the heat of the terrific flames. The minimum loss is estimated to be about $20,000, which is partly covered by insurance. The progress of the fire was punctuated by the crashing down of the roof and from time to time the snapping of a scorching window glass, and the tumbling of the walls. In about an hour's time the house that was one of the best farm houses in the town of Pomfret was nothing but a smouldering mass of ruins and a memory of a former day.

Adjt. Henry N. Converse and John Mayo, delegates from the A. Wilder Merriam camp of the United Spanish War Veterans, returned to their homes in this city Friday evening from the national convention of the organization held in Havana, Cuba, last week. Mr. Converse said that the New England delegation had a most delightful ocean trip and were impressed by the southern hospitality of the people of the south. During the stay in Havana, the monument to the soldiers who wrested Cuba from hands of Spanish control, destroyed in a recent tropical hurricane, was rededicated. Visits were paid to San Juan hill, Santiago, and other battlefields, where scrimmages took place with the Spaniards during the conflict of 1898.

Putnam health circles are again threatened with an outbreak of measles if an effort to prevent spread is not made by every family in the city, Health Officer Peter A. Gardner said this morning. Five cases of measles are now known within the city limits and possibly more that have not been reported to the health officials. All of the cases are of a mild form and are being closely guarded by the health officials since the rules of quarantine are being enforced.

Mr. Gardner said this morning that he has little fear for the spread of the disease in families where the parents have engaged physicians as the development of the case is reported to the health department, but that he is forced to keep a sharp outlook for the disease where no doctors are present, as the parents do not report condition of the children stricken with the disease. This allows the family to go unquarantined and exposes other persons to the disease.

Joseph Tribler of Webster, arrested in that town last Friday morning on a charge of non-support, was re-arrested this morning by Patrolman Benoe Durand of the Putnam police, for failure to appear in court to answer to the previous charge. Tribler was employed as a mason in Putnam. Officer John C. Templeton of the Webster police took Tribler into custody.

Boxing activities are to be resumed in Putnam within a month, according to a report from the officials of the Putnam Sporting club, who announced that the recent controversy resulting in the suspension of the state A. A. U. commission after a fighter had been killed in the ring in Middletown, had been settled and a new commission would be appointed soon. As soon as licenses are granted to the clubs the Putnam promoters will revive the boxing bills once so popular with the fans.

The teachers of the schools of the state will meet at state conventions to be held in the various cities Friday. The faculty members from Putnam will go to New London to attend the convention. Supt. of Schools Leon M. Farrin announced today that all public schools of the town educational department will be closed on Friday and will not reopen again until Monday morning.

War memories were revived in conversations among the ex-service men in several congregating places last evening and the chief topic of discussion was the battle of the Argonne which opened on Oct. 22, 1918, and continued until Nov. 11 of the same year. This was the last great drive on the Western battle front and several Putnam soldiers figured in that great engagement, among those being Charles A. Ryan, Captain of Police Jarvis and Leon A. Talbot. Mr. Ryan was the first Putnam boy to be wounded in that battle. In the tales of that eventful evening of the war days, Mr. Ryan said the first guns opened fire early in the afternoon and shell rained over the American forces all evening, as they pushed on. Mr. Ryan with two buddies continued in the lines of the A. E. F. until 2 a. m. the following morning when the explosion of an enemy shell injured and stunned them. They were confined to hospital for several weeks before they were able to return to the battle lines.

Miss Elizabeth Francis of Danielson has been secured as physical training instructor in the schools of Putnam and will begin her duties on Nov. 1. Miss Francis will serve in this capacity at no expense to the town school department, except for her daily transportation to Putnam. She is a graduate of the three-year course at the Posse Nissen school of Boston.

Judge M. H. Geissler, clerk of the Putnam town school board, was today engaged in making a complete enumeration of the children under 15 years of age enrolled in the schools of Putnam. When the school census was taken a year ago, the enumerators of the town failed to make a record of over a half hundred children in the schools, resulting in a considerable loss to the town on the state educational aid, as a sum amounting to slightly over $2 is received from the state for each child under 15 years of age enrolled in the schools of the city.

A brief dispatch in The Bulletin of Tuesday said that Arthur C. Keith of this city has been appointed a chairman of the Hoover-Curtis Legion in Connecticut by Col. Charles H. Allen, chairman of the state campaign fund. The purpose of the appointment of Mr. Keith, together with four other chairmen, is to secure 62,000 enrollments at $1 each for the advancement of the Hoover and Curtis cause in this state.

Howard H. Sherriffs, superintendent of the Waterman Worsted company, is the beneficiary of much of the large estate left by his mother, who recently died in Fitchburg. According to a dispatch, Mr. Sherriffs is now the owner of 225 shares of Aetna Mills stock, preferred, and the residue of the estate is divided among five children. Mr. Sherriffs is a joint executor of the will.

Carlus Tourtellotte, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tourtellotte of Farrows street, who sustained a slight injury in the Putnam high school and Bartlett high school football game at Webster Saturday, has recovered from his injury and will probably be back in the lineup next week. It was thought at first that the player would be kept on the sidelines for the remainder of the season, as it was erroneously reported that his ankle had been broken.

Dr. Marguarite Bullard has returned to her practice after an illness of several weeks that confined her to the Day-Kimball hospital.

Many of the Catholic clergymen of this section of the county will be at the Immaculate Conception church in Baltic Wednesday morning to attend the funeral mass and service for the late Rev. William T. O'Brien, pastor of the church, who died Saturday evening after a short illness.

Hundreds took advantage of the excellent radio reception of Monday evening and eagerly devoured the speech of Republican Presidential Nominee Herbert Hoover, whose voice was transmitted over a chain of stations direct from Madison Square Garden in New York.

NORTH STONINGTON

Mrs. E. O. Silver, who has spent the summer in town with her sister, Miss Dora T. Maine, returned Monday to Orange, N. J.

A meeting was held in the Third Baptist church Sunday afternoon to arrange for a once-a-month Sunday evening union service, to be held in the different churches of the town. The series will begin the first Sunday evening in November at Pendleton Hill.

Founders' day was observed at Wheeler school Friday evening, with a large attendance. There was music, addresses and the reading of a prize essay by Aubrey Whitelaw, a student in the school. Refreshments were served and dancing was enjoyed.

Mrs. Harold Bliven and two children are visiting at the home of Mrs. Bliven's cousin, Dr. T. D. Maine.

Dr. A. S. Maine, who has been seriously ill for some time, is reported somewhat improved.

SOMERS

Rev. Earl H. Thayer of Springfield, a former minister, gave an address at the local church, Sunday evening. His subject was "Mirror of Europe." Mr. Thayer spent ten weeks in Europe last summer and gave a most interesting account of conditions there.

The Choral society met at the parsonage Monday evening.

The Men's Brotherhood is to give a motion picture program for men and older boys at the Town hall Friday evening. It will be educational in nature and will be given by representatives from the state department of health.

Miss Ruth Cooley, who is employed in Springfield, spent the week-end at her home in Somers.

Mrs. Bert D. Cooley is able to be out after a severe illness.

Rev. Frederick A. Balcom has returned to Somers, having spent the past four months in Maine and New Hampshire.

Charles Chaffee of East Andover, N. H., until recently a resident of Somers, with his son, Ralph Chaffee, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Avery, former neighbors.

Mrs. Hiram Hunt is recovering from a sprained ankle.

The Woman's club is to meet with Mrs. Edwin Thomas Jones, Thursday afternoon, at the parsonage. The assistant hostesses are Mrs. Clifton M. Ellis, Mrs. Charles M. Gager, Mrs. S B. Moore and Mrs. George F. Kibbe.

At the democratic caucus the following were nominated for representatives: Mahlon Avery and Howard Nash; for judge of probate, Ernest S Fuller.

The republicans made the following selections for representatives: Francis W. H. Bill and James W. Wood; for judge of probate, Ernest S. Fuller.

LITTLE BIG HORN VICTIM UNBURIED HALF CENTURY

LEAD, S. D., (AP)—More than half a century has marched across the plains of the Little Big Horn where June 25, 1876, General George Custer and his soldiers were slain by Indians, failing, however, to reveal the skeleton of one of Custer's men.

An Indian, Frank Berthune, recently found it. The skeleton was near the fence enclosing the battlefield. An arrowhead still was embedded in the spine. Nearby was a time eroded rifle scabbard bearing the initials "R D."

Mary Astor and the delightful bathroom inspired by this lovely First National star

"Lovely smooth skin has quickest appeal" says Richard Wallace, director for FIRST NATIONAL

SATIN-SMOOTH SKIN—its lovely youthful freshness touches the heart! What a thrill grips the audience when the close-up reveals the exquisite perfection of the screen star's skin.

Knowing this, motion picture directors make flawless "studio skin" a first essential, for the screen star must constantly face the glaring close-up lights.

Nine out of ten screen stars use Lux Toilet Soap. There are in Hollywood 433 important actresses, including all stars. 417 of these use this fragrant, white soap. All the great film studios have made it the official soap in their dressing rooms.

"A smooth skin—'studio skin'—is one of the most important assets a screen star has. Like every girl and even more than most girls I have to guard my skin. I always use Lux Toilet Soap—it's lovely."

Mary Astor

MARIE PREVOST is considered one of the most alluring stars in Hollywood. "To find a soap as delightful as the choice soaps you get in Paris, is a joy. Lux Toilet Soap gives my skin such satiny smoothness," says this Pathé star.

RUTH TAYLOR, the famous little blonde who stars with Paramount, says . . . "I guard my skin as my most priceless possession and know that Lux Toilet Soap treats it gently."

HOOVER IN NEW YORK

Mr. Hoover not only got a big reception in New York city but he gave forth a bounteous supply of food for thought to the people of the country as well as those in Madison Square Garden who heard him. It was a straightforward, telling, characteristic Hoover speech.

Mr. Hoover dwelt at much length upon the socialistic tendencies which have been put forth by the democrats in the solutions which they have advanced for the handling of the liquor question, the agricultural problem and the treatment of the water power situation. He declared the plan of the democrats is to place before the country a "huge programme of government in business," when as a matter of fact there is a widespread demand that there be more business in government and less government in business. Mr. Hoover pointed out that it was the purpose of the republican party to reach such a goal, that it has been headed in that direction since the war and that it is intended to keep progressing in that direction.

Mr. Hoover warns the country against the policies which have been advocated by Mr. Smith and declares that it would be necessary for our government to become a despotism in order to succeed in business. "There," he emphasizes, "at once begins the destruction of self government. On the other hand such a move would mean a stifling of economic progress as is shown by all experiences where the government has stepped in and driven private enterprise out of business.

The many failures of government in business stand out in support of the attitude that he takes. Mr. Hoover is not the only one who has seen its "tyrannies, its injustices, its destructions of self government, its undermining of the very instincts which carry our people forward to progress." But he hammers home the fact that instead of doing anything that would invite a return of such conditions there should be a firm determination to keep away from them. Government should stick to its proper functions quite the same as business.

Mr. Hoover had opportunity to show what the effects of democratic tariff tinkering would have upon New York and he sent home the facts with telling effect. It is for the interest of the country in general that the sound republican principles of government should be retained. Under the leadership of Mr. Hoover they certainly afford great promise.

COAL MINE SETTLEMENTS

A year ago last April there expired an agreement betwen the mine owners and the miners. Inasmuch as it had been impossible for the interested parties to come to an agreement there was a strike, mines were closed and production ceased. Efforts to bring about an understanding were continued. The negotiations that followed were not successful and idleness was common both among the miners and the mines. There was an insistence upon the part of the miners that there be a renewal of the former agreement. They would accept nothing else. The mine operators had found it utterly impossible to compete with non-union mines under any such terms and there was a determination not to yield on both sides. It was not a case of being willing to be guided by facts.

Some mines resumed business as non-union mines without in any way weakening the attitude of the miners. Still the non union field was able to supply the demand for the fuel so that the strike was creating no hardship on the part of the public. Much pressure which had thus been relied upon in the past for bringing a strike to an end was absent. Idleness, however, got to the point where it was evident that it could not be expected that the old rates would be restored. Conditions resulted in the getting together of the operators and miners in Illinois, with the result that a new wage scale and new working conditions were agreed upon and work was resumed.

The past week the same thing has been done in Indiana. According to the negotiations there will be a two year agreement under conditions which it is believed will be approved by both sides. Thus more than a year and a half after the coal mining business was virtually stopped there promises to be an early resumption. It means that there will be a struggle to get back the market that formerly existed, but operations will have to be governed by demands.

The unfortunate part of all this is that there could not have been a recognition of the facts previous to or about the first of April 1927 and an agreement reached in accordance therewith about that time. That would have overcome the shutting down of the industry and keeping so many from employment. Losses have been caused as the result of that prolonged strike which can never be recovered.

STUNT FLYING

Attention is called in the news to the fact that a young woman has flown in an airplane under all four of the New York bridges. It is considered remarkable because it is the first time it has been done—that is the first time a flier has gone under all four of them.

What is such a stunt going to mean? Is it going to mean that there will be a procession of others anxious to demonstrate that they can accomplish such a flight just as skillfully and successfully? There are many aviators who are unwilling to be stumped. They proceed under the idea that if others have done a thing they ought to be able to do it. In fact they are confident that they can. As to that there may be no real dispute, but what is going to be the outcome of such demonstrations of stunt flying?

It brings to mind that Lieutenant Commander MacDonald placed much dependence upon the success of his flight across the Atlantic in the fact that Lindbergh had done it and reached the conclusion that if he had succeeded there was no good reason why others, including himself, could do it. In fact MacDonald was certain that if an American could make the flight an Englishman could.

Some months ago Bert Acosta was arrested in this state for low flying in violation of the state law. At that time it was claimed, though denied, that he was planning to fly under a bridge in the Naugatuck valley.

Apparently New York hasn't such a law as that which prevails in this state concerning low flying—flying which furnishes an added danger for the people on the ground—but it may yet see the wisdom of such a measure if low flying is to become a regular practice. There is no excuse for such stunts, especially where it is possible for any accident that may occur to involve others. Flying under bridges contributes nothing to aviation. It sets a bad example and arouses competition in something which ought not to be done. Restrictive legislation grows out of just such unwise, chance taking practices, whether it is flying or motoring.

PUBLIC HOMES

Because it has been found that there was a home for the aged in Providence where the inmates had paid for refuge only to be denied such comforts and food and warmth, the Legal Aid society is going to seek legislation which will call for supervision or control of all places where aged people are provided with homes for profit.

While it may be true that there have been few instances which call for such action, those few ought not to exist. In the interest of all those who are involved in such cases it is desirable that protection should be provided. It is serious enough when age creeps on and common comforts have to be sought wherever the means at hand make it possible, but most certainly there should not be an opportunity permitted for anyone to engage in the business of providing homes for the sake of imposing upon the unfortunates. Homes which are not what they claim to be, not what the inmates pay for, should not be permitted to do business.

Such a regulation as will be sought by the Legal Aid society ought not to meet with opposition from those homes which are properly conducted. In all probability it will not. It may impose some additional work, but for the most part it should be welcomed. For those homes which cannot be proud of their record and conduct there can be no sympathy. They ought not to be permitted to exist.

And when the question of operating such homes is getting consideration there would seem to be justification for some thought being given to the proper degree of fire protection for such places. Too often that gets no attention, and yet the aged, the sick and the young cannot be surrounded with too many preventive measures when gathered in considerable numbers in homes and institutions. The fire proof building is the proper solution. That isn't always possible unless new buildings are being erected, but safeguards against fire, proper protection of heating apparatus and easy means of exit ought to be provided.

For ringing a false alarm a Boston man has been sentenced to three months in jail. Rather expensive fun.

The finding of no trace of insanity in the brain of Hickman simply confirms the verdict that was rendered against him.

Speaking of equal rights, one woman hunter has killed another woman hunter as an opener for the shooting season.

PERFECTLY SAFE.

"Well, but," said the girl in the new wood-rose felt hat when her friend in the advance spring tweed suit finished her accurate description of the new girl who threatened to disrupt their aurea, "do men like her?" The young person in the tweed suit stared.

"Didn't you just hear me say they did, worse luck?" she gasped.

"Listen!" commanded the one in the rose hat. "You don't seem to understand a thing! I'm not a particle concerned about this Arnica Jones person, if she is liked by the boys in our crowd! Nothing so instantly stamps a girl as harmless as the reputation of being liked!

"When a man likes a girl, he isn't foolish about her as he is when he thinks he's in love with her. He retains full possession of his intellect and can still figure out the cost of food, rent and clothes for two. And that is much different from the state in which he goes around after he thinks he's in love, smiling a vacant smile, listening as though he expected any minute to hear the angels sing! Any intelligent and enterprising girl on the side lines can deflect his attention to herself easily when he is only at the point where he says, cordially, that the other is a bully girl and, by Jove, he likes her!

"You will observe that men rarely marry a girl they like and it is fatal for a girl to keep herself in this class unless she prefers lifelong calling cards with 'Miss' on them! It's when they hate 'em or love 'em that we should sit up and take notice!

"When I was a little girl my cousin, Begonia, was always pointed out to me as a model for any child who wished to become a lovely character. Nobody, the family said, was so universally liked by young and old as Begonia and how wonderful it would be if I could develop into a woman such as she was!

"You never once heard of a soul disliking her. She was so sweet and pleasant and helpful and sympathetic and self-sacrificing and cheerful that everybody just naturally threw up their hats and hoorayed because they were on earth at the same time as Begonia! She was always surrounded, because each individual had something he or she wanted her to do for them.

"And they admired her quick wit and her keen brain and her cleverness in various ways. The only persons alive who went so far as to hate Begonia were the children who were sobbed over because they promised to turn out so differently. It was just impossible for any one to hope ever to attain her envied heights.

"But, as I grew up I observed that all the men who had chorused about Begonia being the acme of feminine goodness, had married all sorts of girls who ranged from vacant-minded, selfish little flappers, who thought meals grew on shelves in tin cans, to slinky satin schemers, who knew their bank rating before saying 'yes,' and that even their wives did not object to their still liking Begonia.

"Why, she had every single quality which would be written down in a long column if one had to describe the virtues of a good wife for any man, and the result was that not a solitary man ever wanted to marry her! It just never occurred to them. She was a sort of beneficent sunshine that they enjoyed heartily, but when they actually fell in love with somebody else, they didn't care whether it rained or not.

"All that girl ever got for being universally liked was flat heels and seats at directors' meetings and I'm stating right here that I expect life to be more explicit than that so far as I am concerned! She's resigned to good works and knows it.

"Now if this Arnica Jones was the sort that folks shuddered over, or were afraid of, or disliked heartily, or envied, I am free to confess that I should be scared to death, because you know perfectly well that the boys in our crowd are keen on novelty, just like all men. But if you are certain that they all like her tremendously and say so, my mind is at peace and I'll continue with my plans to visit my sister in New York. If it is otherwise I stick right here in town, because I feel it would be much safer to stay where I can keep an eye on Harold!

"We can go and buy your railroad tickets right now," said the girl in the tweed suit, with a greatly relieved air. "Why, I myself heard Harold say that Arnica was the most agreeable girl he had met in a long time and that he certainly liked her!"—Exchange.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

One Who Is Satisfied.

Mr. Editor: After reading a Taxpayer Voter's letter protesting the gas and electric sales department and Mr. Pitcher's account of E. C. Tarbart's sales commission, I wonder if they think we housewives of Norwich are so dumb we can't see through a hole in the ladder as well as the next one. It goes to show we must be well satisfied, or it could not prosper.

Competition is the life of trade and very few housewives (we of the working class) could hope to have the comforts we have by labor-saving appliances if it wasn't for the gas and electric sales department where you get courteous treatment, and liberal terms.

Taxpayer Voter can blame himself if he is being driven to the wall, and I should worry about his taxes; he doesn't worry over me. I go where I get most value for my money.

It is only in the last few years that we working people could enjoy the comforts of nicely furnished homes and good clothes, thanks to the merchants that gave us credit for both.

How many outside the rich, could go to the big department stores where they sell everything from men's clothing down to a box of pills, pick out what we needed, pay a deposit, have it delivered, and enjoy using, or wearing it, as the case may be, while paying for it?

But thank God merchants that had faith in us gave us the chance to be well dressed and enjoy good homes, and they have prospered. They cast their bred upon the waters, and it returned a hundred fold.

Let Taxpayer Voter pay his help decent wages, treat the working class right, and he won't be driven to the wall, as he says he is.

Our slogan is Boost Norwich, spend your money in Norwich. We want to, it is where we earn it, but until the gas and electrical salesroom was opened, working people who tried to progress and have home comforts were obliged to buy from mail order houses.

Signed,
A SATISFIED CUSTOMER.

Some Other Recollections.

Mr. Editor: Some of Mr. Shaw's letters that appear in The Bulletin from time to time are quite interesting to me. Mr. Shaw like myself, must be getting well along in years. When I was a small boy, my father moved with his family from south Griswold to the Bundy Hill farm, not far east of Taftville. The farm was owned by A. S. Prentice, a grocer in Norwich. He was the father of Edmund Prentice who is a well known resident of that city. At that time there was no factory in Taftville and but one dwelling house in the place; and there was but one dwelling house between Taftville and Greeneville and that was opposite the St. Mary's cemetery. The house is still there and doesn't look a day older than it did then. It was owned and occupied by a man by the name of Newton. I was told that Mr. Newton started for the city one Sunday morning with an ox load of wood. On the way he met an acquaintance who asked him if he didn't know it was Sunday. Mr. Newton told him that it was Saturday, but after being convinced that it was the Lord's day, he turned his team about and hustled for home. I don't think the Lord held anything against him for breaking the Sabbath as it was done through a mistake and not intentionally.

My brothers and sisters and I attended the Methodist church in Greeneville. One lovely summer day we went on a Sunday school excursion to Middletown. We went by train from Greeneville to Norwich and then by water on the W. W. Coit. We didn't get back to Norwich till long after dark and I was so tired and sleepy before we landed that I sat down on a stair to rest and was almost asleep when a woman came down the stairs and patted me on the head and said: "Poor little boy, how sleepy and tired he is!" I never felt so humiliated in my life. I left the stairs at once and didn't close my eyes again until I reached home.

During that summer there were a number of houses built in Taftville and a gang of men commenced building a large factory there. By going a few rods from our house, I could see the railroad, and the trains were very much different then from what they are today. I never saw a train then, either passenger or freight, with more than three or four cars. The cars were all very small and the passenger cars were all painted yellow. The locomotives, too, were small and wood instead of coal was used for fuel.

How well I remember the many little things that took place in those days. A man living near Bliss'ville came to our house one morning and told me he would give 25 cents if I would ride horse for him that afternoon to cultivate corn. I gladly accepted the offer for I had never had more than ten cents in my possession at any one time. I rode horse all the afternoon until nearly dark but I haven't been paid the 25 cents yet and as that was more than 60 years ago, I have almost given up all hopes of ever getting it.

Not Tuberculosis Christmas Seals.

Mr. Editor: Several inquiries have come to the tuberculosis seal committee in regard to Christmas seals that are being sold by children in Norwich. The committee wishes it distinctly understood that any seals sold by children in Norwich are commercial Christmas seals and have nothing whatever to do with the Christmas seals sold by the Norwich Tuberculosis seal committee.

SCHOOL CHILDREN RECEIVE GOITRE PREVENTION TREATMENT

By Donald E. McGillivray, M. D., Port Angeles, Wash.

In many parts of our country there is great deficiency of iodine in the drinking water and food. Somewhat indefinitely these districts are known as goitre belts. The administration of iodine to school children, in these parts of the Union, has decreased the incidence of goitre in the public schools all the way from twenty to eighty per cent.

In one high school the girls showed sixty per cent. to have some degree of thyroid enlargement. Most of them were unware of this condition. Others knew they had something wrong, but the condition gave them no trouble. Under iodine treatment this number dropped to thirty per cent the following year.

Many of the operations performed at present would be unnecessary had the use of iodine been understood in the past decade. The remedy has been tried and tested in so many communities and with such splendid results that nowadays even growing children themselves ask for iodine and realize its need. In childhood this preventive treatment is without par in its direct results; it can be given freely without harm and needs little medical supervision.

On the contrary the indiscreet use of iodine by adults may be and frequently is harmful in its results. The rapid heart, flushed face, trembling manner that are symptoms of early thyroid poisoning frequently become worse if the patient is given iodine, and on no account should it be taken except by a doctor's orders.

A drop or two of plain tincture of iodine given in water or any other way once or twice a week is ample for children and does no harm. More than this is not needed as a rule, and the expense is practically nothing.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—Representative Bowman of West Virginia is out running again for the so-called "lame duck" session of congress. He is undeterred by the fact that the resolution proposing a constitutional amendment to meet the situation, completely revising dates for presidential inauguration and the convening of congress, failed in the house at the last session.

As a majority member of the house committee dealing with those subjects and also as a sufferer from the situation which made a sizable number of representatives elected in November, 1926, sit around idle until December, 1927, while men either voted out or voluntarily retiring from the house membership continued to do the legislating between December, 1926 and March 4, 1927, he speaks not only with authority, but with considerable feeling.
